MAKING PLATE-GLASS.

Ingredients are Silica, Soda, and Limestone.

Plate-glass making was once a secret art. The works were protected by heavy barriers and the penalty for anyone who broke in was seven years' deportation! Those days have passed, but even now not many could say how modern plate-glass is made. At one stage, writes a Tit-Bits man, there is a rhythmic dance on it by workmen.

The ingredients are silica, soda, and limestone, of exceptional purity, and after they have been mixed in huge mills the resultant grey powder is ready to go into crucibles for melting. The crucibles are of a special fire-clay, and have to be seasoned for nine months or a year before they are strong enough to stand the enormous heat of the furnaces — 3,000 degrees.

And then their life is but three weeks. Each crucible, or pot, as the result of three filling of the powder mixture sinks as it melts — ultimately holds a ton of molten glass, after about seven hours in the furnace.

As the powder melts it first takes on a heavy, sticky consistency, full of bubbles, but later becomes clear and liquid. At that stage the heat is reduced for four hours, and the molten glass is skimmed of impurities. It is then poured—a wonderful and spectacular sight—on to an enormous iron casting table, hollow and water-cooled, and with a great roller covering it, width.

The roller moves slowly, just once across the molten glass, flattening it into a broad plate—24 by 14 feet. The thickness is adjusted by gauges. The rolled-out glass soon loses its beautiful white-hot glow and becomes greenish-white. Outside it looks coarse and rough, but inside it is crystal-clear.

The next step is to cool it gradually in annealing chambers, and then, after expert inspection of every inch, it is ready for further treatment. Cutters square it, and a lifting iron frame fitted with rubber suckers is lowered on to it by a crane. The "suckers" grip the plate of glass, which can then be moved for storing."

A circular iron table, on trolleys, has its surface flooded with plaster of Paris and water, and on this paste the plate is lowered. Then comes workmen who stand on it and tramp it into the plaster with a curious kind of dance movement. This is called "swimming the plate."

Embedded, the glass then goes to machines which receive it at one end and turn it out at the other ground and polished. To a visitor it seems perfect, but further inspections and tests, with special lighting, follow before it is passed.

A manufacturer whose methods I have described, told me that every year over 150,000 tons of abrasives —sand, emery, and so on—are removed from the grinding sheds and carried to a dump. Enormous quantities of the best rouge, for the final brilliant polishing, is another costly item.

AN ANGLE-WORM FARM.

Fishermen Are Supplied With Bait in a Large Way.

California is noted for its queer roadside stands, its unique cafes and its climate.

There are in California lion farms, monkey farms, alligator farms, ostrich farms, fox farms, and scores of several other farms that are not devoted to the raising of alfalfa, potatoes and other agricultural products.

It remains, however, for R. B. Bilkosky of Alhambra to have the most unusual farm in not only California but perhaps the world. Mr. Bilkosky is the proprietor and president of an angle-worm farm. It covers two and one-half acres. Bilkosky raises millions of these little animals (Bilkosky insists they are animals) yearly. Since he started operations four years ago Bilkosky has shipped more than 28,000 cans, each containing 60 worms, to fishermen all over the country. The season of operation is the spring and summer, as the worms flee dormant during the fall and winter months.

When spring arrives Bilkosky feeds ground bone and refined corn meal to the babies in the hatchery. The female worm, Bilkosky said, lays an egg every day for a period of eight months. An egg hatches in two weeks and each egg contains two worms.

Worms are not put on the market until they are two years old. Bilkosky said, and added, "I've known of worms that lived twenty years and grew to a length of twelve inches."

An All-Mechanical Mine.

There has been opened at St. Clairsville, O., the first mechanical mine, mechanical feed from the face of coal to the railroad car. Obviously, this mine has done away with a great deal of labor, consequently miners, mine executives and others watching the operations, which, successful will practically revolutionize mining in Ohio, if not elsewhere. The new process first uncovers the coal, in which more or less labor has to be employed, then mines the coal, runs it through the tipple, and finally loads it on cars. What the saving in cost may be, after reckoning interest and cost of operation, remains to be seen.

A Menace to Health.

Invisible clouds of carbon monoxide given off by motors standing in traffic blocks are stated to be a growing danger in large towns. Experiments on a guinea pig in a traffic jam showed that gas intoxication took place within three minutes.

Tray, Tray, Tray Again.

In order to determine the wearing quality of a new type of tray, a firm employs a man to wash, scrub and dry twenty trays over and over again, hour after hour, day after day. He will keep this up until the lamps wear out!

THE NATION'S BUSINESS

TARIFF SHOULD SPUR BUSINESS

(The Financial Post)

Tariff Without Exploitation

One fact stands out in the new tariff. For the first time a Canadian government has established the principle that manufacturers will be given ample protection to insure them of their home market if in return the producers will guarantee that the consumer is not exploited. The Financial Post has long contended that higher tariffs need not necessarily mean higher selling prices in the home market. Now Mr. Bennett holds the same view and has exacted from Canadian industrialists their agreement with that view. The success of the new tariff and subsequent revisions rests now with the manufacturers whose employees are designed to be the immediate beneficiaries. If they adhere to their promises if the government sees that they adhere to it, higher tariff will prove successful in Canada.

The country as a whole is now disposed to accept higher tariffs and there is more sympathy with protectionist theory than previously. So long as consumers remain convinced that protection brings prosperity without exploitation of buyers, the new Bennett policy of higher tariffs will remain popular. The manufacturers must recognize their moral responsibility to the consumer, their trusteeship for Canadian prosperity.

The Government thus wields a certain measure of control over prices. A reasonable enough degree of control it is. It may well go further. Price is but one consideration. Quality and service are equally important. Manufacturers must give their customers insurance in these respects just as in matters of price. Given fair prices, good quality and adequate service, the Canadian consuming public will support a tariff high enough to give our producers their domestic market.

The new tariff, being an emergency measure, is not a scientifically devised fiscal structure. Mr. Bennett scrapped the one real fact-finding body—the tariff board. It would help the country if he were to speed up the reconstruction of the tariff board in order that the benefit of further of its investigations may be had for the next session of Parliament, when more tariff changes will be made.

The new tariff should quicken business activity. Besides giving certain producers a better chance to hold their home market, it will stimulate business enterprise, encourage the initiation of projects that were delayed because of the uncertainty of our tariff policy in recent years, and generally start the wheels of business turning a bit faster.

It will not prove uniformly beneficial. It will be found that in such hastily conceived legislation, many hardships have been introduced, that will retard rather than speed up business. Some industries are going to find their costs increased, find themselves generally handicapped by the changes. Only painstaking examination by business paper editors and executives will enable a comprehensive study of the incidence of the changes to be made. This will come in time. In the case of the publishers of farm papers and magazines the new tariff works serious hardship. They have taken away from them the benefit of a drawback on the duty paid on certain classes of paper that they require. This drawback has been of considerable value in widening their circulation and this in turn has been of national importance from the standpoint of education and the quickening of Canadian spirit. Canadian fine paper mills, many of them equipped with obsolete machinery are unable to supply certain classes of paper required in the publication of these magazines and in many cases the quality of paper furnished has been inferior. The elimination of the drawback is a real burden on Canadian publishers. More serious, of course, is the effect on Canadian industrialists, who require strong national publications to place their own advertising messages before Canadian buyers.

Protecting Business

It is reassuring to business men that Premier Bennett is adopting on many important public matters, policies that are sane and reasonable; more so in this instance than those he advocated before the responsibilities of administering the nation's business tempered his theorizing.

In 1927, Mr. Bennett was willing to adopt a confiscatory policy toward the savings of Canadian people, represented by the resources entrusted to the administration of banks and life insurance companies. In that year he urged legislation for the issuance of 4 per cent bonds by the government, with provisions requiring a determined percentage of the revenue of insurance companies and of the deposits of the banks to be invested in them. Mr. Bennett was not then unwilling to tamper with the business-like policies of our financial institutions. He was willing, as The Financial Post said at the time, in its criticism of the proposal, to "rob the thrifty in order to relieve the tax burden of those who do not save.

Now, Mr. Bennett, as Minister of Finance, feels more keenly the need for protecting the savings of the people against bare-headed legislation. When it was suggested in the House that the Government should give guarantees to the banks to enable them to make larger advances to the wheat pools, Mr. Bennett very forcibly declined. He said:

"With respect to action taken by the banks, as Minister of Finance I certainly decline to force the banks to do something which in the judgment of those responsible for their administration they could not do. For I, in common with every other member, realize that the deposits in the banks are moneys lent to the banks by the people of this and other countries. If I undertook to say how they shall administer the moneys lent them, I would be assuming a responsibility for which the Minister of Finance has no statutory authority."

This is reassuring to business men and to those who believe that a sound basis of government and private finance must be maintained in Canada.

There was no reference here, too, who remained from Mr. Bennett's prediction promises that the Conservative Government—if the Conservatives came into power—would undertake the whole job of attempting to relieve the unemployment.

It will be recalled that when the specter of unemployment formed its arrival by early autumn, scores of premiers and mayors went to Ottawa to suggest to the former government that it was Ottawa's duty to create jobs. The local governments, usually so jealous of their prerogatives and constitutional rights, were willing to concede to the federal government any function involving the expenditure of money. So Premier King had a remedy at hand. He promised unemployment insurance—the "dole." Mr. Bennett was more practical and said during the campaign, "I will not permit this country with my voice or vote to even become committed to the 'dole' system." But Mr. Bennett did make statements that led some to feel that he, if elected, would assume on behalf of the Federal Government the whole job of relieving unemployment. He said: "I am convinced that unemployment has now ceased to be local and provincial and has become national in its importance."

Now Mr. Bennett has made it clear that he never had in mind any idea that Ottawa should do the whole job. His conception of unemployment as a national problem is reasonable enough. He proposes to carry on with the usual public works that are ordinarily within the competence of the Federal Government, spending these up in order that more jobs may be created this winter, and beyond that to leave it to the local governments to manage similar construction work that comes within their own fields. "Relief" will also be provided. It may be questioned if relief for the unemployment is a proper function of the federal government but Mr. Bennett proposes to assist the local governments in this rather than to bear the whole cost or to administer a relief fund. More may come from the tariff changes in the provision of jobs than from the expenditure of public funds Mr. Bennett is to be congratulated rather than criticized for having failed to find the unemployment panacea. Panaceas are usually radical and impractical measures that work well on paper only.

SOIL FERTILITY

The most important problem of the farmer today is the maintenance of the soil on his farm at a maximum of fertility. Field husbandry experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture find that the most effective and the best means for the economical way to maintain fertility in the soil is through the practice of an adequate system of crop rotation. This involves no additional expense to the farmer in the maketry of cares and not only improves the fertility of the soil, but also enables more economic use of labor the year round, especially in the variety of production and assists in weed control.

Farmers throughout Canada are urged to visit the nearest Dominion Experimental Farm or Station, where they will see crop rotation in practice. They are also urged to communicate with the Department for the latest literature dealing with the practical and scientific aspects of crop rotation, which is available to them without charge through the Publications Branch of the Department at Ottawa.

Higher Salesmanship. A family moved from the city to the suburbs, and were told they ought to get a watchdog to guard the premises at night. So they bought the largest dog that was for sale in the kennels of a near-by dealer.

Shortly afterwards the house was entered by burglars, who made a good haul while the dog slept. The householder went to the dealer and told him about it.

"Well, what you need now," said the dealer, "is a little dog to wake up the big dog!"—Tit Bits.

There's Nothing New.

Bobbed hair was the fashion 1,000 years ago, and the Vikings had already invented a "clipper." These interesting facts, together with many others of greater scientific importance, have been established through the discovery near Tilsit, East Prussia, of a great Viking burial place, dating from the eighth, ninth and eleventh centuries. Thus far eighty graves have been opened, and there are but a small part of the total. The finds are unusually rich. Each man's grave contains three or four iron swords, as many as a dozen lance heads and knives, bronze belt fastenings, shields and arrowheads.

The women's graves also contain bronze belts, and many hair and cleverly worked brooches and headbands. In one of these graves a young woman with golden hair was found, as also "tongs," which were used to plait the hair, and even to remove grey hairs. The finds will be placed in the Prussian Museum in Konigsberg.

THE ANAEMIC GIRL

Who Has Lost Her Charm and Beauty

"She seems to be losing her looks." This remark is often heard about girls who were once noted for their sparkling eyes, their rosy cheeks and their vitality. The cause is no far to seek—they have become anaemic; that accounts for the pallor and the loss of charm. The anaemic girl, if she neglects her health, may be a sufferer all her life.

Take heed, you pale, anaemic girls. Plenty of fresh air, nourishing food and rest will help you, but what you need most is good blood. Those wretched headaches; that fickle appetite and those terrible heart palpitations can only be banished if the blood is rich, red and pure.

Good blood — the kind that brings good health, is created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The whole mission of these Pills is to build rich, red, health-giving blood. The Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario.

News and Information For the Farmer

All farm products were reported moving slowly on the market, with prices low the middle of September. Peaches were selling at 75 cents to $1.00 per 11-quart basket; eggs, fresh firsts, 33 cents per dozen; wheat 70 cents and oats as low as 27 cents per bushel; potatoes $1.00 to $1.40 per bag and cheese 13¼ cents per pound.

Forty-three bushels to the acre was the yield of wheat at the Ridgetown Experimental Farm, according to Superintendent W. R. Reek. This Farm makes a specialty of distributing seed grain to farmers in the district. This year's wheat crop, thirty-four acres in all, has been sold. The crop of thirty acres of beans has been spoken for, to be taken away next March. There is a heavy demand for brood sows. Ninety-three spring pigs were raised on cheap grain this year at the Farm.

Proper Potato Storage

Cold storage experts advise that by proper curing most of the damage caused to potatoes held in low temperature storage can be eliminated. It is found that the more serious injuries come from the placing of tubers in storage temperatures around 32 degrees F. within two or three days of harvesting. When placed in preliminary storage at temperatures between sixty and seventy degrees F. for a period of six days, potatoes have an opportunity to properly "cure". They may then be placed in storage at low temperatures without serious injury for the balance of the storage season.

Weegly Crop Report

Reports from representatives throughout the province indicate that due to long-continued drought, the acreage sown to fall wheat this year will drop almost 50 per cent below the average. In many sections it has been almost impossible to plow and where cultivation has been accomplished there is not enough moisture to sprout the seed. The corn and root crops have also suffered severely during the dry weather and many farmers have been filling their silos early because the corn is drying up and depreciating in food value. Grain yields throughout the province have been generally good. Wheat has yielded from 25 to 40 bushels per acre and oats from 45 to 80 bushels per acre. Several counties report alfalfa seed yields of from 2 to 10 bushels per acre with the quality exceptionally high. Lincoln County reported a very large crop of peaches, while Prince Edward County reported tomatoes to be not more than half a crop.

There is a smaller area in Western Ontario under after harvest cultivation this year due to dry weather. Eastern and Northern Ontario, where most wheat has fallen, report that farmers are paying more attention to summer fallowing and after harvest cultivation and are making an honest effort to keep in control noxious weeds that have become so troublesome on most Ontario farms.

Less From Smut

A survey of 200 farms in Oxford County carried out during the past week under the direction of the local agricultural branch, showed that approximately 44,000 bushel of wheat was the annual loss to Oxford County out of a total production of 627,000 bushels. The loss was brought about by the prevalence of smut. Only 18 of the fields were free from the disease.

Plowing Match Next Month

The next great agricultural event of the near future in Ontario is the International Plowing Match and Farm Machinery Demonstration. This feature annual match, which brings together the best farm implement men in the country, is scheduled for October 14, 15, 16 and 17 on King's Highway, No. 7, near the City of Stratford. J. Lockie Wilson, managing director, has been hard at work for the past few months and the four days of plowing this year promise to outclass any previous events in the matter of entries and contests. The awards are very generous and every farmer in the country is eligible.

Too Many Fires

The threshing season of 1930 has been most disastrous since the inception of the Fire Marshal Office in respect to fires caused to farmers' barns and dwellings through threshing operations. Between August 1st and September 10th, reports were received of 32 separate fires resulting in the destruction of six dwellings and 27 barns with a large number of small outbuildings, involving a loss of approximately $225,000, of which about $125,000 was recovered from fire insurance; the balance of $100,000 represents a total loss to the farmers whose property was destroyed. Most of the fires arose within the separator or the blower pipe. The Fire Marshal intends to request the passing of an enactment to enforce greater safety in this regard. For the purpose of considering this legislation, a meeting will be held on Friday, October 10th at 10.00 a.m. in Room 340, Main Parliament Buildings, when all interested parties are invited to attend.

The department is shipping a carload of sows to Alfaa Craig district towards the end of October with a view to bettering the stock of that district. The stock were selected from Ontario Packing plants by the Dominion swine grader.

Sets Good Example

The township of Hallowell in Prince Edward County has set a good example to other municipalities in the way of enforcing weed control. A petition drawing attention to the menace of noxious weeds generally, and of the sow thistle in particular, and asking for effective co-operation in the complete eradication of the "deadly peril," was circulated and received the signatures of over a hundred farmers in the township, including endorsation of the reeve deputy reeve and two councillors.

Winter Wheat Experiments

A total of more than 300 varieties of winter wheat, consisting of hybrids and plant selected strains have been under test at the Ontario Agricultural College for a period of five years or more. The Dawson's Golden Chaff (O. A.C. 61) and the (O.A.C. No. 104) still continue to be the two leading varieties of winter wheat under test at Guelph. In the average of the last eleven years the Dawson's Golden Chaff (O.A.C. 61) produced a yield per acre of 65.4 bushels per annum and the O. A. C. No. 104 of 63 bushels of grain per acre per annum. The highest yielding variety of red-grained winter wheat in the experiments which was the Imperial Amber (O.A.C. 92), produced an average yield of 57.2 bushels per acre. The Dawson's Golden Chaff and A. C. No. 104 varieties of winter wheat are grown on more than 80 per cent of the winter wheat land of the province.

Wool Salvaged

There will be little loss to those sheepmen who shipped their wool to the Canadian Co - operative Wool Growers, Limited, as a result of the fire which completely destroyed the Weston warehouse a short time ago. Very little of the 3,400,000 pounds of wool in storage at the time was burned, though all the wool was considerably damaged by scorching and smoke, and further damage was caused by water poured into the building to quench the blaze. To check heating, which immediately followed soaking, the wool was removed to a nearby field and spread out loosely in the sun to dry and this quick action resulted in a salvage of well over three million pounds of wet and damaged wool. The sale of this, added to the insurance carried, officials state, should balance a reasonable market value of the wool at the time of the fire. On the building and business operations for 1930, however, there will be a loss. It is expected that a new warehouse of absolutely fire-proof construction will be erected in time to take care of next season's crop.

WEDDING BELLS

SWAYNE — EBY

A wedding of outstanding interest to residents of Picton and surrounding district, was solemnized in St. Mary Magdalene Church, Wednesday, September 17th, when Edythe Elisabeth, only daughter of Mrs. Eby and the late I. B. Eby, of Bancroft, became the bride of Rev. William Gerald Hope Swayne, son of Rev. W. G. Swayne and Mrs. Swayne, of Bath, Ontario.

The church was artistically decorated with ferns, asters and other lovely autumn blossoms. The guest pews were marked with white satin ribbon and sprigs of white heather. The bridegroom's father, Rev. W. G. Swayne, officiated. Miss Eleanor Holmes played the wedding march and beautiful music throughout the service. The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. George A. Welch, was charming in a gown of pale pink georgette and chantilly lace, moulds' hat and satin slippers in matching shade. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and sprigs of white heather, the latter flower being a gift from friends in Scotland.

The bride was attended by Miss Louise Coleman, of Toronto, who wore a period frock of pale green georgette with shoulder cape, picture hat and green kid shoes. She carried a bouquet of sunset roses with long streamers reaching to the floor. The bridegroom was assisted by Mr. J. M. MacPherson, a former classmate.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Welch, Main St., which was prettily decorated with autumn flowers, the tea table being daintily decorated to carry out the color scheme of pink and white. The bride's mother received in a French gown of black georgette with corsage of roses. Her hat was of black velvet. The bridegroom's mother and Mrs. G. A. Welch also received.

After the reception, Rev. and Mrs. Swayne left on an extended motor trip, the bride travelling in a smart ensemble of crepe romaine in tones of dahlia and beige, with a French model hat in dahlia shade, travelling coat of beige broadcloth and matching accessories.

Rev. and Mrs. Swayne will be at home at Bannockburn after October fifth.

Rev. Mr. Swayne has been assistant Curate of St. George the Martyr church, Toronto, and at one time was in charge of Milford circuit. He was recently transferred to Bannockburn.—Picton Gazette.

Increase Growth in Use of Prepared Whole Wheat Foods

20% MORE HEAT FROM TON OF COAL

Steel-riveted Lennox Torrid Zone Furnace Has Extra Large Radiator—And It's Gas-tight

Many home owners report a yearly saving of from $30 to $50 in fuel since buying a Torrid Zone Warm Air Furnace. The special oil-burning model saves even more, and is recommended by all oil burner manufacturers.

Design as much as construction is responsible for this economy. The steel plate, which is hot-riveted and cold-caulked to prevent leaking of gas, smoke, or dust, conducts heat more quickly than cast iron and is more durable. But it is the efficient design of the fire-pot and radiator which gets more heat from fuel.

The deep fire-pot insures better combustion. The oversized radiator makes the gases and smoke exercising from the fire-pot travel from 15 to 20 feet before going up the chimney—squeezing from them every last possible bit of heat.

There are seventy-nine different Torrid Zone types and sizes for heating every different type and size of building—and they burn and save hard coal, soft coal, coke, lignite, wood, gas or oil. Lennox Furnace Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Ont. and Winnipeg, Man.

SEE.... —AND PLAY SAFE

The old way of choosing children's shoes was to buy what seemed to fit. Perhaps they fitted perfectly, perhaps not. But once growing bones were bent the damage was done. Often, too late, it was found the shoes did not fit—that they cramped toes—distorted feet—and did permanent injury.

Now Jack and Jill try-on shoes with windows in them enable you to see exactly how little feet fit into the shoes.

VISIBLE FITTING
The visible system of fitting Jack and Jill shoes has taken away the "perhaps." Now SEE and play safe.

MADDEN FAMILY REUNION

Members of the Madden Family held a reunion at Central Pavilion, High Park, Toronto, on Wednesday, September 17th. Fifty members were present, representing four different branches of the family, descendants of John Madden, who was born in Ireland, near Dublin. He came to America with his wife and settled in Philadelphia some time about 1790, where his first son, Robert, was born. Another brother remained in Ireland and became an English Church clergyman.

John Madden was the father of eight children, six boys and two girls, and died at the age of 86 years. He took his family to Vermont, when the rebellion started and remained there during the war, until 1796, when they emigrated to Canada. They settled in Ontario, twenty-three miles west of Kingston, near Napanee.

Descendants of four of the boys comprised the present party, a fifth being represented in letters of regret. The children of John Madden became United Empire Loyalists and settled in different parts of Canada. Robert was among the earliest settlers in the County of Lennox.

The bright Autumn weather contributed much to the enjoyment of the afternoon, which was devoted to introductions and games. After luncheon, which was served in shelter and yells, three branches of the Family Tree were described by Rev. W. H. Madden, Mr. Bruce R. Madden, of Toronto, and Mr. John Madden, Calgary.

A bouquet, of flowers was presented by Miss Marguerite Madden, Hamilton, to the oldest member present, Mr. Robert Madden, Napanee, a pioneer in his ninetieth year.

Representatives were present from Napanee, Calgary, Los Angeles, Cal., Hamilton, London and Toronto, while letters of regret were received from Judge Madden, Sr., Judge J. E. Madden and Mr. Andrew Madden, Napanee, Mrs. F. B. Madden, Shelbyville; Rev. D. W. Madden, Henry, Ill., and others. In order to make this reunion an annual gathering, officers were elected as follows:—Hon. Presidents, Mr. Robert Madden, Napanee; Rev. W. H. Madden, Toronto; President, Judge J. E. Madden, Napanee; Vice-President, Mr. Will Madden, Toronto; Secretary, Mrs. Eva Madden Wilkinson, Toronto; Treasurer, Mr. Bruce Madden, Toronto; Sports Convener, Mr. Cecil Madden, Hamilton; Social Convenor, Mrs. Morley Madden, Toronto.

Our hearts are full of glee,
We're the Madden Family,
We can sing and paint and play,
And gather fruit the live-long day;
Sell insurance, or sermon preach
Handle cash or children teach,
Plough the land, or bake the bread,
Or write essays to be read
Women brave and fond and true.
Hennemakers !—we do bow to you.
Learned judges, too, have we,
Yes, we're proud of our Family Tree !

AQUATIC PARK

At a meeting of the Aquatic Club, held September 11th, it was decided to call a public meeting to discuss plans, etc., and stir up interest in the Club's park. The meeting will be held in the Town Hall this Thursday evening, September 25th, at 7.30 p.m.

The Club wish to correct an error which appeared in last week's papers. Mrs. Gilbride has offered the use of the west end of coal-yard for the year, gratis, with the option of a lease for a longer period at the end of the year. This is a grand opportunity to start an amusement park on the water-front. While everyone is still under consideration, it is the intention of the Club to have a place where any boy or girl, can run in and keep water. They have the right to swim at certain hours. There are a number of excellent swimmers and they are our own boys and girls. As it is now, where can they go after 6.00 on a hot afternoon? The bathing-houses at the east end of the town are alright as far as they go. After a boy or girl has learned to swim they want a place where they can take a plunge. And who can blame them?

This is a matter of interest, or should be to the whole town. It is hoped all good citizens will make it a point to attend this meeting and show that their heart is in the right place. Now is the time to get ready for next summer.

ERNESTTOWN W. I.

The September meeting of the Ernestown Women's Institute was held at Mrs. J. B. Sharp's. The large rooms were beautifully decorated with Fall flowers and the gracious hostess and her mother gave us all a hearty welcome.

The President, Mrs. Harry Mott, welcomed Mrs. Loynes and the Napanee ladies, saying it was always nice to have members from a neighboring branch visit us.

The delegates were elected to attend the Kingston Fall Convention. Mrs. Loy, Crowe and Mrs. Claude Thompson.

Making some money came up for discussion and it was decided to hold a series of afternoon euchres at the members' homes in the near future. The first one will be held at Mrs. Gordon Young's, October 1st.

The current events were given in a very pleasing manner by Mrs. Herbert Laidley.

Mrs. Claude Thompson delighted us with a song. An address, "Motoring through the Rocky Mountains," by Mrs. Shore Loynes, of Napanee, charmed everyone. So vivid were the descriptions that we could easily imagine ourselves going over nearly one of the Mountain trails. Not only were the descriptions good, but they were told in such a delightful manner, that the address will long be remembered.

Another pleasant feature of the afternoon was the flower contest (bouquet); Mrs. Sharp's, the hostess, beautiful dahlias, winning first prize.

The District President, Mrs. Ernest Might, is to address us at the October meeting at the Institute rooms, and Mrs. Macmorine will give us a talk on "Poultry."

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

This weather reminds us of none other than the good old sport of rugby.

* * *

But naturally our thoughts turn to the local squad.

* * *

It is many years since Napanee has had a winning or a near-winning team.

* * *

One thing which handicaps them more than anything else is the fact that they have no place to practice and train, nor to play.

* * *

The triangle at the side of the school is no more a suitable field for rugby than a miniature golf course would be.

* * *

Besides being too small and not square, it slopes and is too hard in some places and too soft in others.

* * *

The school has control of a good field to the north of the present grounds, but this has never been put in shape. If this were done, the boys would have a good place to work-out and a decent place for a game.

* * *

None of the professors, this year, are learned in the uses and misuses of the pigskin, so the problem of pronouncing a mentor presented itself.

* * *

However, two local boys have taken charge of things and we hope that this year will be different from former ones.

* * *

A number of men from last year's team are out and there is some likely looking material among the newcomers. Given half a chance, the boys should give a good account of themselves.

ENTERPRISE.

The members of the Enterprise W. C. T. U. and also the L. T. L. met at the home of Mrs. W. H. Vannest on Saturday, September 13th, and spent a very pleasant and profitable afternoon. After the business session was disposed of the boys and girls rendered very appropriate temperance songs. Also a very instructive address was given by our pastor, Rev. D. M. Stinson, and not only was it profitable to the children but to the adults as well. The young people indulged in games and amusements on the lawn, after which a delightful lunch was served by the hostess. The company dispersed feeling that we had spent a most enjoyable afternoon.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Enterprise United Church on Saturday, September 20th, when Miss Muriel Loucks, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Loucks became the bride of Mr. Harry Badgley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Badgley. Congratulations.—Mrs. Fred Laughlin, of Napanee, Mr. Alfred Lord, of Toronto, Mrs. Tewksbury, of Detroit, and Mrs. Baker, of Napanee, were callers at the home of Mrs. Harry Jackson on Monday.— Mr. and Mrs. Kirby, of Saskatoon, were recent callers at the home of Miss L. Hudson and Mrs. A. Peer.—Mr. Clancy.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Daniel Bowen, was held at the United Church on Friday, September 26th. Mrs. Bowen was an old and respected resident of the village and passed away on Wednesday, September 24th, after a long and trying illness. She leaves to mourn her loss, one son, Ernest, and a host of friends.—We are glad to announce that Mrs. O. B. Jackson, who has returned from the Community Hospital at Kingston, is improving very satisfactorily. — Mr. Harold Giles, C.N.R. Railway agent, is spending a few days with Mr. Donald Jackson. — Sunday, October 5th, the Sunday School Rally day service will be held at 10.30 a.m. Everyone cordially invited. — The play entitled, "Who Wouldn't be Crazy" was given by members of the United Church choir in the Community Hall on Saturday, September 27th. We are glad to announce it was well attended and all report a splendid time.—Mr. George Ray is building a new bungalow, on his farm, at the south end of the village.

SERVICES CEMETERY WILL BE DEDICATED BY GEN. CURRIE

The opening of the first distinctly naval and military cemetery in Canada since Confederation will take place at Pointe Claire on Sunday, September 21, when General Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., president of the Last Post Fund, will dedicate the new "field of honor" set aside by the Last Post Fund in the presence of high dignitaries of both Protestant and Roman Catholic churches, officers of the army and navy, and state officials.

The new cemetery is to be laid out in sections, dedicated to the men of the Protestant and Roman Catholic faiths with a smaller section for those of other beliefs who served in the war. There will be 4,000 graves in all. Through the centre of the entire property will run a "Road of Remembrance." At the southern end there will be a low mound for ceremonial gatherings and on the extreme southern corner of the field will be placed a tall flagpole, surmounted by a light which, at night, will be visible for many miles around.

Only one third of the property has been developed, and it is estimated that the total cost of the undertaking will be about $80,000. Those eligible for burial there will be nursing sisters, veteran naval ratings and military men and file of British Empire forces.

A REAL NERVE TONIC

Is a Bountiful Supply of Rich, Health-Giving Blood.

Sufferers from nervous debility find themselves tired, low-spirited and unable to keep their minds on anything. They are totally unfit to perform their everyday duties.

Doctoring the nerves with sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of rich, red blood. To secure this rich, red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be taken. Enriching and purifying the blood is their whole mission. Concerning them Mrs. Albert E. Bentley, Bancroft, Ont., writes: "Two years ago I was a complete wreck; in bed for seven months; extremely nervous, had no color. Nothing I tried seemed to help me till I began Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My condition at once improved and to-day I am well and able for anything in the line of housework."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. William Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SEEKS AIR SERVICE BETWEEN CANADA AND WEST INDIES

The establishment of an air route between Canada and the West Indies as a definite step toward closer commercial relations between the two countries is urged by His Excellency, Lt. Col. T. R. St. Johnson, C.G., Governor of the Leeward Island, who is visiting in Canada.

Col. Johnson said that his visit to Canada had been instigated by three important problems. He wanted to promote trade between the British West Indies and the British Empire on a larger scale than it is now. He expressed himself as very interested in civil aviation in the British West Indies and was anxious to develop Empire flying and assist the establishment of regular air lines between Canada and the British West Indies.

The development of Antigua as a winter resort in order to bring tourists to this part of the world is a subject in which His Excellency is interested. Plans have now been drawn up for a hotel to be known at The Citadel which will include in its domain the country club, golf links, bowling facilities and all other conveniences for a resort of that kind.

"USE ONTARIO FARM PRODUCTS" CAMPAIGN

Premier G. Howard Ferguson, in an address given at a recent public luncheon, announced the new "The Ontario Farm Products Campaign." The Government has recognized its responsibility to the farmer in these times of depression when there exists surpluses of wheat, fruit, vegetables, meat and dairy products, and is doing everything in its power to create a desire on the part of the city housewife to buy Ontario products.

On September 8, the Markets Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture commenced a series of daily broadcasts over C.F.R.B., Toronto, at 12.40 noon. These broadcasts are assisting the housewife in her marketing problems. Grades of Farm Products and the advisability and economy of buying on grade are being discussed. If the Ontario farmer can get a reasonable price for his products he can buy more of the Ontario manufactured articles. Thus every dollar spent in Ontario adds another dollar to the purchasing power of the buying public.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture will further encourage the purchasing of home grown products through the extensive educational advertising campaign in the daily press throughout the Province.

The Crops and Markets Branch has been making an extensive study of Marketing conditions during the past six months and very shortly will announce a new policy in marketing that will will have as its objective, the improvement of quality in farm products, the more extensive use of grades and greater economy in marketing.

Ontario products of quality, attractively packaged, can be purchased economically. Money spent in purchasing Ontario Farm Products increases the purchasing power of the farmer which in turn keeps the wheels of industry moving, thus creating employment.

WHEN TO PLOW

The best time to plow depends largely upon the kind of soil, the extent and kind of weeds, and the amount of time available at different seasons of the year. Field husbandmen of the Dominion Department of Agriculture offer the following suggestions:—

Sod land that is weedy should be ploved as early as possible in the summer, disked three times at intervals of one week to break up the sod, and the cultivator should be used thereafter, when weeds such as couch grass are present.

Thorough working at frequent intervals is necessary if weeds are to be eliminated.

In the preparation of sod land for spring sown grain crops the summer plowing and thorough working of the land is particularly desirable.

Fall plowing is always desirable for spring sown crops in both light and heavy soils. Spring plowing is likely to delay seeding and adversely affect the yield, particularly of grain crops. But it is particularly important that clay land being used for grain, corn, roots or other spring sown crops be plowed in the summer or fall.

Quick action saves trouble and worry. Keep Douglas' Egyptian Liniment always handy. Stops bleeding instantly. Cauterizes wounds. Quickly relieves Barber's Itch and Ringworm.

OBITUARY

MRS. THOMAS TOMKINS

The death occurred on September 5, of a very much respected resident of Yarker, in the person of Emma Pingland, beloved wife of Thomas Tomkins in her 26th year, who up until the time of her illness about six months ago, had been in her usual position as assistant in the post office here, the position she had held since entering here over three years ago.

She was a person of cheerful disposition, always happy with a smile for everyone which made a great number of friends during her few years in the village, and the deepest sympathy is extended to the bereaved husband and little daughter, Mae, in the loss of a kind and loving wife and mother.

Surviving are her husband and daughter, also her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. George Pingland, Desoronto, and one sister, Mrs. David Keech, Enterprise. The funeral, which was very largely attended by many relatives and friends, took place on Thursday, September 11th at 1.30 p.m. from her late residence to Yarker United Church, where a very impressive sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. MacKenzie, of Yarker. The casket was banked with beautiful flowers. Interment was made in White Church Cemetery and was conducted by the members of L. O. B. A. No. 455, Moscow, of which she was a member and a willing helper and by whom she will be greatly missed.

GREECE MAY REQUIRE MORE CANADIAN WHEAT

Greece this year may have to import more wheat. Though a larger area was sown to wheat in that country, the heavy rainfalls and hailstorms in several of the agricultural regions seem to indicate that the yield of wheat may be further reduced and imports correspondingly increased. In 1929 Greece imported 233,710 metric tons of wheat from United States and 160,261 from Canada. The report further states that the development of sales of Canadian wheat in Greece is intimately related with the question of price as compared with competitors, especially with the United States, and also in some measure with a more active propaganda and closer contact between the Dominion's exporters and importers in this field.

FOREST FIRE LOSSES REPORTED SMALLER

Modern fire equipment, improved roads and efficient organization kept down fire losses in the national forests this year according to a report just issued.

Lightning fires put many units to severe tests for several weeks. Greater success in "getting fires young" has characterized this year's operations, resulting in a great proportion of the fires being put out before they had covered much ground. Protection costs have been about the normal figure. The aeroplane was a great help in discovering young fires and often rushed the fire-rangers to the scene before much damage had been done.

OVER 6,000,000

Canadians make over six million telephone calls a day. A large percentage of these calls are to out-of-town friends and relatives. Long Distance has annihilated space and present-day service has brought the rates within the reach of all. After 7.00 p.m. the cost is especially low.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Bisurated Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Acid Indigestion

Gas in the stomach accompanied by a full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a little Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful or four tablets in water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and foul stomach out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never in liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

PLOUGHING YIELDS

A series of studies over a number of years by soil experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture afford some concise and pertinent deductions. In sandy loam soil there is no significant difference in average yield whether the furrow turned is wide or narrow. On clay land ploughing the narrow furrow gives a slight increase in yield over the wide furrow, but it must be remembered that the cost of the time required in ploughing may more than offset the value of the increase in yield from narrow furrows; the increase in yield must be considerably greater for the narrow furrow to be profitable.

NEW BRUNSWICK IS ENCOURAGING GAME

More than 700 square miles of bodily has been set aside in New Brunswick as game sanctuaries, where game and fur bearing animals may breed and increase in numbers so as to restock the surrounding hunting grounds. This is a result of the establishment of the Bantalor Game Refuge and it has the endorsation of the New Brunswick Fish and Game Protective Association and other conservative interests.

The order setting apart the territory sets forth that "no person has the right to hunt or trap or to disturb game, fur bearing animals or birds found within the limits of this game refuge, or travel upon it with either a gun or dog at any time."

WEDDING BELLS

POWELL — GALE

The very pretty wedding of a popular bride took place in St. Peter's Church here on Monday, September 22, at High Noon, when Marjorie Evelyn elder daughter of Mrs. Gale, Albert Street, and the late Charleigh Herbert Gale, was married to Arthur Aaglen Powell, eldest son of Mrs. Powell and th late William Edmond Powell, Napanee. Miss K. Warner played the wedding music and the ceremony was performed by Rev. T. Etarnage Boyle, M. A., D.D., D.C.L., Rector of St. Peter's.

The bride looked very beautiful as she entered the church with her brother Mr. Harold Gale, Toronto, who gave her in marriage. The church was charmingly decorated, the altar in mums, white gladioli and asters, ferns and palms, with yellow daisies at the foot of the chancel steps.

The bride wore pale pink satin and tulle, the skirt, made ankle length, a large soft pink left hat, pink lace mittens and white and silver satin slippers. She carried pale pink roses.

Miss Marion Gale made a pretty bridesmaid for her sister, wearing pale blue satin and tulle, large blue fly hat, blue lace mittens and silver slippers. She carried pink roses. The best man was Mr. H. Goldwin Smith of Napanee.

A reception was held after the church ceremony at the home of the bride's mother. Mrs. Gale received in a gown of cornflower blue chiffon and lace with a blue velvet hat and blonde shoes and gloves. She wore a corsage of small yellow roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, Mrs. Powell, wearing a printed chiffon dress, black velvet hat, black shoes and corsage of pink roses. The rooms were charmingly decorated with Autumn flowers.

Going away the bride donned a gray suit with gray shoes and gloves and wore a green hat and carried a green bag.

Mr. and Mrs. Powell will reside in Montreal and they carry our blessings, to their new home, the best of good wishes from a host of friends here.— Cobourg Star-Sentinel.

HAYBURN Y. P. S.

Hayburn Young People's Society which, possibly to some, has appeared dead, has taken on new life and commenced to thrive in earnest. Under the able management of Pres. Mr. Sanders, our genial pastor, the society has been re-organized with the following officers elected: — President, Mildred Rikley; vice-president, Ruth Dickson; secretary, Stewart Loyst; treasurer, George Dickson. We hope in the near future to have a membership of twenty five members.

Our first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. John Dickson, on Friday evening, September 19th. Rev. Mr. Sanders was in charge. The programme was of a social character. Some time was spent in discussing programmes for the different meetings, after which the evening was spent in games and singing. As the midnight hour approached, a dainty lunch appeared, which was greatly enjoyed by all. Everyone voted Mrs. Dickson an ideal hostess.

On Friday evening, September 26th, the Hayburn Y. P. S. met at the home of Mrs. Herbert Rikley. Eleven members and two visitors were present. The religious programme was in charge of Miss Jean Magee. Sides were chosen and it was certainly a "Know Your Bible" contest. Taking the form of a ball game, with Mr. Sanders as referee, a correct answer to a Bible question gave the player's a home run. It proved to be a close game, and the winning side had little to laugh over. Some time was spent in singing and then Mrs. Rikley served a delightful lunch. It was certainly an evening well spent.

MRS. HENRY CREIGHTON

On Thursday last there passed away at her residence on the Newburgh Rd. Mrs. H. Creighton. She had been ill for several months and for about eight weeks was confined to her bed. The funeral, which was largely attended, took place on Saturday. A brief service was held at the home, conducted by her pastor, Rev. H. Pawson, assisted by Rev. A. J. Wilson. The great profusion of floral tributes and the presence of friends from many parts, certified to the high esteem in which the deceased was held by all classes in the community. From the house the cortege proceeded to Trinity United Church, where an impressive and solemn service was held. She was borne to her last resting place by members of the Board of Trinity, C. W. Vandervort, J. E. Robinson, George Switzer, Fred Henderson, P. S. Boyes, and U. M. Wilson.

Mrs. Creighton, before her marriage, was Effa L. Huffman; was born and lived most of her life in South Fredericksburgh. In 1886 she married H. Creighton, also of South Fredericksburgh. To them were born two children, Cyrus B. Creighton and Marguerite. In 1911, Mr. and Mrs. Creighton moved to Napanee. Since coming to town, Mrs. Creighton has been an active worker in every good effort. She was president of Trinity Ladies' Aid, a member of the Women's Institute and Women's Missionary Society, and up until the very end of life, took a keen interest in everything which made for the betterment of the community.

She has left to survive her, the husband, Henry Creighton, of Napanee. Her son, Cyrus B. Creighton and family of Napanee, and a daughter, Marguerite, R. N. instructress in the Baptist Memorial Hospital, Memphis.

A DEAD HEAT

Rose Ends Disastrously

Mr. Scallets, of Trenton, and wife, driving a new Studebaker eight, and Mr. and Mrs. Pidgeon, of Napanee, it is alleged started from Dundas Street to see which could, by different routes, arrive at the home of Mr. Pidgeon, first. The result was a dead heat, as both cars met at the intersection of John and Thomas Streets. Both cars, going at top speed, crashed with great force. The impact drove the Trenton car across the lawn of Dr. McLaughlin's home, which is situated on the northwest corner of the intersection. It continued its reverse until it was stopped by the verandah, but not until considerable property damage was done.

All the occupants of the cars were badly cut by flying glass. Mrs. Scallets sustained a cut artery and other internal injuries. She was rushed to the office of Dr. Hall, on East Street, and given the necessary medical attention.

MODELLED AFTER FISH.

Scales to Be on Surface of New Airships, It Is Intimated.

Airships may become more and more like fish in the form of their construction, Lieut.-Col. V. C. Richmond, designer of the dirigible R-101, told the British Association for the Advancement of Science in London recently, according to a Canadian Press despatch.

Col. Richmond explained how special studies were being made of fast-swimming fish, for the resistance offered to speed by air and water was much alike, and man wished to get as many hints from nature as possible in his conquest of the sky. Airships of the future, he predicted, would not merely copy the form of fish, but their skins would bear something in the nature of scales or feathers, thus providing special ducts through which the air entering by the nose could escape.

The trend of the present development of airships indicated increase in their size, Col. Richmond declared. Like Sir Dennistoun Burney, designer of the R-100, the speaker believed the capacity of airships should be double that of the R ships, namely, 10,000,000 cubic feet, as against their 5,000,000.

"There is no reason why an airship filled with helium, driven with heavy oil engines and sheathed in metal, should not become the safest form of transportation yet devised," concluded Col. Richmond, after he had given a detailed technical description of the construction and operation of airships.

Warming Trees by Airplane.

In several parts of the world where delicate fruit crops are grown frost is a deadly enemy. It has been discovered that ground frosts are unlikely in cloudy weather, since the clouds act like blankets and prevent the soil from giving up its heat. On clear nights it has long been customary to protect oranges, lemons, and other citrous fruit trees by lighting smoke fires.

The heat of the fires is trifling, but their smoke clouds provide the necessary counterpanes. Recent experiments have shown that airplanes can be used for tucking up fruit trees for the night. The plane flies to and fro over the orchard, emitting a dense cloud of smoke, and the trees are kept warm.

Sometimes forest fires destroy thousands upon thousands of acres of timber. To replant these in the ordinary way would be almost impossible, but wonderful results have been obtained by using airplanes to distribute tree seeds over the burnt-out lands.

Odd Methods of Interment.

Upright burial was the recognized and traditional form of interment favored by the kings of ancient Ireland. It was not considered fitting that a monarch should be prone, accordingly they were buried erect, clad in their war panoply, and usually with their faces turned towards their enemies.

The ancient Irish believed that so long as their kings remained in this position they exercised an evil influence on their foes. So powerful was the belief in this ability that on one occasion the body of a king was disinterred by those hostile to his clan, and placed in another grave, head downwards, in order to break the succession of disasters which dogged them while he rested in his grave with face turned towards them.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor:—

Why should the far famed beauty of Lake Ontario Picture Book be withheld from the people of Ontario and tourist guests, by the present tenants of Bon Echo Inn?

Have they the right to turn away people who have come great distances to see this famous place with which Nature has endowed this Province?

In view of the fact that public money has been expended freely in publicity and good roads to make this sight accessible, it is most regrettable that an individual can deprive the many.

You will find also that the citizens of the surrounding country are very indignant about this state of affairs. Perhaps the M. P. P. for this constituency will look into this matter so that the rights of the people will be respected.

Signed,
"DISAPPOINTED."

Bulbs

This is the last chance to make sure of a fine display of flowers from bulbs next Spring. Tulips, Jonquils, Daffodils, Snowdrops and Crocuses should be secured immediately and planted so that they will be able to establish themselves before Winter sets in and be all ready to spring into flower shortly after the snow disappears seven months hence. Many kinds of these Spring bulbs are well adapted for planting in the grass along the driveway or walk, or here and there through the lawn. Some people make a practice of throwing the very early Spring bulbs, such as crocuses, over their shoulder on to the lawn and of planting wherever they fall. A hole is dug with a trowel and about two inches of peat put placed in the bottom and the bulb planted a depth of about twice its diameter. The larger bulbs make a better showing when placed in clumps of from half a dozen to twenty-five and planted in the perennial bed or in borders. There are many varieties of tulips particularly and these bloom at different periods so that if a proper selection is made a steady supply of flowers can be had from early Spring until June.

Outdoor Planting

It is a simple matter to have a brilliant display of blooms within a few weeks after the snow disappears. To get this secure bulbs now and plant before the ground freezes. Many of the specimens from Holland where they were grown this year, and in which the flower buds are already formed. On this account it is advisable to get the largest sized bulbs which naturally contain the largest flowers, and with which fewer "misses" in bloom will be experienced. The bulbs are planted outside in September, where they will develop root growth before the freeze up and have a good position to spring forth just as soon as the snow disappears in the Spring. Snowdrops will bloom as soon as the snow is gone, and these are followed in rapid succession by scilla, crocuses, Grape and Dutch Hyacinth, narcissus, Cottage, Darwin and Breeder Tulips. There is also a single early tulip, which will come first of all, although it is not as beautiful as the Darwin and later sorts. By selecting varieties carefully, and keeping in mind the time of blooming, there will be some flowering in these bulbs from early in April until almost July. Tulips, narcissus and hyacinths should be planted from four to six inches deep and about the same distance apart, while the smaller bulbs should be planted about two inches apart and about two inches deep. In very heavy soil, the shallower planting should be followed.

For Winter Bloom — Indoor Planting

This is also the time to plant those bulbs which one wishes to have bloom indoors from late November until March. This is a simple form of gardening and practically all of the ordinary Spring bulbs such as narcissus, hyacinths, Chinese lilies, tulips, freesias, scillas and daffodils can easily be grown indoors in soil, water or fibre. The latter substance, which can be bought at any seed store, along with the bulbs, is the cleanest and can also be used over, and over again and usually gives generally satisfactory results. With the exception of the Chinese Lily which is planted almost on top of the soil, fibre or gravel, the bulbs should be planted in pots deep enough so that only the tip shows above the surface. After lightly and place in a fairly shaded corner where the temperature can be kept well below 50 degrees if possible. The narcissus will bloom in about six or eight weeks, while the hyacinths, tulips and daffodils will be one month for two or three months. By planting in succession, particularly with the narcissus, two or three crops can be secured, but with those bulbs that take a longer time to flower, a succession of bloom is more easily obtained by using early, medium and late varieties. With the tulips, select those varieties which are especially adapted for forcing. Drainage should be provided where soil is used, but it is not necessary with fibre which substance makes ideal material where fancy bowls are used. After planting, with the exception of the freesias, leave in the cool temperature and dark place until a good root growth has developed and the sprouts are up about an inch. Any time after this can be turned out in the hand to make sure that the root growth is spreading around inside. When this stage has been reached, water more liberally and bring out into fair light at a temperature of about 50 degrees. In a week or two, remove to full sun and 65 or 70 degrees. Unless the plants are in a very dark start they will develop too quickly and small sickly flowers are the result. Usually they come out of the dark in only a few weeks before blooming. After they are out in flower, keep in a cool room, around 65 degrees, if possible and they will last much longer.

OFFICIAL INQUIRY CONFIRMS WRECKAGE AS LA SALLE'S BOAT

The investigating party working under authority of the Department of Public Works has given it as its opinion that the old shipwreck on the bottom of Strait at Manitoulin Island is that of LaSalle's "Griffon" which was lost 251 years ago.

The Government has been asked to take steps to protect the wreckage and despoiling the remnant and four steps are urged to make more definite the identification of the wreckage. The steps advised are:

(1) That the iron bolts be tested in metallurgical laboratories to establish their probable age.

(2) That dredging take place around the wreck in an effort to locate the brass canon and large anchor of the "Griffon."

(3) That the Magnetic reef at the mouth of the strait be investigated with glass bottomed cylinders for traces of the wreck.

(4) That a careful search of places in the vicinity of the wreck where six skeletons were found be made in the hope of finding coins, or other such like articles, which might indicate date or nationality.

The "Griffon" was built at Chippewa Creek, near Niagara, in 1869.

After sailing up the lake to Green Bay the vessel was loaded with furs, along with "Much merchandise too difficult to transport in canoes," also tools and implements" and began her return voyage to Niagara on September 18, 1679, "making her-adieu with an ingle cannon shot." The boat was never heard of after they took her, but doubt the boat has perished." What happened the vessel has been the mystery of the lake for two and one half centuries.

Many features of the Mississagi Strait wreck were found, by the investigators, to tally with those of the "Griffon."

1. The size and weight of 20 ft. beam 70 ft. length; 45-ton weight.

2. The heavy type of construction seems consistent with the work of the French ocean ship builders.

3. The lead caulking of the Mississagi wreck would indicate great age.

4. The presence of gun swabs shows that the boat was armed with cannon.

5. The number of skeletons also corresponds exactly with the number of navigators on the "Griffon."

6. The giant skull found corresponds to the description given of Pilot Luc.

7. The location of the wreck also scarcely have been more consistent with the course of the "Griffon" which might have struck the Magnetic shoal or sought the shelter of Cockburn Island.

Fascinating Links In Canada's History

A striking example of how really "ancient" history" is linked with that of our own times, is a letter from the famous Nicholas Flood Davin, M.P., a journalist-man who was so well known and so well beloved both as a member of the House of Commons and later, as a member of the House of Commons' press gallery, to Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first Prime Minister and Father of Confederation.

This letter is one of a most treasured collection which is cherished at the Dominion Archives at Ottawa, along with hundreds of others, some of little account and some of great interest. One of the most remarkable features of the collection and of others like it, is the vast amount of detail of the lives of these men which, in future ages, will be one of the most fruitful sources for biographies and other historical writings.

The letter is dated the 13th of May, 1885, and says: "My dear Sir, John:— I have spoken with three other North West members respecting the rumour that Charles Mackintosh is to be the Lt. Gov. of the North West Territories. We should all be well pleased with the appointment. His wife would just suit as a lady paramount in that social sanctum. She is kindly and Mackintosh would take care she was not too much on her dignity. We want a governor's wife who won't think herself above everybody. The children would also add to the social character of Government House." It is signed "N.F. Davin, M.P."

The Mr. Mackintosh mentioned is alive today and has recently published a book on the life of Sir John. Although Mrs. Macintosh has since passed away, the children mentioned are prominent in Ottawa. An impressive monument to Mr. Davin, contributed by his confreres of the press gallery, stands in a prominent place in Beechwood Cemetery, Ottawa.

Collection of Medals

Although the Dominion Archives at Ottawa do not collect either coins or stamps, they have quite a large collection of very interesting medals on view in the public room. In this large glass case is a collection of three medals, presented to the Archives by J. A. Millens, of London, England, as being of particular interest to Canadians. These decorations all belonged to Sergeant Arthur Herbert Lindsey Richardson, V.C., the first Canadian to receive the Victoria Cross.

The Victoria Cross occupies the central position in this frame and to one who has never before seen the famous V. C. it is most inspiring. It is a maltese cross of bronze, made from captured enemy guns, and is about an inch and a half square. It has the lion and the crown stamped on it and a scroll with, "For Valour," engraved. It is hung on a wide purple ribbon. This cross was awarded to Sergeant Richardson for action at Wolve Spruit, South Africa, on July 5th, 1900.

The second medal is a service medal for the South African War 1899-1901. It is a silver medal of nearly two inches in diameter suspended on a yellow, blue and orange ribbon with three silver service bars across it. Beach of these bars is for some particular engagement during which number of over twenty. Lord Roberts is the only one who ever received the medal with all the service bars, and it was presented to him only through courtesy.

The other of these medals is one presented to Sergeant Richardson to show that he was present at the coronation of King Edward when he ascended the in 1902. It is about an inch in diameter and is of bronze with the bust of the King and Queen engraved on it. A red, white and blue ribbon is attached.

Anyone glancing at these medals quickly will not likely be at all impressed with them, but if you will allow yourself to think for a few moments of the man to whom these belonged, of the many experiences that he must have had to be awarded each of these, and of the pride which those dear to him must have felt when he received each of these in turn, a most fascinating story may be told.

A Foe to Asthma. Give Asthma half a chance and it gains ground rapidly. But give it repeated treatments of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy and it still fall back. Thousands of others for half way measure about this remedy. It goes right to work and drives Asthma out. It soothes the irritated breathing passages and leaves no place for the trouble to lurk. Have it by you for ready use.

ATTEMPT TO BRING OLDEST OF COLONIES CLOSER TO CANADA

Acquaintance and understanding between Canada and Newfoundland are now being sought. By distance the two dominions are not far apart. It is only 154 miles from North Sidney, Nova Scotia to Port au Basques, Newfoundland, yet the two people do not mingle. Will do not know much other. In neither side can it be said that there is an intelligent conception of the other's problems.

One of the first common ties which has existed between the two adjacent British Dominions is the recent entry of Newfoundland is a member of the Good Roads Association. Due to this a full measure of cordiality will be extended to Newfoundland a tall the conventions throughout the years.

Newfoundland is a generous buyer of Canadian merchandise. Exports to the island colony are over $12,000,000 a year. Apart from the iron ore mined by the British Empire Steel Corporation at Belle Island, Canada buys less than a million a year from Newfoundland. Her imports from the United States are $8,000,000 a year and from the Mother Country only $5,000,000.

Representatives of the Newfoundland Government will attend the annual convention of the association to be held in Quebec in September and all future conventions and meetings at the interprovincial conference. Already the Ancient Colony has extended to the association an invitation to hold the annual convention in St. John's. It is expected that the new association which will be one of the outgrowths of Newfoundland's participation in the deliberations of the Good Roads Association will be a greater measure of understanding and sympathy between the two British Dominions.

WARNS STUDENTS OF UNIVERSITY COSTS

Canadian students planning to study at colleges and universities abroad should be acquainted with the general facts. Although statistics are not available on the expense attached to study in foreign institutions because expenses are higher than they contemplated, they should be warned in advance.

Because of the popularity of the Medical School of Bristol University, in England, the dean recently issued a pamphlet stating that in most instances Canadian students are unaware of the costs. He called attention to the fact that total costs there, including tuition, apparatus, materials and maintenance amounts to £1,300 or about $6,500 for the four years.

The average cost of medical education in Canada is about $1,000 annually or $4,000 for the four year course.

SEADROMES ESSENTIAL BEFORE OCEAN FLIGHTS PRACTICAL EVENTS

Radio beacons and floating airdromes must be installed on transatlantic routes before passenger service with the sort of heavier-than-air craft in use today can be employed economically between North America and either Europe or the Orient, it is stated on behalf of the Hydrographic Office, Department of the Navy.

The distances over the oceans, combined with the ordinary navigational difficulties, provide a serious obstacle to the development of intercontinental air transportation on a paying basis with present-day equipment, it was asserted by Lt. John P. W. Vest, chief of the aerial navigation section.

"From a navigational point of view, the San Francisco - Honolulu hop is impractical without a seadrome and beacon half-way across," Lt. Vest said, "and unquestionably the first step in the inauguration of trans-oceanic air service will be the establishment of radio beacons.

"If this is true of trans-Pacific service, where we find almost ideal flying weather, it is more necessary that these aids be provided for airlines over the Atlantic."

Commercial planes in use today on land routes, Lt. Vest said, are incapable of completing the long hops from the mainland to Hawaii, Bermuda, or the Azores while carrying a profitable payload. The distance from San Francisco to Honolulu, he pointed out, is twice the range of most commercial planes carrying a useful load.

Seadromes will be necessary for refueling, the aerial navigator explained, and radio beacons will be required in order that pilots may locate these tiny "islands" with certainty. The normal error in navigation, according to Lieut. Vest, is 10 miles off course for each hour of flying; with an airdrome halfway to Honolulu, the maximum error would be 100 miles while the limit of visibility of the airdromes would be only 35 miles.

Beacons now in use can be heard 250 miles, Lt. Vest explained, and their range would make it unlikely that any trans-oceanic plane navigated by an able pilot would fly past the objective with such a guide in service.

HALF WORLD'S SUPPLY OF COBALT PRODUCED IN CANADIAN MINES

The United States is the leading consumer of cobalt but Canada produces more than half the world's supply, according to a statement issued by the Bureau of Mines.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the metal is not "found native" and is mined in connection with other metals, the chief producers being Canada, Great Britain and Belgium.

Cobalt is a silvery white metal strongly resembling nickel in its appearance and is magnetic more so than any other metal except iron.

It is mined in conjunction with other metals, and in the mines of Cobalt, Ontario, the leading metal is silver and in addition to this mineral nickel and arsenic are present in the ores of these mines. It was early in the twentieth century that practically all of the world's cobalt came from Ontario Mines and for some time the potential supply as a by-product of silver exceeded the demand. By the Belgian Congo, which produces cobalt as a by-product of copper had become a close rival of Ontario and even forced a temporary curtailment in Canadian production. At present more than half of the world production comes from the ores of the mines of Cobalt, Ontario.

Cobalt was used by the Egyptians long before the Christian era, in the tombs of the Egyptians and in the ruins of Troy has been found Cobalt blue glass. The ancients, however, were apparently unaware that the colors they used were caused by cobalt, and it was not until late in the seventeenth century that the existence of the element was recognized. Writers in the Middle Ages referred to "cobales" as an evil spirit that haunted mines and caused trouble to the miners. Subsequently the German word "kobold" meaning goblin, came to be applied to any baffling mineral and particularly to minerals that resembled ores but failed to yield metal when smelted. And even today there is an air of mystery about what we know as cobalt and a medieval cloak of secrecy still surrounds many of the metallurgical processes employed in its production.

A World - Wide Practice

There are nearly thirty-three million telephones in the world today. And the habit of telephoning far and near is growing daily. Residents of Ontario and Quebec alone make more than 70,000 out-of-town calls a day.

FILLING THE CELLAR WITH WINTER FOODS

The storing of an adequate supply of fruits and vegetables throughout the winter provides no extraordinary problems. Experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have some useful suggestions in this connection.

As a general rule either the old root cellar or house cellar is used. Adequate provision should be made for ventilation through the use of cold air intakes and outlet flues, having valves by which to regulate the movement of air. In connection with the intake flue, care should be taken to prevent "freezing" air entering the cellar. Care should also be taken to exclude all light from the storage cellar.

With apples and pears only the best grade of fruit should be placed in storage and boxes or baskets should be used. The storage cellar should be such as will insure that the temperature will not fall below freezing point. Around 36 degrees Farenheit, with relatively moist temperature is best and should keep the fruit in a satisfactory state throughout the winter.

For most vegetables the bin with slated sides and bottom, providing circulation to prevent heating, are desirable. These should be narrow and not too large in size.

Celery keeps best when planted with the roots on, in sand on the cellar floor with the plants set closely in rows six inches apart.

Cabbage may be treated in the same way as celery but equally good is the slated tray method, or shelves with heads placed two deep on each tray.

Onions require dry storage at a temperature around 34 degrees to 36 degrees Farenheit.

Squash, vegetable marrow, and pumpkins also require dry storage but they keep best in a warmer temperature, ranging around 65 degrees Farenheit.

Constipated Children

Constipation is one of the most common ailments of childhood and the child suffering from it positively does not thrive. To keep the little one well the bowels must be kept regular and the stomach sweet. To do this nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. They are a mild but thorough laxative; are pleasant to take and can be given to the newborn babe with perfect safety. Thousands of mothers use no other medicine for their little ones but Baby's Own Tablets. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SHOCK ABSORBER BUILT FOR TRAINS

Successful experiments have been concluded by mechanical experts of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the use of a specially manufactured rubber product as a shock absorber and noise eliminator on both passenger and freight equipment. Canadian Pacific Railway equipment being constructed this year will be fitted with this new pad.

Composition rubber and steel pads, a product decided upon after a series of exhaustive experiments with compressed cork, compressed hair felt and other compositions, are constructed with air spaces between the rubber pads, in such a way that the pads not only become highly resistant to pressure, but, also tend to prevent any rebound, owing to a vacuum being set up in the air spaces.

The pads are placed on the car trucks wherever the motion of the car causes metal to come in contact with metal. Sources of noise and jars such as side bearings, truck bolsters, journal stems and coupler shanks will, it is claimed, all be silenced by this recently discovered shock absorber.

News and Information For the Farmer

Spread Manure on Sod

In preparing land for wheat, J. H. Matthews and Sons, of Delaware, do not apply manure directly before seeding the wheat but the fertilizer is spread on sod the year before and a crop of hay cut. The field is then plowed and worked down for wheat. This practice is followed in the application of all manure. In addition to manure, a mixture of 150 pounds per acre of 2-12-6 fertilizer is used for the wheat.

New Grain Breeder for O. A. C.

Another big undertaking in connection with the Government's 1930 building program at the Ontario Agricultural College has been announced by Dr. G. I. Christie, president of the college. The latest project, which will be started at once, is the erection of new greenhouses at a cost of $75,000. They will permit the carrying on of research work on a scale never before possible at O. A. C.

Plowing Match Dates

Some dates of Branch Plowing Match to be held under the auspices of the Ontario Plowman's Association for this year are as follows:

Bruce County, Culross Township, October 16th.

Middlesex County, Adelaide Township, October 21 and 22.

Norfolk County, Port Dover, October 21.

Ontario, North, October 10.
Russell, Russell, October 21.
Victoria, Bobcaygeon, October 21.
Wentworth N., Beverely Township, October 22.

Sheep Parasites

There are two general types of parasites common to sheep, namely internal and external. Of the two types, the internal parasites are the most deadly as serious infections by this type are usually fatal. Stomach worms and tapeworms seem to be the most common of this variety while ticks and lice cause the most harm done by the external type. The wool clip is reduced and the general well-being of the flock lowered when ticks and lice are present. These kinds of parasites can be effectively controlled by dipping. Sheep which are well fed and kept under sanitary conditions are in a better position to withstand parasite infestation because of their higher resistance. If the pastures are rotated, this will also be a means of prevention. Many losses in the lamb crop can also be prevented by drenching breeding ewes before they are turned out on pasture.

O. A. C. Scholarships

Between 50 and 60 scholarship winners who are among the freshmen class which enrolled recently for the fall term at the O. A. C., Guelph, are to have their fees remitted, according to instructions issued by Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture. The saving to the students will be $1,200 in estimated. Among the scholarship students are 15 farm boys who won two years' tuition at the college—the gift of a large Toronto merchandising firm. These particular scholarships carry with them a bonus of $100 to be paid over the school term. The 15 boys in question were selected from the 500 young farmers who attended the Royal Winter Fair last fall and wrote essay examinations on what they saw and did while there.

Bacon Hog Fair

The Middlesex County Bacon Hog Fair will be held at Thorndale on Monday, October 6. This fair, which is to be held under the auspices of the Dominion Live Stock Branch and the Provincial Department of Agriculture, is being arranged with a view to interesting farmers of the district in the production of select bacon hogs. Hogs for the market classes will be graded as they are brought to the fair, giving the farmers an opportunity to see the actual grading and to gain the fullest information possible about grading and what the market requires. The judges will give reasons for the placing of all classes, giving the farmers an opportunity to study the type of hog that is in demand and ascertain the requirements from the standpoint of quality, and thriftiness.

Favors Use of Tractors

A well-known farmer of Western Ontario, who has had 11 years' experience in the operation of a prominent make of tractor claims that in ordinary field work a tractor of 20 horse-power will do as much work as three to six teams of horses. "As to cost," he says, "there is no feed or time lost when the tractor is not in use. This is a big item, I figure the average cost for plowing is as follows: Fuel and oil, 56c per acre; time of operation, 35c; interest and overhaul, 36c; depreciation, 36c. That makes a total of $1.35 per acre. The beauty of the tractor is that work can be rushed when the land is in proper condition for working thereby securing better tillage and of course, eventually cleaner and larger crops."

Alfalfa and Alsike

Districts in Ontario which specialize in the production of clover seed and alfalfa regret their fair yields. In fact the alfalfa growers do not expect more than 4 to 4½ bushels of seed per acre while it is feared that seeding of last spring will not survive the drought. Alsike is giving four to six bushels an acre in Simcoe County and around Ottawa there are yields of six to nine bushels.

Winter Rye and Barley Tests

Five varieties of winter rye have been under test at O. A. C. in each of the last thirteen years. The highest yields of grain per acre were produced by the New Invincible and Rosen varieties. The New Invincible surpassed the common variety in yield of grain per acre by 7.4 bushels for the average of the 13-year period tested.

Two varieties of winter barley have been under test at the college for the last 12 years. The Tennessee winter barley producing an average for the period, of 44.3 bushels of grain per acre. Winter barley is much more subject to injury through winter killing than either spring barley or winter rye.

Radio Broadcasts

The markets branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture commenced early in June a series of radio broadcasts over station CFRB at 12:45 noon. These daily talks are specifically prepared to assist the housewife in buying Ontario quality products for her table. Each day the specific product is discussed in detail. During the first week talks were given on peaches, beets, eggs, tomatoes, apples and melons. The broadcasts point out to the consuming public the advisability and economy of buying graded Ontarioo roducts of quality and follows up with daily market quotations and suggestions as to the best time to buy. Listeners wishing further information on any specific products are asked to phone or write the Markets Branch, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Smart Fruit Shows

Ontario apple growers are watching their orchards closely for the selection of apples and other fruits to be shown at the Provincial Fruit Show in Leicester, England, October 24 to November 1. Fruit grown from all parts of the Empire will compete for honors and the competition promises to be keener than ever for the championships, cups and medals. The various Provincial Governments as well as the Dominion Fruit Branch, are exhibiting special displays, while the individual exhibits of fruit growing associations will show the British market the excellence of Canadian apples and other fruits. The Ontario exhibit, shown in Strathcona, over 25,000 people attended. One of the features was the distribution of Canadian apples by the Empire Marketing Board. This year they will be distributing over 30,000 bushels of apples.

With so thorough preparation as hand by Mother's Worst Powders, the mother who allows her children to suffer from the effects of worms is unwise and culpably careless. A child subjected to the attacks of worms is ill at ease, irritable, and will be retarded in its growth. It is a merciful act to rid it of these destructive parasites—especially when it can be done without difficulty.

Smart Fruit Shows

Ontario apple growers are watching their orchards closely for the selection of apples and other fruits to be shown at the Provincial Fruit Show in Leicester, England, October 24 to November 1. Fruit grown from all parts of the Empire will compete for honors and the competition promises to be keener than ever for the championships, cups and medals. The various Provincial Governments as well as the Dominion Fruit Branch, are exhibiting special displays, while the individual exhibits of fruit growing associations will show the British market the excellence of Canadian apples and other fruits. The Ontario exhibit, shown in Strathcona, over 25,000 people attended. One of the features was the distribution of Canadian apples by the Empire Marketing Board. BRIGHTENING UP OF LICENSE PLATES

Convenient black and white license markers for automobiles have been widely used in many provinces of the Dominion from year to year, and it has been claimed that black and white is the best combination for legibility. Next year, however, after trying black and white for 1930 license plates and for other previous years as well, the province of Ontario intends to introduce markers a little more colorful. Black numbers on backgrounds of old gold is the combination chosen by the Minister of Highways for 1931. The name of the province and the year — "Ont. - 1931"—will be placed at the top of the marker next year instead of at the bottom, where, traffic officers claim, it interferes with legibility.

THE NAPANEE HUMANE SOCIETY

For the information of many, we may point out that from the Tag-Day on July 1st, 1930, there was realized around $65.00 and we wish all thank the residents of this community for their support. We certainly need financial support but also members, so all that can, please turn out at the Public Library, Thursday evening, October 9th next, at 7.30 p.m. There is plenty to be done and more workers are needed. For the small fee of 50c for adults and 10c for children, you can become a member. Boys and girls join up, and feel the thrill you get seeing that sick and strayed dogs and cats are properly cared for. Remember the Pets' Parade we had on July 1st? Well try and get some pet yourself and start feeding and instilling it over the winter. Will drivers of horses please be more careful in driving when the streets are wet because several falls have occurred in the last few weeks and it was necessary for the Society to have one horse shot.

M. B. JUDSON AND T. ASSELSTINE COLLIDE

At one o'clock on Tuesday morning a rather serious accident took place at the corner of John and Thomas streets. M. B. Judson, who drives the taxi, was proceeding north on John street to meet the midnight train. T. Asselstine was, at the same time, travelling west on Thomas street. At the intersection they met. Both care were going fairly fast and the impact was a serious one. The Judson car was turned completely upside down. The Asselstine car, too, was badly damaged. The drivers, though shaken up, escaped serious injury.

ADOLPHUSTOWN BASEBALL

Once more it is our painful duty to report that the Maple Leafs lost the second game of the series of challenge games for Adolphustown, by the score of 12 to 2. One of the Leafs called the lucky number, Robbin made a hit and actually scored a run, amid the thunderous cheers of several voices. The exertion proved to be too much for the rest of the team, for in the next innings, Pollard, Allison and C. Davern, each took their place at home-plate only to follow the others in laying down their bats without one more dint on the surface. In the eighth Davern really made a hit, and through the help of J. Allen, secured the last run. Allen made a hit and so surprised himself that he tried to get away around to second only to find E. Gallagher waiting for him with the ball. In the ninth, Robbin and Dickson were just too tired so they silently followed each other in stepping away from home plate. Pollard did get to first, but Allison thought it was really an impposition to ask him to make a run so he laid his bat carefully down with the rest. During the sixth innings, that quiet little Dickson boy tried to create a sensation in the same way that Cornrion did in the preceeding game, only he succeeded and disgraced himself not, though he did try to have a game of tag with Ed. and Joe between second and third. He really had never been over to third and it looked temptation. Percy J. Prout is not particular about childish games so he gave George a gentle tap with the ball. From the conversation which followed we formed the opinion that George has a private detective society, but that he has not found his man yet. C. Davern, as pitcher, walked four men. We understand that the Davern battery is a new installation which is inclined to weaken before the programme is over. The Adolphustown boys didn't have much stimulus to make runs, as the Leafs offered no resistence. E. Gallagher scored for J. Prout 2, Rosebrugh 2, and good old Bill his usual home run. Garrison 1, D. Gallagher 1, Loyst 2, even if they did want his luck Loyst got a walk; McCrudden made several good hits. The outfielders gave excellent support and showed they knew what to do with the balls but none ever got around that far. Laveck on third caught everything and practiced physical culture between times.

The Maple Leafs gave Adolphustown the challenge, which was accepted with the understanding that the winning team would be considered the better team. Well Adolphustown boys have won two straight games; we wonder if the Maple Leafs are satisfied or will a third be necessary. We want everyone to be entirely convinced. The Adolphustown boys want to express their fun-loh sportsship to their opponents, the Adolphustown Maple Leafs.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

The Aquatic Club meeting called for last Thursday night, was not held due chiefly to the fact that only two or three officials turned up.

* * *

Mrs. Gilbride has been very generous in donating a large part of her property for a park and club-house.

* * *

It is up to the sporting public of the town, if any, and particularly the aquatic enthusiasts, to show their appreciation and carry out the plans.

* * *

And it should not be left to a few officers of the club alone, but everybody should get behind it and establish a real club.

* * *

Several personal contributions have already been made and there will doubtless be more to follow.

* * *

During the winter the funds could be augmented in different ways.

* * *

The Collegiate grid-iron outfit did mighty well Saturday to hold the speedy Belleville High School to a 2-2 tie.

* * *

And at that, they would have won had the quarter-back called for a punt instead of attempting a placement, especially after he had been told to do so by the coach.

* * *

Any man on any team should carry out his coach's instructions to the best of his ability, whether he thinks that he knows more than his mentor or not.

* * *

If the play proves to be bad judgment or goes wrong the coach is to blame and not the player.

* * *

The sooner some of the local athletes learn that the better it will be for them.

All England Mourns Her Gallant Dead

GREATEST AIR DISASTER

Personnel on Trial Flight Were Leaders of Great Britain's Air Service.

Today the world mourns the loss of those brilliant men who were responsible for Britain's mastery of the air. The R101.

The great airship, the last word in lighter than air construction and the largest and finest ever constructed, crashed on Saturday on its trial flight to India.

The cause of the crash is still unknown, though a great many theories have been advanced as to the cause of the disaster. As the great ship was travelling at cruising speed over France on her way to India, something happened, and in a few minutes, the great dirigible, which had taken four years to construct at a cost of ten million dollars, was a mass of tangled ruins.

The saddest feature of the catastrophe is not the financial loss, but the loss of the expert and brilliant personell of those aboard, who were the leaders in the air flight. Twenty-six of Britain's greatest air constructors and experts were burned beyond recognition. The remains were hardly identifiable among the ruins.

Among the prominent passengers were:—

Lord Thompson, British Minister of Air.

Col. V. C. Richmond, who designed the R101.

Lieut.-Col H. C. Irwin, Commander.

Lieut.-Col B. A. Atherston.

Sir Sefton Brackner, Director of Civil Aviation.

Major Scott, Civil Observer.

Commander R. B. B. Colmore.

The last two named gentlemen were on the R100 when it made its epochal flight to Canada, earlier in the year.

These and others equally valuable to the nation were victims in the great tragedy.

Through this calamity, Britain has become pretty well depleted of her air experts and it is said that the loss will, by at least ten years, retard the development of aviation within the Empire.

The cause of the accident is unknown. It is thought by some that the dirigible was caught in a down draft in her length. In order to give the host greater lifting power, was structurally improved. The enquiry is expected to be made to see if the cause can be discovered.

The price of all progress has been human life. But seldom has a nation, in one day, been called upon to pay a heavy toll. The whole Empire, especially, and all the civilized nations of the world sympathize with those who are called on to bear this heavy burden.

DESERONTO

The joint meetings of the Women's Auxiliary and Rurl-Deaconal Chapter of Lennox and Addington, were held October 1st, in Bethesda Church, Deseronto. Commencing with a celebration of the Holy Communion, Rev. Mr. Hurst of Bradcliffe was celebrant, assisted by Revds. Thomas Lewis, W. G. Swayne, J. Dumbrille, Herbert Pringle and R. A. Penney. The Rev. R. W. Spencer, of Camden East, was the special preacher and preached a most inspiring sermon from St. Luke, 24, verse 49: "But Tarry Ye in the City of Jerusalem, until Ye be endued with Power from on High." Professor Epps kindly played the organ and the surpliced choir rendered the processional hymn. At the noon hour, met in the White Hall and were most hospitably entertained by the ladies of St. Mark's Church, who were duly thanked by the Rev. R. A. Penney, of Tamworth. At 1.00 p.m. the Women's Auxiliary met in the White Hall, where they had a most profitable and inspiring meeting. Mrs. Lowe, the president, and other members of the Diocesan Board were present and spoke. Mrs. Radcliffe was unanimously re-elected secretary. The Clergy of the Chapter met in the Rectory of the church. Mr. Dumbrille read a splendid paper on "Salvation" and Mr. Pringle gave an interesting talk on his trip to England and Europe and Mr. Harding also addressed the meeting. All were highly delighted with their visit and the hospitality of the Deseronto ladies.—The next Women's Auxiliary meeting will be held in the Parish of Tyendenaga, with Mrs. James Amey, president.

A Burden Lifted

For weeks Mrs. Brown had felt the burden of the letter she knew she should write. She always said a letter was a full day's work for her. Then she thought of "long distance!" In less than two minutes she was talking to Mrs. King. What a relief it was. "Thank goodness, I thought of the telephone," she said. The burden of letter-writing oppresses her no more.

BIG DEVELOPMENT IN AERIAL TRANSPORT

Traffic on air lines operating from Paris-London, Paris-Marseilles - Tunis-Bone, and Lyon-Geneva has increased 30 per cent; this year in passenger traffic and 45 per cent in freight and over 400 per cent in the amount of mail carried during the first months of the year 1930.

The increase in the mail is due to the fact that, On the Paris-Marseille Tunis-Bone line, the mail is carried on planes from Paris to Tunis in 12 hours and it used to take three or four days by boat. The London-Paris route shows the biggest increase in freight.

PALE PEOPLE ARE IN PERIL

Some Form of Nervous Breakdown Always Threatens Them.

Pale people are almost always nervous. Paleness denotes lack of blood and too little blood usually results in jaded nerves, sleeplessness, headaches or neuralgia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are different from most other medicines—it is impossible to take them and not feel better. Their whole mission is to make rich, red blood. This new blood strengthens the nerves and gives vitality to the whole body. Concerning them Mrs. G. Cook, Bloor street, Toronto, says: "Two years ago I used Dr. Williams Pink Pills for nervous breakdown with the result that I have been well and strong ever since."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Fascinating Links in Canada's History

If a certain piece of old office furniture, now in the Dominion Archives at Ottawa could speak, it might give many and many a link of Canadian history far more vital and interesting than much of the mere narrative which school children now must study. This relic is the desk used by Sir John A. Macdonald for many years, including that memorable strenuous period of his second premiership which ended with his death in 1891. This desk was left in the offices allotted to the Prime Ministers of Canada in the East Block for some years after the great man passed away but was removed to the Archives about ten years ago at the instance of Sir Joseph Pope, Sir John's biographer and for many years his secretary.

During the week of the Diamond Jubilee celebration of Confederation, in 1927, the desk was prominently placed in the main room of the building where it was viewed by throngs of visitors. It now occupies its one of the offices, still on view and still an object of reverend inspection by many patriotic Canadians.

This desk is of oak, approximately five and a half feet high, four feet wide, and ten feet long. It is a massive thing with eight large drawers in front, each with a heavy brass pull, and with secret cupboards in the back. The writing surface of the desk lies out from the front, making the desk even more cumbersome looking and in the top left hand drawer the writing implements used by Sir John up to the time of his death, June 6th, 1891, still lie. There are several ordinary clip pens, three blotters on which Sir John's signature can still be read, a new note book, a ruler and several pieces of paper.

When looking at this desk you are reminded that Sir John lived in an age before typewriters were known, and before the time when secretaries were nearly as common as they are now, so that many a letter must have been written at this desk in Sir John's own clear handwriting.

SARGON PUT HIM IN FINE CONDITION

W. H. MILLARD

"I'm 79 years old and it's amazing what the Sargon treatment has done for me. Before I started it I was so weak I couldn't walk half a block without resting, and actually had to crawl up the steps on my hands and knees. I suffered with biliousness and rheumatism and could hardly sleep at all on account of nervousness. Six bottles of Sargon have put me in as fine physical condition as any man my age, and all my ailments have disappeared.

"Sargon Pills put my liver active and gave me my first lasting relief from constipation." — W. H. Millard, 1969 Davenport Road, Toronto.

Sargon may be obtained in Napanee, at Hooper's Drug Store, who has been awarded the exclusive Sargon agency for this town.

HOLDING DOESN'T PAY

The Poultry Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture calls attention to the fact that it doesn't pay to hold eggs for a rise in the market. Past experience proves that holding eggs is a decidedly unwise practice and does only harm to the egg trade in general, particularly when eggs are held under any condition other than up-to-date cold storage. The old practice of country stores holding eggs for mixing with fresh stock on a favourable market has almost entirely disappeared, and, in any event, grading shows the old eggs to be of no consequence who pay the price for real fresh eggs expect to get what they buy. Eggs should be sent promptly to market at all seasons of the year.

CROP FIGURES REVISED

The September survey of conditions throughout Canada in the field undertaken by the Fruit Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture shows the apple crop to be 75.5 per cent of the 1928, and 200,000 barrels below the five years average. Nova Scotia, Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick are all considerably "off" in production prospects this year but British Columbia expects some 360,000 barrels more than last year and a quarter of a million barrels more than her five years average. Weather conditions generally have not been entirely favourable and the general lack of rainfall has retarded growth, at the same time orchard pests have been kept in check and there has been no serious outbreak of apple scab. The pear crop is substantially ahead of last year and the peach crop while lighter than expected will be well ahead of 1928. Plums and prunes in Ontario show a slight increase while the British Columbia production is down by 27 per cent. Grapes will be about the same as last year.

Oh, Listen to the Dicky Bird — A School Inspector said to a pretty teacher:

"Do you teach observation?"

"Yes."

"Then I will test the class. Now, children, shut your eyes and sit still." The inspector made a slow, chirping sort of noise and followed with: "now children what did I do?"

One little boy piped out: "Kissed teacher." (John Bull.)

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas On Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please to reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevents further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. If you accidentally get the sweetened Bisurated Magnesia by mistake, it is also excellent. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at Wallace's Drug Store, or any first class drug store and apply it at home as directed, you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Douglas' Egyptian Liniment makes the finest blister known. Invaluable for stock. Leaves the hair roots in natural and healthy condition. Hair comes back. No scar remains.

GOLDFISH TAKEN IN CANADIAN LAKES

It is not generally known that Goldfish are caught in large quantities in the Great Lakes and what is more surprising that they are used for food purposes. A report has just come to hand which says in part:—

The common Goldfish which inhabits many home fish bowls, aquaria or garden pools is not generally thought of as living in the open waters of the Great Lakes with other common species.

However, considerable numbers of Goldfish are taken by commercial fishermen who haul seines in Lake Erie. These fish were first apparent in quantity in the Sandusky Bay region in 1920 and were thought to have originated from fish escaping from fish farms during a great flood in 1913. Increasing numbers have been taken, and the larger specimens are sold for food on the market and are known as "red carp." Chiefly are sold alive for stocking private golden pools.

These fish are much larger than the fish ordinarily seen, generally attaining a weight of from one to two pounds, as compared with goldfish confined in bowls or small aquaria which seldom attain any considerable growth.

STORING APPLES

It is always cheaper to buy apples by the box, hamper or barrel than it is to buy by the small basket or individual specimen. The reason most people refrain from such purchases is because of the difficulty anticipated in keeping the fruit.

If kept in a cool damp place the fall and winter fruits form in the market will maintain their fine qualities unimpaired for long periods of time. Experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have given considerable attention to this phase of the apples marketing problem and express the view that the average housekeeper should have little or no difficulty in maintaining an adequate supply of the king of fruits throughout the year.

When an apple is picked from the tree it is still alive and to be kept in good condition it has to be stored under healthy conditions. It can be left in the kitchen or stored near a furnace, apples will be dried dry so long much of their fine flavor and quality. The whole experiment of placing them in a cool damp cellar requires neither time or a long period of time.

COUNTY FAIRS HAVE WIDESPREAD VALUE

It is the season for fairs all over the country and it is interesting to note the interest that industry in general is showing in the small as well as the larger communities.

It is estimated that attendance at these provincial and community exhibitions runs into a million last year and besides these there were other agricultural fairs. With such large attendances of dollars of dollars change hands and a trend has been toward education at fairs rather than the mere display of products. Fairs have been found to be effective means of instructing the public in many efficient methods of production. The people attend and their cares are made inexpensive as their minds open to either suggestion or instruction so that a lasting impression is left by the information given to them through interesting educational exhibits.

It has been also noted that the students of the community are brought together to take part in a musical parse, and the fairs go a long way toward the removal of animosities and factionalism. In many cases every member of the community is included in the programme from the time they entered in a baby show to the oldest who are placed in charge of the judging of various sorts. The prizes are often are placed on committees which arrange the details of the programme and exhibits.

Pioneer Landmarks In Adolphustown District

Bay District was Centre of U. E. Loyalist Settlement

(A. H. Colleen.)

When, in the days following the close of the American War of Independence, those who had remained loyal to the British Crown turned their paths toward the north and sought a new domicile under the flag they loved so well; many of them found that refuge along the shores of the Bay of Quinte.

There are few spots in Canada that have so rich a heritage of pioneer history. Nearly a century and a half has passed since the coming of the Loyalists to the shores of Adolphustown. The early days were days of hardship and privation. Then came stern struggle for a bare existence. But they succeeded. Homes, communities, schools, churches, were established. And when their work was done they were laid to rest in the pioneer burying ground.

There were in those days no costly and elaborate monuments. Wooden markers with inscriptions made by loving hands or a limestone slab with names, long since obliterated, marked the graves of the first occupants of these burying grounds. It was long after the coming of the first settlers that marble gravestones carved by skilled workmen could be procured. Many of these erected in the early years of the 19th century are well preserved, but the last place of many of the original pioneers have no distinguishing mark.

Many of these early cemeteries have been sadly neglected. Fences have disappeared, stones have broken down, and graves overgrow with trees and bushes. During recent years much restoration work has been done. A pioneer in this respect in the county was the late Dr. Burr.

In Adolphustown, the cradle of United Empire Loyalists, much has been done, but much remains to be done. This district has many historical landmarks. Within the radius of a few miles there is much to interest the antiquarian. At the invitation of Sheriff D. J. Barker, a most interesting afternoon was spent visiting this district. Crossing the ferry at Glenora, and following the road through Adolphustown and north to the shores of Hay Bay, the first stop was made at the Sir John A. Macdonald monument. Here, overlooking the bay, the Dominion Government has purchased the site of the early home of Canada's famous statesman and erected a monument to his memory. The Macdonald homestead was about half a mile east of the cairn, running down to the bay. The home, long since gone, was a pretty, stone on the north side of the road, a few rods from the bay.

The cairn, or monument, stands close to the road on a nicely sealed plot, surrounded by a neat ornamental iron fence. The cement base is 7 ft. square. The monument of rough granite have been laid in cement. It is 12 ft. high, tapering towards the top. A bronze tablet is affixed to the front with this inscription: "To John Alexander Macdonald, 1815-1891. From this soil home of the Loyalists, he drew inspiration to weld together the weak and scattered colonies of the day into a strong and seditious Dominion, equal partner in the far flung British Commonwealth. Erected by the National Committee for the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation, A.D. 1927. Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada."

Just a few rods east on the same side of the road stands the old Hay Bay Church, the first Methodist house of worship in Canada, built in 1791 by Rev. William Losee. This building is now in a good state of repair. The recent removal of the old fence and the painting of the church has added much to its appearance. An inscription above the church entrance needs renewing, it can now scarcely be read. The story of the old church reads, built 1791, enlarged 1834, abandoned 1866, centennial 1891, repurchased 1911 and reopened 1912. The reopening did not mean the holding of regular service. The old pulpit remains but there are no seats. Service is held in the brick centenary church in the next concession.

Just across the road from the Hay Bay Church is the old U. E. L. burying ground. It is unfenced and uncared. Farm stock pasture among the few gravestones that remain to mark the resting place of the pioneers. It was here that Paul and Solomon Huff were buried. Only very recently some of their descendents have erected a stone to their memory. It is a rough grey granite about 6 ft. high and carries this inscription: "Huff. In memory of Paul and Solomon Huff, United Empire Loyalists, true to King and Country. Erected by the Huff Family Association 1928." This worthy move should be followed by the fencing of the burying ground and marking of remaining graves.

Just half a mile west of this spot there was built in the early days a Quaker Meeting House. This building just at the end of the cross road where it comes through to Hay Bay. The meeting house long since disused, was torn down many years ago. In the burying ground behind the old meeting house were laid many of the early settlers belonging to this faith. Like so many other pioneer burying grounds this too has suffered from neglect. It was here that David Barker, great-grandfather of Sheriff D. J. Barker, was buried. The inscription on the stone marking his grave, bearing date of 1826, was quite legible. Many of the stones bore the familiar Quaker names of Dorland, Clapp, Haight and Mullet. The dates were from early in the 1800's up to about 1860. The foundation lines of the Old Meeting House were clearly discernible.

The site of this burying ground is on a slight raise of ground overlooking Hay Bay. It could easily be restored and beautified by the building of a suitable fence and the cleaning up and leveling of the grounds. Mr. W. J. Gerow, a third member of the party, took measurements and gave an estimate of the cost and it is Mr. Barker's intention to see that this old burying ground is properly restored and a new stone placed at the grave of the U. E. L. pioneer, David Barker.

Mr. Fred Roblin owns the farm of which this was originally a part and in calling at his home he expressed not only his genuine interest in the restoration of the old cemetery but also offered to assist. This worthy work should have the hearty co-operation of all the descendants of the pioneer Quaker Loyalists buried there.

It was an eventful afternoon. From this spot of hallowed memories we drove to the old Barker Homestead at Thompson's Point. Here the pioneer Loyalist settled and built the home that still stands there although now unused as a residence. It was a sightly spot that he chose for his home. To the west one looks up Picton Bay. To the north is the Long Reach and Desoronto. Hay Bay stretches away to the east and to the west across the Bay of Quinte are the wooded hills of the Sophiasburgh shore. This was a great shipping point in steamboat days.

Returning to Adolphustown village a stop was made at beautiful St. John's Anglican Church. Built of quarried stone, the outside is most attractive. But the chief charm is the historic tablets on the inside walls, making a complete and continuous series all around the church, commemorating the names of the U.E.L. pioneers. Two larger tablets and some beautiful memorial windows add to the interest and beauty. This church alone affords ample material for historical article.

The last visit was to the U. E. L. Monument at Adolphustown village. Taking the road to the old dock, much in use in former steamboat days, past the fine Allison residence and turning to the right, up a lane another turn to the right of a few rods brought us to this monument.

There is a well scolded and neatly kept burying ground stands a polished grey marble shaft fully 30 feet high, bearing this inscription: "In memory of the United Empire Loyalists, who through loyalty to British Institutions left the United States and landed on these shores, 16th June, A.D. 1784. This cemetery is the resting place of U.E.L. pioneers. On two gravestones were the names of Joseph Allison, 1854, and Wilet Crandell, 1856.

The time was all too short. We hurried away home. But we took with us memories of those early pioneers. We are the heirs of their courage, their loyalty, their devotion, their self sacrifice and their high ideals. It is a rich heritage. Let us honor their memory by preserving their resting places.

They are the dead. Short years ago
They lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow;
Loved and were loved, and now they lie
In Unmarked Graves.

To us from falling hands they throw
The torch; be ours to hold it high.
Break not the faith with those who lie
In Unmarked Graves.

DEPARTMENTS GET DOWN TO WORK AFTER YEAR OF DISTURBANCE

With the emergency session of Parliament ended and Conservative leaders off to the Imperial and Economic Conference the departments of Government are getting down to real business for the first time in eight months.

When the House is in session the regular routine of the departments is disrupted. That happened from February until June. Then came another upsetting feature in the election campaign and immediately after it the change of Government and hasty preparation for the session which has just terminated.

Conditions in the civil service, are not what they were prior to the formation of the Civil Service Commission. Then a change of Government brought the clearance of dismissals before appointee of the out-going administration. Now only those found guilty of marked partisanship have anything to fear. There are, of course, changes in the higher confidential positions, but even here the number of post-election transfers are extremely inconsequential.

While the major burden of administration of unemployment relief voted by parliament falls upon the Labor and Public Works Departments, almost every branch of the Government is interested. This work, together with the reorganization of the Pensions Department and reorganization of the Canadian National Railways directorate, formed the most immediate tasks which Mr. Bennett left to his colleagues when he sailed for London.

The British High Commissionership would not be filled until his return, nor is it likely that a new Minister will be appointed to Washington till then. It is unlikely that any developments with regard to St. Lawrence development will take place until Mr. Bennett comes home, and in the interval, there are no questions arising between Canada and Washington, which cannot be handled by the Canadian charge.

The Canadian delegation to the London conferences left here sanguine that some material progress will be made in the promotion of inter-Empire co-operation in matters of trade. For the moment these are considered of more immediate concern to Canada than questions arising between or affecting constitutional problems.

Keep Them Happy By Keeping Them Well

It is natural for children to be happy, active and full of fun. When they are fretful, fussy and disinclined to play you may be sure something is wrong. Almost invariably that something lies in the digestive tract.

It is to meet the need for an absolutely safe corrective of childhood ailments that Baby's Own Tablets have been designed. They gently regulate the stomach and-bowels and thus drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and allay teething pains. Concerning them Mrs. W. E. Forsyth, Dover, N. B., writes: "I would not be without Baby's Own Tablets as I know of nothing to equal them for fretful, fussy babies who are troubled with colds or sour stomach."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

13,500 MILES OF PERMANENT ROADS

There are at present in the province of Quebec 32,040 miles or rural roads of which 5,316 are first class or first class roads, 8,878 miles second class and 18,946 third class. Over 13,500 miles of roads in the province or about 41 per cent are permanently improved and surfaced with either concrete, macadam or gravel.

The network of main highways comprises 57 arteries with an aggregate length of 5,316 miles, of which 5,166 miles or 97 per cent are completed. There are also improved 5,072 miles of second class roads and 3,261 miles of local roads.

All improved roads in the province of Quebec are maintained directly by the Provincial Department of Highways, the cost being borne exclusively by the Government.

Asthma Cannot Last when the greatest of all asthma specifics is used. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy assuredly deserves this exalted title. It has to its credit thousands of cases which other preparations had failed to benefit. It brings help to even the most severe cases and brings the patient to a condition of blessed relief. Surely suffering from asthma is needless when a remedy like this is so easily secured.

TOBACCO CROP IS HURT BY DROUGHT

The following report has been issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce regarding the effect of dry weather on the Canadian Tobacco:

The 1930 flue-cured crop of Canada has been damaged considerably by drought and the harvest will be about 25 per cent less than normal.

An increased area was planted to tobacco this year but the damage from drought will probably more than offset the increases. The worst damage was felt in Essex County. Representatives of the Canadian Department of Agriculture stated that most growers would have yields carrying between 500 and 600 pounds per acre, whereas the normal yield is between 800 and 900 pounds per acre. Capably operated lands should run around 600 pounds per acre, but many will be lucky to obtain 500 pounds. It has been reported that some individual growers will not harvest the crop because of the extent of the damage.

It is believed that the area planted to tobacco in 1930 is 25 per cent larger than the 1929 crop. According to official records, the 1929 total for bright flue-cured tobacco was 13,065 acres; the increase of 25 per cent would make 16,256 acres for 1930. Estimating the 1930 yield per acre at 580 pounds on the average, it would net a crop of 10,258,500 pounds. On the basis of an average yield per acre of 535 pounds, the crop would be about 9,000,000 pounds. Canadian reports show that 10,200,000 pounds of bright flue-cured tobacco were produced in 1929.

GIGANTIC OUTLAY TO FURNISH EMPLOYMENT

To ameliorate the unemployment and labor situation in London alone it is estimated that over $500,000,000 will be spent on new projects and the remodelling of old buildings for modern use. Construction is somewhat different in the Old Country to that in Canada. In England, wherever possible, they will remodel an old building rather than tear it down and construct what we would call a modern building. And sometimes it is very difficult to instal an adequate heating system. One of the favourite forms of heating is by a sort of stove and fireplace built into the wall of a room. The temperatures of the rooms are lower than what we have and in schools, for instance a temperature of about 62 is the usual condition while in Canada a temperature of about 68 to 70 degrees is maintained.

"The Verdict of Science on the Moderate Drinking of Alcohol.

Alcohol might be considered as a food. Scientists have different opinions on this matter. Food is broken up into three classes, fats, proteins and carbohydrates. Alcohol does not belong to either of the first two, which are necessary for life, but to the class of carbohydrates, which act as a food, indirectly, by drawing on the other cells of the body to form food. However, alcohol is seldom taken for food, but rather for the taste of fermented liquor and for drug action. Alcohol could not at any time, keep the body long alive, if no other food were available.

Some people still think that alcohol is necessary as a medicine, but contrary to belief is it of no more use than smelling salts. If given to a person who has fainted, it merely has an irritating action on the mucous membrane and the walls of the stomach, which is the same effect that smelling salts produce. It cannot be proven that alcohol is a stimulant to the heart. That is, if the heart were going to stop beating, the internal use of alcohol would not make it beat longer. It does cause, however, a sensation to make our muscles move which in turn causes the heart to beat faster. There is no getting away from the fact that alcohol does make a man feel warmer on a cold day, for a short time. What it really does do is to shrink the arteries or small veins near the skin and makes the cold imperceptible to the blood. However, this only lasts for a short time and then the body is in danger. While he was not feeling the cold, he was drawing on the inner heat of the body, and when this gives way a man dies. When we consider a little exercise such as running or beating the arms against the breast is just as successful as the use of alcohol, we can easily see why thoughtful people will not use it.

The first effect alcohol has if taken in sufficient quantity is to dull the nervous system, which in turn causes the muscles to act more slowly. A man feels giddy or light-headed and loses the greatest use of the brain which is to self-criticize. In this state he disregards caution, either in word or act; he pays no attention to rules or conventions; forgets how quickly time passes and what is more dangerous to himself, he is in an argumentive frame of mind. From this state, as reaction sets in, he has no inclination to do anything, sometimes being very sick. Gradually he sinks into a drunken stupor, which lasts until the alcohol loses its effect on the body, when he then drifts into quite sleep. If too great an amount of alcohol is taken into a mans' body at one time, he does not come out of the stupor, but dies.

Alcohol, if used continually, causes bodily disorders, causes weak will power and mental disorders; is the indirect cause of dropsy, Bright's disease, apoplexy, fat on the heart, infirm children, and chonic intoxication (that is taking the alcohol in small doses, each dose taken before the other has left the body, so poisoning the system.) By the use of alcohol the narcotic drug habit is formed.

Alcohol breaks down the brain cells and will not permit their growth. Such an authority as Henry Ford says that alcohol cannot be taken no matter in how small a quantity, by skilled workmen, as it places them in danger. Alcohol could be taken as a sort of luxury, if man wanted to remain in the animal state. However, we all want to rise higher than this and will rise, by the use of a brain, not drugged by alcohol.

WEDDING BELLS

On Wednesday evening, September 30th, 1936, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Reid, 984 Marentette Avenue, Miss Jean Auld McClure Rae, of Windsor, daughter of Mr. John Rae, of Glasgow, Scotland, became the bride of Mr. Herbert James Wilson, of Detroit, son of Mr. James A. Wilson, of Napanee, Ontario. The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. Reid, entered the room to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Mrs. T. A. Allen. The bride was lovely in a gown of ivory satin made on long princess lines, with large bertha collar and white slippers and hose. Her veil was of tulle and was caught in cap fashion by pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a lovely bouquet of sunburst roses. Her only attendant, Miss Catherine Paton, of Birmingham, Mich, wore a pretty frock of powder blue georgette and wore a silver spray of leaves in her hair. She carried briarcliffe roses. The bridegroom was assisted by Mr. Clarence Wilson, of Windsor.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. A. Allen, before an arch of ferns and autumn foliage. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Robert Duncan sang "O Promise Me." A reception was held, following the ceremony, by Mrs. Reid, the bride's table was centered by the wedding cake, and white ribbon streamers hanging from the centre light to the table corners added greatly to the attractiveness of the table. Miss Margaret Wright and Miss Lenora Cooper assisted in serving. The bride chose for her going-away outfit, a pearl grey flat crepe dress, velvet hat, coat and shoes. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, after a short trip, will reside in Windsor.

RUST DUSTING PAYS

A decided increase in yield in favour of the dusted crops is reported by rust research experts of the Federal Department of Agriculture. Experiments show that the aeroplane is well suited to the dusting of large areas. Not only can rust be controlled by dusting but even in the absence of severe rust infection the beneficial effects of dusting are evident. Sulphur dust is found particularly effective in the control of rust and also in the control of other stem and leaf diseases. In practically every case there was a decided increase in yield in the dusted crop.

THE POTATO CROP

Dry weather and blight combined to force a reduction in the estimated potato crop this year following extremely dry weather conditions. The survey of the Fruit Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture places the 1936 production at 41,956,000 hundred-weight, an increase of some 1,016 tons, or about 5 per cent. over last year. Severe blight is reported from New Brunswick, Quebec, parts of Nova Scotia and Alberta, while insect injury is negligible. The estimated production in hundred-weights by provinces is:—

Prince Edward Island	4,500,000
Nova Scotia	3,120,000
New Brunswick	4,970,000
Quebec	10,000,000
Ontario	10,000,000
Manitoba	2,700,000
Saskatchewan	2,460,000
Alberta	1,960,000
British Columbia	1,650,000

IMPORTS BARRED

Owing to the existence of foot and mouth disease in England an order has been issued from the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, under the Animal Contagious Diseases Act cancelling all permits for the importation of ruminants and swine from Great Britain to Canada. This action has been made necessary as foot and mouth disease has been confirmed in fresh Leeds in England. The order reads in part:—"Owing to the presence of foot and mouth disease in England all permits for the importation into Canada of cattle, sheep, goats, other ruminants, and swine from Great Britain, are cancelled, with the exception of those covering shipments which are at this date actually embarked on vessels en route to Canada." ADOLPHUSTOWN W. M. S.

The October meeting of the W. M. S. met on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Andrew Magee, with a fair attendance, the President, Mrs. Ross Humphrey, in charge. The devotional exercises were under the direction of Mrs. George Ruttan.

The meeting opened with the Doxology. All joined in repeating the Lord's Prayer; hymn "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross" was sung and the Scripture lesson, Psalm 103, was read by Mrs. Ruttan.

Reports were given by the secretary and treasurer. As it was impossible for Mrs. C. Davis to attend the sectional meeting at Deseronto, Miss Hattie Mallory was appointed delegate to bring back the report. The programme was in care of Mrs. T. Davis, and the members all enjoyed taking part in an alphabetical Biblical contest. Miss Annabel Magee took up the chapter in the Study Book. Heralds reported progress in the work: Mrs. John Humphrey and Mrs. John Magee. Roll call, "A verse having yourselves in it," was responded to by the members.

The offering was received. Hymn: "My Faith Looks Up to Thee" was sung and the meeting closed with all repeating in unison the Mizpah Benediction.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Allison. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

WEDDING BELLS

BADGLEY — LOUCKS

A pretty wedding took place in the United Church at Enterprise on Saturday, September 26th, when Muriel Eileen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Loucks, became the bride of Mr. James Henry Miller Badgley, son of Mrs. and the late Henry Badgley, of Stoco. Promptley at 3 o'clock, the bridal party entered the church, which was tastefully decorated with ferns and Autumn flowers and of white bells —the work of the numerous friends of the bride. To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Madeleine Wagar, the bride, dressed in white georgette and wearing a veil caught with orange blossoms, was escorted to the altar by her father. Miss Viva Badgley, cousin of the groom, was bridesmaid, while Mr. Gerald Loucks, brother of the bride was best man. Messrs. Arthur Keech, Enterprise, and William Jackson, Toronto, were ushers. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. M. Stinson, B.A.,B.D., pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. H. A. Bunt, B.A., a former pastor. At the close of the ceremony and during the signing of the register, quiet music was rendered by Miss Madeleine Wagar. Then as the gladsome notes of Mendelssohn's wedding march were heard, the party left the church to be greeted by showers of confetti thrown by the numerous company, which had completely filled the church for the occasion. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was attended by the immediate relatives of the young people and a few friends, among whom were noted Rev. D. M. Stinson and Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Bunt. The home was very tastefully decorated in white and pink and Autumn tints, the work of Miss Lefa Howard of Holland. The wedding cake, the work of art, likewise displayed the skill of Miss Hudson, Enterprise. In the serving of a buffet luncheon, Misses Arthur Keech and William Jackson proved themselves very efficient. They were assisted by Miss H. Holland and Miss M. Wagar, while Miss Hall and Miss Freda Wagar were also in less efficient behind the scenes. Many beautiful and useful gifts were in evidence, bespeaking the good will of all the young people. The groom presented to the bride, a silver sandwich tray and olive dish; to the pianist, a hand painted vase; to the bridesmaid, a gold necklet; to the best man, a wrist gold watch chain.

After luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Badgley left on a motor trip, which included, Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Watertown, N.Y. The bride travelling in a blue costume and wearing a fur, the gift of her father. When they return, they will reside on a farm near Marlbank. The best wishes of a host of friends will follow them into their new home.

RUGBY

TRENTON 11, N. C. I. 5

N. C. I. played a schedule game in Trenton on Wednesday last where they gave a good account of themselves, although beaten 11-5.

All the way through, N. C. I. were dogged with hard luck and numerous fumbles. Both the major scores made by Trenton, were gained on a loose ball. The Napanee team was much speedier than that of Trenton, but in the line T. C. I. had an advantage in weight and as a result Trenton frequently broke through our front. But only once did Trenton gain yards on downs, while Napanee did this three times. N. C. I. hope to reverse the tables when Trenton play here.

N. C. I. 23, Picton 0.

At the Driving Park, Saturday, N. C. I. played Picton in a regular league fixture. Although the game was very one-sided yet it proved more interesting than it seems. Picton put up a good battle although far outclassed by N. C. I.'s speed and clever field work. Six touch downs were secured by Napanee and three more points were gained on a convert and a rouge.

We look forward to the game with Alberts' College in Belleville on Wednesday, where we hope to win and keep in the running.

THE PULLET RATION

A definite plan of feeding is necessary to insure best results from laying pullets, poultry experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture advise. The well balanced ration includes scratch grain, mash, green feed, grit, shell, certain supplimentary vitamine feeds, and plenty of fresh clean water. There are, however, a wide variety of materials which go to make up this ration. Home mixing of suitable formulae is recommended. Wheat, oats, and corn or barley go into the making of a good mash. Fifteen per cent of animal feeds, one per cent of salt, an equal quantity of cod liver oil, should be mixed in. Grit and oyster shell should be available in hoppers at all times. Alfalfa, clover, or rapidgro make excellent green feeds, and where these are not available alfalfa leaf meal may be used. Raw potatoes, field carrots and mangels make succulent supplementary feeds. The feeding of cod liver oil supplies the vitamine which prevents rickets.

As a vermifuge an effective preparation is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, and it can be given to the most delicate child without fear of injury to the constitution.

CARE OF MACHINERY

Thousands of dollars are wasted annually through leaving farm machinery and equipment out in the open, and breakdowns at critical periods always prove expensive. It costs very little, around $150, to provide an adequate, if rough, shelter for binders, seed drills, threshers, tractors, combines, mowers, etc., most of which are idle about 46 weeks in the year. All that is necessary is a shed that will keep rain, snow and sun from the equipment. The saving in depreciation alone will more than offset the cost in the first year. The farmer who has his machinery housed has a much better chance to repair it during the winter time and with only 170 working days between the spring thaw and freeze up keeping farm machinery at maximum efficiency is really important.—Dominion Department of Agriculture.

A BIG SERVICE

The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, through its Publications Branch last year distributed to farmers all over Canada free of charge a total of 4,361,370 publications, bulletins, circulars and reports. In addition to this material 256 press articles and 198 magazine features were supplied. This is one of the ways in which the farmer is helped with his problems and kept in close touch with the condition of his markets and important new developments in agriculture.

Democrats Please Note — Q. What kind of guns could be used for big game hunting in America?

A. The National Rifle Association of America says that for elephant shooting a .375 Mauser rifle is generally used. (Ashbury Park Press.)

CANNED CHICKEN

In his annual report recently published the Veterinary Director General of the Dominion Department of Agriculture calls attention to the increase in the number of poultry products processed under government inspection. The packing trade are canning more meats and poultry in Canada, and there appears to be room for considerable development in the field of canned chicken. Canned whole chicken made its appearance on the market last year and from the reception accorded it the new business is likely to develop into one of considerable proportions.

NAPANEE TO HAVE NEW BRAKE TESTER

Wiseman Installs New Equipment

C. A. Wiseman is busy installing in his garage, on Bridge Street, a new brake-testing machine. The increasing motor traffic has made government supervision of brakes more necessary and exacting. To meet the need for greater accuracy, the Bayberries Research Department have invented a new and scientifically accurate tester. And Wiseman's Garage is to have one to serve this locality. It is so designed that it is possible for the car owner to tell at a glance the exact condition of the brakes in his car. The car is driven on to the tester and locked in place. There is a sliding platform under each wheel, and the platforms are controlled by compressed air cylinders and pistons. A pedal depressor is applied on the brake pedal, and air is fed into the cylinders, the amount of pressure registering on a gauge. There is also a red light for each platform to advise the operator when each wheel has received a test.

When the car is locked into position and the pedal depresser is applied, air is fed into the cylinders, the platforms start to revolve the wheels, registering the pressure on a gauge. If the red lights do not light up within 75 lbs of each other, the brake requires attention. Naturally the first platform to move will indicate the weakest brake, and in this manner it is impossible to tell at a glance which wheels require attention. Another feature of this machine is that it will tell the operator if the brakes are dragging, without applying the pedal.

If a car requires an adjustment, the mechanics jacks up all four wheels and works on the mechanism until he feels that each wheel corresponds very closely to the others. He then makes a test, and touches up each wheel until all four wheels require the same amount of pressure, and the red lights show at the same time.

It is also possible to tell out-of-round brake drums, greasy lining and seized levers, so any car owner having a test made on this machine can see for himself the condition of the brakes on his car.

The demonstration of this new machine will take place at Wiseman's Garage, four days, beginning Wednesday, October 15th. 41a

WEDDING BELLS

RUNIONS — THOMSON

At two o'clock, October 1st, a quiet but interesting Autumn wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Thomson, Glanworth, Ontario, when their only daughter, Hazel Irene, was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur Dixon Runions, B.S.A., Napanee, Ont., only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Runions, Cardinal, Ont. The Rev. J. D. Stephens officiated, in the presence of the immediate family, while Miss Mabel McLarty, of St. Thomas, played the wedding music.

The bride looked most winsome in a period frock of petal pink chiffon and lace which fell in graceful folds to the tips of flowered brocade pumps of the same pastel shade. She carried a bridal bouquet of Sweetheart Roses and Lilies of the Valley, and wore the groom's gift, a cameo pendant set with a diamond. The groom's gift to the pianist was an old-gold bracelet, set with amethysts.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the Hotel London, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served.

Later, the bride and groom left on a motor trip to the Mariffers, the bride travelling in a rose-beige ensemble with Autumn brown accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Runions will reside at the Kelly Apts., Napanee.

OBITUARY.

THE LATE MRS. MARTHA BOWEN

In the early morning hours of September 26th, Mrs. Martha Bowen, of Enterprise, passed peacefully away, aged 84 years, 6 months and 10 days. Mrs. Bowen has been in failing health for years, but had been in bed only about three weeks following a heart attack, after which she grew gradually weaker, until the end.

Mrs. Norman Jackson, of Lacoma, N.Y., to whom Mrs. Bowen had been as a mother, was by her bed side constantly during this time and did everything any daughter could do for a loved one. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Stinson, was a frequent visitor and Mrs. Bowen expressed not only her readiness but her eagerness to depart. Prayer was constantly upon her lips.

The funeral service was held in the United Church, Friday, September 26th at 2.00 p.m. and was conducted by the pastor and was largely attended. Interment was made at the Moscow Cemetery.

There remains to mourn her loss, one son, Okel, of Enterprise, and three brothers, Nelson Hart, of Napanee, Miles Hart, of Dresden, and Charles Hart, of Wallaceburg, Ont. Her husband, the late Daniel Bowen, predeceased her sixteen years ago.

Mrs. Bowen was born at Roblin, Richmond Township, and for the last 36 years has lived in Enterprise. She was a member of the United Church, and was highly respected by all who knew her.

BRITISH COLUMBIA SALMON RUN COUNTED

An impressive march past of over 9,000 sockeye Salmon was seen recently at Stamp River Falls, B.C. The fish took ten days to pass the falls by aid of the fishway constructed by the Canadian Government Department of Fisheries. A count of the fish was made by the Government Fisheries Guardian at the falls during ten hours of each day in the period. As compared with the number of sockeye using the fishway in the corresponding period of 1929, there was a very large increase this year. In 1929 the total was 3,512 as against 9,061 this year.

The fishway overcomes a height of some forty feet of turbulent rushing water and is a means of ascent for many salmon which might otherwise not be able to battle their way to the spawning areas. This year a very large number of sockeye have been able to make their way over the natural falls.

The coastal and inland waters of British Columbia are among the most productive salmon fisheries in the world and the quality of the salmon carried there is unsurpassed.

COUNTY LADIES' AID CONVENTION

(Too Late for Last Issue)

On Wednesday, September 24th, 1930, the eighth annual convention of the Ladies' Aid Societies of the United Churches of this district, was held at Tamworth United Church.

The President, Mrs. R. G. Gilbride, of St. Andrew's, Napanee Ladies' Aid, with the officers took their places on the platform. Enterprise Institute took charge of the devotional exercises, Mrs. A. Carscallen reading the scripture lesson. The President then took charge. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved and Mrs. Elmer Allenbrack, Gretna, was appointed press reporter.

The following committees were appointed:— Nominating Committee, Mrs. (Rev.) Foley, Selby; Mrs. Arthur Dean, Gretna; Mrs. P. Lake, Morven; Mrs. D. Richmond, Roblin; and Mrs. Ross Barr, Arden. Resolution and Courtesy Committee:— Mrs. G. A. Wagear, Enterprise; Mrs. Haines, Roblin; Mrs. A. Babcock Wilson; Mrs. (Rev.) Beckel, Bay Circuit.

In her paper, which followed, Mrs. T. N. Davis, Adolphustown, struck one of the key notes of the convention, when she said: "instead of the Ladies' Aid being looked upon as the one organization of the church whose sole duty it is to raise money, it should be one of the spiritual forces of the church." She said the Ladies' Aid should have a meeting occasionally for prayer, fellowship and Bible study, with no mention of money.

Mrs. Lochhead and Mrs. Huffman, of Tamworth, sang a duet, which was greatly appreciated by all.

The following twenty-eight societies reported: Trinity, Grace, and St. Andrew's of Napanee; Morven, Roblin, Newburgh, Gretna, Bethany, Hawley, Adolphustown, Sillsville, Yarker, Colebrook, Camden East, Arden, Centreville, Tamworth, Hay Bay, Bath, Wilton, Mountain Grove, Union, Enterprise, Anderson, Beulah, Sand Hill, Empey Hill and Hayburn. These societies raised approximately $7,700 since last convention, this money being expended on every department of local church work. Many different methods were used in raising this money. Some of these are by fees, tea-will offerings, bazaars, suppers, plays, autograph quilts, quilting, hot-dog booths, travelling baskets, booths at school fairs, holiday coin bags, sock socials, egg showers, "ads" of books, birthday banks, sunshine bags and food sales at the Kingston market.

Mrs. Valkman, Napanee, favored the audience with a very beautiful solo: "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer."

A short memorial service then followed, the secretary reading the names of 15 deceased members. Rev. Beckel led in prayer of thanks for the lives of these women who have lived and worked with us. Mrs. Smith Gilmore, Tamworth, gave the address of welcome, which was responded to by Mrs. A. W. Babcock, Wilton.

"A boutiful dinner was served by the Tamworth ladies."

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session was opened by convention singing. The devotional exercises were conducted by Gretna Ladies' Aid, Mrs. A. Dean taking charge. Mrs. W. C. Joyce led in prayer and Mrs. Laura Parks read the scripture lesson.

The Round Table was very ably led by Mrs. A. Carscallen, Enterprise. Some of the questions asked and discussed were: "Could our church do without a Ladies' Aid ?" "Are we willing to act on committees when asked ?" "Could we have all committees voluntarily filled at beginning of year ?"

A pleasing change in the programme was a paper read by Mrs. Price, of Empey Hill. From memory, she had written an account of "Mother" from a more's address at Selby. She gave us a picture of Mrs. Wiltemore, who is nearly 80 years old, the story of her conversion from a society lady to a worker, carrying the Goepel to the slums of New York.

Mrs. Valkman again sang very sweetly.

Then followed an address by Mrs. Patton, who for the last two years was president of the Montreal Women's Club, at Montreal. She said she was glad to address an organization of women such as this. No matter what aim, all women's organizations are working for one thing—to make this world a better place for women and children to live in. One cannot be a pessimist and do the work women are doing in the world today. Ontario women are far ahead of the women of Quebec in many ways. However, since the appointment of a woman to the Senate, women, now being persons, are eligible to legislative assembly but cannot even vote for aldermen The women of Quebec are working for the right of women to be police women, (social workers with the authority of the law), on school boards, on boards of health, architects, chartered accountants and lawyers. Any woman who goes into any club work in Quebec becomes an ardent suffragist. Many groups of women are trying to develop a talent for public speaking. We should train our children in public speaking and in leading meetings. Those women, who cannot speak in public can help to form an intelligent body of public opinion. God chooses His own tools for His own work. We never know when our chance word will help along someone.

After the singing of a hymn, the minutes of the morning session were read and approved.

The following resolutions were presented by Mrs. Wagar, Enterprise:—

W wish to thank the very efficient President, Mrs. Gilbride, and her staff of officers, for the splendid success of this most inspiring convention, expressing our especial appreciation to Mrs. Gilbride, who has so capably carried on the work of the year.

We also wish to mention the Secretary, Mrs. Earl Perry, the Assistant Secretary, Mrs. Norman Boyce and the Treasurer, Mrs. Alpine Woods, who have so faithfully served in these offices since the organization of the County Ladies' Aid.

We wish to express our regret at the absence of Mrs. Woods and to send our sympathy to her in her illness.

We also regret the absence of Rev. Mr. Dixon, our organizer, and we wish to convey our best wishes to him in his new work.

We wish to express our thanks to the minister of this church and his wife; to the trustee board, for the use of the church and to those who so effectively decorated the church in this Autumn time for this occasion.

Inhibited Curiosity. — Wife: You don't love me any more. When you see me crying now, you don't ask why.

Husband: I'm awfully sorry, my dear, but these questions have already cost me such a lot of money. (Passing Show.)

Most Expensive Kind — Boarder: I say, I hope you won't charge me for a hot bath, it was only lukewarm.

Landlady: Oh no. Hot bath elsepence, cold bath threepence—so lukewarm will be ninepence ! (London Opinion.)

Dobbin's Piner Fellings — "The horse you sold me last week is a fine animal, but I can't get him to hold his head up."

"Oh, it's because of his pride. He'll hold it up as soon as he's paid for." (Guitierrez (Madrid.)

More Unemployment —Souseworker, experienced, part time mornings. — (New York Times.)

Milord is Served — The policeman entered the cafe and with great dignity announced to a man at one of the tables: "Your car awaits without"

"Without what ?" retorted the rather loud-mouthed gentleman

"Without lights," said the policeman, "Your name and address, please." — (Vancouver Province.)

Musical Burglary — The turn was over, and the orchestra was silent for a time.

"I say," said the conductor, leaning down to speak to his first violin, "what ever key were you playing in ?"

"Skelton key," returned the violinist readily enough.

"Skeleton key," echoed the conductor, "whatever do you mean ?"

"Pla anything," was the reply. — (Wentworth Blade.)

Willie's Reward — In this family there were a large number of small children. Little Willie, aged six, was taken in one morning to see his father, who happened to be laid up with influenza. Little Willie was quiet, almost reverent, in the sickroom. When it was time for him to go, he went up to his father's bedside and said:

"I bin good, ain't I, Pop ?

"Yes, son," the old man whispered. "Well, then, kin I see the baby ?"

Might Scrap Calamity Jane — The next international parley may include a demand from Great Britain for some sort of parity with Bobby Jones. (The Bystander.)

A New Habit

There's a reason for everything. Mrs. Brown's son, Fred, away in the big city, never would write regularly. He was a constant anxiety to his mother. But lately he has formed the habit of telephoning every Sunday evening ! Her friends say Mrs. Brown looks better than she has done for years. Wonderful what a difference that weekly chat has made for her.

Also we wish to think the ladies of Tamworth for the sumptuous dinner.

We wish to thank all who have helped in the programme today and who have this convention such a success. We wish especially, to thank Mrs. Patton for her inspiring address.

We wish to recommend that the President be left in office two consecutive years, realizing that no officer can do her best in one year.

We would recommend that the invitation of Hay Bay and Sand Hill Ladies' Aids for the convention of 1931, to be held at Hay Bay Church, be accepted.

We would suggest that each Ladies' Aid with a problem bring the written problem and hand it to the secretary at the convention.

The following officers for 1931 were elected and presented:—

Honorary President — Rev. A. D. Waite, Tamworth.

President — Mrs. L. T. Parks, Hay Bay.

First Vice-President — Mrs. Adam Milligan, Tamworth.

Second Vice-President — Mrs. Harold Vanalstine, Bath.

Secretary — Mrs. Earl Perry, Wilton.

Assistant Secretary— Mrs. Ross Barr Arden.

Treasurer — Mrs. Laura Parks, Gretna.

Members of Executive — Mrs. R. G. Gilbride, Napanee, Mrs. Archie Winters Morven and Mrs. D. Richmond, Roblin.

The convention was closed with prayer by Rev. A. D. Waite, Tamworth.

The Indian Love Flower

Legend of "Heads Entangled" Gives Romantic Touch to Violets—Petals Much Sought by European Perfumers and Confectioners

(By Ada L Potts)

It comes as a bit of surprise to those who long cherished the thought of the Indian as peculiarly a "child of nature", as well as habitually "poetical in speech," to find that there are fewer myths and legends associated with plant life than many imagine—that is until careful search is made for them. It must surely be that no effort has been made to preserve these stories, and it is regretable to lose any of them, for folklore has a distinctive place in the literature of any nation.

The legend of "Heads Entangled" is the story of the origin of some of the violets, of which we have at least 16 varieties native in Canada. The story runs that many moons ago—long before the white man came to America—there was a young brave who was the pride of his tribe, because, on three occasions, he had done his people outstanding service, the last being a most successful defeat of one of their greatest enemies. Unfortunately for the young Indian, he had caught a glimpse of a young Indian maiden belonging to the defeated tribe and he wanted her for his lodge, but the war recently carried on had made such a thing as the customary negotiations out of the question. For months this young Indian hid himself in the woods near the maiden's village, that he might gaze upon the object of his choice, though she was unaware of the risks taken by her unknown admirer, who was particularly adept in the matter of bird-calls.

One day the unsuspecting maiden entered the woods attracted by the beautiful bird-notes she heard, and was lured farther and farther from home. When the maiden reached what the brave considered a safe distance from her village, he seized her and carried her toward the village of his own people. However, the girl had been watched by a young man of her own tribe who was known to be a suitor, and he hurried back to the village to raise the alarm. His failure to attempt a rescue at the time angered his people, and after subjecting him to humiliating treatment, the leading men of the tribe set out after the lost maiden. One morning they overtook the pair, but great was their rage when they found that the girl was a willing captive. To signify her willingness she wound the plaited braids of her hair about her lover's neck as a recognized indication of marriage.

The pursuing warriors were so filled with rage that they killed not only their foe but the girl, because of her readiness to leave her own people with him. The bodies were left where they fell, and from this spot violets sprang up. It is claimed that to the Indians these flowers typify courage, love and devotion.

According to legend, birds carried the seeds of the flower over all the world, and to this day there can be seen on the petals the straight line the Indian maiden's hair, for her great braids were a tender care to them.

Varieties of Violets

Among our native violets the variety known as viola Canadensis, or branching wood violet, has the most white petals, flushed with pink outside, and is one of the most pleasing members of the family; viola blanda and the lance-leaved viola also have blue-veined white flowers, so that to which of these the Indian story refers cannot be definitely determined.

Of the yellow-colored varieties we have some three, or four, quite well-known, but of these, the variety called viola pubescens (downy yellow) is perhaps the best known, and is to be distinguished by the dilated violet scabriuscula (smooth yellow violet) by being more hairy and of not so bright a green.

Among those listed as located in parts of Ontario is one known as the "wild pansy" (V. rafinesquii), together with the marsh blue (V. cucullata), early blue (V. palmata), woolly blue (V. sororia), ovate-leaved (V. sagittata), prairie (V. pedatifida), and the sweet white (V. incognita).

There appears to be no records of these being used either medicinally, or as food, by the Indians, although it is claimed that the Romans believed that the violet had medical properties. Pliny advises a garland of violets about the forehead as a cure for headache and dizziness, and certainly at the time of James I violets were included in the British Herbals. Nicholas Culpeper gives some most amazing remedies when writing of the violet, and elsewhere are found claims to some success following their use in the treatment of cancer.

We are so accustomed to seeing the violet as a low growing plant that we rarely think of any member of the family taking the form of a tree, yet some South American members do this, and have medicine obtained from their roots which possesses emetic qualities. The juice of the fragrant violet (V. odorata) if taken from the roots will excite nausea—and "cause nerves," it is claimed.

Violets as Food

Candied violets can now be considered a staple industry in some districts of France. Per instance, at Grasse, where quantities of violets are raised for perfume making, all the old and stale violets, it is said, are purchased by confectionary manufacturers, who steam them, dip them in boiling syrup, and, afterwards, sell them at a high price as "Comfiture de Violette." The use of flower-flavorings is well known, as must be that of the violet in the manufacture of preserves and—in Turkey, Persia and Arabia—in the preparation of sherbets.

Not so long ago, violets were used in Britain to flavor vinegar and combine with lettuce as a salad. There was a dish known as Violets at one time served. It consisted of the flowers boiled, pressed and pounded, and milk, rice-flour and honey were added to the pulp.

Making violet conserve is not a difficult operation. In the bottom of a pint jar is placed a layer of sugar, then a layer of the skimmed violets; then more sugar and another layer of violets, until the jar is full, using sugar for the top. Cover the jar closely, pasting over it a double thickness of sugar-brown paper and then set in a cool place for three months. Rose petals and those of the syringa can be treated in the same manner, and make a fine addition to whipped cream and meringues, and other culinary conceits.

Optimism—
Invest for the Future

Optimism is the disposition to look on the brightest side of things. So-called prosperity and depression are largely products of mass psychology. Never in the history of Canada has there been more cause for optimism than at the present time.

An increase of 11.4% in population has been registered between 1921 and 1929. There has been an estimated addition to our national wealth from undeveloped natural resources of $27,000,000,000, or over 22% since 1921. Foreign investment in Canada in 1929 amounted to $5,860,000,000 and in spite of the large importation of foreign capital Canadian financiers probably control at least 60% of all enterprises located in the Dominion. In 1928 Canada was fifth among the countries of the world in aggregate trade per capita.

Any reduction in industrial and economic activity in Canada is only a temporary condition. Growth and development is the normal state of affairs. Investors, therefore, can purchase with confidence securities of corporations representing our basic industries. In our opinion, judicious commitments made at the present time, will prove very satisfactory.

Our October Offering List features a few securities of representative corporations which present an opportunity of participating in Canada's future prosperity. A copy will be furnished upon request.

WHITE GRUB OUTBREAK

In view of the occurrence of the White Grub outbreak in Eastern Ontario, in the eastern townships and in the Oka-St. Jerome district, the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have prepared the following suggestions for immediate action on the part of farmers whose fields are infested:—

All grub infested soil should be plowed as soon as possible.

Plowed soil should be disc-harrowed shortly afterwards at frequent intervals until the freeze up.

Plowing done in October and November should be from one to two inches deeper than September plowing for the reason that the grub digs down about one inch a month into the soil.

Where tractor plowing outfits can be used it will be found particularly effective in that it will kill directly more than twice as many grubs as the horse plowing outfit.

As much unplowed grub infested land should be cleared and plowed as is possible.

Poultry and pigs should be allowed to run on infested fields during plowing operations. Both white grubs and the June beetle are suitable for poultry and hog food and even month-old chicks will feed readily on white grubs.

The crow, the skunk, and the star-nosed mole should be protected in grub infested areas particularly because of the fact that they feed on the white grub.

A record should be kept of grub infested and uninfested fields when plowing, for future reference.

Grubs are now quite large and are easily observed. Plowing will expose about 10 per cent of the total white grub population to view in the furrows.

NEW BOUNTY ON WOLVES IS $25

Increase is $10 Over Former Bounty—Farmers Pleased at Move

Fish and Game Overseer C. W. Amey of the County of Lennox and Addington, states that the bounty on wolves has been increased this year. The district where the increase is effective is south of the French and Mattawa Rivers, in which section the County of Lennox and Addington is included. The new bounty will be $25 on wolves over three months of age and on those under three months the bounty will remain the same, $5.00 The bounties were formerly $15.00 and $5.00, but the increase came into effect recently and will be well regarded by farmers in the north, who find the wolves a menace to stock.

LIGHTER CLOTHING OF AUDIENCES MAKING ACCUSTICS BETTER

Actors and actresses of 25 years ago were forced to speak considerably louder than they do now, largely because of the voluminous clothing worn by their audiences.

Experiments carried on for some time have been conducted in a specially constructed room having no sound absorption and no accoustical properties. A loud speaker is placed in the empty room and the length of time required for the sound to decay after the source has been shut off is measured. The tests were made in an empty room first and then with various materials having acoustic properties placed in the room. In this way practically every kind of accoutical material now made has been tested with the co-operation of the company manufacturing it.

Among the more common substances from which accoustical materials are made are plaster and hair felt, sugar cane fiber, pumice and rock wood, the latter being the result of molten rock blown through exceedingly fine jets. The use of sound absorbing material has been most prominent in theatres and particularly the talking picture houses. Considerably more of the sound absorbing material is used in the talkie picture houses due to the fact that while the human voice is somewhat limited in volume, the loud speakers used in sound reproduction have virtually unlimited volume. In the theatres the material is placed in the ceiling and side walls while curtains and drapes are also used. In many of the more expensive and luxurious types of theatres the accoustical material is placed in the padding in the backs of the seats and spring padding of the seats.

CROP ROTATION

The maintenance of soil fertility is obviously essential to successful farming. Unless the soil is in a fertile condition it is impossible to produce large crops and large crops are a prerequisite to profitable farming, observe field husbandry experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The adoption of a good system of crop rotation involves no additional expense and is the most effective way in which to maintain the fertility of the soil and thereby increase the yield of farm crops. In addition, crop rotations assist in the control of weeds, and help to keep in check insect pests and fungous diseases. The labour on the farm, too, is better distributed throughout the season when suitable acreages of various crops, planted and harvested at different times, are grown in rotation.

RAISE MORE GEESE

Geese raising does not receive the attention by the farming community that the business warrants, assert poultry experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The farm is the natural habitat of the goose, providing those two great essentials to successful geese raising—free range and an abundance of green foods. Raising a flock of geese is one means by which the farmer can reap a good reward with a very small investment and comparatively little labour. Geese command a good price on the Christmas market and the demand is always greater than the supply.

AVIATOR COMPLETES 14,000 MILE CONVERSATION

An aviator, 5,000 feet above th City of Buenos Aires, Argentina, recently conversed with the general post office in Sydney Australia, over a 14,000 mile circuit, a feat believed to have set a world record in radio telephony.

An employee of the radio-telephone service between Sydney and London, was talking to London and he was switched over to Madrid by land line and as the connection was good at the time the official ordered him to Buenos Aires, and at the time an airplane was making a test flight over that city the connection was made and so the call was extended. In all 14,000 miles separated the phones.

COWS DEMAND PROPER DIET IN PLAIN WORDS

An interesting and novel way of instructing the public especially that of the rural districts of the country has been found in the use of mechanical talking animals. Special exhibits are prepared for livestock shows, dairy shows, and other specialized exhibits. Among the exhibits which have attracted attention are a cow, a pig and a couple of hens. Each is equipped with a talking machine and the parts are so synchronized as to move in accord with the statements made. The cow attracts attention with a large "mooo" followed by an argument with the owner on the kind of feed which is best for her and dissertation on the most modern feeding methods. Similar messages are conveyed by the other mechanical animals and it has been found that curiosity which first attracts the public soon changes to interest.

FEWER CANADIANS GO TO UNITED STATES

There were only 3,501 Canadians emigrating to the United States in the month of July. This number is considerably below the monthly average for the fiscal year. Of the other immigrants to the United States during the same month the majority came from the European countries and even these were below the monthly average. Italy led the list with some 1,823 immigrants and Germany followed with 1,157. England sent out 843 immigrants, Scotland 780 and the Irish Free States 524.

Over 18,760 immigrants entered the States by the Port of New York alone, and some 5,433 came over the boundary via Canada.

Whatever Your Skin Trouble— Get Well This Magic Way

Many Sufferers Believed by Famous Herbal Healer

Whether it be a disfiguring rash, or an outbreak of pimples, sore chapped hands, frostbite, or any cut, boils, or scald—dress the place at once with this grand herbal ointment, Zam-Buk. It is beautifully soothing, swiftly healing, and highly antiseptic.

Even in chronic troubles like eczema, salt rheum, ulcers, and poisoned sores, Zam-Buk eradicates disease and grows new skin. You can "rub it in" for cold-on-the-chest, bodily chills, stiffness, sprains, muscular pains, etc. In fact, there are a hundred uses for Zam-Buk. Be sure to keep a box at home.

ALL SPEAK WELL OF ZAM-BUK

"Zam-Buk rid me of ivy poisoning and completely healed my festered Leg."—Mrs. R. Cray, 67 Rose Du Lac, Winnipeg.

"A bad attack of Barber's Itch left me disfigured for two weeks. My skin is now fine and healthy."—Mr. D. K., Box 421, Humboldt, Sask.

"When I suffered from painful matter boils, Zam-Buk was the only effective remedy."—Hazel B. Beck, Newburn, Lunenburg, Nova Scotia.

"I couldn't find anything to relieve a burn on my arm until my Mother applied Zam-Buk."—Mrs. E. R. Croteau, Waterloo, Que.

The unparalleled success of Zam-Buk as a healer of skin troubles lies in its original and valuable formula. Zam-Buk is compounded from certain extracts of herbal origin, so refined that they soak through the tiny pores into underlying tissues. Zam-Buk heals from below as well as on the surface. It kills poisonous germs, stops pain and itching, and grows new skin. Zam-Buk is also a splendid remedy for piles and a fine dressing for injuries. LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor of The Beaver.

Dear Sir: In a recent issue of The Beaver was a letter that had appeared in The Picton Gazette giving some of the events of importance that marked the meeting of the Conservatives here for selection of a candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox in the recent election. But there are some facts not yet mentioned in the letter you published and which I think should be made public.

After Mr. John A. Weese had been agreed upon by the representatives of Mr. Hubbs and Gen. Hepburn, it was assumed that the meeting of the delegates was unanimously nominated and all withdrew but Gen. Hepburn, Mr. Hubbs and Mr. Newman. Mr. Newman left England at the last moment.

At the meeting of the representatives of Mr. Hubbs and Gen. Hepburn, to suggest a candidate that they would both support, Prof. Martin, a representative of Mr. Hubbs, offered the name of Mr. Newman as a compromise candidate on the ground that he was the only other candidate who had received any votes at the first meeting of the delegates. Prof. Martin was supported by the other representatives of Mr. Hubbs. However, this suggestion was turned down as it was to be unanimous.

Now it appears to me that the only explanation of the vote for Mr. Newman at the second meeting of the delegates was that the supporters of Mr. Hubbs did not accept loyally the agreement by which Mr. Weese was selected and tried to work in their own representative after he had been rejected by the committee.

Yours Sincerely,
"LENNOX."

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

The local rugby squad's win over Picton last Saturday was as decisive as that of Belleville over the same team.

* * *

The way things are shaping up it looks as though N. C. I. and Belleville will be snapping it out for first place.

* * *

The boys from the Alemite City are older and more experienced besides being a little heavier.

* * *

However, Coach Les. Boyes is working the local lads hard and teaching them good rugby, and should be the showing they made here two weeks ago, they should nose out the champions.

* * *

Let. got some good coaching himself while at St. Andrew's College at Aurora, two years ago and is passing it on to the local squad and if they keep going the way they have been until now, it looks as though he has turned out the best team the locals have had in some years.

* * *

We received a letter last week from the secretary of the Deseronto Athletic Club stating that they had entered a team in the Junior O. R. F. U. and that any local boys who wished to try out for the team would be welcome.

* * *

The only stipulation was that they would have to provide their own transportation and this seems to be the only drawback.

* * *

Three of the local boys signed up and four more stated that they intended to play but as yet none have been up to practice.

* * *

The practises are held in the playground behind the Bank of Montreal every evening at seven.

* * *

One large electric lamp provides all the illumination and play cannot travel far from this one light because it is too dark.

BAY CIRCUIT

This is the busy season of the year for the farmers' silo filling, threshing, ploughing, etc, is on in progress. The ideal weather still prevails. Like Indian Summer. A heavy rain is much needed as—farmers are finding it hard to plough.—Sunday was the big day at Bethany, it being the occasion of the—anniversary. Good congregations greeted the Rev. W. H. Truscott, a former pastor, at both services. The choir rendered several excellent numbers under the leadership of Mrs. Wilfred Miller. The beautiful weather added much to the success of the—day.— Sometimes it is thought the youth of today are not interested in the things of the Kingdom of God. But every such idea was expelled Tuesday evening last, when one hundred and fifty young people were in attendance at the "Young" gathering at Anderson. Addresses were given by Rev. Claude Brethren, of Trenton, and Rev. Dr. C. A. Myers, of Toronto. Anderson Choir supplied special music. — The afternoon session was not so largely attended but again an active interest was manifested. The convention was under the leadership of Mrs. Elmer Dixon, of Belleville.— On Wednesday afternoon an interested group of women missionary workers gathered at the home of Mrs. Dillenbeck, it being the monthly meeting of the Hay Bay group. Considerable time was spent in discussion as to ways and means of raising their allocation. Several readings were given and the—chair charger in the Study Book was presented. Lunch was served and the social half hour enjoyed. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Charles Spencer.—Mr. White is having a sale this week. It is understood that Mr. White is giving up farming and has rented a house nearby.—Mrs. Dr. Hall and family spent the week-end at Belleville with her mother, Mrs. E. A. Shenult.—On Thursday of last week the members of Bay Bay Women's Missionary Society met at Mrs. Charles Mellow. Mrs. Allan, Baldwin had charge of the programme, which was very interesting. During the business period, conducted by the President, it was decided to hold two social evenings to help raise the allocation. The first one is at Mrs. A. Dean's on Wednesday, November 12th, and the second one at Anderson, on Wednesday, December 2nd. Mrs. Mellow served lunch and the social half hour was enjoyed by all.—Mr. Graham, the Orange Order organizer, was present at Bay View Lodge on Monday evening and spent a couple of hours visiting the local officers in their efforts to secure new members — Hay Bay Anniversary this Sunday at 11.00 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. Rev. H. Sanders, of Adolphustown, is the preacher. Special music by the choir with a special thanksgiving offering.—The Anderson Ladies' Aid meets at the home of Mrs. M. Barnhardt, on Wednesday afternoon next. Mrs. Wilfred Miller is at the home of Mrs. James Robertson. Ladies of these communities will be made especially welcome.

Then and Now — 1856 and 1930

Ezra Pringle Saw First Grand Trunk Train Operate Between Montreal and Toronto

On October 27th, 1856, 74 years ago, Ezra Pringle walked down to the newly laid railway tracks, some three miles west of Napanee, and waited for three hours to watch the first of the new railroad trains run between the cities of Montreal and Toronto. On the 27th, of this year, Mr. Pringle again walked down to the tracks, watched the first new, fast International Limited speed by on the run from Montreal to Toronto, a run that was made in the record time of exactly six hours.

When the first event took place, Mr. Pringle was a boy of six. He had heard much of the coming of the "Iron Horse," and in anticipation of it strips of iron had been laid down across the country. People then were fearful of the results which would attend those who rode upon this contraption which, it was extravagantly claimed by its makers, would travel through the country at the breath-taking speed of 15 miles an hour. Whether or not Mr. Pringle believed in those extravagant claims is neither here nor there; certainly, if he doubted them he was but one of many thousands who felt that such a speed was hard on unattainable. Through the station of Napanee the "Iron Horse" raced on her first epoch-making journey, hauling the official train toward Toronto. At the back of the train stood a party of officials, with their high hats and boiled shirts taking part in this first development of rapid transportation in Upper Canada, but none of them felt more impressed than did young Ezra Pringle who had witnessed the first step in this transportation era.

"I ran remember walking down to the railway to watch the first train," Mr. Pringle remarked, "and I was then but about six years old and I was 80 years of age in September last. The first train was propelled on with a large party on board, and I remember the first regular passenger train operating a few weeks later." With the aid of a discussion of early days of train operation, was J. F. Bowerman, then agent of the railway, at Marysville, Ont., who has treasured for many years a diary in which he has recorded early events. A clipping in this diary records the operation of the first Montreal-Toronto train over the Grand Trunk, on October 27th, 1856, while the first regular passenger train left Rome on service on November 11th of the same year.

While still a young boy, Mr. Pringle helped to haul wood to Napanee for use in the locomotive furnaces of those days and he can remember seeing hundreds of cords of wood piled just west of Napanee station, which were later required in the early days, sawing bees were organized, and the wood, when sawed, was piled in a big shed beside the track. Mr. Pringle, who was then a blacksmith and is still looking after the operation of his shop, at Napanee, took part in many of these sawing bees and has watched the development of railroad, motive power through all of these years. From the wood-burners to the present Titans of the rail, the mighty 6000 and 6100 fast passenger and freight locomotives.

It was a vastly different train which Mr. Pringle greeted at Napanee station, on April 27th, 1930, to that which he saw on October 27th, 1856. Instead of the wood-burning engine there was a powerful locomotive of the 6000-type sweeping the train along at high speed, and instead of the "breath-taking speed of 15 miles an hour," which was discussed in 1856 as the new International Limited, which inaugurated the six-hour schedule between Montreal and Toronto, was sweeping along at a mile-a-minute rate, covering the 334 miles between the two cities in 360 minutes. Not only the locomotive but the cars of the train had undergone remarkable changes and improvements in the interim. Solid, all-steel, streamlined, couches, baggage, mail and express cars were in the "consist" of the 1930 train, two of them weighing perhaps almost as much as did the entire train of 1856, while in their appointments was everything necessary to travelling comfort.

Radio, an invention undreamed of for decades, after 1856, had been installed in the library-observation car, and even the train telephone, by means of which passengers might communicate direct-ly with their friends ahead of them on

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY RALLY HELD AT NEWBURGH

The fifth annual rally of missionary workers for Tamworth section of Napanee District, Women's Missionary Society, was held in the Newburgh United Church on Friday, October 3rd, 1930, under most favorable conditions; the weather was perfect, the church beautifully decorated with flowers and a large attendance of delegates and visitors were ready for the morning session, which opened at 9.30 Rev. T. H. P. Anderson conducted the devotional exercises, after which the district Vice-President took charge of the convention.

The following were suggested to act on the committee:—

Secretary—Mrs. D. B. Wilson, Napanee.

Press Reporter—Mrs. T. M. Wilson, Enterprise, R. R. No. 1.

Courtesy and Resolutions Committee—Mrs. L. Leonard, Yarker; Mrs. Wesley Wasar, Centreville; and Mrs. Rev. A. D. Waite, Tamworth.

Mrs. John Wartman, on behalf of the Newburgh Auxiliary, extended to all the delegates and visitors, a most hearty and cordial welcome, to which Mrs. C. A. Baker, of Moscow, very ably responded.

Greetings were brought from the Anglican Women's Missionary Society, by Mrs. William Ramsay and from the Free Methodist Missionary Society, by Mrs. Ward Wartman.

Mrs. Dr. Mabee, of Odessa, Presbyterial Literature Secretary, brought a message from the Literature Department of the Board Executive, calling attention to the value of this department in the work, and asking for our co-operation to make this a record year of sales. Mrs. Mabee and Miss Anestine had charge of a literature table where many helpful leaflets and books could be obtained.

Auxiliaries Reported

Of the fifteen auxiliaries in this section fourteen reported, Roblin not being represented: Camden Vill. Camden East, Centreville, Colebrook-Yarker, Ebenezar, Enterprise, Maribank, Moscow, Napanee (St. Andrew's), Napanee (Trinity, Newburgh, Strathcona, Tamworth and Wesley. The discussion of reports brought out many encouraging features, yet showed some points of weakness. Every auxiliary reporting a whole-hearted interest in Temperance and Christian Stewardship. We have a membership of approximately four hundred, while three hundred women have yet to be won before we will have attained our objective of every woman of the Church a member of the "Women's Missionary Society."

Hardly half-of our members are subscribers to missionary monthly; despite the fact that this wonderful little publication costs only thirty-five cents a year. About 5% subscribe for the Blue Book. How can we know the facts and become acquainted with our work, unless we study our yearly reports?

One auxiliary reported their financial allocation already reached. Mrs. Corkill, Presbyterial Treasurer, offered some suggestions to auxiliary treasurers, and in a carefully prepared paper set forth three reasons why we should give; firstly, because of the blessing promised the giver; secondly, because it is serving the Master; thirdly, because of God's great gift to us.

After singing a verse of hymn 396, Mrs. D. B. Wilson gave an address on "Planning the Year's Work," in which the speaker stressed the value of a plan. Systematic planning is necessary if we would do our best, and the speaker urged each president to call her executive together early in the year to form a plan. Plan to increase our membership. The speaker asked the question: "have you ever tried to make a list of all the women of your church who are not members of the W. M. S. and make some member personally responsible for winning one or more — those to whom she may have the most influence. Invite them to the meeting and have a bright cheerful programme for each monthly meeting. Do not depend on the printed monthly programme too much, but use individual talent, to reach our allocations by systematic giving by envelope. Plan to be present at every meeting, and, in closing, the speaker urged, plan and pray for what you want.

Miss H. M. Paul, our own well-beloved missionary, tried, in the few minutes alloted to her before the noon hour, to give us a glimpse of the West. Many in this district remember Miss Paul as spending twenty-eight years of labor in British Columbia. Six years ago she retired from active service on the field. Last Fall the opportunity came to her to re-visit her former fields of labor and that visit brought to her heart such a joy and satisfaction that every one present caught something of the same joy as they heard her tell of the progress of the work. Miss Paul arrived in Natal the first of November and found the work there very prosperous and showing growth. One day she was asked to teach in her own Sunday School; she was much interested in following up the girls who had been members of the Girls' Club. Many touching incidents had transpired during the six intervening years. Persia was next visited and there a wonderful re-union of friends took place. Miss Paul also visited the schools in Victoria and Port Simpson, and found them beautifully managed. In speaking to one young man whom she had taught years before as a little boy, he said: "I'm secretary of the Sunday School now you know." Miss Paul came home more convinced than ever before that missionary work is really worth while.

The offering was taken and Mrs. Anderson passed on to the convention a request from St. Paul's Hospital, in Hearst, Ontario, for canned fruit. Any auxiliary wishing to help can send their donations direct to J. S. Donaldson, Hearst, Ontario. A hymn was sung, after which Rev. A. D. Waite, of Tamworth, closed the morning session with prayer.

The whole company repaired to the basement dining-room, where the Newburgh ladies had spread a most bounteous dinner.

Afternoon Session

A quiet half hour by Mrs. George Fredrick, Mrs. James Wilson, of Strathcona, gave a deep spiritual atmosphere for the opening of the afternoon session. Hymn, "Jesus calls us o'er the tumult," was sung, followed with prayer by Mrs. Fredrick.

Mrs. Corkill read the 2nd chapter of Philippines and based her talk on "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." A most appropriate solo, "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer," sung by Mrs. Vallmark, of Napanee, closed the quiet half hour.

Dr. Margaret Middleton was the fraternal speaker of the afternoon session and was called to the platform and very capably introduced by Mrs. Hooper, of Napanee, who referred to the many long years of service rendered to India, by Dr. McKellar. In recognition of which she proudly wears two medals, one presented by the Church, the other by the King. Rev. A. J. Wilson also, in a short address, spoke of the signal honor of L.L.D. conferred by Queen's University, upon Dr. McKellar, she being the only Canadian woman to be so honoured.

Dr. McKellar's Address.

Dr. McKellar, on being asked to speak, said she wanted to tell an incident which took place in her own station at Neemuch, and which she chose to call. "An act of the Holy Ghost," using as a basis for her talk, Malachi 3:10, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse and prove me now herewith said the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out such a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Dr. McKellar said she wanted to give a spiritual message about giving, that would be helpful, not only to the W. M. S. but to the Church at large. Continuing, Dr. McKellar said they had long felt a hindrance in their work; everything was closed up, and they waited upon God in prayer, asking to be shown where their sin was. When confession was made, God's blessing was poured out upon them to such a fulness that the overflow spread into Banswara and into China. "Only eternity will tell," said Dr. McKellar, "how far the overflow blessing was spread." Their giving increased from Rs. 1125 rupees to Rs 1419 rupees. A beautiful new church was built, of grey stone, without any financial aid from Canada. The speaker gave figures to show how the work had grown from a small beginning forty years ago to its present greatness. India will never be evangelized by Canadian workers but by the people of India themselves. We must build with India. The training of native workers in every sphere of activity is most essential. There lies buried in Central India, eight adult Canadian missionaries and wherever their ashes lie, there is Canada. The call comes to us to carry on. India's millions are wanting home-rule, clamoring for many things, not knowing what they want, but, said Dr. McKellar, "what India needs is Christ."

Mrs. Rev. Pawson sang very sweetly, "A Little Bit of Love."

The reports of the Mission Circles and Bands were most encouraging, three circles and six bands being represented.

In accordance with a resolution passed at last year's rally, a joint rally of Napanee and Tamworth sections will be held next year in Napanee. Camden Vill Auxiliary extended an invitation for the 1932 convention.

Mrs. George Switzer urged all corresponding secretaries to send in their yearly reports early, but not later than January 10th.

Miss Alma Thompson thanked the Auxiliary for their prompt and hearty response of supply work.

The Courtesy and Resolutions Committee brought in the following report: First, we the members of the Resolutions and Courtesy Committee on behalf of this rally, take this opportunity of expressing our deep appreciation and gratitude to Dr. Margaret McKellar for her inspiring and helpful message, both in word and deed. We have learned to love her as one of Christ's gracious servants, her daily prayers of service and sacrifice and trust that God will continue to bless her in health and strength that she may long be a precious witness of the Master's Gospel, and our prayers shall ever be for her. Second, to Mrs. Anderson for the service which she has rendered and we trust that she will long be spared to carry on the work because we love, in this section or in wider fields. Third, to the Trustees of this Church, to the Pastor, the organist, the soloists, the ministers of the district, who have attended and assisted in the services, to the decorating committee for the beautiful flowers which have brought the rays of sunshine into our souls, to all who have taken part in the programme, and to the ladies of this Church who presented us with such a bountiful repast.

Two resolutions were presented for approval and adoption: Whereas there has been difficulty in the presentation of names to the nominating committee, be it resolved that, in the future, this section when convened in rally, shall nominate officers for each offices as they know will be vacant.

Whereas, many of the delegates to this Rally express the feeling that they have no voice in the election of the W. M. S. resolved that, we petition the Presbyterial to bring forward all names submitted by auxiliaries and that a vote be taken, the name with the highest number of votes to be elected.

Agreed that resolutions be held over for further discussion at next year's rally.

Rev. Mr. McKenzie closed the session with prayer.

ECZEMA GOES IN SEVEN DAYS

Or Money Back

Thousands of people who suffer from itching skin eczema and unsightly eruptions will be glad to know that Moone's Emerald Oil, a clean, powerful, penetrating antiseptic will banish their trouble in seven days or less.

For years they have been using ointments and salves, and while they believed to relieve the itching, soreness and pain they often choked the pores and did not allow the poisonous matter to escape.

Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) overcomes this objection, for this oil penetrates through the pores and leaves them free to discharge all poisonous secretions. It is highly concentrated, and only a few drops are required at an application. You can get it at Mallaney's Drug Store, or any progressive druggist's and if it doesn't end your trouble in seven days—money cheerfully returned — directions on each bottle.

Administration of which I am the head.

"The Conservative Party of Canada believes in and employs the principle of protection of the home product, that of agricultural and fabricated products from harmful interference by world competitors. But it is not part of our policy to exclude from our markets foreign goods as long as their importation does not threaten a reduction in the high standard of living which our citizens enjoy.

"On the other hand, it is our declared policy to provide for the consumers a cheap market by stimulating the growth of competing domestic industries to that point of development where they will be able, in fair competition with others beyond our Dominion, to offer to the Canadian public products of like quality and at prices comparable to those prevailing in the large markets of other countries.

Consumer and Producer

"To achieve this result we are obliged to consider the whole question from the point of view of both the consumer and the producer, and, through employment of a flexible tariff to ensure the proper protection of the one and safeguard the existence of the other.

"This result we are on the highroad to accomplishing. Its accomplishment will mean vigorous industries assured of that minimum scale of production, through home consumption, without which their excess products can never find a place in world markets.

"In pursuance of this policy, and to meet an economic situation brought about by world and domestic causes (it is not necessary here to determine their relative responsibility), the Parliament of Canada, at a session called for the purpose in September of this year, enacted certain changes in the tariff designed in our view to strengthen the position of the home producer. Certain measures were made a part of this emergency legislation to avoid the exploitation of the consumer, and in the good faith and good sense of the Canadian producers we have the necessary assurance of their rigid adherence to these measures.

"Canada First."

"This policy of the Conservative Party has come to be known as the policy of 'Canada First.' In approaching the economic problems of our Empire, I stand foursquare behind that policy. And if this Conference is to meet these problems and provide an effective solution of them, it seems to me that my attitude toward my own country will be the attitude of you all toward yours. On no other basis can we hope to effect an enduring agreement of benefit to each one of us. I will determine what my country needs, and if you do likewise we may come together and search out the means by which we can be of mutual assistance in satisfying those needs.

"I rejoice," Premier Bennett continued, "that the Government of Canada finds in the Empire Scheme I have to propose the surest promise that its duty to its own country will be fulfilled. For we believe that, through the broadening of the home markets of the United States the Empire products, in preference to the products of foreign countries, every unit of this Empire will benefit.

"This does not mean, of course, that an attempt should be made to exclude from Empire markets all the goods of other countries. We have—all of us made the—outside the Empire, and to make these markets sure and greater we must place no insurmountable barrier in the way of legitimate world trade. What it does mean, however, is that we should direct the present flow of trade into more favorable Empire channels by preferring Empire goods to those of other countries. This can only be done in one way: by creating a preference in facor of Empire goods.

Principle Of Conference

"We have considered what such a scheme of preference will mean to Canada, and to the other parts of the Empire. Our conclusion is that we of the Empire States have it within our own control the means to advance the interests of each one of us, by developing a plan of economic co-operation based on the principle of Empire preferences. To such a plan the acceptance of this conclusion, I apply a test which most readily suggests itself to me as a Canadian. I shall tell you frankly what it is, for it is clear that no useful agreement will ever be reached until we fully disclose to one another the underpinning of our contemplated action.

"The primary interest of Canada today is profitably to sell its wheat. We believe that we shall be reaching toward a solution of this problem if we can establish a better market in Great Britain. This market we want, and for it we are willing to pay. Anything in the Canadian market a preference we have to give, by developing a plan of economic co-operation based on the principle of Empire preferences. DO YOU SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?

Countless remedies are advertised for constipation. Many relieve for the moment but they are habit forming and must be continued. Others contain calomel and dangerous mineral drugs, which remain in the system, settle in the joints and cause aches and pains. Some are harsh purgatives which cramp and gripe and leave a depressed after effect.

Avoid lubricating oils which only grease the intestines and encourage nature's sluggishness to become lazy.

A purely vegetable laxative such as Carter's Little Liver Pills, gently touches the liver, bile starts to flow, the bowels move gently, the intestines are thoroughly cleansed and constipation poisons pass away. The stomach, liver and bowels are now active and the system enjoys a real tonic effect. All druggists 25c and 75c red pkgs.

workers for Tamworth section of Napanee District, Women's Missionary Society, was held in the Methodist-United Church on Friday, October 3rd, 1930, under most favorable conditions; the weather was perfect, the church was beautifully decorated with flowers and a large attendance of delegates and visitors were ready for the morning session, which opened at 9.30 Rev. T. H. P. Anderson conducting the devotional exercises, after which the District Vice-President took charge of the convention.

The following were suggested to act on the committee:—

Secretary—Mrs. D. B. Wilson, Napanee.

Press Reporter—Mrs. T. M. Wilson, Enterprise, R. R. No. 1.

Courtesy and Resolutions Committee—Mrs. L. Leonard, Yarker; Mrs. Fairley Wagar, Centreville; and Mrs. Rev. A. D. Waite, Tamworth.

Mrs. John Wartman, on behalf of the Newburgh Auxiliary, extended to all the delegates and visitors, a most hearty and cordial welcome, to which Mrs. C. A. Baker, of Moscow, very ably responded.

Greetings were brought from the Anglican Women's Missionary Society, by Mrs. William Ramsay and from the Free Methodist Missionary Society, by Mrs. Ward Wartman.

Mrs. Dr. Maher, of Odessa, Presbyterial Literature Secretary, brought a message from the Literature Department of the Board Executive, calling attention to the value of this department in the work, and asking for our co-operation to make this a record year of sales. Mrs. Maher and Miss Asselstine had charge of a literature table where many helpful leaflets and books could be obtained.

Auxiliaries Reported

Of the fifteen auxiliaries in this section fourteen reported, Robiln not being represented: Camden VIII, Camden East, Centreville, Golebrook-Yarker, Ebenezar, Enterprise, Marlbank, Moscow, Napanee (St. Andrew's), Napanee (Trinity, Newburgh, Strathcona, Tamworth and Wesley. The discussion of reports brought out many encouraging features, yet showed some points of weakness. Every auxiliary reported a whole-hearted interest in Temperance and Christian Stewardship. They have a membership of approximately four hundred, while three hundred women have yet to be won before we will have attained our objective of "every woman of the Church a member of the Women's Missionary Society."

Hardly half of our members are subscribers to missionary monthly, despite the fact that this wonderful little publication costs only thirty-five cents a year. About 5% subscribe for the Blue Book. How can we know our facts and become acquainted with our work, unless we study our yearly reports?

One auxiliary reported their financial allocation already reached. Mrs. Corkill, Presbyterial Treasurer, offered some suggestions to auxiliary treasurers, and in a carefully prepared paper, set forth three reasons why we should give; firstly, because of the blessing promised the giver; secondly, because it is serving the Master; thirdly, because of God's great gift to us.

After singing a verse of hymn 396, Mrs. D. B. Wilson gave an address on "Planning the Year's Work," in which the speaker stressed the value of a plan. Systematic planning is necessary if we would do our best, and the speaker urged each president to call her executive together early in the year to form a plan, Plan to increase our membership. The speaker asked in the question: "have you ever tried to make a list of all the women of your church who are not members of the W. M. S. and make some member personally responsible for winning one or more of these with whom she may have the most influence. Invite them to the meetings and have a bright cheerful programme for each monthly meeting. Do not depend on the printed monthly programme too much, but use individual talent. Plan to reach our allocations by systematic giving by envelope. Plan to be present at every meeting, and, in closing, the speaker urged, plan and pray for what you want.

Miss H. M. Paul, our own well-beloved missionary, tried, in the few minutes alloted to her before the noon hour, to give us a glimpse of the West. Many in this district remember Miss Paul as spending twenty-eight years of labor in British Columbia. Six years ago she retired from active service on the field. Last Fall the opportunity came to her to re-visit her former fields of labor and that visit brought to her heart such a joy and satisfaction that every one present caught something of the same joy, as they heard her tell of the progress of the work. Miss Paul arrived in Natal the first of November and found the work there very prosperous and showing growth. One day she was asked to teach in her own Sunday School; she was much interested in following up the girls who had been members of the Girls' Club. Many touching incidents had transpired during the six intervening years. Fernie was next visited and there a wonderful re-union of friends took place. Miss Paul also visited the schools in Victoria and Port Simpson, and found them beautifully managed. In speaking to one young man whom she had taught years before as a little boy, he said:, "I'm secretary of the Sunday School now you know." Miss Paul came home more convinced than ever before that missionary work is really worth while.

The offering was taken and Mrs. Anderson passed on to the convention a request from St. Paul's Hospital, in Hearst, Ontario, for canned fruit. Any auxiliary wishing to help can send their donations direct to J. S. Donaldson, Hearst, Ontario. A hymn was sung after which Rev. A. D. Waite, of Tamworth, closed the morning session with prayer.

The whole company repaired to the basement dining-room, where the Newburgh ladies had spread a most bounteous dinner.

Afternoon Session

A quiet half hour by Mrs. George Findlay and Mrs. James Wilson, of Strathcona, gave a deep spiritual atmosphere for the opening of the afternoon session. Hymn, "Jesus calls me o'er the tumult," was sung, followed with prayer by Mrs. Findlay. Mrs. Wilson read the 2nd chapter of Phillipines and based her talk on "Let this

Dr. McKellar's Address.

Dr. McKellar, on being asked to speak, said she wanted to tell an incident which took place in her own station at Neemuch, and which she chose to call, "An act of the Holy Ghost," using a basis for her talk, Malachi 3:10, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse and prove me now herewith said the Lord of Hosts, if I, will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out such a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Dr. McKellar said she wanted to give a spiritual message about giving, that would be helpful, not only to the W. M. S. but to the Church at large. Continuing, Dr. McKellar said they had been a hindrance in their work; everything was closed up, and they realized upon God in prayer, asking to be shown where their sin was. When confession was made, God's blessing was poured out upon them to such a fulness that the overflow spread into Banswara and into China. "Only eternity will tell," said Dr. McKellar, "how far the overflow blessing was spread." Their giving increased from 185 rupees to 1419 rupees. A beautiful new church was built, of grey stone, without any financial aid from Canada. The speaker gave figures to show how the work had grown from a small beginning forty years ago to its present greatness. India will never be evangelized by Canadian money but by the people of India themselves. We must build with India. The training of native workers in every sphere of activity is most essential. There lies buried in Central India, eight adult Canadian missionaries and wherever their ashes lie, there is Canada. The world comes to us to carry on, India's millions are wanting home-rule, clamoring for many things, not knowing what they want, but, said Dr. McKellar, "what India needs is Christ."

Mrs. Rev. Pawson sang very sweetly, "A Little Bit of Love."

The reports of the Mission Circles and Bands were most encouraging, three circles and six bands being represented.

In accordance with a resolution passed at last year's rally, a joint rally of Napanee and Tamworth sections will be held next year in Napanee. Camden VIII Auxiliary extended an invitation for the 1931 convention.

Mrs. George Switzer urged all corresponding secretaries to send in their yearly reports early, but not later than January 10th.

Miss Alma Thompson thanked the Auxiliary for their prompt and hearty response of supply work.

The Courtesy and Resolutions Committee brought in the following report: First, we the members of the Resolutions and Courtesy Committee, on behalf of this rally, take this opportunity of expressing our deep appreciation and gratitude to Dr. Margaret McKellar for her inspiring and helpful message, both in word and deed. We have learned to love her as one of Christ's gracious servants. Her many years of service and sacrifice, and trust that God will continue to bless her in health and strength that she may long be a present witness of the Master's Gospel, and our prayers goes to those of the home circle. Second, to Mrs. Anderson for the service which she has rendered and we trust that she will long be spared in health and strength that cause we love, in this section or in the field fields, and, to the Trustees of this Church, to the Pastor, the organist the soloists, the ministers of the district, who have attended and assisted in these services, to the decorating committee for the beautiful flowers which have brought the rays of sunshine into our souls, to all who have taken part in the programme, and to the ladies of this Church, who presented us with such a bountiful repast. The following were presented for approval and adoption: Whereas there has been difficulty in the presentation of names for the nominating committee, be it resolved that, in the future, such names be conveyed in rally, shall make (nominations for such offices as they know will be vacant.

Whereas, many of the delegates to Presbyterial express the feeling that they have no voice in the election of officers, be it resolved that the position the Presbyterial to bring forward all names submitted by auxiliaries and vote upon them, the one obtaining the highest number of votes to be elected.

Agreed that resolutions be held over for further discussion at next year's rally.

Rev. Mr. McKenzie closed the session with prayer.

ECZEMA GOES IN SEVEN DAYS
Or Money Back

Thousands of people who suffer from itching skin eczema and unsightly eruptions will be glad to know that Moone's Emerald Oil, a clean, powerful, penetrating antiseptic oil, will banish their trouble in seven days or less.

For years they have been using ointments and salves, and while they failed to relieve the Itching, Burning and pain they often choked the pores and did not allow the poisonous matter to escape.

Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) overcomes this objection, for this oil penetrates down through the pores and leaves them free to discharge all poisonous secretions. It is highly concentrated, and only a few drops are required at an application. You can get it at Wallace's Drug Store, or any progressive druggist's and if it doesn't clear your trouble in seven days—money gladly returned — directions on each bottle.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?

Countless remedies are advertised for constipation. Many relieve for the moment but they are habit forming and must be continued. Others contain calomel and dangerous mineral drugs, which remain in the system, settle in the joints and cause aches and pains. Some are harsh purgatives which cramp and gripe and leave a depressed after effect. Avoid lubricating oils which only grease the intestines and encourage nature's machinery to become lazy.

A purely vegetable laxative such as Carter's Little Liver Pills, gently touches the liver, bile starts to flow, the bowels move gently, the intestines are thoroughly cleansed and constipation poisons pass away. The stomach, liver and bowels are now active and the system enjoys a real tonic effect. All druggists 25c and 75c red pkgs.

WHEN LANGUID AND ANAEMIC

When a girl is languid, dull and irritable; when her color fades you may be sure her blood is impoverished. When a girl's blood is poor her nerves are starved and there is serious danger of a decline. Rebuild the blood, strengthen the nerves and good health will follow.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are of untold value as a blood-builder. Concerning them Mrs. John Pinin, Rowlan Station, P.E.I., says:—"My daughter was badly run down; pale, nervous and under weight. We decided to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After a few boxes she gained in weight, her appetite improved and color came to her cheeks—in fact she fully regained her former good health."

You can get these Pills at all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ONE GOOD RECIPE MAKES A COOK FAMOUS

Have you ever tried a grilled tomato and ham sandwich. If not you have a treat in store for you, your family and your guests, and one which you will be asked to make whenever the coffee is put on to percolate, either for the light evening meal or as a substantial snack after a game of cards in the winter evenings:

Take a slice of boiled ham, one-quarter of an inch thick and about three inches square. Spread with French mustard. On top of this place a thin slice of Canadian cheese and a slice of tomato. Grill under broiler until cheese is melted and tomato browned.

Fred King found that he couldn't get home for his holidays this year. His mother was terribly disappointed. But Fred has made arrangements to call his mother by long distance every Sunday evening. His mother declares the weekly talk is the next best thing to a visit. And, of course, it's much less expensive.

CANADA LEADS WORLD IN PAPER PRODUCTION

Canada has come to the fore as the largest paper producer in the world. More newsprint paper is made in Canada than in any other country, but it is only since 1926 that the production of newsprint in Canada has exceeded that of the United States which led in the production of that commodity for some time. For the first seven months of the present year the total output of Canadian mills was 1,500,341 tons compared with 789,131 tons for the United States.

$47,000,000 FIRE LOSS DURING 1930

Canada's fire loss in 1929 exceeded $47,000,000, Premier John Bracken of Manitoba told delegates to the Dominion Fire Prevention Association convention here.

Manitoba's loss during the year totalled $2,500,000. "If you can cure that we will not have to come down here for relief," said Mr. Bracken, who was in the capital arranging for Manitoba's share of the $20,000,000 voted by parliament in September, for unemployment relief.

In commending the work of the association the Premier pointed out that despite the heavy dominion losses fire insurance rates in Canada had been reduced about 30 per cent during the last nine years.

NEW PROBLEMS IN SCHOOL BUILDING

Construction of the little school house has become a problem and it has become so highly technical that it requires the cooperative effort of many different types of experts to solve the problems involved.

Changed industrial and social conditions have revolutionized the functions of the school building in every community of any size until now each must be adapted to a variety of educational, recreational and social uses.

The result is that the planning and erecting of school buildings has become a highly technical task which demands the combined skill and knowledge of educators, school building experts, landscape architects, health specialists, and heating, ventilating, lighting, and sanitation experts. Not only this, but the planning of a single building must now be based upon the whole school building programme for a city. Therefore, school building surveys, involving studies of population trends, social and industrial development, etc. are basic to an adequate school building programme. Such surveys are really part of the whole city planning problem of the city.

School building problems can not be studied at long range. They must be studied in terms of actual school building situations and methods of meeting them; and they must take into account the differences due to geographical location, climate, educational aims and methods, availability of expert service.

URGE FALL PLOWING

As the one effective measure at this season of the year which will assist in the control and eradication of a white grub outbreak of serious proportion in Eastern Ontario, the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, urge fall plowing and frequent discing from now to freeze up. Plowing helps to break up the grub cells; exposes them to attacks by natural enemies such as the crow, star-nosed mole, and skunk; retards the grubs "digging down" for winter, and exposes the grub cells to frost which kills them effectively. The outbreak started apparently in the eastern townships in 1927, moved across the St. Lawrence to Eastern Ontario by flight of the June Beetle, parents of the white grub, in 1928, and this year crossed the Ottawa eastward, infesting a large area adjacent to Oka and St. Jerome.

FALL DOWN ON PACKING

"The quality of Canadian fruits and vegetables is undoubtedly better than the great bulk of those imported but we certainly fall down on our grading, packaging" is the comment of a circular recently issued by the Canadian Horticultural Council. Growers and shippers who will conscientiously follow the regulations prescribed by the Federal Fruit Act and Regulations and the Root Vegetables Act will give little cause for consumer complaint. In this connection the shipping point inspection service of the Dominion Fruit Branch is an invaluable aid.

TRINITY CHURCH W. M. S.

On Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock, October 7th, the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held in the Sunday school. The president, Mrs. S. Daly, presided.

The meeting was unusually interesting, with the discussion of the work of the Supply Committee, attending to emergency calls for help from our western fields and the general description of the magnitude of this department of our W. M. S. work as outlined by Miss Alma Thompson.

Those present were delighted with a solo rendered by Miss B. Baughan, entitled "Service".

Splendid reports of the District Rally held at Newburgh on October 3rd were given by Mrs. Exley and Mrs. Gilbert. The latter gave a very full account of Dr. Margaret MacKellar's address and seemed to have caught much of this veteran missionary's spirit. The members were amazed that she was able to give such a detailed account of what she had heard. We can be sure that we are losing very little when Mrs. Gilbert is giving a report.

Miss Storey gave an interesting resume of the first chapter of our new study book, "The Fruits of Christian Missions in Japan."

The meeting closed with the singing of hymn 162.

GOLF CLUB.

The members of the Napanee Golf and Country Club held their Field Day on Wednesday, October 8th. At 10.30, the first event began, which was a foursome, with three prizes and a booby prize. After this lunch was served in the club house, which looked very inviting with its huge fire of logs. After lunch the other events were run off. A unique one was the playing of the first hole with a putter. This was a special, the prize being donated by Mrs. Boyle. At the close, everyone gathered for afternoon tea, and the presentation of the prizes, by the President, Mrs. J. W. Robinson.

The success of the day was due to the efforts of Mrs. Galbraith, Mrs. H. Daly and Mrs. Morden, who so efficiently looked after the details.

Mrs. Wilfrid Wilson was again the winner of the Morden Cup, Mrs. Robinson being runner up. The other prize winners were as follows:— First Flight, lowest score, Mrs. Cameron, Wilson; Second Flight, lowest score, Mrs. Herrington; Approaching and Putting, Mrs. E. Boyle; Putting, Mrs. W. Wilson; Longest Drive, Mrs. Galbraith; lowest score on First Hole, using putter, Mrs. C. Wilson.

Over twenty years ago, H. Daly, of Napanee Golf Club, donated a silver cup to be competed for annually, by members of the club, on a handicap basis. There have been a series of games every year since except the war years. This year, on account of the unusually fine weather, the playing conditions have been excellent and there has been a larger number of entrants than is customary. In all about forty players entered the contest. It so happened that the lowest handicap players were distributed to the upper and lower brackets, thus sustaining the interest in the games throughout the contests. In the upper division, W. J. Wiggins came through to the finals over A. L. Dafoe, J. B. Allison, H. M. Scott and S. C. Nostworthy. In the lower bracket, G. I. Maybee won from G. H. Daly (by default); Kenneth Ham, this year's captain; Lawrie Douglas, the winner of the cup last year; and Herb Daly to meet W. J. Wiggins in the finals. In these finals, played on Saturday afternoon, W. J. Wiggins won, thus securing the possession of the cup for the third time. He had already won it in 1926 and 1928.

COLLEGIATE NOTES

The night school begins in earnest (on Tuesday). All students should be on hand.

A few more registrations are required to permit the holding of the English course and the Home Nursing course.

The English course embraces a study of the modern novel, and is really a reading course, not entailing work at home between classes.

The Home Nursing course was one of the most popular last year and takes in both theory and demonstration. It includes such subjects as health in the home, bedroom, in health and sickness, signs of sickness, care and comfort of the patient, feeding the sick, treatments, communicable diseases, emergencies and slight ailments, maternity nursing, care of the baby, feeding of infants and children, and bandaging and review.

The classes in Business Law, Economics, Business English, Filing, etc., are being combined under one name, General Business course. This class will be held on Thursday evening from 7.00 to 8.15.

It is likely that a Junior class in French will be started this Fall. Any desiring to take this elementary work should register at once.

The course in Salesmanship will be held during the winter, for which begins after Christmas.

The Honourable, the Minister of Education has presented the school with a set of one hundred astronomical slides prepared by Dr. Chant.

A panoramic photograph of the day students was taken on Monday.

It has been found possible from the funds provided by C. B. Fox, M.A., President of the Aluminum Ore Co. of America, to provide a silver medal for second place under the same conditions as the gold medal is competed for.

Four silver medals have been donated to the Daw Vocational classes by the former Principal, Inspector L. S. Beattie, B. A.

OBITUARY

THE LATE MRS. RUSSELL

At her home in Bailleyboro, last Wednesday, there passed away Mrs. Russell, the wife of Dr. Russell, a medical practitioner of that place. Mrs. Russell had given no indication of failing health until a few days before her death. On a visit to her daughter, she was taken with heart seizure, and returned home. A specialist was secured from Toronto, who recommended a prolonged period of rest. But without any warning she quietly slept away on Wednesday.

Mrs. Russell was well known in Napanee as Edith Preston, the daughter of the late D. B. and Mrs. Preston. She was brought up in Napanee, but since her marriage to Dr. Russell had lived in Bailleyboro. Besides a host of friends, she leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Dr. Russell, and daughter, Jean. Jean, a recent honors graduate of Toronto, is teaching in Pembroke. There are as well, four sisters, Janet of Pueblo; Ethel and Alice, of Napanee; Lillian, (Mrs. Davidson), of Lethbridge, Alta., and two brothers, William, of Pueblo; and Dr. Harry, of Toronto.

The funeral was held from the home in Bailleyboro and interment was made in Riverside Cemetery, Napanee. The services were in charge of Rev. McCachie, of Roseneath, a former minister of baileyboro, assisted by Rev. J. T. Foley, of Selby, a lifelong friend of Mrs. Russell's and Rev. A. J. Wilson, of St. Andrew's United Church, Napanee.

ST. ANDREW'S W. M. S.

The W. M. S. of St. Andrew's Church were very fortunate in securing Miss Hazel Beckwith, B.A., as their speaker, at the Annual Thankoffering meeting held Friday, October 10th. Quite a number of the Ladies Orange and Trinity Auxiliaries took the opportunity of hearing the finish up of her work in the Kindergarten for the week. Miss Beckwith has just returned to Canada from Japan, and was the Japanese representative of the W. F. M. S. at the General Council in London. While in Japan, she stayed with Miss Olive Hambly, who was associated with her in the mission work in Japan.

VIOLET - SWITZERVILLE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

A very successful and interesting meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Andrew Moore on Friday evening, October 3rd. The rooms were bright with Autumn flowers and a cheery grate fire.

Before opening the meeting, the play entitled, "Hen - Pecked Holler County" was given by several ladies in old-fashioned costume. Everyone was entered by the humor and wit of the different characters represented.

The meeting was opened by our President, Mrs. J. McCormick, while Mrs. Wright acted as secretary, in the absence of Miss Hannah. The minutes were read and approved and business matters were attended to. Mrs. Robinson favoured us with several musical selections. Several contests were on for which prizes were awarded. Mrs. J. Wilson was sitting in the lucky spot at 10.30 p.m. and was awarded a pretty cup and saucer.

A social half hour was spent when lunch was served by the committee, after which the thanks of the meeting was tendered their hostess for the jolly good time we all had.

After a delightful lunch served by Mesdames Henderson, Haggerty, McFarlane and Hinds, the meeting closed with the Mispah.

UNITED STATES HEADS LIST IN ACCIDENT DEATH-RATE

The United States heads the list of all civilized countries of the world in its accident deathrate—79.2 per 100,000. Canada is next in point of fatality rate, with a figure of 62.5 deaths per 100,000 population; England and Wales have an accident deathrate of 41 per 100,000.

Such was the statement made recently in Pittsburgh, by Dr. Louis I. Dublin, Statistician of the Metropolitan Life, in the course of an address upon the subject of accidental deaths. The speaker pointed out that the toll from the automobile was responsible for the deaths of 31,000 of the 97,000 persons killed accidentally in the United States last year, and that it will be the cause of 33,000 of the more than 100,000 accidental deaths estimated for the current year. The 31,000 automobile deaths of 1929 were the outcome of not less than one million injuries.

Commenting on the facts that became available on the actions of drivers involved in automobile accidents in 1929, Dr. Dublin said: "For 107,000 drivers, such actions were recorded, and for fatal and non-fatal accidents it was found that 32 per cent of the drivers did not have the right of way, 16 per cent were exceeding the speed limit, another 16 per cent were on the wrong side of the road when the accident occurred and 11 per cent drove off the roadway. In fatal automobile accidents, "exceeding the speed limit," was reported in 28 per cent of the deaths."

What pedestrians were doing when injured was also pointed out by the speaker. Some 27 per cent of the pedestrian involved in 100,027 automobile accidents were injured while crossing intersections having no signal; another 27 per cent were injured while crossing the street between intersections; 17 per cent were struck while at play in the street, and 19 per cent while crossing the street against traffic signals. In 1929, 35 per cent of the motor fatalities arose from collisions between automobiles and pedestrians, and 19 per cent came from collisions between motor-vehicles.

BRITISH INTEREST IS CENTERED UPON ECONOMIC MEETING

The Imperial Conference began its deliberations on October 1 with an impressive attendance of delegates from the far flung quarters of the earth which are British territory.

While there is the usual interest here in the constitutional discussions which are to the fore, the general feeling is that material concern centres in the Economic Conference, which has not yet begun. That meeting will fix for the immediate future the extent to which mutually beneficial co-operation in matters of trade is possible.

The Canadian delegation weathered the sea voyage very well. Headed by Premier Bennett, who is a seasoned traveller, the delegation has taken up its headquarters at Canada House. Mr. Bennett has come armed with a wealth of documentary proof of his contention that mutually beneficial trade is possible on an enormous scale. Some regret has been expressed over the fact that the important meetings of the conference will be held in camera and that a great deal of the information and views presented will escape the conference hall.

With unemployment at an unprecedented height here there is a demand throughout the country for new policies and an eager interest to know just what the overseas statesmen have to offer.

The Weakening Agony of Piles (Haemorrhoids) Ended

Thousands Bless This Famous Herbal Ointment

Piles or haemorrhoids cause excruciating pain and often serious loss of blood. The famous Zam-Buk ointment is wonderfully soothing to the swollen veins and itching parts. Zam-Buk derives its healing and mildly astringent influence from herbal extracts of special value in this wearkening and agonizing complaint. Zam-Buk has a wonderful record of success.

THE BEST OF PROOF

Mrs. R. L. Garbey, of 2345 Olbo Avenue, Sanduste, California, a nurse, writes as follows:—"My husband suffered from Piles for years, but a year ago they reached an acute stage and he could neither sleep nor attend his work. He had medical advice, tried all sorts of baths, hot packs, enemas and ointments which cost him hundreds of dollars without obtaining any relief. Finally a friend gave him a box of Zam-Buk; after application for one day he obtained a good night's rest. He continued the treatment and by the time he had finished a second box he was completely relieved of this agonizing ailment and able to resume his work."

Mrs. F. Barrett, Pioneer, Alberta, writes:—"We have used Zam-Buk ever since I was a young girl and have never known it fail. My husband, who has been troubled with itching piles for years, says the soothing relief Zam-Buk brought was wonderful."

The unparalleled success of Zam-Buk lies in its original and valuable formula. Zam-Buk is compounded from certain herbal extracts of an extraordinarily healing, soothing and antiseptic nature. Zam-Buk soon stops all pain and itching. It gets at the root of such troubles as eczema, salt rheum, bad legs, ulcers, scalp disease, poisoned sores, etc., and is also a fine ever-ready first-aid for injuries. NO FALLING OFF IN PACE SET BY PREMIER WHILE AT CONFERENCE

With the Prime Minister and three of his Ministers in Britain, there is little, if any, falling off in the pace which Mr Bennett set for the departments of Government when he took office in record time, assembled Parliament in record time, put through a record volume of tariff changes and emergency unemployment relief and prorogued the House in the record period of fifteen days.

The imprint of Mr. Bennett's decisiveness and energy has been communicated to his colleagues, a fact which is reflected in the conversations of Civil Servants who can't recall a time since the war years, when departments hummed with activity as they have since August 7th.

Of the measures which arose out of the special session of parliament those affecting the tariff, either by direct alteration or through extension of authority in fixing valuations, awakened the greatest degree of public interest and public interest in their operation will continue to be of the most vital importance to the government. Thus far the records of the Department of Labor indicate that upwards of 10,000 employees have been added to the staffs of the industries affected by tariff changes. In many instances, only those required to reorganize plant equipment have yet been employed and the estimate is made in Government circles that before the turn of the year more than 60,000 men and women will have been provided with employment as a direct result of the changes in fiscal policy which Premier Bennett made effective during the 15 day session of Parliament, which terminated on September 22. Before next March, when Mr. Bennett's first account of his stewardship is given the House, it is predicted that 50,000 will owe their employment to measures which he made effective last month. In addition the claim will be advanced on behalf of the Government that, had Mr. Bennett's remedies not been brought in, another 50,000 would have been forced out of employment under economic conditions which then obtained.

Thus far, if reports received by the Departments of Labor and of Trade and Commerce are to be accepted, the Government finds that manufacturers affected by tariff changes have remained by their pledge that no advantage would be taken of higher protection to increase prices to the consuming public. The Department of Labor has been specially charged to observe this feature of economic developments. The principle was clearly laid down that bigger markets and greater production should result in lower — not higher — prices to the consumer and in this manufacturers agreed. Many of them gave Mr. Bennett their undertaking in writing that such would be the result and already there are instances of lowered prices. There are none, as yet, of higher prices. A major interest, of course, centres in prices of agricultural implements. In the matter of tractors it will be some time before Canadian plants are capable of meeting the demand and until then the old rates of duty will apply.

The Department of Finance is already at work assembling general information respecting the complete revision of the tariff which Mr. Bennett has promised will be introduced at the regular session of parliament after the New eYar. When the Prime Minister returns from Britain after the Imperial and Economic conferences, he will lay once put his energies into the general revision. It is possible, though not probable, that a new Minister of Finance will be inaugurated before Parliament meets again.

The fact is that the whole Bennett program of Canadian development is individual interwoven with the fiscal policy of the Dominion and until that has been re-cut according to his convictions, Mr. Bennett will not assume the deciding factor in the fiscal department. Whether or not he carries the title of Minister of Finance he must direct that department," and in the meantime is saving the country the emolument attaching to a portfolio.

The indications of worms are restlessness, griding of the teeth, picking of the nose, extreme peevishness, often convulsions. Under these conditions, one of the best remedies that can be got is Miller's Worm Powders. They will attack the worms as soon as administered and they pass away in the evacuations. The little sufferer will be immediately eased and a return of the attack will not be likely.

PAUGAN FALLS LINES CARRYING HEAVIEST BURDEN OF POWER

More electric power is being carried over transmission lines from Paugan Falls on the Gatineau River, near Ottawa, to Toronto, a distance of 220 miles than over any other power lines in Canada. Two 220,000 volt aerial-tower transmission lines now carry electric power to the Ontario-Hydro Electric Power Commission's distributing plant at Leaside, Toronto. A new line has just been completed and put in operation at a cost of about $5,000,000. Last year a similar line was opened. About 150,000 horse-power, or electrical energy is now being transmitted from the Paugan Falls plant. It is proposed to increase the load before October 1931 to 360,000 horse-power in order to provide the full amount required by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, a publicly owned utility, under a 30 year contract. The transmission lines which carry the power to Toronto are erected on steel towers 73 feet high with the towers spaced at an average of one-fifth of a mile apart.

RENEW SHIPMENTS OF CANADIAN CATTLE TO BRITISH MARKET

From Lethbridge, Alberta, a shipment of 100 steers was consigned to the British Isles recently. This would lead one to believe the optimistic reports of the improvement in trade of all kinds with the mother country. For the past years the British cattle market has been dull so far as Canadian cattle were concerned and the recent shipment from Lethbridge is the first from Alberta for a considerable period. Montreal also reports several consignments of live prime steers have been shipped from there in the past few weeks to Britain.

EX - U. S. SENATOR ENDORSES SARGON

Sargon is rapidly becoming a household word throughout Canada and the United States. Thousands of grateful men and women from all walks of life have been lifted out of the throes of lost vitality, suffering, misery and ill-health by its use.

In relating his experience with this famous medicine former United States Senator Thomas W. Hardwick, who served his state for six years in the Upper House of Congress, and who was later elected Governor of Georgia, said:

"I had lost most of my old-time energy and both mental and physical fatigue came more quickly than formerly. Constipation especially had troubled me for the past ten years and I had become accustomed to dosing myself with some physic or laxative every few days. My appetite was not keen and my meals did not seem to agree with me as they should. Sometimes I would feel positively wretched for days at a time. Sargon was highly recommended to me and I decided to try it.

"The medicine helped me from the very first. It gave me a splendid appetite. I don't know when I have enjoyed my meals more than I do now. I eat with more relish and experience no ill or uncomfortable after-effects whatever. Naturally my capacity for work has increased. I feel more efficient. I have more energy. In fact, I feel that I am in better health than it has been my pleasure to enjoy in many years, but most important of all, I no longer find it necessary to continually take laxatives and cathartics.

"I also took Sargon Pills with fine results and consider them a valuable part of the treatment.

"I take pleasure in endorsing Sargon for the genuine improvement it has brought about in my physical condition."

Sargon may be obtained, in Napanee, at Hooper's Drug Store, who have been awarded the exclusive Sargon agency for this town.

MOTORISTS be CAREFUL!

The season for wet, slippery pavements is here and demands that special care be exercised by all drivers of motor vehicles.

DRIVE CAREFULLY . . . and read carefully every word of this advertisement

THE Highway Safety Committee has been urging motorists during the year to exercise CARE, COURTESY and COMMON SENSE in the operation of their vehicles. The Committee appreciates the whole-hearted support its efforts have received from every source. We have had the best of co-operation from the Advisory Committee, which is composed of some of the leading citizens of the Province, from the press, from motorists and from pedestrians and, as a result, driving conditions have improved. Let us continue to be traffic conscious and at all times CAREFUL and COURTEOUS when driving.

Severe penalties are provided in our motor vehicle laws for those who are careless or inconsiderate of the rights of other users of the highway.

The Financial Responsibility Law which became effective on September 1st provides that the driver's license and all motor vehicle permits of a person convicted of any one of the following offences shall be suspended until proof of financial responsibility in the form of a certificate of an insurance company, a bond or securities is filed with the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

READ CAREFULLY

Driving without holding a chauffeur's or operator's license.

Reckless or negligent driving or exceeding the allowable speed limits if any injury to persons or property occurs.

Driving, or being in charge of a motor vehicle, while intoxicated, or any other criminal offence involving the use of a motor vehicle.

Evading responsibility following an accident.

Operating a motor vehicle in a race or on a bet or wager.

Chauffeurs, operators and owners of motor vehicles are warned that the provisions of this law must be applied in every case.

ACCIDENT REPORTING

The law now requires every person directly or indirectly involved in a motor vehicle accident, if the accident results in any personal injuries or property damage apparently exceeding fifty dollars, to report such accident to the nearest police officer. A penalty is provided for failure to so report.

Remember your Personal Responsibility whenever driving a motor vehicle or you may be required to prove your Financial Responsibility.

Dearest Man,

"The most precious thing has happened —what I mean, it's positively ravishing— Lowney's have put out a new box of really dainty chocolates—they're the most scrumptious things, only one bite to a piece, and the unbelievable number of 80 pieces in a pound box. I simply must have a couple of boxes for my party tomorrow afternoon. I'm not going to have the girls spoiling their dresses and the table covers with big, soft creams or melted chocolate at my party—it's so ruinous to the cards, too. So, be a treasure, and bring me two boxes from the Lowney dealer when you come up tomorrow—they are called Eighty Dainty Chocolates—and only cost a dollar."

Tons of love,
BETTY.

RECORD AIR MAIL TONNAGE SHOWN

Record air-mail tonnage carried over Great Britain during the three months ending June 30, 1930, amounted to 28 tons, compared with 21¼ tons in the same period of 1929.

During the 1930 quarter, 22,271 lbs. of letter air mail was carried, compared with 16,730 pounds for the same part of 1929, an increase amounting to 36 per cent. The greatest amount of mail to any one country was 6,500 pounds to India and this amounted to 6,506 pounds in the recent June quarter, compared with 4,337 pounds in the same quarter of the preceding year, an increase of 50 per cent. Since November 1929, the air mail fees payable on letters to India have been reduced, and on June 2nd, 1930, a uniform combined rate covering air postage and ordinary fee (4d for the first pound and 3d for each subsequent ounce) was introduced for all European destinations.

A CEASELESS MESSENGER

Over 5,000,000 times a day residents of Ontario and Quebec turn to the telephone. More than 70,000 daily calls are for out-of-town friends. These people have learned the wisdom of letting their telephone "go there and back" for them.

A VISIT WITH HIS DADDY

Evening rates on "Anyone" (station-to-station) calls now begin at 7 p.m. Night rates begin at 8:30 p.m. Just give "Long Distance" the number you want—it speeds up the service. If you don't know the distant number, "Information" will look it up for you.

Twice a week Jimmy says up until eight-thirty, Daddy is on the road but he doesn't want to become a stranger to his son. And so, every Monday and Thursday evening, he pays a visit by telephone.

It doesn't cost much because he waits until eight-thirty, when the lowest night rates begin. It amounts to about the price of a movie for a call and in return he gets something beyond money — the voices of his wife and his little boy — a touch of home, messages of affection for them all to remember and look forward to.

Many people away from home are using the telephone these days to have regular visits with their families. Out-of-town calls are no longer a luxury — they are daily and inexpensive. They are the next best thing to being really home.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

(Empire Co-Operation)

our delegation, and while we would await anything which might savor of premature discussion, we are now authorized to state that none of them can be accepted by Canada as alternatives at all likely to achieve the purpose we have in mind."

Premier Bennett went on: "Until this principle is accepted, it would be profitless to discuss the application of it in any great detail. I shall, however, outline in a broad way our conception of the manner in which it may be employed and shall qualify the generality of my proposal by indicating the method of its application.

Ten Per Cent Increase.

"I offer to the Mother Country, and to all the other parts of the Empire, a preference in the Canadian market in exchange for a like preference in theirs, based upon the addition of a 10 per centum increase in prevailing general tariffs, or upon tariffs yet to be created. In the universal acceptance of this offer and in like proposals and acceptances by all the other parts of the Empire, we attain to the ideal of Empire preference.

"I amplify and explain this offer in the following ways: In the first place, the rate I have mentioned cannot be uniformly applied. The basis of the proposal is adequate protection to industries now existent or yet to be established. Because of this, we must assure a certain flexibility in the preferential tariff, having regard to the fundamental need for stability in trade conditions, and we must take account of such prevailing preferences as are now higher than the general one I suggest.

"It follows, therefore, that this proposed preference should not be considered as a step toward Empire free trade. In our opinion, Empire free trade is neither desirable nor possible, for it would defeat the very purpose we are striving to achieve. All that is helpful in Empire free trade may be secured by Empire preferences. All that is harmful may, in this way, be avoided.

Flexibility In Rates.

"Again, it is conceivable that this preferential rate should be lower in the case of raw products or where the Empire supply does not meet the Empire demand. On the other hand the preference may be increased beyond 10 per centum where that rate in relation to the main tariff is inadequate to afford Empire goods an appreciable advantage over those of foreign countries.

"It will also be necessary and proper to determine what Empire agencies may be employed to ensure the most effective operation of the principle. This is a question which at the moment I shall not discuss further than to say that foremost among those agencies that of our ocean transport should be looked upon as the rightful carriers of Empire goods. And I see no reason why, by creating additional preference on goods so carried between Empire ports, that great service should not be profitably used.

"All these are matters requiring most careful consideration. Some of them might readily be met by such difficulties as definite as to defy removal, unless the greatest care is taken to anticipate and avoid them. They must therefore be subjected to searching analysis by the economists of all the countries concerned. Such an analysis will inevitably result in variations in any standard of preference now to be adopted. But, whatever modifications may be found necessary, these will not adversely affect—nay, they cannot but make more beneficial and lasting—the broad principle of Empire protection, based on the common advantage and guided in its application by the need to ensure the welfare of the home producer with proper safeguards to the consumer. Such a preference makes possible in the only way the employment of the resources of the Empire to the advantage of all its parts

Stability In Trade

"I do not need to point out to you that to enjoy prosperity a country must be assured of stability in trade conditions. A preference therefore which cannot be regarded as enduring is worse than no preference at all. And to be enduring it must be predicated upon mutual benefit. A preference on any other basis is manifestly unsound, and ephemeral.

"Consistent with the fullest inquiry into the application of the principle of an Empire preference, our deliberations must be governed by the time factor. If this change in our economic relationship is to be made it must be made without undue delay. I would, therefore, propose that this Conference, if it approve the principle, should constitute such committees as may with the greatest expedition and thoroughness consider the various questions incident to its operation.

"As here we have neither the time nor the machinery necessary to reach a final conclusion upon all of them, it is apparent that we must employ the technicians of our respective countries to complete the inquiry. For that purpose I would suggest that committees be set up in each of the countries concerned, and that these commence immediately an exhaustive examination of the effect upon their domestic situation of the proposals I have made. I am satisfied that whatever modifications in the general plan Canada may have to suggest will be ready for submission within a period of six months. I assume that you are all capable of a like measure of expedition. And as I further propose that when this Economic Conference has had an opportunity profitably to discuss the plan in its various aspects, it do adjourn to meet at Ottawa early next year as the guest of the Canadian people, and that in the interval, through the instrumentalities I have suggested, a full and final report be prepared for submission to it.

"Any Government of which I am the head will be prepared to support the proposal I have made and, with wheat ever variations in the general plan may seem advisable, to make it effective by the proper legislation.

Empire Co-operation

"We Canadians will continue our consideration of this proposal with steadfast earnestness, and will take all means within our power to avoid any conclusions which we think likely to lead to helpful and sustained Empire co-operation. I know that in this the other constituent parts of the Empire are blended with ourselves, and that in this proposal and in the ardent deliberations incident to its thorough canvass they will bring the best will and the most skilful advice. For to you as to us, it must be plain that we dare not fail. I have said that the time is now at hand when the doctrine of closer Empire economic association must be embraced if we would not have it slip forever beyond our powers of recall. Once gone, it were vain to suppose that lesser existing Empire agreements will long outlive it. And, that being so, the day will come when we must fight in the markets of the Empire the countries of the world, shorn of that advantage which it should be in our individual interest to secure and maintain.

"To me, that is unthinkable, and I appeal to national representatives here assembled in conference to forget, each one, those prejudices which forbid the realization of that Empire-building plan by which we all may advance to greater prosperity. I await your decision with confidence. We have a common purpose. The means by which it may be fulfilled offer themselves in the measure of each one of us. In the days of our past achievements we surely learned that our mutual trust and confidence were our shield and buckler, then by us yet, and with faith in the future for our Empire, I cannot but believe that out of our deliberations there will ensue an enduring system of co-operation between the peoples of the Empire, which will, upon their common interest, be calculated to carry the Empire forward, at no point, and in no era of commercial development, to which it has never heretofore risen."

LIVING CONDITIONS AFFECT LONGEVITY MORE THAN HEREDITY

Prominent insurance companies have been conducting investigations to determine the most important factor determining longevity and they report that living conditions are more important than heredity.

From the point of view of longevity, environmental influences are still more powerful than heredity, the report reads, and the gain in expectation of life from good heredity is not as large as that obtained by the improvement in social and health conditions in recent years and much less than that still attainable by such means.

These conclusions are drawn from a study of thousands of lives and the very fact that these findings are the result of work done by insurance companies adds tremendous weight to their reliability. Accuracy of statistical calculations is essential to the success of the insurance business.

Fascinating Links in Canada's History

An exhibit of more than ordinary interest has been placed very recently in the Anthropological hall of the National Museum of Canada, Ottawa. It is a cast of two bisons modelled in clay by an artist of a race of pre-historic men that inhabited western Europe ten thousand years or more ago. The figures are each two feet long, are well proportioned and very true to life, and the modelling was executed with boldness, freedom and skill almost if not quite equal to that displayed by some modern artists. They are male and female. The figure of the female was imparted a greater finish than that of the male, evidence perhaps that this race, like other primitive races, looked upon the female as the more important. On the male figure the finger-marks of the artist are plainly visible.

The original clay models were discovered in 1912 in a large cave of several chambers on the north slope of the Pyrenees in Southern France. The entrance to the chamber in which they were found was blocked by stalactites that had been formed by slow natural processes operating through the long period of time that had elapsed since the artist left his work. The floor of the chamber bears the impress of naked human feet, mainly of the heel, and on the floor also is drawn an outline sketch of a bison.

Sketches of the bison and other animals are found on the walls of the cave. In one chamber were found the remains of bears, and the floor plainly showed their claw marks. The jaw bones of the bears when found in 1912 had been broken and the tuskers removed, probably for decorative purposes.

One cannot but wonder what inspiration moved the artist as he deftly shaped by the light of the primitive joruh or a smoking grease lamp these wonderful forms, whether it was an aesthetic urge, a religious impulse, or a tribal need. Whatever the purpose that lay behind the work, the beauty and perfection of the remodelling show that since these primitive folk wonderful progress had already been made towards greatness of expression.

The National Museum is indebted for this exhibit to Dr. H. M. Aml of the Canadian School of Prehistory in France.

ANCIENT FOUNDRY FOUND IN AFRICA

The world is accustomed to hearing how the Chinese of old were the first printers, the Egyptians the first gold-smiths, etc., but a surprise comes when the report from an Italian expedition working for traces of prehistoric man near Livingstone, Rhodesia (Southern Africa) says it has made a most unusual discovery in the form of an ancient iron foundry. The site of the foundry is said to have been among some six feet deep in an enormous stratum in strata of palaeolithic age.

Here some 3,000 to 4,000 years ago, it would seem some race of superior intellect smelted iron by primitive methods not unlike those known to the present South African Bantu people. The skeleton of man in the stratum proves that the early knowledge of smelting came to Africa during the time of the Bushmen, approximately at the earliest phase of their late stone age culture. The foundry being now preserved directly on a stratum bearing Mousterian implements

This discovery, which is unique in the history of archaeology, is believed to throw entirely new light on the history of metallurgy especially in South Africa.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How to Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist, some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

CAPITALIST FIGHT TO CONTROL RARE MINERAL DEPOSIT

World leadership in production of another mineral of vast importance is promised Canada through discovery of deposits of beryl 100 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

Beryl is half the weight of aluminum and three times as strong and according to Dr. T. L. Walker, professor of mining at the University of Toronto, has the quality of transmitting both the lightness and strength to the alloy. Two per cent. of beryl added to iron increases the strength of the latter three-fold, while a four per cent. alloy produces a metal on a par with the best known steel.

While the extent of the Manitoba deposits are still a matter of conjecture engineers of the United States, Belgium and Germany are stated to be actively vieing for control of them. They realize the great possibilities and are confident that the deposits are sufficiently extensive to give Canada immediately a monopoly of the industry.

WELLAND CANAL STATISTICS GIVEN

The figure 8 and its multiples are found in evidence in the construction of the new Welland ship canal, which links Lakes Erie and Ontario at the Niagara Peninsula to overcome a difference in level of 326 feet. For bedding purposes the canal was divided into 8 sections. There is 8 locks to the canal; it takes 8 minutes to fill each lock with water, and 8 hours for a vessel to pass through the entire canal. The 8 locks have each a usable length of 820 feet with a depth of 30 feet, and 82 feet is the height of the lower mitre gates. The greatest height of lock wall is 130.8 feet and the weight of metal in the valves of locks is 3,800 tons. A pond 80½ feet deep, covering 84 acres feeds the eight locks. The span of the lift bridge at Peter Street, Thorold, is 80 feet, and lock 8 with a length of 1,380 feet is the longest in the world. The greatest width of the entrance to Port Weller, at the Ontario end, is 800 feet. Over 8,000,000 cubic yards of rock have been excavated, and more than 28,000,000 pounds of reinforcing steel used. 'Tis interesting to note that the first Welland canal was 8 feet deep, and was practically completed in 1824, just 106 years ago, and the first vessel hastily been locked through early in the following year. The New Welland ship canal, built by the Canadian Government at a cost of $120,000,000 is practically completed. It will, it is expected, be officially opened next spring.

BRIGHT HUED CARS ARE LESS POPULAR

It would seem from a report received here that the day of bright hued motor cars is passed. Manufacturers from all over the country voice the opinion that the public interested in buying of motor cars are turning to the more somber hues such as dark blues, black and dark greens.

Each country seems to like its own particular shades the report further states. For instance in Canada black and the darker shades are favored, South Americans incline to the brighter shades in car colorings, while in Europe the darker tones are more in demand.

The old days of painting a car with a brush and a pail full of paint are past and now manufacturers employ a staff of artists whose business it is to give their entire attention to color schemes and designs. One company is reported as employing a woman who is an interior decorator to experiment with the various colors and types of upholstering in order to obtain the most pleasing effects in interiors.

NEW AVENUE OF TRADE OPENED

Now that a direct steamship service from the Pacific Coast to the Dutch East Indies has been established the outlook of Canadian business with that part of the world promises to be much above the average for last year.

Canada exports to the Dutch East Indies such items as canned fish, canvas shoes, rubber overshoes, tires, tubes, motor trucks and passenger cars, aluminum utensils of all sorts. In the export of motor trucks, canned sardines, aluminum wear the report for 1930 shows a marked increase over the value for the preceding year.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

While one would not think it judging from the weather, winter is coming.

* * *

And with it its usual round of sports.

* * *

Some of the boys are already beginning to ask about basketball and hockey, wondering who is going to play, what teams are going to be rounded up, if any, etc.

* * *

Yes, what about it? Is the town going to attempt to turn out another hockey team this year?

* * *

And is there going to be a local basketball loop or another team in the Intermediate O. A. B. A.?

* * *

Now is the time to discuss the situation and make the plans so that when the season starts, everything will be settled.

* * *

The Deseronto rugby team was taken into camp by Kingston Collegiate to the tune of 12-0 last Saturday.

* * *

Not so good for a junior O. R. F. U. squad, but when you consider that it is their first workout together, as a team, it can be understood. K. C. I. always have a husky outfit that plays good rugby.

* * *

The fact that Albert College downed the local sod-busters last Wednesday, doesn't mean the latter any closer to the group honors.

* * *

The Collegians' squad, strengthened greatly in the past week or two, will take a world of beating.

RUGBY

ALBERT COLLEGE 13, N. C. I. (1)

On Wednesday afternoon the N. C. I. rugby team went up to Albert College for a scheduled clash. With them they carried high hopes of a win, but brought home a defeat to the score of 2 to 1.

Again, as in most of our games, our team had the edge of play through most of the game, but the fates seemed to decree that they should lose and once more the league's best team bowed to a poorer twelve. Albert gained the kick-off and receiving it, Orser ran a few good yards when he was brought down. From here on the ball played in N. C. I.'s possession for a time, they having gained yards, twice. Then our boys kicked, giving Albert the ball. But Albert couldn't do anything with it and down for losses they went. They kicked on their third down and although the wind was in their favour, the kicks were not impressive. This sort of play closed the first quarter. With the ball in their possession N. C. I. opened the second quarter, determined to make a score. Our line ploughed through Albert in every down and N. C. I. gained yards five times in succession. The Albert defence was wavering badly. With the ball on our possession N. C. I. kicked on the Albert 30-yards line, but the college boys carried it out, and again gave it with it when they were forced to kick. The N. C. I. team was working smoothly, but the time was getting short and when at the end of the half 0-0 was the official score.

At the opening of the third quarter, N. C. I. kicked their first, and only point. In this they had no trouble for the outsiders, in fact the whole line was getting down under them. But Albert came back to tie the score after this N. C. I. weakened badly and only luck prevented two fumbles on our part from resulting in a touch for Albert. In this case the referee declared it one point instead of five, and the score stood 2-1. Still fighting, Napanee gave all they had, but not enough and Albert kicked another point and the final score stood 3-1.

The breaks went against us. N. C. I. proved by far the more effective both on the offensive and defensive. Every member of the team played well. Harrison gave a splendid account of himself and played a wonderful tackling game at outside right. Donoghue stood out well and seldom missed a tackle. Davy handled his signals well and showed good generalship on the field.

N. C. I. play their next game in Belleville on Wednesday against Belleville Collegiate. They are going to win this game. Ask them.

Mr. Trenouth read a list of resolutions forwarded by Mr. Moore, secretary of O. E. A. The following were named as a committee to consider them: Messrs. Trenouth, Hopper, Hill; Miss McNeilly, Newburgh; and Miss Sliter, Odessa.

Moved by Mr. Corkill, seconded by Miss Mair. Carried.

Miss M. Anglin and Miss Sliter, delegates to the O. E. A., gave summaries of many addresses at the Easter meeting, mentioning many good points in each. Miss Parkes was sure the teachers felt very grateful for these two fine reports.

The teachers then adjourned to the gymnasium to see a very pleasing demonstration in physical culture by Miss V. McLaughlin and a class of girls.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session opened with a piano solo by Miss Helen Alkenbrack, and a violin solo by Mr. Borden-Leonard.

The address of welcome given by Mayor Simpson followed. The speaker welcomed the teachers and assured them that the public were greatly interested in their work and would be glad to do anything to make their visit enjoyable. He was sure these conventions were a great help to the teachers and he hoped this one might be very successful.

Mr. C. E. Jamieson, B.A., LL.B, B.C.L., Principal of Napanee Collegiate Institute, though just recovering from a recent illness, spared no pains to help the teachers. His subject was "The Marking of the Entrance Examination Papers." He gave detailed methods some being methods followed at Lower School examinations for the Province. He attributed some flunkes made in spelling to incorrect hearing, and much trouble in literature to lack of outside reading.

Rev. Mr. A. J. Wilson, B.A., B.D., Napanee, gave, as usual, one of the most helpful addresses of the session, and the teachers showed their appreciation by their undivided attention. Mr. Wilson spoke on the value of education to the whole world today, and of the importance of the primary teachers' work.

He called the attention of the teachers to the depression in—several lines of work, as for example, church affairs and trade but he said education is the most popular thing in the world today; that it is in a more flourishing state than ever before and that teachers have wealth and public support behind them. "But," he asked, "is there any value in it? Is education simply passing examinations? Is there any potency in the teacher's job?" This question, he proceeded to answer. Man has been gaining control over things in nature, but still there is no hope for the race except through education and unless ministers and teachers are willing to tackle the problem of education in the broadest and deepest sense. The greatest need of the world today is "Intelligent discipline and controlling, not of the mind only, but of the cultural and spiritual life of the individual and that of the community. The greatest things in our lives are the emotional factors. Mr. Wilson said he was amazed that so little time or place is given to the education of the emotional side of the child's life. It is right there that the teacher has a great responsibility. The emotional life begins very early and without a sympathetic teacher, the child may develop a lop-sided temperament. But the teacher must have love for the child and high ideals. Only a developed emotional life will blot out war and the schools must give all classes a sense of brotherhood. The teacher's problem is to understand sympathetically, the emotional problems of the child. Fear plays a big part, but it must be superseded by a nobler and deeper emotion. The most serious problem is to understand each individual—his fears, hates, loves and courage, and to so make use of these in the training of the child by discouraging some and encouraging others that in the future such a catastrophe as the World War will be impossible.

For such an education of the rising generation, Mr. Wilson made an ardent plea.

Mrs. Ralph Smith, Bath, and Miss Stevens, Bath, gave a piano duet.

Mr. P. P. Smith, M.A., Inspector of Schools, Kingston, was unavoidably absent, owing to illness. The teachers were very grateful to Mr. A. H. Carr, Director of Extension Work, for a very interesting talk on Summer schools. He traced their history in England, United States and Canada. In England, the schools began in the early sixtels of the last century. At first, lecturers were sent around. Summer schools were established later, for the purpose of giving education to those unable to attend universities. The idea spread to the United States, where there are now 14,000 Summer schools and many teachers.

In Canada, Queen's opened the first Summer school in 1890, another in 1910. These were classes for teachers who wished to acquire higher standing in almost any subject. Teachers attend because they feel a responsibility and duty to themselves, their pupils and the community — the duty of keeping up-to-date.

The teachers always anticipate the Inspector's address with pleasure and they were not disappointed. His introduction was reminiscent of his early teaching days and, by contrast, was of special interest to the teachers of today.

But Mr. Corkill's object was to help the teachers so he called their attention first to the register. Teachers so often are lax in sending in reports and the making of a census of the school population before the last day of May. Teachers should not change teaching days. They should be cautious about sending the names of pupils to the attendance officer. Mr. Corkill showed a writing scale which he said, Mr. Trenouth had used with success. He though the teachers might find it of assistance. It rests only twenty-five cents and comes from the Review Press. Mr. Corkill thought the poor spelling papers handed in at the entrance examination in June, might have been due to the difficult paper. He spoke also on grants given for agriculture, household science and library.

A round-table conference closed the afternoon session, Mrs. Alkenbrack in the French author department and Miss C. Prisken, the primary.

Evening Session

The evening session took the form of a banquet in the Belleville Hotel, with an orchestra in attendance. The illustrated lecture on London, England, given by Dr. G. W. Mordon, was very interesting.

On Friday, October 10th, the teachers were received at the Institute for the Deaf, Belleville, where they were much pleased to meet Mr. Reid, I. P. S. with his teachers.

The teachers were divided into groups and led to different class rooms, where they had the pleasure of seeing the deaf pupils at work, and of learning something of the methods by which minds are enlightened and lives brightened, so that life taken on a great deal of pleasure for them and may become useful to their fellows.

After a very satisfying and dainty lunch served by the staff of the Institution, a very hearty vote of thanks was moved by the Inspector, Messrs. Reid and Corkill, each expressing the very great pleasure he and his teachers had felt in their reception and in the kindness shown by the Principal and his staff. The teachers showed their appreciation by a hearty handclap.

The Principal replied, assuring the teachers that visitors were always welcome in the Institution.

The teachers were then treated to an exhibition of harmony, music and folk-dances, a great surprise to many of the visitors who could not sufficiently praise the cleverness of the pupils and the ability of the teachers.

At a short business meeting, the Resolutions Committee submitted the following: "We advise adopting the resolutions as stated in the copy sent to Mr. Trenouth, from Toronto." — Carried.

Officers Appointed

The Nominating Committee named the following officers for next year:—

President—Mrs. A. Alkenbrack, B.A.
First Vice-President — Miss M. McGuire.

Second Vice-President — Miss F. G. Hall, B.A.

Secretary-Treasurer — Miss E. Harrison.

Executive — Mr. Corkill, Mr. Trenouth, Mr. E. Young, Misses McNeilly, Sliter, Ball, Way and Rockwell.

Delegates to O. E. A.—Miss E. A. Parkes and Mr. Hogeboon.

The Secretary was asked to pay all expenses of this convention. A vote of thanks was tendered to the Napanee School Board for the use of the Convocation Hall, N. C. I., and to the lecturers and to all others who so kindly helped, in any way, to make this such a successful and enjoyable convention.

The meeting closed with "God Save the King."

WINTER CUTS POSTAL SERVICE FOR YUKON

An important announcement regarding the sending of mail to the Yukon District has just been made by the Deputy Postmaster General of Canada.

During the season of closed navigation on the Yukon River, which extends approximately from the 1st of October to the 31st of May, parcel post to the Yukon will be suspended, except for the post offices at Champagne, Carcross and White Horse.

Attention of postmasters is drawn to the fact that they see that, mail is not accepted for other points on the river. Mailer addressed at parcel post rates intended for other points in the Yukon may be addressed to White Horse, and the addressees may make arrangement with the Transportation Company, operating between White Horse and Dawson, to convey the parcels from White Horse to destination.

CALLING ANYWHERE

"I want to talk to Finland." Sounds unreasonable, doesn't it? But it is only one of nineteen European countries now available by telephone, as well as most of the Americas. Universal telephony is nearer than many think.

Obstinate Cases Of Hemorrhoids (Piles)

A well-known physician in his hospital and private practice discovered that the prescription now known as Moone's Emerald Oil diluted with equal parts of ordinary Olive Oil, will help in the most obstinate case. Only two pills with just a few applications, and stop all itching, burning, bleeding, and distress.

Sufferers should get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil and begin the treatment at once. It is a remedy that is easily applied, and the first application gives instant relief and comfort. All good druggists have it, or can get it for you on short notice.

Machinery Ousts 50,000 Workers On Power Undertaking

Startling evidence of the manner in which machinery replaces man power was presented early this month when directors of the Beauharnois Power Company conducted representatives of 80 Canadian daily and 500 Canadian weekly newspapers over the huge St. Lawrence Power development now in progress between Lake St. Louis and Lake St. Francois, Quebec.

Machinery there is replacing over 50,000 men on a two-and-a-half year job. A staff of 2,200 men, plus mechanical equipment, is doing a work that would require, without the machinery, between 50,000 and 60,000 men to complete it in the same period.

The ultimate development may reach 2,000,000, while that now under way will provide 500,000 horse power of energy. For a distance of fifteen miles and through a canal 2,000 yards wide, a new route is being cut across country for the St. Lawrence. In it will be a passage 600 yards wide, the first big link in the deep water navigation development of the St. Lawrence between the Lakes and Montreal.

To carry on the work the corporation has laid and operates 30 miles of railway, power transmission lines for equipment, telephones lines to maintain contact with headquarters, is re-routing rivers and railway lines and highways; in fact is engaged upon a project so immense that a few years ago it would have been possible only for a government to contemplate it.

The chief feature of the undertaking is the manner in which manual labor has been curtailed. A single electric hydraulic dredge is cutting 13½ miles of the new canal basin, sucking out the material and depositing it up to a mile distant at a rate that would require a whole army of men, if manpower were employed. Other great tower and drag-line excavators move more earth and rock every two minutes than a dozen men could move in a full ten-hour day.

What machinery is doing is made clear by the fact that 50,000 men employer at only $80 per month for thirty months would cost $120,000,000 in wages, while the total cost of the Beauharnois development now under way will be $65,000,000 and this figure includes the 28,000 acres of land purchased for the project and all the materials which enter into the machinery is reducing the direct labor cost from $120,000,000 to probably $10,000,000 and thereby making possible the sale of power at a price that will create industry and thereby give permanent work to more than are now deprived of temporary employment through the mechanization of construction work.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

To Neutralize Acidity and Fermentation, Prevents Indigestion, Sour Gassy Stomach.

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried soda mixtures. Soda and various digestive aids and got little more than slight temporary relief —sometimes not even that.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia — not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets with a little water after your meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the food which may cause gas and food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES EXTENSIVE; 72,152 ARE STUDENTS

Canada has opportunities for higher education amongst men and women which are equal to those of any other country.

A recent report states that there are 23 Universities and 97 Colleges in the Dominion, with a total student enrolment by Universities of 57,254, and by Colleges of 25,127. It is not uncommon for a student to be taking part of his work in a University and part in an affiliated college, and so is reported by both institutions, the net total of students enrolled is 72,152, of whom 46,354 are males and 25,798 are females, 64.24 per cent exactly 50 per cent or 36,038 are engaged in the studies of University standard. Of these 23,543 are men and 12,495 are women.

The 57,254 students in universities are composed of 41,567 full time, 4,469 part time and 12,995 short course, extra mural and extension students, with some duplicates between groups.

The popularity of Canadian universities and colleges among students of other countries is indicated by the report giving the place of residence. There were last year, 1,741 from the United States, 422 from the British Isles, 60 from the British West Indies and 476 from other countries.

In a total of 4,777 degrees, licenses and diplomas granted by universities and colleges last year, 2,437 or 35.7 per cent were conferred on women and 4,345 on men. The most popular degree with both men and women is Bachelor of Arts, the next order with men is M.D. and B.Sc.

The University of Laval, Quebec City, has the largest enrolment of students, with 10,780 followed by the University of Montreal at Montreal with 10,779. The University of Toronto is in third place with 9,207 and McGill, Montreal, fourth with 4,436.

Total assets of Canadian Universities amount to $129,080,000, and the total income is $15,074,337. The teaching staff numbers 4,210 of whom 3,671 are men and 533 are women. In affiliated colleges there are 2,016 teachers of whom 1,872 are men and 144 are women.

... Concord grapes, ... quart water. Boil ... for five minutes. ... and add to syrup ... and until cool and ... fine sieve. Freeze.

Fresh Grapes

Put bunches in colander and pour over cold water; drain; chill and arrange on serving dish. Imperfect grapes as well as those under-ripe or over-ripe should be removed. Garnish with grape leaves and tendrils, if at hand.

Grape Frappe

Take two cups of sugar, four cups water, two cups grape juice, two-thirds cup orange juice and one-fourth cup lemon juice. Make a syrup by boiling water and sugar fifteen minutes; add fruit juices. Cool, strain and freeze to a mush, using equal parts ice and salt.

Grape Jelly

Grapes should be picked over, washed, stems removed before putting into a preserving kettle. Heat to boiling-point, mash and boil thirty minutes. Strain through a coarse strainer, then allow juice to drop through a double thickness of cheese-cloth or jelly bag. Measure, bring to boiling points and boil five minutes. Add an equal measure of heated sugar, boil three minutes, skim, and pour into glasses. Place in sunny window, and let stand for twenty-four hours. Cover and keep in a cool, dry place. Wild grapes make the best jelly. In making grape jelly, use pulp and skins separately, to make different colored jellies. It is well to let juice stand over night to let grit settle and strain again.

Candied Grapes

This fruit is delicious when covered with white fondant. To make this basis of all candy, take two-and-a-half pounds of sugar, two-and-a half cups of hot water and a quarter of a spoon of cream of tartar. Put ingredients into a smooth granite stew-pan. Stir, place on range and heat gradually to boiling point. Boil without stirring until, when tried in cold water, a soft ball may be formed which will just keep in shape. After a few minutes' boiling sugar will adhere to sides of kettle. This should be washed off. Pour slowly on a slightly-oiled marble slab or large platter. Let stand for a few minutes to cool, but not long enough to become hard around around the edge. Scrape fondant with chopping knife to one end of marble, and work with a wooden spatula until white and creamy. It will change quickly from this consistency and begin to harden, when it should be kneaded with the hands until perfectly smooth. When fondant is still soft, the grapes may be dipped in it and thoroughly covered. This makes a refreshing sweet.

Fruit Punch

One dozen lemons, one dozen oranges two pineapples, one quart grape juice, three quarts soda water, three cups sugar. Slice lemons, oranges and pineapple into a crock, cover with sugar, mash well and let stand over night. Strain through cheese-cloth, add grape juice and chill on ice. Just before serving, add the soda water. This is sufficient for fifty persons.

Grape Sauce

Take one-fourth cup butter, one cup powdered sugar, four tablespoons grape juice, yolks of two eggs, whites of two eggs, one-half cup cream. Cream the butter, add sugar gradually, then grape juice very slowly, well - beaten yolks and cream. Cook over hot water until it thickens as a custard then pour over stiffly-beaten whites. This makes an appetizing sauce for blanc mange, Bavarian cream, Spanish cream coffe cream, or other corn starch preparations.

A Dainty Cake

Take one cup butter, two cups sugar, four eggs, one cup milk, three teaspoons baking powder. Bake as a loaf cake. As a plain frosting, take one cup confectioners' sugar, with cold water to moisten, add four or five drops extract of vanilla, lemon or pineapple. Seed a few grapes, roll them in sugar and sprinkle them over the top of the iced cake. This will make a pleasing variety.

Until comparatively recent years, the medicinal value of the grape has not been appreciated. In fevers, it has a delightfully cooling effect, and in anaemic condition it is of great value, on account of its blood-making properties. Many have a glass of grape juice, or orange juice, the first thing in the morning as a healthful beginning of the day. The juice of the grape, in its fermented form, has not been wholly productive of harm. But the juice of the grape, refreshing and unfermented, means health and good cheer to every member of the household. Beautiful in color and strengthening in taste the grape is one of our rarest fruits.

Miller's Worm Powders do not need the after-help of castor-oil or any purgative to complete their thoroughness, because they are thorough in themselves. One dose of them, and they will be found palatable by all children, will end the worm trouble by making the stomach and bowels unenable to the parasites. And not only this, but the powders will be certain to exert the beneficial influence in the digestive organs.

ONE GOOD RECIPE MAKES A COOK FAMOUS

At this time of year when the days are short and the air is crisp in the sunny afternoons, a cup of tea and a sandwich makes a pleasant hour in the day. For evening parties too, coffee and sandwiches are always an easy and tempting refreshment to serve. New fillings for sandwiches are always attractive to the hostess and the following tested recipe will be found appetizing.

Cut thin slices of bread and butter and spread with the following sandwich filling: Mix well 1 tablespoon of flour, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon of mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar. Add to 1 cup of boiling milk with 1 table spoon of butter and boil for three minutes. Take off the stove and beat in ½ cup of vinegar, slowly. Then add 2 chopped pimentos, 1 cup cheese, 2 hard boiled egg; and 2 chopped olives. The mixture is ready for use when cool.

SEES MARKET FOR CANADIAN WHEAT IN U. S.

Within five years the United States will be buying Canadian wheat in large quantities according to E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who has just returned from a tour of the western provinces. Mr. Beatty states that he found conditions in the west "much as he had anticipated" and says that he was delighted with conditions in general there. "Canada cannot go back" he said and in his opinion the Dominion will steadily forge ahead in the face of the threatening depression.

$65,000,000 FOR EMERGENCY RELIEF WORK THIS WINTER

Co-operation between Dominion and Provincial Governments to reduce unemployment will be in full swing before the advent of winter.

Five provinces have already negotiated their agreements with the Dominion as to the amount of Federal Aid which will be given and the terms upon which it is to be granted. In addition the Dominion has undertaken to guarantee interest charges on branch line construction work by the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways.

While four Provinces are still to complete their agreements it is estimated here that the $20,000,000 voted by Parliament last month as an emergency relief measure will result in gross expenditures of approximately $65,000,000 upon undertakings that would otherwise have been delayed one, two or three years. In the type of works being encouraged the percentage paid out in primary wages will represent about $50,000,000 and this, through recirculation is expected to exercise an important influence in reducing actual hardship.

Insofar as the provinces and municipalities are concerned, works programmes are being pushed ahead at least a year, while the guarantee to the railways means an immediate start on a programme projected for three years hence and involving an outlay of approximately $20,000,000.

The staff of the Department of Labor has been extended to take charge of Canada's largest relief effort, for the $20,000,000 voted for the purpose in September is twenty times as great as any previous outlay for the purpose. The work involved here, however, largely devolves upon the Minister of Labor in allotting the appropriations. Actual administration of expenditures passes to the provinces and once the allotments are decided the work here becomes very largely clerical.

The Labor Department has issued a statement regarding the primary affect of tariff changes upon unemployment. While it was anticipated that probably three months would elapse before any marked progress toward the promised employment of at least 30,000 more Canadians was indicated, the department has now a lengthy list of industries which have increased their staffs, and of others which are reopening after various periods of suspension.

Agricultural and Industrial Progress In The Dominion

Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island —Addressing the Associated Boards of Trade at Charlottetown, Premier Jas. of Prince Edward Island, pointed out that potatoes are now bringing $1,500,000 additional money to farmers and that farmers are grading their potatoes even better than required by Government standards. Practically all farm produce is improving in quality, he said.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, announcement is made that 75 school fairs will be held throughout Nova Scotia this year by the Department of Agriculture. In 1925, 22 were held while last year there were 68. Three hundred and sixty schools took part last year, while this year the number will likely exceed 400.

Fredericton, New Brunswick— The new Provincial Grading and Packing Warehouse for apples, the construction of which began in June, will be in full operation in a day or two, according to A. G. Turney, Provincial Horticulturist. This warehouse is the first of a group to be built, eventually, in the principal fruit growing areas of New Brunswick. Better distribution is expected to lead to larger markets for the New Brunswick fruit.

Woodstock, New Brunswick.—Cattle entries for the annual fall fair at Woodstock were the largest in history, with the result that several intending exhibitors were unable to find accommodation. Other livestock exhibits were also of record proportions this year.

Montreal, Quebec. — Plans for the forthcoming Produced-in-Canada Exhibition at the Montreal Stadium, November 3rd to 8th, are now well advanced and promise a comprehensive and interesting display, with a number of improvements made over last year's excellent showing.

Montreal, Quebec.—The largest shipment of cattle from Montreal so far this year left Montreal for Manchester the other day, of which 250 were ranch cattle in the twenty-third shipment. There were 356 animals in the shipment.

Montreal, Quebec.— The first cargo of Canadian wheat to any of the South American countries left Montreal this other day for Rio de Janeiro, Brazil— 206,522 bushels of No. 1 and 2 Northern. It is thought that the Canadian grain is to be used for blending with the local product in the manufacture of flour.

Ottawa — A new all-time record for copper production was attained by Canada in 1929, when her mines gave up 238,120,760 pounds of the metal. Finally revised figures of the Bureau of Statistics show this as an increase of 22 per cent over the 1928 production of 202,646,946 pounds, while the value of last year's production, at $45,415,251, was greater by 52 per cent than the $28,598,249 valuation of the preceding year's output.

Ottawa.—The present quality of Canada's grain crop for this year will be very high, according to E. B. Ramsay, head of the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada, reporting to F. C. T. O'Hara, Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce. Mr. Ramsay's statement is based upon tests continuously passed by the Dominion government chemist. The report says: "The quality of the protein (gluten) is excellent and the average weight per bushel compares favourably with that found in previous years. The average for 1929 was 13.3 per cent; for 1928 12.3 per cent and for 1927 11.4 per cent.

Ottawa, Ontario.—A number of enquiries have been made to the City Industrial Agent at Oshawa as to industrial sites available, the prospect of new harbor and prices of land in the harbor vicinity. An oil company and a coking company are among those enquiring.

Toronto, Ontario. — Ontario wheat crop prospects this year are for a larger return from a reduced acreage, as compared with 1929. Fall and spring wheat yields are placed by the Ontario Department of Agriculture at an average of 28 and 22.8 bushels per acre, respectively, compared with 25.8 and 18.1 bushels in 1929. The combined harvest of wheat is estimated at 21,268,264 bushels, against 19,750,631 in 1929, an increase of about 13 per cent.

Toronto, Ontario.—Canadian Export Managers Limited, operating as the export department for a group of manufacturers, report that sales for 1930 are proportionately 25 per cent over those for the similar period of 1929 which were 35 per cent in excess of those for 1928. The agency has sold Canadian goods to 36 countries, says the Toronto Industrial News Bulletin.

Hamilton, Ontario.— Terminal station improvements and grade separation plans for Hamilton, which will involve an expenditure of some $1,000,000; will eliminate a number of level crossing and give considerable employment as well as distinctly new transportation facilities— put forward by the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway, have been approved by the city council. The main outlines of the project were explained to the council by Harold T. Malcolmson, vice-president and general manager of the railway.

Fort William, Ontario.—Good progress is being made on the construction of the four additions to elevators at the head of the lakes, namely: Paterson's and Searle's elevators at West Fort William and Richardson's and the Union Terminal elevators at Port Arthur.

Winnipeg, Manitoba. — During the past ten days the Industrial Development Board of Manitoba has received more enquiries from concerns contemplating entering the Canadian field than they have received during the previous two months combined, and in addition several representatives of United States concerns have been in Winnipeg gathering first hand information.

Regina, Saskatchewan. — Although Saskatchewan's potato crop for 1930 will be slightly below the ten-year average, a marked increase in production is expected from practically the same acreage as of last year, according to the Hon. C. W. Buckle, Minister of Agriculture.

Regina, Saskatchewan.— Recent recent reports show that the Province of Saskatchewan has grown from 60,000 farms in operation with 2,060,000 acres in crop when the province was organized in 1905 to 118,000 farms with 30,000,000 acres under cultivation at the present time. Also, the province is now organized along agricultural lines; the wheat pool having 80,000 members while various other farmers' organizations are operating to the benefit of the producers.

Medicine Hat, Alberta.—Some of the farmers hauling garden produce to the Broder Canning Plant here are, in some instances, getting as high as $250 per acre for string beans.

Brooks, Alberta.—On the Canadian Pacific Railway Farm at Brooks all kinds of fruits are now growing, including apples, plums, cherries and grapes. By a system of grafting and crossing, some fine samples of crab apples, large apples and plums have been developed and are bearing abundantly.

Calgary, Alberta.— Alberta contains 87 per cent of Canada's coal resources and already produces more than 60 per cent of the Dominion's production, according to a report of the Industrial Development Board of Canada.

Edmonton, Alberta. — Farmers of Alberta in considerable numbers are expected to take advantage of the provisions of the Purebred Bull purchase Act passed at the last session of the Legislature. An unusual feature of the situation, it is pointed out, is the fact that many applicants sought Red Polled bulls, which had not been much in demand in the past. Dairy Shorthorn Bulls were also in demand. It is considered that the present movement is a good sign, indicating a return to diversified farming.

Oliver, British Columbia. — Casaba melons have been grown successfully in the drier section of British Columbia this season, following promising experiments last year. Due to the excellent keeping qualities of this melon it has become popular with dissidents and a good market is being created.

Vancouver, British Columbia.— This season's salmon pack, which totalled 1,679,638 cases on September 6th, is 884,942 cases higher than that of the corresponding period in 1929. It is the highest in years, even bettering the 1925 peak of 1,295,196 cases, according to figures issued by the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

Vancouver, British Columbia.— The first unit of the British Columbia Electric Railway's new hydro-electric development at Ruskin is nearing completion and power will be switched on in October. This unit, one of four to be built, will deliver 47,000 h.p. of electrical energy.

Vancouver, British Columbia.—Fifty purebred Holsteins, from the herds of British Columbia and Alberta, have been ordered by Chinese dairy interests for shipment from Vancouver early in December.

Trend of Business Is More Promising

It is believed, by the trend of business, that the low point of the economic depression in Canada has passed. Sales of winter lines have improved Prairie turnover although manufacturing is still at a low ebb. The Maritimes and Quebec provinces are experiencing satisfactory crops. Ontario anticipates a light corn corp but a fair buckwheat crop.

Eastern shoe and leather manufacturers are experiencing a much better demand and are consequently producing on a more active scale. The textile industry is unsettled but optimistic forseeing increased production with less competition from Japanese and Czech lines. One of the largest of the Quebec mills is reported to be bringing additional looms into operation to increase its output from 65 to 80 per cent capacity. Ontario inventories in textile lines are low and some dealers predict an actual shortage although Fall orders are smaller than usual.

The August production of Canadian plants, 9,792 units, is the lowest of the year to date, being 6 per cent under July and 31 per cent under August 1929, production. Eastern demand for electrical apparatus has improved somewhat and hardware distributors in that section are satisfied with the general outlook, although sales are below last year's level. A slight pick-up is noted in Winter specialties, including seasonal sporting goods, which are moving fairly well. Substantial increases are noted in Ontario prices for window glass. Seasonal quiet rules the agricultural implement market, where demand is light; the machinery market has not improved.

Water proof clothing prices in Vancouver have been advanced, but the rubber goods market there continues quiet. The British Columbia pack of canned salmon to September 20th totals 1,814,000 cases, a record for the province. Foodstuffs are reported to be moving in nearly normal volume in Ontario, but stocks on hand are fairly low. August production of pig iron and steel in Canadian plants was substantially under July output and was only about half of the total for that month of last year. A slight gain, however, is noted in the output of ferro-alloys.

GROWS CANADIAN WALNUTS

It will be a surprise to many citizens in Canada to learn that Canada is in the foreground in production of walnuts. From Kent County, Ontario, an exhibition of Japanese Walnuts, grown by Harold English, near Chatham, was made at the Nut Growers' Conference held at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The nuts were declared the best ever seen by those attending the conference.

They were large in size, of good cracking and extraction quality and were found to be of an exceptionally fine flavor.

DORLAND

The United Church anniversary services were very satisfactorily in every way. The weather was ideal and appreciative audiences greeted Rev. A. E. Baker, of Century Church, New Hamburg, both morning and evening. The music rendered by the choir and Mrs. A. E. Baker was much enjoyed. The front of the church was very prettily decorated with begonias, foliages and cut flowers. On Monday evening, the attractively trimmed dining room was a very busy scene when upwards of 400 people were served. Among the many points represented were Kingston, Mountain Grove, Selby, Odessa, Morven and Napanee. — The many friends of Mr. Frank Gallaghan will be glad to learn that he is convalescing in Kingston General Hospital after his recent operation for appendicitis. Owing to the severity of the case, he will be confined to the hospital for some time yet. His wife is with him. — Mr. Fred Hamilton, a former resident of this place, who was so seriously injured in a motor accident, is also recovering in Kingston General Hospital. —Among recent visitors were: Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Roblin and Jamie, Westbrooke; Mrs. Carr's, Miss Matthews, Belleville, with Miss Elsie Magee; Mrs. Bloomfield, Kingston, at C. H. Allison's; Miss S. Price, Selby; Miss E. Price and Mr. W. A. FREE FREIGHT POLICY TO HELP CATTLEMEN

Major the Honourable Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, has authorized a free freight policy which is expected to do much to build up the beef industry in Western Canada.

Under the new policy, which is effective from October 15th, heifers not over twenty-four months old and of approved type and quality will be returned from stockyards west of Fort William to country points in the same area free of freight charges on farmers or their properly authorized agents, where such stock is to be used for breeding purposes.

Up to the present time 25 per cent of the freight charges on such stock by companies. Under the new policy the has been absorbed by the railway companies. Under the new policy the Live Stock Branch will absorb the remaining 25 per cent of freight charges.

Farmers and livestock men desiring to benefit under the policy are required to make application to the authorized representative of the Dominion Live Stock Branch at the nearest stock yard. They will also be required to make a declaration to the effect that the stock will be used for breeding purposes only.

Shipments must comprise carlots of not less than twenty heifers under twenty-four months of age and, as far as practicable all heifers included in a carlot must be of the same type and breed.

Each shipment is subject to inspection by the authorized agent of the Dominion Live Stock Branch at the stockyard from which it is made who will issue a certificate only to shipments which qualify as to desirability of type and quality.

The certificate of the Federal Live Stock agent will enable the shipper to bill out his car free of all freight charges, and automatically entitle him to the 25 per cent railway rebate and it is the railway's authority for collecting the remainder of the freight direct from the Dominion Live Stock Branch.

Complete information regarding the policy can be obtained by enquiry to the stockyards agent of the Dominion Live Stock Branch at the stockyard nearest the prospective applicant for the benefits of the policy.

Women Weakened By Worry

"I don't want to worry, but I can't help it," said a woman recently when told to take things easy and not worry. It is the duty of every woman to save her strength. OBITUARY.

DEATH OF MRS. O. E. KNIGHT

After an illness extending over a considerable period, there passed away on Saturday night one of Napanee's highly respected residents in the person of Mrs. O. E. Knight, at the age of 66 years. The deceased had been a patient sufferer and had been confined to her bed for some months, and for the past few days her condition had been very low. The late Mrs. Knight was a resident of Napanee for many years, her husband for some years conducting a store on Dundas street. After his death, the store was continued by Mrs. Knight and daughter, Myrtle. She was of a quiet disposition, was held in high esteem by her many friends, and her death, although expected, will be learned with regret by all with whom she was acquainted. She was a member of Trinity United Church, and until sickness intervened was a regular attendant.

Surviving are three children, Claude of the staff of the Canadian National Express Company, Mrs. Roy King, and Myrtle. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon and was conducted by Rev. Harry Pawson. Many friends were present and the floral tributes bore mute testimony of the love of relatives and friends from near and far.

Besides her family, three sisters survive: Mrs. Gilford Post, of Hay Bay; Mrs. Robert Bryerton, of Watertown, N.Y.; Mrs. Alfred Middleton, of Detroit, Mich.; and one brother, Alvin Williams, of Watertown, N.Y.

The pall-bearers were: Marshall Hudson, J. Brown, J. G. Oliver, E. B. Weiss, W. A. Steacy, F. H. Perry. Interment took place at Riverside Cemetery.

MEASURES TO PROMOTE USE OF CANADIAN COAL

Canada's growing independence of imported coals and the expansion of markets for domestic fuels are shown in a recent statement of the Dominion Fuel Board. The Board, which was formed in November, 1922, to aid in relieving conditions as a result of the fuel shortage at that time, has been carrying on a progressive campaign to make better known the suitability of Canadian coals for domestic and industrial consumption and to place them on a better basis in competition with imported coals. In regard to coals from the Maritime Provinces carried by water to St. Lawrence River ports, the Board supervises the further transportation to points where foreign coals are competitive, while in the West the Board is also charged with the administration of the assisted movements of western coals into the Manitoba markets.

That the efforts of the Board are meeting with success is demonstrated by the tonnage figures of the current year. Of Maritime Provinces coals moving to Quebec and Ontario, the Board reports that this year, as at September 15, no less than 552,000 tons of coals were accepted for transportation, while in the West the operative figures are becoming important. Since June 1st last 110,000 tons of coals have been moved under the assisted freight rates from Saskatchewan and the Crowsnest Pass district to British Columbia, for industrial consumption at Winnipeg and other points where foreign coals ordinarily can be sold at a lower price than Canadian coals. It is interesting to note in connection with the promotion of Western Canada coals as stable industrial fuels that the tonnage so far reported by the Board as accepted for movement to Manitoba is divided among one hundred and thirty separate contracts.

Other legislation which the Fuel Board administers is the Domestic Fuel Act, 1927, which provides assistance for by-product coking plants which use Canadian coals. A plant in the city of Halifax is operating under the provisions of the Act, and at present the Board is applying the Act with reference to a coking plant in Quebec city.

Since its inception, the Fuel Board has been carrying on a thorough study of the Canadian fuel situation. It has conducted exhaustive inquiries on both technical and economic aspects of utilizing Canadian coals to a greater extent and on methods of improved fuel utilization. Two main investigations on which printed reports have been issued relate to central heating and to the commercial feasibility of the establishment of by-product recovery coking plants in Ontario and Quebec. Attention has also been given to house insulation and to the control of humidity in homes during the artificial heating season. Pamphlets on these subjects have been published.

Educational propaganda issued by the Board advocating the use of alternative fuels for United States anthracite has, it is believed, directly resulted in the greatly increased utilization of such fuels in Ontario and Quebec, and has correspondingly reduced the dependence of these provinces on anthracite from across the border.

In connection with its inventory of Canadian fuel resources and supplies and its analyses of the economic aspects of the coal situation, the Board has collected much valuable information. This information is available to the public. The numbers of inquiries received and dealt with by the Board are increasing year by year, and indicate an ever-growing public interest in questions of fuel efficiency and fuel economy.

BUILDING PERMITS EXCEED AVERAGE

The aggregate number of building permits issued during the first half of the year of 1930, though lower than in 1929 and 1928, was nevertheless considerably above the average for the last ten years while the wholesale cost of building materials was lower than in most years on record. The value of building permits issued during June was $17,235,478 and was a decrease of 8.6 per cent as compared with May. It was a decline of 25 per cent as compared with June 1929.

KEEPING BABY LOVELY AND WELL

Some babies thrive from the hour of their birth while others make so little progress as to be the cause of much anxiety. As a rule it is the digestion that is at fault with these backward ones and they start to go ahead directly Baby's Own Tablets are made the corrective of their stomach and bowel troubles.

Baby's Own Tablets are specially designed for the use of baby and little children. They are absolutely safe and the mother can feel perfectly secure in giving them to even the most delicate child. They are a mild but thorough laxative which banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and allay the pains which accompany the cutting of teeth. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OBITUARY

FRANCIS DUNN

On October 1st, a sad death occurred in the passing away of Francis Dunn at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Dunn, Bicknell's Corners. Deceased was still young of age and had been ill about 14 months, but was always cheerful and hoping for the best. Though it was known for some time that he could not get better, the end came very sudden. His whole life was spent in the district, being born in Newburgh; he was known to everyone and was very popular with his legion of friends.

The funeral, which was held on Friday, was largely attended, taking place from the residence of his parents to St. Luke's Anglican Church, Camden East, the service being conducted by his Rector, Rev. R. W. Spencer. The church was filled with sympathizing friends and the floral tokens were many and beautiful. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Arthur Hart, Ray Gourley, Seymour Ball, Clifford Huff, Ogden Hinch, James McCormick. Interment took place in St. Luke's Cemetery. Besides his widow, he leaves to mourn his loss an only child, Marion Frances, a little over a year old; his parents and two brothers, John Clarence, Toronto; and Milton, at home.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear Husband and Father, John Hartin, who peacefully passed away to his eternal rest, October 20th, 1928.

To-day brings back and memories
Of a Father laid to rest.
And those who think of him to-day
Are those who loved him best.

Our Father's voice is heard no more,
His face we cannot see,
But over on the other shore
We'll meet the loved one gone before.

HOMESTEAD ENTRIES IN WESTERN CANADA

The present year terminates the administration by the Dominion Government of the lands and other resources of the Prairie Provinces, and of the areas in British Columbia known as the Peace River Block and the Railway Belt. These resources now pass under provincial control.

One of the notable changes involved is that the historic Dominion homestead policy now gives way to such land policies as may be framed by the several provinces concerned. For nearly sixty years the homestead system has played a cardinal role in the disposal of what have been known as "Dominion lands," and in the growth of Canadian development. Since 1886 nearly 600,000 homestead entries have been made, and while may of these were never completed the magnitude of this land business may be judged from the fact that the entries represent, all 160 acres each, nearly 100,000,000 acres of land.

As the accompanying diagram shows, homestead activity reached its peak in the three or four years immediately preceding the War. While the last two years have brought a decided upset in the number of entries, the post-War period, generally speaking, has witnessed only a moderate degree of homesteading activity. The rise and fall of homestead entries illustrates perhaps better than anything else the the fact that in more recent times the granting of homesteads has not been the all-absorbing tak for the Department of the Interior that it was fifteen or twenty years ago.

Western Land Settlement

Homestead entries and soldier grants made in the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta during the month of August, totalled 1,313, according to figures compiled in the Dominion Lands Administration, Department of the Interior. As the province of Manitoba took over the administration of her natural resources on July 15th, and British Columbia on August 1st, there are no figures available for these two provinces. The table follows:—

	Homesteads		Soldier Grants
	1929	1930	1929	1930
Calgary	37	34	1	2
Edmonton	445	430	15	11

ADOLPHUSTOWN W. I.

The October meeting of the Institute was held as the home of Mrs. H. Gallagher, on Wednesday afternoon, with a splendid attendance. The President, Mrs. A. C. Davis was in charge of the meeting. The neighbouring Institute of Conway was invited to be present and contributed to the programme. The meeting opened with singing of the Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer. The roll call was in charge of the president, who conducted a contest on Canadian towns and cities, which proved interesting. Minutes were read by secretary and approved and business followed. Mrs. A. P. Young, of the Conway branch, who is district secretary, spoke briefly to the meeting re the wreath to be placed on the War Memorial, which will be represented by each institute. Mrs. C. F. Allison was selected as delegate to the district convention to be held in Kingston. It was moved and carried that twenty-five dollars be spent in new books for the library. The Girls' Conference, to be held in Kemptville in November, was discussed and Miss Ruby Brooks was elected as representative to attend. The flower committee are to send flowers to Mrs. Fred Wilson, who has been ill. Greetings were then extended to our visiting ladies, and Mrs. John Young, president of the Conway branch, was called to the chair. The following programme was given: Solo, Miss Fran Hopkinson and Peggy Ham, a piano duet; a paper on "Good Roads" by Mrs. Harry Philppen; a demonstration in bead work was given by Mrs. Will Keyes, who had with her samples of the work in flowers, roses, butterflies and so forth. Mrs. Norman Gall; read a paper on "The Institute Ode and what it means"; an instrumental number by Mrs. George Ham was then enjoyed. A paper written by Mrs. A. P. Young on "Home management" and read by Mrs. Frank Ham, was interesting. A humorous reading by Mrs. Kenneth Hill brought a very pleasant programme to a close. A vote of thanks was presented to Conway Institute. Mrs. Russell Cousins gave an interesting demonstration of a sandwich loaf. It was decided to give a concert on November 7th and to secure Jack Elder, of Kingston, as entertainer.

The meeting closed with God Save the King. Grace was sung and a delicious lunch was enjoyed.

Facts About University Of Western Ontario

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

New Entrance Regulations

The University of Toronto has decided to discontinue at the end of the present 1930-31, offering instruction in the subjects of what is now known as the first year of the Pass Arts Course. This is a change which has been under discussion for some years, because there appeared to be no good reason why the University should provide instruction which is available in the Collegiate Institutes and High Schools of the Province. For two decades or more Upper School or Honours Matriculation certificates have been accepted, subject for subject, as the equivalent of the First Year Pass Arts standing. There was, therefore, a duplication of effort which should, hereafter, be largely obviated by this change in university policy. It is expected that the secondary schools will welcome this innovation because students will remain with them longer and there will be a better opportunity for the rounding-out of a secondary education and, on the other hand, students will enter the university at a more mature age, better fitted to benefit by university education.

When the new arrangement goes into effect, the present second year will become the first year and students taking the Pass Course will graduate at the end of the third year. And a still more startling change has been made. Students will be able to enter the first year of the new Pass Course without Latin beyond that of Junior Matriculation! Not in half a century has such a radical departure taken place in university policy. Hereafter, Latin of Pass or Junior Matriculation will be sufficient.

News and Information For the Farmer

O. A. C. Cattle Sale

The annual auction sale of pure-bred cattle, sheep and swine at O. A. C. will be held on Thursday, October 23rd, 1930. This event has always attracted widespread interest among cattle breeders and farmers generally and a large attendance again this year is anticipated.

Big Plowing Match

Widespread interest is being evinced in the International Plowing Match and Farm Machinery Demonstration which will be held October 14, 15, 16 and 17, on King's Highway No. 7, near the city of Stratford. This year's match promises to set a new record for number of entries contests and enthusiasm.

The Bean Yield

Reports from the bean growing sections of Ontario give the actual bean yields as somewhat higher than was first estimated. About 67,000 acres of beans were grown in Ontario this year, an increase of 30 per cent. over 1929. Yields, however, have been severely cut by the long spells of dry hot weather and the total yield will not be larger than in 1929. The Ontario bean crop has a yearly value of well over two million dollars. Michigan reports a bean yield of 12 per cent. increase in acreage. The crop for the United States is now estimated to be slightly below that of last year, and the yield will probably be the smallest since 1917.

Appeal to Producers

In connection with the "Buy Ontario-grown Products" campaign which is being aggressively prosecuted, by the Government, an appeal is made to producers to help make the scheme successful by being even more careful than in the past about their offerings. The Department is recommending GRADED VEGETABLES and the producer has a splendid opportunity to get this new business by offering graded products. The radio talk given daily at noon from Station CFRB, Toronto, is a service to housewives suggesting how high quality produce may be purchased and of course, Ontario-grown products are being boosted. Some of the large merchandising firms have definitely changed their policies and in their advertising are featuring ONTARIO GROWN farm products. Consumers are turning more and more to Ontario produce and it only rests with the producer to give them what they want.

That agriculture as a profession is appealing more and more to the women of Ontario every year is evidenced by the fact that there are five girls enrolled in the freshmen class at the O. A. C. this year.

This Barnyard is Clean

On a farm near Galt there is a barnyard that is always clean. The whole of the yard is paved with concrete. A scraper drawn by horses makes clean work of it. These who have done such paving say that the main requirement is a well drained site on which to lay the concrete. In many cases the first move is to tile the yard. The owner of the yard mentioned above says that it is a good investment because it means cleaner cows, cleaner stables, manure properly conserved and more personal comfort and satisfaction.

Those Old Engines

Did you ever wonder what becomes of all the old steam traction engines when they die? If they're good they go to Norfolk County and there they stand outside tobacco kilns and pump in steam to cure the bright leaf. Many have been seen at work during the past month doing just this thing and proving conclusively that there are always some way to use even the most apparently outworn agricultural implement.

New Interest in Sheep Raising

Marked success is attending the Department's office to stimulate a greater interest in sheep-raising by the establishment of Sheep Clubs throughout the province. A membership of ten is required before application can be made to start a Sheep Club. The members must be under thirty years of age and reside on farms where sheep are not now kept and where the accommodation for successfully raising sheep is satisfactory. Each member will be supplied with five ewe lambs by the Department and with a purebred ram, for a period of two years. The first crop of lambs must be returned to the Ontario Livestock Branch and during each of the next succeeding three years two lambs until a total of seven lambs have been returned. Each member must care for his flock in accordance with regulations to be issued by the Live stock Branch and must dip his flock for external parasites at least once a year. A considerable number of clubs are already in operation and other applications are being received from time to time.

Prepare for 1932 Show

The Ontario Department is taking time by the forelock as it were, insofar as making preparations for the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference of it is concerned. Farmers are being urged by the Department to keep this year's seed in the event of the crop of next year not being up to the high standard of former years. Fall fair judges have been instructed to be on the watch for extra fine quality grain and seed at this year's fall fairs and to send samples to the field husbandry branch at Guelph for examination. Officials of this department report that already there has been much interest evinced by growers, many of whom have announced their intention of preparing for the 1932 exhibition.

Will Investigate Markets

W. B. Somerset, of Burlington, has been appointed by Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, to delve into the question of marketing fruits and vegetables from the farmer's standpoint, a work that was started by Hon. Mr. Kennedy. "We are endeavoring to find new markets for Ontario's fruit and vegetables," said Mr. Kennedy. "We are centering chiefly on Winnipeg and Montreal." Mr. Somerset, who is an expert on advertising and marketing conditions, will make recommendations on the situation, supplementary to those already made by Hon. Mr. Kennedy.

The Department is co-operating with agricultural authorities from all parts of the province in an effort to solve the problem of excess cheap cattle now in the farmer's hands. We are making an effort to find some way to assist the farmer in keeping cheap grain for feeding," decalres Mon. Mr. Kennedy, "so that we will have the farmers selling cattle next year."

British Apple Market

Andrew Fulton the Department fruit representative in Britain, writes that early shipments of attractive, well colored apples will be in demand at fair prices until the middle of December. Such varieties as Wealthy, Ribston, Baxter, King, Snow, Mackintosh, etc., should sell satisfactorily. The encouraging outlook for Ontario apples this season is based on the fact, that the British embargo against the lower grades of American apples has reduced arrivals from that country by over 50 per cent. compared with a year ago. This restriction against the United States remains in force until November 15th. Mr. Fulton points out that really high values cannot be expected until the low spending power of the public in Great Britain. However if the apples are packed well and every precaution is taken to have them arrive in good condition Ontario apples should find a ready sale on the British market in the next few months.

Have You Heard These?

Bricklayer (new on the job): "Guess I can't work here. There's no place to park my car."

Boss: "No, you won't do. We only hire bricklayers who have their own chauffeurs."

Mother: "Well, Jimmy, do you think your teacher likes you?"

Jimmy: "I think so, mummy, because she marks a big kiss on all my 'rithmetic."—Scaraboro Post.

Meanest Man. — Mrs. Smith: "My husband talks in his sleep. Doesn't yours?"

Mrs. Jones: "No, and it's so exasperating. He only smiles." —Cappers Weekly.

An Oil That is Famous. — Though Canada was not the birthplace of Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, it is the home of that famous compound. From here its good name was spread to Central and South America, the West Indies, Australia and New Zealand. That is far afield enough to attest its excellence, for in all those countries it is on sale and in demand.

Ask the Iceman — "When water becomes ice," said the professor, "what is the greatest change that takes place?" "The price, sir," Christian Evangelist.

Double Call for Inventors.—A toothpaste that removes the film from the teeth may be all right, but what we need is a hair oil that will remove the fog from the brain.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Have you seen the new noiseless baby carriages?"

"I don't think much of them. Noiseless babies would be more to the point."—Nebelspalter.

A Real Asthma Relief. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has never been advertised by extravagant statements. Its claims are conservative indeed, when judged by the benefits which it performs. Expect real relief and permanent benefits when you buy this remedy and you will not have cause for disappointment. It gives permanent relief in many cases where other so called remedies have utterly failed Sentimental Traveler. — A young couple entertaining a prim and slightly absent-minded maiden aunt from Nebraska, were astonished and aghast the other night when, some one mentioning speak-easies, the dear old lady brightened and was suddenly all interest. "Oh!" she said, "speak-easies, yes. I've always wanted to see one. Do you suppose we could go to one while I'm on here? I understand," she continued, "there's so much better than the old silent movies."—The New Yorker.

Safety First-ers Mon.' — The easterly wind had dried the land, and the crops were suffering from the drought; so the extraditories of the parish waited on the minister with a request to "put up a word" for rain.

The Minister, to find a reputation for the efficacy of his supplications on previous occasions. Heard the application gravely, and, after a silence during which he carefully scanned the heavens, replied: "A word is not enough, we'll fill the wits main off the west."—London Humorist.

A Putt for Conscience.—The plumber worked and the helper stood helplessly looking on. He was learning the business. This was his first day.

"Say," he enquired, "do you charge for my time?"

"Certainly you think," came the reply.

"But I haven't done anything."

The plumber to fill in the hour, had been looking at the finished job with a lighted candle. Handing the two inches of it that were still unburned to the helper, he said witheringly:

"Here if you gotta be so darned conscientious, blow that out."—Masonic Craftsman.

Annual Meeting of Napanee South Division of Belleville Presbyterial

The Napanee South Division of the Belleville Presbyterial held its Fifth Annual Meeting, at the Deseronto United Church on Thursday, October 2nd, 1930. Promptly at 2.30, Mrs. T. I. Hooper, the vice-president for this district, took the chair and opened the convention. Rev. Mr. Beckel offered prayer. Mrs. I. Asselstine was appointed secretary and Mrs. C. Allchurch, press reporter.

Bay East Auxiliary took charge of the devotional exercises. Mrs. W. C. Joyce led in prayer and Mrs. A. Dean read the Scripture lesson.

Greetings were then extended to us by Mrs. R. Millar, of Deseronto Auxiliary.

Mrs. Mabee, of Odessa, literature secretary, read a letter from the Literature Department, Toronto, telling of the value of this department. The reports from the auxiliaries then followed, thirteen reporting: Adolphustown, Bay East, Bay West, Deseronto, Empey Hill, Grace Church, of Napanee, Hawley, Morven, Odessa, Selby, Sillsville, Switzerville and Wilton.

The sum of $1413.39 was raised so far this year. Nearly every auxiliary also, sent boxes of clothing or quilts to the Supply Secretary. There are about 550 members in this district, 20 study books are used and 175 missionary monthlies are taken. Our money is raised in many ways; systematic giving through the envelope system being stressed. Nearly every auxiliary has a temperance secretary at work.

The reports of Circles and Bands were then given. Only two circles, Grace Church and Odessa reported. They have 93 members, 17 of these being new members, and have raised $160 this year. Four bands reported, one of these, Adolphustown, being a new band with 10 members; Grace Church, Sillsville and Selby Bands, have 130 members, 30 of these being new members. These bands have raised $110 this year; 56 "World Friends" are taken.

An address on "Young People's Work" was given by Miss Robena Templeton, C. G. I. T., Secretary of the Belleville Presbyterial. She told us how missionary work was being carried on among groups of teen-age girls. The aim in missionary education is to help the girls to develop friendliness, sympathy and appreciation toward peoples of other nations, and to learn how they live.

We were then favoured by a vocal duet by Mrs. W. E. and Miss Wilma Jackson, of Selby, "Let me help someone today."

Mrs. (Rev.) Street, of Morven, had charge of the quiet half-hour, her subject being "Prayer."

The morning session was dismissed by prayer by Rev. Mr. Harrison.

A very delicious and bountiful dinner was served by the Deseronto ladies.

Afternoon Session

Sillsville Auxiliary had charge of the devotional services in the afternoon. After a hymn and prayer, part of the 12th Chapter of Hebrews was read. Miss VanDyck read a short paper on "Temperance."

The roll call of auxiliaries followed, each auxiliary answering by a Bible promise. The minutes of the morning session were read and approved.

Next year, Napanee South Division is to meet with the Tamworth division, at one of the Napanee churches, for our sectional rally. Two years from now we will accept Empey Hill's invitation for our annual meeting.

The new members appointed to the executive are: Mrs. Hawley, Grande, Odessa; and Mrs. A. C. Parkes, Hay Bay. Mrs. (Rev.) Foley, Selby, replied to the greetings. Mrs. G. Hall, Deseronto, then sang a very beautiful solo, which was much appreciated.

Miss F. Asselstine, Odessa, gave an address on "All People's Mission." Winnipeg. Mrs. B. Humphrey, Adolphustown, sang very sweetly, "Have Thy Own Way, Lord."

Dr. Margaret McKellar, who has had over forty years service in India, was then called upon to give her address. Dressed, in her gown and cap, and wearing her medals, she was greeted with applause as she stepped forward to speak. One of these medals was given her by the Government of India for distinguished service, the other by our Society, for her long years of work.

India is the home of three of the greatest religions in the world: Hinduism, Mohammedanism, and Buddhism, and also of many minor religions. 300,000 Hindus in India, are really idol worshippers. They hold many animals sacred, the most sacred of all being the cow. There are about 60,000,000 Mohammedans in India. They believe in one God, but have Mohammed as their "Prophet." Their ideals of living are far below the Christian ideals. Women have no rights among them. There are only a few thousand Buddhists now in India, at one time this was the religion of India. There are about 6,000,000 Christians of all denominations in India.

The population of India is about 320,000,000 people in India and 8,000,000 babies are born annually.

Dr. McKellar strongly defended British rule in India. It has been no failure, as many say. Britain has protected India from her enemies; has built about 40,000 miles of railway and many miles of good roads; has checked famine by extensive irrigation, so that India grows enough wheat to feed her people; and has encouraged education, so that it is said, more students write on exams in the City of Calcutta alone, than in any other city in the world. However, only about 10 men out of every 100 and 13 women in a 1,000 are able to read and write. 250 Hospitals have been built, which treat about 30,000,000 people every year. Among many other things, Britain has passed laws saying no widows are to be burned, no baby girls thrown in the Ganges no lepers burned alive, and no girls married till they are 14 years of age. Dr. McKellar thinks Gandhi made a big mistake in his revolution, as he is really more of a religious man than a politician. However all of India is not following Ghandi. There are the 6,000,000 Christians, the 60,000,000 Mohammedans, the 23,000,000 low caste Hindus and the 62,000,000 who belong to the 600 states ruled by native rulers under British protection, and many others, who are not rebelling against Britain.

Our staff of 80 missionaries, of which 40 are W. M. S. workers, are working in Central India. Dr. McKellar having been stationed at Neemuch. They are responsible for about 2,500,000 souls. There are 10 doctors among them and they have five hospitals for women. About 30,000 is collected annually in fees. The church and hospital at Neemuch, have been built by the congregation there.

Dr. McKellar paid a tribute to Dr. Gunn, our former Moderator, who has so recently passed away, telling some incidents of his visit to Neemuch in 1927.

Mrs. Lewis moved a vote of thanks to all who had helped make this convention such a success.

A solo was sung by Mrs. H. Boyce, Deseronto, was much enjoyed.

The convention was closed by singing the Doxology, and by prayer.

Fascinating Links in Canada's History

In the Grey Room of the Dominion Archives is a small bust of Charles James Fox, a fine companion with the history of England from 1780-1806. Charles James Fox was the third son of Henry Fox and was the grandson of Charles II.

In the heat of the distinguished man at the Archives will be seen some of the early Parliamentary which first noted of him when he began public life. He was about 20 and his face is rotund. It is the model of a handsome man but as was said his "swarthy countenance had a 'saturnine' aspect but his smile was always pleasant."

The life of Fox is interesting to Canadians, chiefly because he opposed the Quebec Government Bill, objecting to the providing for the dispensation of the Canadian parliaments, the reserves for the clergy and the institution of an elective assembly to aid in the council. The reference he made to French politics in the course of debates in the House on this subject made a breach between him and Burke, the noted Irishman of the generation of that time.

Biographies have been written about Fox and they are all intensely interesting, revealing the life of a man whose mind was clear and judgment sane.

Burwash Airplane Has Great Record

The salvaged airplane in which Major L. T. Burwash, noted Canadian Arctic explorer flew to King William Island and the magnetic pole some time ago, has perhaps the most interesting history of any plane used in the Canadian Arctic.

In 192 "Punch" Dickens, one of the best known north country pilots, flew the new famous G-CASK Fokker monoplane over the Chesterfield Inlet country on the west coast of Hudson Bay. This was the first flight over this territory and was the means of "Punch" getting the McKee trophy, awarded annually to an outstanding Canadian pilot. In 1929 the same plane flown by W. L. Brintnell, of the Western Canada Airways, Limited, to the MacKenzie region. It was in this plane that O. S. Finnie of the North West Territories branch flew from Aklavik to Dawson City.

Later in the year the CASK plane formed one of the McAlpine flight, which was lost on the shores of Queen Maud Gulf for some weeks.

When McAlpine party was rescued the plane was left at Dease Point and eleven months later Pilot Buchanan and Engr. Gilbert, of the Western Canada Airways, Limited, flew from Coppermine to Dease Point, and Buchanan flew it out of Britain.

Pilot Buchanan was on his way to McMurray with the plane when the one used by Gilbert, in which Major Burwash was to make his fight, blew a cylinder. Wireless communication from Coppermine to McMurray brought news of the accident to Gilbert's plane and Buchanan was sent back to Coppermine. Here Gilbert took charge and flew the plane over 2800 miles to make answer. It was one of the most hazardous flights ever attempted in Canada's northland. The plane, after its eleventh month of exposure had not even received a complete overhaul before it was dispatched on the lengthy trip.

The CASK, as the fokker plane is called by the Arctic airmen, is now at McMurray being overhauled prior to being sent back to work in the northland.

COD LIVER OIL YIELD VALUABLE

Over 91,000 gallons of medicinal cod liver oil were produced in fisheries by-product operations in Canada last year. The Province of Quebec led in quantity of production with 62,194 gallons. Nova Scotia accounted for 26,620 gallons and New Brunswick for 18,216 gallons. All told the marketed value was slightly over $83,000. In addition to the medicinal oil there was also produced a total of nearly 170,000 gallons of cod liver oil for other uses.

Bennett's Plan Will Get Permanent Market For Canadian Wheat

Premier Bennett's plan to find a permanent market for Canadian wheat and other agricultural products in Britain, together with his statement of policy to promote Inter-Empire trade was made public through the Imperial Conference at London, just two months after he took office as Prime Minister of Canada.

The twenty-minute speech in which he made clear Canada's position and pleaded for mutually beneficial preferences as the only lasting foundation of Empire Trade developement has been proclaimed in Britain as one of the most important declarations ever made by an overseas statesman.

Mr. Bennett took the question of Empire preferences out of the realm of vague platitudes and placed it upon the ground of definite realities. In other words, the Canadian Premier substituted after-dinner speaking and made a concrete practical offer to Britain and the other Dominions. If they will buy our wheat we will give them better preferences for their goods. There was no beating about the bush in what Mr. Bennett had to say. He did not set himself up as a saviour of the Empire and made no pretense that he was not animated first by a desire to help Canada. The primary concern of Canada, he declared, was to find a profitable market for her wheat.

Canada Offers Preference to Britain

"This market we want, and for it we are willing to pay by giving, in the Canadian market, preferences for British goods.

"I offer to the Mother Country and to all other parts of the Empire a preference in the Canadian market in exchange for like preferences in theirs, based upon the addition of a ten per cent increase in the prevailing general tariffs, or upon tariffs yet to be created."

That is that. If the people of Britain are really anxious for a preference in Canada's market, if they really want to sell us more goods, if, in other words, they are concerned in a practical way with the matter of Imperial trade, their chance is now before them. Mr. Bennett is not interfering, nor trying to interfere, with their domestic fiscal policy. He has merely taken hold of something that everybody has been talking about, and professing to want, reduced it to an offer, to a plan.

The advantages of the proposition are obvious.

It avoids the clear impossibility of what is known as Empire Free Trade.

It gives British manufacturers an advantage in Canada's markets without endangering the position of our own manufacturers.

It provides for still higher, duties—in some instances much needed—against countries like the United States.

It in no way interferes with the policy of adequate protection for all Canadian industries.

It provides for the best of all permanent markets for Canadian wheat.

By providing this wheat market, profitable, it should reconcile the western farmer to a policy of protection for industry.

Whether the British people are prepared to accept Mr. Bennett's offer, remains to be seen. It may take some time to find out. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and Mr. Philip Snowden, traditional free traders, are in power for the old cry about taxing British food, but while Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Snowden are presently the Government of Britain, they are not the people of Britain. And a lot of water has run down the Thames since the days of Joseph Chamberlain.

Nor is it at all sure that Mr. Bennett's proposal would tax British food, or, to be more specific, dear British food dearer. Why should it make it dearer if the Empire has enough food to supply its own needs, supplies it at a reasonable price? The rest of the world is not anxious to sell wheat at less than a profit.

What Canada Offers Britain

The compensation which Mr. Bennett offers Britain in return for a preferential market for Canadian wheat is the regular employment of thousands of British workmen in industries which will be granted a concrete preference for their products in Canadian markets.

These industries would produce for Canada a large percentage of the $600,000,000 worth of manufactured goods which we now import annually from the United States.

The Canadian Prime Minister made it clear that he did not propose any trade agreements that would be harmful to established Canadian industries or to those yet to be created. Apart from such industries Canada will be compelled to import from three to four hundred million dollars worth of goods per year which can not be economically produced in Canada. It is in the supplying of such goods that Mr. Bennett is ready to extend material preferences to Britain against foreign competition provided that Britain is ready to establish a permanent and reasonable profitable market for Canadian agricultural products.

Mr. Bennett suggested that the various units of the Empire devote six months to a definite and detailed study of all the angles of his plan and then meet in conference in Ottawa early next year to proceed with the consideration of its adoption.

Thus far the reaction amongst the British public may be considered favourable. It will, however, take probably two months to accurately gauge sentiment and it may take a longer period and more persistent political pressure in Britain to bring about any definite acceptance of the scheme.

We have now the situation together with the rest of the world have with characteristic promptness been placed in possession of Mr. Bennett's policy for dealing with one matter of vital interest to Canada—the marketing of wheat.

If Britain is not disposed to embrace his general policy it may be expected that Canada's Premier will find other solutions of the problem.

He Knows—"My husband is merely a commercial traveller of course," assigned the woman with aspirations. "It is such a proxy occupation."

"On the contrary, madam, there is really much poetry in waste-paper baskets," replied the unexpected 2nd hand.—Pathfinder.

HEALTH ON THE RADIO

Canadian Social Hygiene Council To Broadcast Health Talks

Believing the radio provides valuable means of educating those who can't go to college or other lecture-courses, the Canadian Social Hygiene Council is going to provide a free radio course in social hygiene this winter.

Thirty lectures will be delivered over a coast-to-coast string of stations. Prevention of, means of protection against all diseases will be stressed, as well as other phases of social hygiene's problem of making Canadians healthy, wealthy and wise.

"The first talk, to be delivered early in October will be on Canada's Parasites", the next two on the work of welfare organizations. There will be a talk on germs, one on local infections and two each on diphtheria, tuberculosis, cancer, scarlet fever, smallpox and vaccination, care of the teeth, typhoid fever, mental hygiene. Lectures also will be given on sunlight, periodic health examination, feeding and care of infants, infant mortality, the common cold and pneumonia, juvenile delinquency and the problems of the adolescent age, and the causes and prevention of accidents.

Thousands of copies of these addresses are being prepared. Each radio "scholar" who wishes to follow the course given to talk, will be relieved of the burden of taking notes that bug-bear of student life—since the Council will mail free upon request, copies of each talk after the conclusion of each lecture.

T-R-C's TEMPLETON'S RHEUMATIC CURE

PREVENTION OF TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. John W. S. McCullough, M.D., D.P.H., in the "Chatelaine" magazine, says Tuberculosis can be prevented. He writes as follows:—

"The important preventive measures for children not infected are the avoidance of contact with cases of open tuberculosis, particularly with those in the same house, the use of good food, life in the open air, and all the aids essential to the well-being of the child.

Some of the facts which the doctor discloses about the disease are as follows:—

Probably nearly everyone has the infection at some time in his life.

Since 1907, when England instituted school medical inspection, the disease has markedly declined in that country.

Tuberculosis is a germ disease. It is the result of the entry into the body of a germ known as the tubercle bacillus.

Contrary to common belief, the disease is not hereditary.

Most victims of the disease become infected in childhood, though, the disease not being hereditary, the child is not born with it.

Milk is a common source of infection. Pasteurization overcomes this infection and makes the milk safe. Pasteurization should be universal and compulsory, the doctor claims.

Ten per cent. of cattle slaughtered in various countries are tuberculous, and ten to thirty per cent. of city milk examined contains the germs of the disease.

Public education is vitally needed in combating the disease.

Seniors and Juniors Win Over Trenton

Napanee Juniors 7, Trenton Juniors 6
N. C. I. 18, T. C. I. 12

Napanee won a double victory over Trenton Collegiate on Saturday afternoon, when Napanee Collegiate Institute Juniors, defeated Trenton Collegiate Juniors by the score of 7 to 6, while the seniors triumphed over Trenton 18-13. The senior victory avenged the loss sustained by Napanee in Trenton. The Junior game displayed some of the best Collegiate Institute's coming rugby stars and although outweighed, Napanee had a speedier and better balanced team.

Napanee Collegiate Institute displayed early season form in their game. They won the kick-off and from then on battled against the wind and an aerial attack from Trenton backfield. The Trenton kicks proved effective for the first quarter, which ended with the score 3-0 in favour of Trenton.

With the wind at their backs, Napanee carried the ball down the field for yards, on three occasions and Amey's kicking brought points. The score now stood 3-2 for Trenton. One on-side kick and two completed forward passes saved Trenton from a Napanee touch in this quarter. The Trenton team launched a brisk attack that brought the ball inside N. C. I.'s twenty yards line; Oliver fumbled in receiving the kick thta followed and the ball was pounced on by the Trenton ends. At half time the score stood N-T in Trenton's favour.

Napanee showed more than a match for Trenton in the third quarter. Battling against the wind and a one point margin, N. C. I.'s line held like a stone wall, while the backfield ball carriers ploughed through the Trenton line, which was weak, and on at least two occasions off-side. These ten-yard penalties proved costly for Trenton all through the game. Then, to crown everything, came Harry Moore's ninety yard run for a touchdown. In passing the ball to one of his halves on Napanee's twenty-yard line, the Trenton quarter got the pass away too slow and Moore rushed through like a hawk to snatch the old pig-skin and run through the westerners' backfield and down the open field for about ninety yards for a beautiful touch-down. Two of the Trenton men pursued him but it was useless. None of them had enough speed to cope with "Scobie", the winner of not a few sprints on the cinders.

Trenton got another major score in this quarter, and beginning the last quarter the score stood 13-12 in favour of Trenton.

Napanee was determined to hang up another touch in these last few minutes; Amey's kicks brought results and in less than four minutes the score was tied by a rouge for N. C. I. Trenton had possession on their own twenty-five yard line, and although they tried every play they knew to advance that ball, they failed, and to make matters worse a Trenton off-side brought Napanee to within ten yards of the Trenton line of touch. Davy ploughed through on Napanee's second down for the touch. This boy made plenty of trouble for Trenton all afternoon, and showed good field generalship at quarter. The game now stood 18-13 in favour of Napanee Collegiate Institute, and although Trenton fought hard for another counter, it did not come and the game ended with N. C. I. being the victors.

N. C. I. play their next game in Picton on Wednesday and then on Saturday they entertain Albert College here.

Napanee expects to finish the season by winning Home two games.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

The local rugby team's win over the Trenton squad Saturday put them in third place. Their chance to get in the play-offs depends largely on the games between the other schools.

* * *

The chances are mighty slim but you never can tell.

* * *

Excitement ran high in Saturday's fracas when Harry Moore, the Percy Williams of Napanee, grabbed one of Trenton's passes on his own one-yard line and tore down the field for the major score.

* * *

It was a nice run—the only one who could keep up with him was the referee.

* * *

If the local gridiron fans want to see a real game, they should betake themselves to the Limestone City on November 1st, when Western meets the Tricolor.

* * *

The Londoners work differently, particularly in the line, from any of the other intercollegiate squads, and it is a treat to see them play.

* * *

The game this week, between the two leaders of the series and the old friendly (?) rivals, viz. Varsity and Queen's, promises to provide all the thrills of bygone tussles.

* * *

Many of the fans will likely hit the highway Saturday to see the matter settled for another year.

* * *

At the Interfaculty Track meet at the University of Toronto, J. Alan Walters won the 3-mile run. This entitles him to a position on the track team and he will run for Varsity at the intercollegiate track meet, in Kingston, on Friday.

* * *

Since J. A. went to Varsity four years ago he has been one of the best Harriers and distance men the Blue and White has had.

CANADIAN GOLD PRODUCTION GROWS

North America is next to Africa, the chief gold-producing continent, usually contributing about one-quarter of the world's annual gold output. Within the past decade North American production has been rather more than held its own, but this showing has been due entirely to the fact that Canada's rising output has been sufficient to offset the decline in the United States and Mexico. Ten years ago the gold output of the United States was three times as great as that of the Dominion. Today the two countries are almost on a par in that regard.

W. A. Caton Builds Successful Television Machine

At the convention of radio manufacturers held in the Royal York Hotel all last week, the centre of interest was a new television machine. Everything that inventive genius could do was done to make it perfect, but when the time came for the experiments the interference from a nearby station prevented a perfect image. For four days the inventor worked at it in an endeavour to overcome the difficulty. And then at last he was successful. On Thursday night the machine worked. For an hour and a half thousands of people saw images broadcast from Washington projected on a screen silhouette.

Perhaps the happiest man in the crowd was the unassuming young inventor and builder of the machine, W. A. Caton, who was known as "Bill" when he lived in Napanee. Those of us who remember how Bill built the first radio receiving set in Napanee, out of material he had salvaged around the garages, are not at all surprised at the success he has made of his chosen field in the larger centres of population. Having built this machine and successfully demonstrated it before such a large and representative group of radio experts, puts him, at once, in the very forefront of inventors.

The experiment of Thursday night marks a great advance in the rapid progress of radio transmission.

Transmitted from station WZXK, the Jenkins Television Laboratory, at Washington, D.C., over a wave-length of from 150 to 180 metres, the program was composed entirely of moving and still pictures, also silhouette. The first image was that of a little girl bouncing a ball and Toronto laughed delightedly, and not without a little awe, at the antics of a child that were projected from a moving picture machine hundreds of miles away. The child and the ball are broadcast from every program as a guide to experimenters.

A motion picture of a ballroom scene with the dancers passing in single pairs and a still picture of the founder of the studio in half tone were some other features of the broadcast.

A POPULAR FEATURE

Canada has 13.7 telephones per 100 population. It is second in the world in telephone density. It is doubtful whether the habit of calling out-of-town friends is as prevalent anywhere as in Ontario and Quebec. Daily long distance calls total more than 70,000.

The October meeting of the Odessa Women's Institute was held in the Public Library with a good attendance. After the usual opening and business the roll call was answered by "Hot Supper Dishes"; some good recipes being given. The meeting was then taken charge of by Mrs. Shibley of Harrowsmith. Song sheets were passed and all joined in community singing. Most amusing and current events were given by Mrs. E. Babcock. Mrs. Shibley then asked Mrs. C. Stewart for an address. One thing that is very important is co-operation. Try and get every member to take part in the programme during the year, she said, and also look for the good things in life. Welcome new Canadians and look after home first before sending help to some distant place. After Mrs. Stewart's very helpful talk, all joined heartily in community singing again.

Mrs. C. A. Copp prepared and gave a very instructive paper on "Laws of Ontario." Among the many things she explained the "Mother's Allowance" and "Making and Changing of Wills." One third of the people who died in Prontenac last year had no will.

After community singing a social half hour was enjoyed, when Mrs. J. D. Snider, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. Joe Smith, Mrs. Albert Hartman and Miss Williams Clark served very dainty refreshments.

A vote of thanks was extended to the Harrowsmith ladies for so kindly coming over and providing such an excellent programme.

TELEPHONE ON TRAINS GROWS IN POPULARITY

Business and Social Calls Are On Increase—Fewer For Curiosity

The two-way commercial telephone service for travelling passenger trains introduced for the first time on April 28, 1930 on a Canadian National train running between Toronto and Montreal, is proving very successful. So far there has been no interruptions in the service in any way and it is being used daily for business and personal calls.

During the first six weeks of operation about 60 per cent. of the calls handled were curiosity calls, 30 per cent social and 20 per cent. business conversations. Business calls now constitute about 65 per cent. of the total, Curiosity calls have now been reduced to 10 per cent. and social calls have increased 25 per cent.

The train telephone system has been operating daily since it was inaugurated, on one train each way between Toronto and Montreal. The quality of transmission has been rated 95 per cent. perfect and on one call placed by a passenger to London, England, the perfect score of 100 per cent. was attained. Many calls from outside points to passengers on the trains originate as far away as Chicago. The number of calls handled varies greatly from day to day and lately there has been a steady increase both in calls to passengers on the trains and in those from the trains to outside points. On a number of occasions a train has handled as high as 21 calls on a single trip though the total was only 813 in the first five months of operation.

This marvel of telephony brought about after several years of experimentation makes use of the telegraph wires paralleling the railway over which impulses are carried to the train pick-up stations at Morrisburg and Cobourg. Ontario towns along the line, and thence to Kingston and connection with the system of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada. Calls can be placed for anywhere reached by telephone including the wireless links across the Atlantic as is indicated in the case with which London, England, can be called, an ordinary proceeding now on these trains.

Competition Results

"Royal" Judging in Lennox-Addington

The most successful Judging Competition ever held in Lennox and Addington was conducted at Napanee, on Tuesday, October 21st, when 46 young men from all parts of the County took part in the Annual County Judging competition.

The marks obtained by the young men were very creditable and the competition was keen in all classes. Classes of grains and poultry were judged during the forenoon in the Agricultural classrooms, while in the afternoon the young men visited the following farms in the vicinity and judged classes of livestock:—

Yorkshire Hogs—H. W. Pringle.
Dorset Sheep—Vernon Paul.
Holstein Cows—Howard Armstrong.
Shorthorn Cows and Heavy Horses—Fred H. Henderson.

Ward Baker, Moscow, won the medal donated by A. D. Runions on the chairman of the competition; and the shield, donated by the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, to the high point in the competition, was won by Ross McRae, Selby.

The following 10 young men won the Free Trip to the Royal Winter Fair, given by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto:—

1 Ross McRae, Selby.
2 Donald Paul, No. 4, Napanee.
3 W. Wood, No. 4, Odessa.
4 Fred Oliver, No. 6, Napanee.
5 Horace Clark, No. 4, Napanee.
6 Frankis Way, No. 1, Tamworth.
XXX Douglas Magee, Sillsville.
7 Alan Aylsworth, Napanee.
8 R. M. Daverne, Bath.
9 Gordon Campbell, No. 2, Napanee.
10 John Wood, No. 2, Napanee.

NOTE. XXX Contestant under 16 years, thus not eligible for trip this year.

The judging proceedings were brought to a delightful close when all the competitors were entertained at a banquet at the Campbell House, given by the Napanee Rotary Club. Mr. J. E. Whitelock, assistant director of the Agricultural Representative's branch, Toronto, was the speaker and gave the young men a very practical and instructive address.

The competition was conducted by A. D. Runions, Agricultural Representative for Lennox and Addington, who was assisted by F. J. Webster, Picton, W. G. Smith, Brighton, W. A. Sirrett, Kingston, J. Wilson, Stirling, H. W. Pearson, Belleville, and Arthur Rooks, Napanee.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells of Pleasant Home Treatment to Bring Swift Relief

So called Stomach Troubles — indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, sourness, etc., are, in probably nine cases out of ten, evidence of "too much acid in the stomach" souring the food, causing the formation of gas and starting acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes a full, oppressive burning feeling often called heart burn. While the acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining. Get rid of Gas and Acidity, and you get rid of indigestion.

To stop or prevent the gas and gas, to neutralize the stomach acids and keep the stomach sweet and free from indigestion, a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia should be taken in a little water after eating or whenever gas, sourness, pain or acidity is felt. This quickly neutralizes the stomach, neutralizes the acidity, stops the pain and is harmless and inexpensive.

Bisurated Magnesia, powder or tablets only, can be obtained from any drug store and its daily use keeps the stomach in fine condition, enabling it to do its work without the aid of artificial digestants.

NEW LOCOMOTIVE LOOKS DIFFERENT

Mikado Has Unique Features

Designed by Canadian National engineers and built at the railway's shops at Point St. Charles, the Mikado locomotive No. 3800, now on its way to Toronto to go into the steam service, has many new features, in its make-up. The elimination of the dome and the placing of the dry pipe, lagged and jacketed, on the outside, on top of the boiler, gives it an appearance different from any other locomotive in Canada and while it is unusual it is not unpleasing. The innovation was introduced to prevent water from being carried to the superheater units and the cylinders. There are three openings for the steam to flow from the boiler to the dry pipe. High pressure and limited cut-off will, it is expected, make for a low fuel consumption. The Mikado has 260 pounds pressure and a 65 per cent cut off as compared with the usual 85 or 90. The steam is cut off at only 65 per cent of the stroke of the piston and used expansively. Another new feature is the placing of the air pump on the front dock of the engine. It is operated by superheated steam.

The locomotive, which will begin its work soon, between Sarnia and Port Erie, weighs 304 and three quarter tons, has an overall length of 86 feet, four and three quarters inches, and a tractive power of 61,000 pounds. The cylinders are 24 by 30 inches and the diameter of the driving wheels is 63 inches. The barrel of the boiler is made of high tensile silicon steel and the main frames are of nickle steel, the tender, which is a Vanderbilt, Canadian National design, has a capacity of 20 tons of coal and 11,000 imperial gallons of water and has three-way filling holes for taking water. The bottom plate is an inch thick, reinforced inside with drawestaings and centre plates rivetted and welded outside.

In addition to the Mikado, 25 other locomotives are being built this year in the Canadian National shops. They are eight-wheel switchers. Eight are under construction at Winnipeg (four to have been released for service already), ten at Point St. Charles and three at Moncton. It is expected they will all be completed before the end of December.

Those Luscious Accents — Wife: "John, is it true that money talks?"

Husband: "That's what they say, my dear."

"Well, I wish you'd leave a little here to talk to me during the day. I get so lonely."

Canada's Tobacco Of High Quality Used for Cigars

It was only at the beginning of the present century that tobacco was grown in Canada on a commercial scale, although it has been grown several hundred years here, mostly by the Indians and the French colonists. However, over one hundred years ago records show that shipments of leaf tobacco were made to New Orleans from south western Ontario.

A great expansion in the production in Canada has taken place in the past thirty years. In 1900 there were 11,906 pounds. The estimates for 1930 indicate an area of over 40,000 acres and a production of close to 35,000,000 pounds. The greatest increase has taken place in Ontario which grew 30 per cent of the crop in 1900 and 75 per cent in 1930. Except for a small experimental area in British Columbia, the remainder of the commercial tobacco is grown in Quebec.

In Canada nearly some twelve million pounds of tobacco are produced mainly in Norfolk, Oxford, Elgin and Essex, in Ontario. Burley, a type grown chiefly in Kent and Kent counties, amounts to over 13,000,000 pounds a year.

The production of cigar binders is chiefly confined to the counties of Rouville, l'Assomption and Montcalm in the province of Quebec. The leaf is of the Havana Seed type and has largely replaced imported binders in the manufacture of cigars. The annual production amounts to some five million pounds.

Quebec Like Pipe Tobacco

In addition to these main types over three million pounds of Quebec pipe tobaccos are grown each year, mostly in the counties north and east of Montreal. They are utilized in the preparation of the "natural" pipe mixtures. Large quantities are also consumed in the raw leaf state and do not enter into the hands of the manufacturers. An attempt is now being made to grow Turkish leaf in Essex county, Ontario.

Contrary to the popular belief the Canadian grown product is of excellent quality. This is indicated by the fact that over twenty-five million pounds are used in the manufacture of cigars, cigarets and pipe mixtures. This represents nearly 60 per cent of the leaf utilized by Canadian manufacturers. This proportion is increasing annually. In addition exports of Canadian grown leaf to the United Kingdom have averaged over five million pounds for several years. Smaller quantities are exported to such countries as Belgium, Germany, Netherlands, Denmark, Switzerland, Spain, Malta and China.

The Tobacco division of the Dominion Experimental Farms conducts experimental and research work on the various phases of tobacco culture and curing at Ottawa and Harrow in Ontario, L'Assomption and Farnham in Quebec and Summerland in British Columbia. The object in view is the general improvement of the various types of the Canadian product. In addition, in co-operation with the commercial intelligence service of the Department of Trade and Commerce considerable attention has been directed to the development of overseas markets.

BATH WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

(Too Late for Last Issue)

The regular monthly meeting of Bath Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. G. Sherman with an attendance of fifteen, five of whom were new members.

The meeting opened in the usual way. The minutes were read and approved.

It was decided to pay $27.50 which the work at Elm Beech School has cost.

Moved, seconded and carried, that one dollar be sent toward Convention expenses, and that money be sent Mrs. Wright, towards a wedding present. A letter of appreciation was read from Mrs. G. Clement for flowers sent during her illness. A vote of thanks was extended to the ladies of the Library Board who donated cakes for the last dance.

Mrs. H. F. Collins was chosen to look after the purchasing and engraving of medals.

It was moved, seconded and carried that a masquerade dance be held November 7th. Prizes will be given and a good time will be in attendance.

On Wednesday afternoon, October 29th, a euchre drive will take place at the home of Mrs. Mellow.

Plans were made for the November meeting, which will be held in the evening in the Town Hall. Lantern slides will be shown, and Mr. Runions will give an interesting talk. Mrs. Wright, of Violet, will be present. Men and women are all invited; watch for further announcements.

Mrs. F. Ham gave an interesting paper on "Do's and Don'ts for Institute Workers." Mrs. Stevenson and Mrs. Sexsmith gave a duet. A vote of thanks was extended to all who helped in the programme.

After singing the National Anthem, refreshments were served lunch, and a pleasant social hour was spent.

NAPANEE BRANCH WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

(Too Late for Last Issue)

The October meeting of the Napanee Branch of the Women's Institute was held in the Agricultural rooms, on Tuesday afternoon, October 14th, with a very large attendance. After the business of the meeting was transacted, Mrs. Fellows gave a paper on "Increasing Membership," which was very pratical and instructive.

Mrs. Haggerty, 'superintendent of "Current Events", read a summary of the world's most interesting happenings, which is always much enjoyed.

Mrs. Fred Ham, guest speaker of the day, gave those present her very interesting talk: "More Leisure and Beauty in the Rural Woman's Life." Dividing the subject into three parts, leisure, character and beauty, the speaker explained it was not necessary to be beautiful of face or form; there were many attributes of character the individual might develop and thus acquire the desired goal. Good pictures and attractive surroundings were also suggested as a means of bringing beauty into the home.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Ham for her helpful talk.

Plants and bulbs were distributed among the members and refreshments brought to a close a very pleasant meeting.

FRANKLIN RELICS REPOSE AT OTTAWA

Relics of the Franklin expedition, which were supposed to have been left at the magnetic pole when Sir John Franklin made his expedition from England in 1845, were among the findings which were made by Major J. T. Burwash, in his recent visit to that place. He spoke for the first time since his home-coming at the luncheon tendered in his honor by the Women's Canadian Club at the Chateau Laurier. It was the first time a white man had ever been in summer at the magnetic pole and Major Burwash told in graphic language of the visit to Victory Point in search of the grave which was supposed to be that of Sir John Franklin.

Fascinating Links In Canada's History

A silver spade has been loaned the Dominion Archives in Ottawa which has an interesting history connected with it. The first sod on the North Shore Railway was turned with the spade at Quebec on July 18th, 1873, by Matilda Louisa Woolan, wife of Hon. Joseph Ed. Cauchon, president of the company.

It will be remembered that the Quebec Railway Act of 1874 finally authorized the building of the North Shore Railway which connected Quebec City and the St. Maurice River, and it was before the final authorization Act was passed that the first sod was turned. The spade is a beautiful sterling silver spade and is filigreed and inscribed with the above information. The handle is of walnut.

CALCIUM CHLORIDE ENTICES MOISTURE

Chemical engineering has at last developed a thoroughly practical method of enticing moisture from the atmosphere, an invention which will be a pleasure to those who were not gullible enough to believe in the professional rain maker. It is true that the method is not adequate for the farmer's needs, but it is efficient for settling the dust on dirt roads and will prove a boon to residents along the highways and to motorists.

Calcium chloride is the substance which coaxes moisture from the air, even on the hottest days in summer. It has the property which chemists call "deliquescence," which simply means it has a strong chemical affinity for water and will attract it from the surrounding air when the latter is comparatively "dry." The chemical has long been known but it is only recently that chemical engineering has made it available in an inexpensive and convenient form. It is said that two applications during the dry summer months will settle the dust as effectively as would a lighter shower every day.

STORAGE AND TRANSPORTATION DISEASES OF VEGETABLES

The costly shrinkage and deterioration in vegetables during the periods of storage and transportation in Canada is a matter of great concern to those who are closely associated with food handling. While it is impossible to estimate the losses occurring annually in the handling of vegetables, nevertheless, reports indicate that the problem is one of serious consideration, a fact which is fully appreciated by wholesalers, transportation companies and the general public. Observations and experiments conducted by the Federal Division of Botany have shown that plant diseases are responsible for a large share of these losses. Furthermore, by applying the facts derived from scientific investigation encouraging progress has been made towards eliminating the diseases responsible for this waste. Stored vegetables, from well cared-for fields, if properly handled during storage and transportaion, may be placed on the market without very great loss. Upon the grower, therefore, falls the responsibility of applying measures to prevent the development of the fungi and bacteria attacking his crops and causing such diseases as black rot of cabbage, celery blight, rhizoctonia rot of turnips, late blight rot of potatoes, and many others of importance. Such preventive measures are based upon our knowledge of the life history of the parasite involved.

In addition to the effect of parasitic diseases (caused by fungi and bacteria) there is a very important source of loss due to certain diseases of non-parasitic origin. They are of greater importance than may be seen by casual observation and the adoption of any efforts aimed to reduce losses from this source assures greater economy to those interested.

These diseases include black leaf speck of cabbage, redheart of lettuce and cabbage, blackheart and surface pitting of potato tubers. Such disorders commonly occur in storage and transportation throughout the Dominion and they are primarily the result of an insufficient supply of pure air combined with temperatures which prevent the utilization of the oxygen in the available air; for it is agreed by authorities that facilities which hinder the interchange of air are to be avoided. These two factors must be kept in mind when attempting to prevent the occurrence of diseases of this nature. Air channels are being provided in modern storage houses and railway cars by the installation of false floors and ventilating chutes. Under such conditions, and when the temperature is regulated to remain between 36 degrees and 40 degrees Farenhit, losses from disease are reduced to a minimum.

Gladys (to her fat boy friend): Pardon me, Tiny, but as you age, will you fade like a flower or bust like a balloon?

MANY REASONS

"It's all in the point of view," said old Mrs. Smith pleasantly. "To some people the telephone is for ordering potatoes—and for others it's handy for getting in touch with the bridge club. To me it's a very wonderful thing that brings me my children's voices every week from miles away. How I bless it!"

BULBS FOR WINTER FORCING IN THE HOME

The amount of trouble needed to grow bulbs in the house is well repaid by beautiful flowers in winter and early spring. They can be grown in clay pots with earth or in fancy bowls with prepared fibre or in water alone. When pots are used be sure to put a piece of broken crock over the hole and a layer of smaller pieces for drainage before putting in the earth. The soil should be of a sandy nature so that water will run through it freely.

Narcissus (daffodil), tulips and hyacinths can all be grown in pots. When planting, place the bulb so that the crown is above the soil. After planting, water well, drain and then place the pots in a cool, dark place to root. When the roots begin to show through the hole at the bottom and the top is beginning to grow, bring the pots to a cool room and keep in a shady spot for a day or two. When the flower buds are beginning to show the pots should be brought into a warmer room and placed near the window. The plants must never be allowed to dry out but must not stand in water.

Another method of growing bulbs is to use fancy bowls and prepared fibre. The fibre is bought from seedsmen. The bowls should be chosen so that the bottom is nearly as wide as the top. The fibre should be put into moistened but should not be too wet. Put a little in the bowl and place the bulbs on it, using as many as convenient. They should not touch each other nor the sides of the bowl. Do not press the fibre down too firmly, as the bulbs may be forced out of position if the roots cannot penetrate the fibre easily.

Some of the best bulbs for growing in soil or fibre are:— Hyacinths, (in various colours) Narcissus, Emperor, Mme. Plemp, Sir Watkin, Klondyke, Laurens Koster, Scaguil; Tulip, (early) Queen of Netherlands, Mon Tresor, Murillo; Tulip, (Darwin) Parncombe Sanders, Psyche, Clara Butt, Rev. W. Ewbank.

Some bulbs can be grown successfully in water alone. Hyacinths are grown in specially shaped glasses; Chinese Sacred Lilies and Paper White Narcissus in bowls. These are kept in place by small stones which are packed around the bulbs. A small piece of charcoal should be added, as it helps to keep the water sweet. All bulbs should be kept in a cool, dark place until they are well rooted and then brought to the light gradually.

2,500,000 OUT OF WORK IN STATES

Similar to the campaign, which commenced in Canada directly after the Federal election, to provide employment for those out of work, the United States is making a nation-wide drive with federal, state and municipal bodies. It is estimated that there are 2,500,000 persons out of work in the United States.

ONE GOOD RECIPE MAKES A COOK FAMOUS

Already plans are being formed by societies and by children for a party on Hallowe'en. On the night when the ghost stalks and mystery takes possession of the world, the hostess may arrange as impromptu a supper as she wishes. The food, too, may carry out the Hallowe'en spirit, and a splendid suggestion for this is fresh gingerbread, which is dear to the heart of children.

Gingerbread

This mixture may be put together earlier in the day, if that will facilitate serving it fresh and hot from the oven. It is necessary to treat it carefully if that is to be successful, however. Put it into the baking pan, cover with two or three sheets of wax paper large enough to be tied down securely over the top of the pan, and put your cutting board or baking sheet or some solid covering over that, and place in the refrigerator to chill thoroughly until time to bake it. Then take off the covers and proceed as usual.

2 Eggs, ¾ cup brown sugar, ¾ cup molasses, ¾ cup melted shortening, 2½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 2 teaspoons soda, 2 teaspoons ginger, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves, 1 cup boiling water.

IMPORTANT REVENUE IS DERIVED FROM PACIFIC FISHERIES

Since the rise of the salmon canning industry on the Pacific Coast the premier province in the fisheries of the Dominion has been British Columbia. In earlier times this position belonged to Nova Scotia.

In only two of the last 12 years has the product of the British Columbia fisheries fallen below a value of $30,000,000. Last year was somewhat better than the average, though falling $2,500,000 short of the value recorded in 1928. A preliminary report for 1929 on the fisheries of the Pacific Coast province of Canada states that the total value was $23,930,892.

This preliminary value for the product as marketed, whether sold fresh, canned, cured or otherwise, compares with $26,562,727 for the 1928 catch, and with $22,890,913 in 1927. The same report gives the annual value of the fisheries for each year back to 1918. During the twelve year period, British Columbia's fish catch has had an average annual value of approximately $22,745,000. The 1929 catch was therefore more than $1,000,000 above the average although less than $3,500,000 below the record of $27,367,109 in 1926.

The halibut fishery, the second in importance shows a catch of 30,392,100 pounds in 1929 with a marketed value of $4,317,235, an increase over the previous year of 110,100 pounds in quantity caught and $946,565 in the marketed value. The third of the chief commercial fisheries of British Columbia is the pilchard with a total value in 1929 of $2,199,834, a decrease from 1928 or $362,203. The pilchard is marketed mainly as oil and meal, the former worth $1,128,164 and the latter $656,867 in 1928. Canned pilchard amounted to 98,821 cases of 48 pounds each valued at $411,011.

A pretty Autumn wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. G. Winter, Selby, on Saturday, October 18, at high noon, when their elder daughter, Margaret, Grace, was united in marriage to William A. Frisken, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Frisken, Selby. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a charming dress of pink georgette, trimmed with lace and pearls. She carried a beautiful bouquet of sweetheart roses, lily of the valley and maiden hair fern. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. H. W. Foley, Miss Marion Winter, sister of the bride, played Lohengrin's Wedding March, and Mr. Ernest Sexsmith played during the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony and congratulations, a dainty buffet lunch was served to about thirty-five guests, after which Mr. and Mrs. Frisken left, amid showers of confetti and best wishes, for an extended motor trip to Toronto, Nigara Falls and Clare, Mich., and on their return will reside at the groom's home, at Selby.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace and to the plaster, a tourmaline ring. The bride travelled in a brown silk velvet dress and a muskrat coat with hat, shoes and purse to match. The younng couple were the recipients of many lovely gifts.

Anniversary Concert At St. Andrew's

Unusual Talent Displayed by Local Artists

On Monday evening, members of St. Andrew's Choir assisted by Mrs. J. R. Madden, gave a grand concert in the auditorium of St. Andrew's Church.

The opening number, an organ and piano duet, by Mrs. Madden and Miss Baughan, set the standard for the evening, which was maintained through all the numbers. It is not easy to get organ and piano numbers that are suitable for a concert of the kind held on Monday. But in this case, the effort was more than successful, and the artists rendered it in a most sympathetic and delightful manner.

Miss Mary Daly, who has recently returned from wide study on the European continent, delighted her audience with two groups. In the first, she sang some numbers in French and German which were calculated to show a diversity of range and character. Though not many of the audience were able to understand the words, Miss Daly was well able to interpret the mood and temper of the composer through her fine interpretation. In her second series she displayed her versatility and splendid range of voice.

Mrs. Valkman and Mr. Caldwell sang together in the next number. The mellow low notes of Mrs. Valkman blended beautifully with the high tenor of Mr. Caldwell, making a combination of rare charm and beauty.

Mrs. M. Ippiett sang her way into the hearts of the audience with "A Little Brown Owl" and "Snow Flakes." Mrs. Ippiett has always been a favorite in Napanee and Monday night was no exception.

Mr. Caldwell, Napanee, has a tenor voice of unusual sweetness and range, and his solo numbers were feelingly rendered, denoting perfect control.

During the interlude, an organ solo was rendered by Mrs. Madden who responded to an encore with a piano number in her usual accomplished manner.

Continuing with the second half of the programme the artists repeated the high standard shown in the first part. In addition to the vocal and instrumental numbers, a quartette, composed of Mrs. Valkman, Mrs. Ippiett, Mr. Caldwell and Mr. G. MacGregor, was rendered in a most finished manner. Many favorable comments were heard on the fine vocal base quality of Mr. MacGregor's voice. This was the final number on the programme and the splendid blending of the voices and excellent shading of the voices, brought to a close an exceptionally fine evening.

Much of the success of this musical event was due to the excellent work of Miss B. Baughan, as accompanist.

So many requests have been made for another concert of this standard, that it is the intention of St. Andrew's Musical Committee to give several similar ones during the winter months.

2,500,000 OUT OF WORK IN STATES

Similar to the campaign, which commenced in Canada directly after the Federal election, to provide employment for those out of work, the United States is making a nation-wide drive with federal, state and municipal bodies. It is estimated that there are 2,500,000 persons out of work in the United States.

Mrs. Wilson was born at Belleville, in 1850, her maiden name being Maude Seymour Conger, the eldest daughter of Peter de Mohle Conger and Janet Conger, of Belleville, and later of Toronto. She was married to the late W. G. Wilson, barrister, in 1886, at which time she came to live in Napanee.

Four days afterwards, a section of the mine roof fell and twenty-five tons of slate pinned Mr. Ridgetown In falling it fortunately formed an inverted "V", else he would have been crushed. Two hours and a half later a rescue party extricated him. As he was being carried to the surface, his first words were—

"My daughter's face and neck were covered with a mass of sores, which our doctor diagnosed as eczema. The prescribed treatment which we tried for two months without relief. The poor child's face had to be rewashed in healing, and she was confined to the house. I was about to call in a skin specialist, when I heard how Zam-Buk had healed many sufferers from this dread disease, so I purchased a box of ointment and tablet of soap. After a few days' treatment there was a great improvement; day by day the sores disappeared and within a month my daughter's face was entirely covered of any sign of the terrible disease, without a single scar. News and Information For the Farmer

Agricultural Education

That the Ridgetown Agricultural Vocational School has been successful in its attempt to strengthen relations between agriculture and education was the statement of Otiing Premier Henry at the recent opening of the new $85,000 wing. Ridgetown was host to a distinguished gathering for the occasion, including the Acting Premier, Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, Dr. G. I. Christie, president of O. A. C., Dr. J. W. Merchant, Chief Director of Education, and F. S. Rutherford. In his address, Hon. Mr. Kennedy stated that the development of such schools in the province depends on the success of the Ridgetown institution. It was his hope to see similar schools dotted over Ontario.

Plowing Match Winners

W. O. Gremsbach, R.R. 7, Woodstock, is the plowing champion of Ontario. He won that title on the last day of the international plowing match near Stratford, when he took away first honors in the pointers in sod, open. This is the second time he has won the title, having first captured it in 1927. In taking first place this year, he defeated a classy field, including John R. Hargreaves, of Beachville, who won the honor in the last two years. The interecounty championship this year was won by York, with Brant second. There were 14 entrants in this competition and the battel was keen from start to finish. The trophies were presented at a largely attended banquet in Stratford, the final night of the match, at which the chief speakers were the Hon. Robert Weir, federal minister of agriculture, and Hon. Thos. L. Kennedy, provincial minister of agriculture.

O. A. C. Team's Good Showing

Competing against dairy cattle judging teams from practically every agricultural college in the United States, students representing the O. A. C. ranked 11th in the international dairy show in St. Louis, Mo., Harold Goble of Woodstock attained the highest standing in Holstein judging and he won a $500 scholarship for his effort. This is the first time the prize ever came to O. A. C. Other members of the team were: Hilton Hartley and E. A. Binns, of Woodstock; and Gordon Eagle, of Elmwood.

Big Attendance at O. A. C.

Registrations at the Ontario Agricultural College this fall have mounted to a higher figure than during any year since 1919, when discharge from war service released many men to complete their college course. The biggest increase is in the freshman year with an enrollment of 150. The total increase in the agricultural courses is 73. This attendance is taxing the dormitory and dining room accommodation to the limit, especially since the new residence is still under construction.

Drought Hits Corn-Borer

The prolonged dry spell during the summer came to the aid of science in the battle against the European corn borer, with a resultant 25 per cent decrease in stock infestation in Ontario as a whole. This information is contained in the report of G. N. Stirrett, Dominion Entomologist, which will be presented at the annual convention of the Entomological Society of Ontario at Ottawa on November 6, 7 and 8. Essex and Kent Counties show 30 per cent infestation. On the other hand some counties in Eastern Ontario, particularly Prince Edward County, show an increase in infestation.

Fall Building Operations

Building operations on the farm during the late fall are confined principally to hog houses, poultry houses, implement sheds and other small buildings. Those that have concrete foundations or floors can be erected at any time if the concrete is laid before frost. Such buildings are inexpensive, especially if the owner is handy with tools. Lumber dealers have plans and can supply bills of materials and estimates of cost, so that the owner will know pretty accurately what his expenditure will be. Choosing a site for a hog house or a poultry house requires care. A high, well drained spot is best, while the buildings should extend east and west and face south. Convenience in caring for the hogs and poultry also should be considered.

Heavy Chestnut Crop

The chestnut crop in many districts has been exceptionally heavy this year and the market very poor. Many retail stores have found themselves with large quantities on hand and no buyers. In Norfolk County, one of the largest producers of chestnuts, the buying price ranged at 25 cents per pound and dropped as low as four cents per pound in some places. The city markets, which in other years have taken copious quantities of chestnuts, have not been buying heavily this year, although the demand has picked up in recent days.

$500 For Best Slogan

The World's Grain Show slogan contest is now in full swing. What is a slogan ? The dictionary tells us that it is a Gaelic word, the war cry or the gathering cry of the old Highland clans. In our day, however, it has come to mean a sort of motto. "Strike while the iron is hot" or "Small profit and quick returns" are both examples of present-day slogans. At any rate, the management of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference offers a prize of $500 cash for the best slogan suggestion. The slogan shall not be more than ten words in length. There is no entry fee for the contest and it is open to the world. Not more than three suggestions are to be submitted by any one person and these must be written or typed plainly on one side of the paper, containing the contestant's name and address, and must reach the office on or before January 31st, 1931. Address Slogan Contest, World Grain Exhibition and Conference, Imperial Bank Chambers, Regina, Canada.

Weekly Crop Report

According to the weekly report of agricultural representatives, drought is assuming serious proportions in many parts of the province. Not only has plowing been difficult, but in many sections wells are going dry. Feed grain is plentiful in most sections and owing to the low prices prevailing the bulk will be fed to live stock. As a result feeder cattle are at a premium. Mangels and turnips have in most parts of the province turned out satisfactorily for the former and a failure of the latter. Live stock generally seems to be shaping up well and farmers throughout the province have already commenced their winter feeding. Many Middlesex farmers are now in the west contemplating the purchase of feeding cattle. The report is of a favorable kind for the entire province, conditions apparently being the same all over.

WEDDING BELLS

SHEA — FITZPATRICK

An October wedding of interest to many took place Saturday morning at 6.00 o'clock, in Our Lady of the Rosary Church, Detroit, Mich., when Anna Maria, only daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Fitzpatrick was united in marriage to John Joseph Shea, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Shea, of Worcester, Mass.

Miss Fitzpatrick, who was given in marriage by her brother, James Fitzpatrick, was gowned in a long sleeved Patou model of aquamarine blue motre with crystal trimming, made on the princess lines and finished with tiers of tulle. A small tight-fitting velvet and crystal trimmed hat matched the gown. An ermine jacquette completed the ensemble. The bride's flowers were butterfly roses.

Miss Yvonne McGraw, cousin of the bride, was her attendant. She wore an orchid satin gown with tight fitting velvet hat to match and a black velvet jacquette. She carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses.

Thomas D. Shea assisted his brother as best man. The ushers included Jas. Manley, of Toronto, Canada; Martin F. Shea, John P. Lawlor and Thomas McGraw, of Detroit.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick chose for her daughter's wedding a black lace dress with black chiffon velvet wrap and a velvet hat trimmed with ermine. She wore a corsage of lilies-of-the-valley and Talisman roses.

Mrs. Shea was attired in orchid crepe with hat to match and wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

After the ceremony, breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother at 5415 Cass Avenue followed by a reception in the afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. Shea left for a motor trip through the Western States. Mrs. Shea's going-away costume was a brown chiffon velvet dress with small hat to match and a mink coat.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Shea, of Worcester, Mass., Mrs. James Fryer, of Providence, R. I., Dr. and Mrs. Charles P. Fitzpatrick, Edmonton, Alta; Mrs. M. Manley and James Manley, of Toronto, Canada; Mrs. James McGraw, of Napanee, Canada; Mr. Thomas Manley, Misses Kathleen and Lillian Manley, of Walkerville, Canada; and Mrs. G. A. Wallace, Corry, Pa.

CONWAY W. I.

On October the 16th the regular monthly meeting of the Conway Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. M. Mellow. Bath, with an attendance of twenty-seven. The meeting was opened by our President, Mrs. J. Young, and Mrs. R. Hill, secretary.

The roll call was responded to by conundrums. The minutes were read and approved and the rest of the business attended to.

The Bayview Institute members furnished the programme. Mrs. D. Compton favored us with an instrumental. Miss A. Fairfield read a paper on "The Life History of Lang-Horn," the founder of St. John's Church, Bath. Mrs. M. Wemp favoured us with a reading; Mrs. G. Amey, a solo; Mrs. S. Little, a reading and Miss M. Fairfield, also a reading. All joined in singing "Our Home and Country."

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the members of the Bayview Institute for the excellent programme.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and committee in charge, and a pleasant half-hour was spent over the tea-cup.

THE MODERN METHOD

The barrier of distance is a thing of the past. Now miles are no handicap, for the telephone is a welcoming voice-bearer. Over 70,000 times a day the people of Ontario and Quebec place out-of-town calls. It is a constantly growing habit. And an inexpensive one.

Why you should buy a Majestic RADIO

A NEW Majestic Electric Radio actually costs you less to own and operate than many sets being offered at special bargain prices. First, because while you may buy some radio sets for less, the depreciation, service, performance and trade-in value wipe out this mythical saving and more before a season has passed.

Most people now buy radios on time, so the purchase of a Majestic means but a few dollars more outlay at the time of purchase and a few more monthly payments. At the end of that time the value of the Majestic as a "trade-in" is definite and sure. There is always a demand for used Majestics, whereas the loss you will take on nameless "stencils" or "specials" or cheap radios built to a price makes your original purchase an expensive one.

Majestic is the largest manufacturer of complete radio receiving sets in the world. It is fathered in Canada by the Rogers-Majestic Corporation Limited — the largest radio manufacturers in the British Empire. Were it not for this tremendous output Majestic prices would be 10% to 25% higher, if the same quality were maintained. Due to this enormous production Majestic prices are as low as most radios of much cheaper construction. Thus, every Majestic is really a bargain—extraordinary value for your money.

The 1931 Majestic Models with Super-Screen Grid and Super-Colotura Dynamic Speaker are now on display at our store. Come in, see them, and find out about our liberal terms . . . today.

Agricultural and Industrial Progress In The Dominion

Charlottetown, P. E. I. — Two carloads of live poultry, containing 5,000 birds in all, have been forwarded to the Montreal market and it is expected that three or four more will leave the Island for the same destination this season.

Kentville, Nova Scotia. — With the value of this year's apple crop in the Annapolis Valley estimated at $1,600,000, growers and shippers are feeling more optimistic than last year when the crop was valued at $1,000,000. The present yield is said to be of excellent quality.

Saint John, New Brunswick—A good record has been completed by the Jersey herd of the Bishop of Saint John with Pixie's Pride having produced 8,648 pounds of milk and 367 pounds of butter fat in 305 days. This record is said by James Bremmer, Eastern Jersey Fieldman, to be the seventh highest in that class in the Maritimes.

Fredericton, New Brunswick — The monthly crop report of the soils and crop division, New Brunswick Department of Agriculture, points out that all farm crops are above the average, with the exception of potatoes, which will show a slight decrease. The favorable weather in September made it possible for all crops to be harvested in first class condition, the grain yield being unsurpassed in recent years.

Quebec, Quebec — The famous Chateau Frontenac in Quebec City is to have a new wing at a cost of $1,000,000 and work will begin on this at once. The annex is to be built between St. Louis and Mont Carmel Streets on the property which includes the old Militia Department office building facing St. Louis Street.

Montreal, Quebec.—In the belief that Canadian wood can be used with as much advantage as imported woods in the majority of products, the Forest Products Laboratories of Canada have reserved space at the National Products Exhibition to be held at the Stadium in Montreal, November 3rd to 8th. This exhibit will show wood products as varied as possible, and will include wood pulp products, furniture, wall panelling, house siding shingles, flooring, etc. Processes will also be demonstrated.

Montreal, Quebec. — Records of the Dominion Fruit Branch at Ottawa show that the apple business of Canada last year amounted to 3,000,915 barrels produced in Canadian orchards. In addition 158,420 barrels were imported and 1,727,147 barrels exported. Exports last year were 306,000 barrels ahead of 1921 and larger than any year since.

Montreal, Quebec.—One of the most attractive spectacles of the year in Montreal, the seventh National Fall Flower Show, will be held in the Windsor Hotel, from November 1st to 4th inclusive, under the auspices of the Montreal Gardeners and Florists Club, and under the distinguished patronage of Lord and Lady Willingdon. Committees are now engaged in working out the plans.

Ottawa.—Whilst fewer cattle of any breed have so far crossed the line this year than last, nevertheless a considerable number of Canadian Ayrshires still continue to be purchased by United States buyers, according to the Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association. In addition to the ten head purchased recently by M. K. Fisher, of Quakertown, Pa., from the Glen Campbell Farms at Dundas, Ont., and neighboring farms, Mr. Fisher also bought another dozen or so Ayrshires in the Brantford district.

Kingston, Ont. — Building work in Kingston is more active this year than last and the ratio of increase keeps up. The value of permits for the nine months of 1930 came to $797,765 as compared with $533,106 for the corresponding period of last year. September's figure this year was $93,122 and last year $20,355.

Toronto, Ont. — The modern, new double deck sheep pen under course of construction by the Union Stock Yards of Toronto, Limited, is fast nearing completion. It is being erected to meet the growing demand for greater accommodation for this class of livestock and it will be one of the finest buildings of its kind. No effort has been spared by the company in planning this structure to introduce every modern device that will make for speed and uninterrupted flow of trading. The building will have an estimated capacity of 15,000 animals.

Toronto — M. S. Moss, general manager of Amanda American Trade, Limited, announces plans for the doubling of the capacity of the Toronto plant, to incorporate facilities for a complete line of non-ferrous, seamless tubes which for a number of years past have been manufactured outside of Canada.

Winnipeg, Manitoba — A large quantity of Canadian wheat is on order for export to China during the coming winter, the market having been created largely through the meagreness of the rice crop as a result of the continuous fighting among the warring factions in China, said G. S. Moss, formerly Acting British Consul-General in the City of Canton, who is now on his way back to China following a holiday in England.

Regina, Saskatchewan — The Government estimate of the wheat crop of Western Canada is 362,000,000 bushels, whereas the total crop of all Canada last year was only 304,520,000 bushels.

Medicine Hat, Alberta — Three large mangels weighing respectively 18 lbs 5 ounces, 25 lbs. 1 ounce and 20 lbs. arrived from Vauxhall the other day for display in one of the local stores. They were grown on the farm of John M. McAllister at Vauxhall, one of the most successful mixed farmers of the region.

Edmonton, Alberta—Good work was done in Alberta this year in the keeping of soil free from weeds. It was reported at a meeting of the advisory weed board at the Parliament Buildings the other day. The activities of sixteen supervisors were reviewed under the direction of E. L. Gray, field crops commissioner. Recommendations from the board will go to the Department of Agriculture as to next year's work, for which some important undertakings will be suggested.

Great Openings In Canada Await British Industry

"Canada, always recognized as being and oftimes called "The Golden Prairie Land" has, after ten years of most striking development, at last won eminence as an industrial country."

In such a manner does The Commercial Register of Canada refer to the industrial growth of Canada during the last decade. In the continued expansion of the singular diversity of Canadian manufacturing enterprise it sells great openings for British business men who are prepared to deliver goods quickly. In pursuit of this requirement seven fundamental considerations are emphasized. One is that British manufacturers should take a larger part in the big exhibitions, particularly the world's greatest annual exhibition held at Toronto, a timely article concerning which exposition appears in this issue of Agricultural and Industrial Progress in Canada.

"The second essential is the investment of much more British capital in Canada. Opportunities lie on every side for the man who is prepared to put up a factory and employ Canadian labour, or merely to add funds to a firm already existing. A third point is that British observers in the Dominion are never tired of explaining is the need for branch factories and offices of British manufacturing houses.

"The secret of American success in Canadian industry, it is pointed out, was the early realization that the only way to participate in the Dominion's markets was to go there and build branch factories. "Manufacturers from the south are following this principle boldly; they have begun a movement of expansions across the border that is unremitting, never likely to experience a lull."

"The Dominion's southern neighbour sends her best business men there to open branch enterprises, and, by conceding work and wages to Canadians, assures success and profit for any capital she cares to invest.

Are You Using Up Your Nervous Energy?

Do you feel tired ? Are you troubled with headaches, a poor appetite, irritability and a lack of ambition ? If so, it is probable you have been using up too much nervous energy—you have been going full steam ahead without feeding the nerves.

Nerves that have become weakened and shattered through over-work or worry need nourishment — the nourishment gained through rich, red blood. Good blood feeds the nerves and gives them greater vigor and vitality.

No other medicine has been so successful in treating nervous disorders as have Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Their sole duty is to enrich and renew the blood. That is why they are the ideal nerve tonic. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PREPARATIONS FOR "MAN-LESS" WAR ARE MAKING HEADWAY

Modern warfare has become so mechanical that it is said that in the future counter implements of war may be controlled from a distance by the mere turning of a radio dial. Major Nagayama, a Japanese army officer has invented a means of directing by radio the movements of a tank able to travel at a speed of five miles per hour.

Already wireless control of airplanes has been successfully attained in England, according to reports. A master radio set took the place of the pilot, acting through tiny compressed air motors which worked the plane's controls.

Such a system of radio control as that of the tank or airplane does not imply the transmission of any appreciable quantity of power by radio. In the tank, for example, the radio impulses serve simply to trip a relay that sets in motion the tank's regular gasoline-driven machinery. Other relays, turned to proper wave lengths, operate the steering controls.

The amount of power required to operate these relays is as little as that which brings voices into your radio receiver. Just as your own set supplies the power to amplify the faint impulses so the relays in tank and airplane permit gasoline engines to supply the actual motive power. The transmission of real quantities of power without wires remains at present a dream.

Five North Poles Some Undiscovered Intrigue Explorers

It is not a generally known fact that there are five northern poles, and that all of them have not yet been discovered. In speaking of the North Pole is has been the consensus of opinion that there was only one. A Canadian flying expedition has just succeeded in charting with aerial cameras the North Magnetic Pole area, which was discovered by Captain James Clark Ross in 1831 and relocated by Captain Roald Amundsen, who made extensive observations from 1903 to 1906, just before finding the Northwest Passage.

There are five poles in the Arctic regions to stimulate the imagination of explorers. One is the North Pole, visited by Peary, by Byrd and by the Amundsen - Ellsworth - Nobile expedition. Another is the Magnetic Pole. The third is the Ice Pole, known as the Pole of Inaccessibility until Amudsen, Ellsworth and Nobile flew over it in the dirigible Norge in 1926. There are also a Wind Pole and the Pole of cold. The Wind Pole may possibly be in Greenland, where British and German expeditions are now conducting meteorological observations. The Pole of Cold is still to be located definitely.

Some of these poles are shifting in character, though they can be located fairly well upon maps. Of this type are the North Pole and the Magnetic North Pole. The former, at the tip of the axis on which our earth rotates, moves about in a circle with a radius of thirty to forty feet.

"The Magnetic Pole Shifts"

The Magnetic Pole which attracts the needle of the compass because it is at the axis of the great electric dynamo constituting the earth, moves over a considerable area, slowly but measurably over a period of years. The position generally given is near Lat. seventy degrees .N., Long. ninety-seven degrees W., on the Canadian mainland at a place called Boothia Felix or Boothia Peninsula. In summer this is a green grassy lowland; in winter it is no longer green but has the appearance of a cold Dakota prairie. Many ships have visited the region, some coming to grief on jagged rocks just below the surface of the Gulf of Boothia.

The Ice Pole, so named by Amundsen because the term "Pole of Inaccessibility" is no longer applied when he crossed it by dirigible, lies between the North Pole and the Alaskan shore, forming a rough triangle with that pole and the Magnetic Pole. It is at the centre of the great field of floating ice, covering 1,000,000 square miles, on which the North Pole lies.

Because the warmth of the Gulf Stream clears the ocean of ice to within 800 or 900 miles of the North Pole on the Norwegian side, the centre of the ice mass—and hence the location of the Ice Pole—is 400 miles away from the North Pole on the Alaskan side. When Amundsen passed over the Ice Pole he saw nothing below him but solid ice, so tightly packed that not even a rift of water appeared.

"The Ice Pole Untouched"

No man has ever set foot at the Ice Pole. The hardships of reaching it by dog sledge have been considered too great, and the Amudsen party reported that the condition of the ice was such as to prevent a landing by either dirigible or plane.

Yet, cold as this territory must be in the dead of winter, explorers do not believe that the temperature there, or at the North Pole itself, ever falls to the level of 82 degrees below zero once reached at the village of Gladstone, near Havre, Mont. To find the pole of cold, therefore, scientists must look elsewhere. In fact, they must have to look for two or more cold poles instead of one.

One pole of cold — that having the lowest winter temperature of which there is record—has been fixed tentatively on the mainland of Asia, near the Siberian village of Verkhoyansk, some 1,400 miles from the North Pole. The coldest winter temperature that can ever occur there is something between ninety and ninety-five degrees below zero, while the coldest possible at either the North Pole or the Ice Pole is believed to be about thirty degrees warmer.

"Or perhaps the Pole of Cold is in Greenland, which may be every bit as cold in winter as Verkhovansk. For the greatest winter cold is produced by three conditions working together — distance from the equator, distance from the ocean, and altitude. The Plateau of Central Greenland answers all of these conditions, whereas the North Pole and the Ice Pole meet only the first—distance from the equator. Perhaps the German and British meteorlogists now in Greenland may be able to learn definitely whether that ice-bound island contains both the Pole of Cold and the somewhat legendary Pole of Winds.

The British expedition is engaged in surveying the ice cap of Greenland, with a view to determining whether it would be possible to use the island as a way station for airships used on the proposed route between Britain and Canada, and the German expedition is also acquiring meteorological data relative to flying as well as to storm conditions in the transatlantic ship lanes.

By the Pole of Winds is meant that centre—if there is only one—where the chill winds of the Northern Hemisphere originate. Scientists refuse to credit the polar regions with as many icy blasts as the poets suggest. There is in Greenland, however, a peculiar situation which makes it possible for scientists to discuss whether there is a sort of wind pole there. The island is cold, particularly in the interior, and has a hump on its back near the centre. The air undoubtedly becomes very cold and thin, some experts say. It would, therefore have a tendency to settle down upon the dome of interior Greenland and flow downhill in every direction, as water does when poured on an inverted bowl. The result might be that there would usually be little wind near the centre of Greenland's dome and frequent winds blowing from the interior to the coasts. Such winds, of course, would contribute to the interacting system of winds throughout the Northern Hemisphere and hence would be highly important to meteorology.

NEW DEVICE TO WARN MOTORISTS

There are many drivers who ignore a red light overhead when driving but there is a new traffic device reported as recently put into effect in England which will overcome this. The invention consists of an illuminated strip crossing the road, made up of a number of lights beneath glass lenses bored flush with the pavement. Stop signals are given by illuminating the dotted lines and the driver must not cross the line. Psychologically it is harder to pass such a barrier than a stop light above the eye level.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:—May I request a little space in your valuable paper, to correct what I know was not intended to leave a wrong impression.

Unintentionally the writer has allowed his office to become what might be called unofficially, a bureau of unemployment. Those desiring work should call me up, and from a list of others looking for work, that I have, endeavour to fill the vacancy. Consequently, I am in a position to know, that contrary to an item in the Napanee notes of the Kingston Whig-Standard, dated October 16th, 1930, wherein it is stated that there is little unemployment in Napanee, that at the present time, on very short notice I will be able to supply names of mechanics, labourers, farmers and stenographers desiring employment. A number of the above have homes here and have had to place a mortgage on same, and others raise money on their Life Insurance, so as to be able to provide themselves and families with clothing and fuel for the winter. I know the correspondent is a busy man, and looking for work is too serious a matter to be made a joke of, or I would be tempted to give his name to those seeking employment, and I am sure he will not take very long to convince him of his error when he says there is little unemployment in Napanee.

Basketball Season Opens

SENIOR N. C. I. WIN FIRST GAME

Belleville Jrs. 27, Napanee Jrs. 15.

The basketball season was ushered in on Friday evening, October 24th, when Napanee journeyed to Belleville to play the opening game of the City of Quinte League.

The Napanee Girls played first and the Napanee Collegiate Institute found it difficult to break away from their opponents, but at the end of the first half, the score was 12-10 6 in favour of Belleville Collegiate Institute.

On resuming, in the second half, the Napanee girls, not to be outdone, showed some of their old vim and determination to win which resulted in Dorothy Wilson, Napanee's forward star, piling up the baskets in quick succession, and the game ended with a score of 32 to 21 in favour of Napanee Collegiate Institute.

Never before had there been such an exciting game in the history of N.C.I. teams. The Belleville gymnasium was crowded to capacity with Belleville and Napanee supporters, and the building fairly rang with cheers and yells as Napanee gained on their opponents and showed a few times their old stride again.

The Junior game, though not as exciting, was keenly contested and the young players showed that they are a coming team. The final score of the Junior game resulted in a win for Belleville by the score of 27 to 15.

During the game, dainty refreshments were served in the Domestic Science room, after which the girls enjoyed an hour of dancing.

Miss N. Merry and Miss V. McLaughlin refereed the games.

The following is the line-up of the teams:—

Belleville	Seniors	Napanee
M. Hudson	Forward	D. Wilson
L. Stafford	Forward	M. Denison
A. Gartley	Side Centre	F. Waddell
V. Guay	Jump Centre	D. Anderson

The second game in the Bay of Quinte League will be played in the N. C. I. Gymnasium on Wednesday evening, October 29th, when Trenton High School will play against Napanee Collegiate. This should prove a most interesting game.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

The local rugby team have now finished in undisputed second place, with Belleville sitting on top of the heap.

* * *

No one seems to know whether the first or second team will play off to whether B. C. I. will represent the local loop in the semi-finals.

* * *

However, whoever finishes first will meet Peterborough and should, according to all reports, take their measure.

* * *

The Girls' Senior Basketball team got away to a good start this season, by coming from behind to whip the Belleville ladies.

* * *

If this year's outfit want to equal or beat the record set last year, it will have to step. As far as one can see, the only difference there is no reason why last season's mark should not fall.

* * *

The many local supporters of the Tricolor were not a little disappointed at the outcome of last Saturday's battle.

* * *

And the few local supporters of the Blue and White, such as yours truly, had a real day, with plenty of cheering to keep them busy.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES IN ST. ANDREW'S

Two large congregations greeted Rev. J. R. Watts at St. Andrew's on Sunday. In the morning, Grace Church withdrew their services, in order to join with St. Andrew's and in the evening Trinity withdrew their service. The two visiting congregations turned out in large numbers so that the church was filled on each occasion. Dr. Watts, the speaker of the day, is a man of rare pulpit gifts, possessing the best conversational style of presentation. In the morning he preached from the text, "If ye have not the spirit of Christ ye are none of His," in which he pled for the incarnation of the Christ spirit in all the dailiness of life. In the evening he gave an exposition of the Book of Philemon. The music was exceptionally good. Besides the anthems, solos were rendered by Miss Mary Daly and Mrs. Peplett and Mrs. Valkman and Mrs. Caldwell sang a duet. Miss Beatrice Baughan presided at the organ in her usual efficient and capable manner.

WEDDING RECEPTION

A wedding reception was held on Saturday evening, October 25th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Walmsley, South Napanee, in honor of Mrs. Walmsley's son, John Hambly, who was married in Rochester, on Saturday October 18th. The bride was Miss Maude Garrison, of Rochester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garrison, who lived on the Palace Road, near Napanee.

About forty guests sat down to the wedding supper, which was served at 7.30 p.m. in the spacious dining room of the bridegroom's home. During the evening, Rev. J. E. Beckel took charge of the programme and many happy expressions of congratulation were expressed by relatives and neighbors present.

Mr. and Mrs. Hambly have been motoring home since their marriage and on their honeymoon and will leave this week for Rochester, where Mr. Hambly is an accountant in one of the large stores in that city.

ROTARY MISSION OF MERCY

On another page will be found an advertisement for the Rotary Frolic. The Rotary organization, which came into being only a few years ago, has made a world appeal to a large and influential group of men, who are banded together for fellowship and service. In every instance, where an organization exists, the members of it give time and money to alleviate suffering and to foster good health and well being. Especially do they take care of the under privileged and the handicapped. The statistics reported in The Beaver a few weeks ago, showing the number of children in the county who have been helped by the Rotary, were as dull as statistics always are. But behind every figure was a human element, which is incalculable. Children made able to walk, under privileged fed and helped, and parents made happy in the birth of normal broken and maimed limbs of their children. The Rotary Club of Napanee deserves the support of all people in the town and community, in their praiseworthy and laudible activities.

Six International Teams To Compete

Six international army officers' teams will compete at the Royal Winter Fair Horse Show, to be held in Toronto, November 19th to 27th. There will be teams from Hungary, the United States, the Irish Free State, Sweden, Germany and Canadian teams. This record number for such a competition in any horse show on this continent, has been secured by an exceptionally fortunate combination of events.

The teams, each consisting of four officers of their respective national armies, will compete for the much prized International Officers' Team Challenge Trophy. The foreign teams are coming to Canada through invitations that were extended by the Canadian Government to the Governments of the countries mentioned which were in each case most cordially accepted. Similar official invitations have also been extended to the European teams, as well as to a Canadian team, by the Government of the United States for their participation in the horseshows of New York and Boston.

The competitors from Europe and the United States are the very pick of daring military riders. They have, in each case, been selected on a competitive basis. All the officers will ride in the smart uniforms of their respective regiments adding still another bright feature to the colorful scene at the Royal Coliseum where the show is held.

International military jumping competitions will be part of the Royal Horse Show program each evening during the Royal Winter Fair. Special interest, for national and other reasons attaches to the visit of the team of the Irish Free State, which with a Canadian team, will form the quota of the British Empire. The Swedish and Hungarian teams have excellent records for horsemanship in their own countries, and especially at the Olympia, London, but are practically unknown on this side of the Atlantic. The German representation is already very widely known in the ridding world because of its popular reception at the Olympia last year and exhibits at Berlin and other places in the German Republic within the last two years. The American team, too, is of exceptionally high standing and no doubt will be as popular as ever at the Coliseum. In the case of the Canadian team there will be the additional zest of a "dark horse" or two.

The horse show is the evening attraction at the Royal Winter Fair, one of the largest agricultural shows held in the world.

Renew Shipments Of Canadian Cattle To Overseas Markets

Low prices for grains in Canada are already producing a stimulating effect upon livestock production and also upon marketing activities.

The Hawley-Smoot tariff passed at Washington this year effectively barred Canadian cattle from the United States market with the result that steps have been taken to reclaim the lost British market.

The first shipment in recent years of range cattle from Western Canada to the British market were forwarded from Montreal to Manchester, Eng., on the S.S. "Manchester Citizen," about October 31. This shipment was organized with representative ranchers and breeders in Western Canada for the purpose of determining the suitability of range cattle for the British market. In the ship-load of 380 head are approximately equal numbers of two-year-old, three-year-old and four-year-old beef cattle, and both fat and store cattle types are included. On arrival at the cattle at Manchester they will be put up for sale by auction. In the meantime cattle buyers in the British Isles are being advised concerning the shipment.

Special care is being taken to identify the cattle going forward in this shipment, and each animal bears a letter "C" branded on the left cheek before embarkation. A veterinary inspector travels with the cattle, and it is expected that some of the ranchers who supply the cattle accompany the shipment, in order to afford them an opportunity of becoming thoroughly acquainted with transportation methods, and the requirements and operations of one of the leading British cattle markets.

The organization of this test shipment has already induced definite inquiries from some of the larger stockmen of Western Canada who may follow this shipment with substantial shipments on their own responsibility before the close of the shipping season.

This is the first occasion on which a composite shipment of Western range cattle has been shipped direct to the British market, and it is expected to determine the suitability of the various breed types and age groups for the British fat cattle and store cattle market.

Guard The Children From Autumn Colds

The Fall is the most severe season of the year for colds—one day is warm, the next mild and wet, and unless the mother is on her guard, the little ones are seized with colds that may hang on all winter. Baby's Own Tablets are mothers best friend in preventing or banishing colds. They act as a gentle laxative, keeping the bowels and stomach free and sweet. An occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets will prevent colds, or if it does come on suddenly their prompt use will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHAT HAVE WE DONE TO - DAY?

We shall do so much in the year to come,
But what have we done to-day?
We shall give our gold in a princely sum,
But what did we give to-day?
We shall lift the heart and dry the eye,
We shall speak the word of love and cheer,
But what have we done to-day?
We shall be so kind in the after awhile,
But what have we been to-day?
We shall bring to each lonely life a smile,
But what have we brought to-day?
We shall give to truth a grander birth,
And to a steadfast faith a deeper worth,
We shall feed the hungry souls of earth,
But whom have we fed to-day?
We shall reap such joys in the by-and-by,
But what have we sown to-day?
We shall build up mansions in the sky,
But what have we built to-day?
'Tis sweet in idle dreams to bask!
But here and now we do our task!
Yes, this is the thing our souls must ask,
But what have we done to-day?

Expect St. Lawrence Canal Project To Be Started Within Year

Reports are circulating in the capital that early next spring definite steps will be taken to make a reality of the St. Lawrence Deep Waterway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic.

President Hoover is pressing through the United States Administration to Canada for a resumption of negotiations, which he hopes, will lead to actual work on the undertaking. President Hoover has said the subject will receive his attention as soon as he returns from England. His primary task will be to reach an agreement with the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario as to the respective rights of these provinces and the Dominion in the development.

Several times in the past two years Premier King appeared to have reached the basis of such agreement, but each time last minute difficulties arose. The progress he did make, however, will enable Mr. Bennett to take up where he left off and it may be expected that the new Premier will have the sympathetic co-operation of the Ontario ministry.

The single question at issue in the development of the waterway is the international section. The completion of the Welland Canal by Canada ensures that phase of the project while the work now under way by the Beauharnois Power Corporation will complete the navigation channel in Quebec, save for the short stretch around the Lachine Rapids at Montreal. In connection with its power development the Beauharnois Company will complete and turn over to the government a navigation canal 600 feet wide and 27 feet deep over a length of some 14 miles. This canal will cost over $16,000,000 and is the company's contribution to the waterway project. The Government will install the two locks necessary to its use. The canal will be available in 1932, which will be some years before the international section can possibly be completed.

Expectation here that Mr. Bennett will strive for the early commencement of work on the international section is given support by the declaration of Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, that he hoped to see completion of the project during his term as minister.

CAMDEN EAST W. I.

(Too Late For Last Issue.)

The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Friday, October 3rd, at the home of Mrs. Alva E. Easterly, Bicknell's Corners. The meeting was opened in the usual way, by the President, Mrs. A. Robinson. The roll call was answered with "Household Hints." The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

A paper on "Home Economics" was given by Mrs. Ed. Hamilton, "Current Events," by Mrs. George Black.

Our District President, Mrs. N. Parks gave a splendid talk. All the members enjoyed the vegetable contest, the prize, a salad bowl, being awarded to Mrs. Ed. Hamilton.

Mrs. Ed. Hamilton was appointed delegate to the convention held in Kingston on October 23rd and 24th.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and committee and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Our next meeting will be a Hallowe'en masquerade party at the home of Mrs. Hilton Robinson, Friday, November 7th. Prizes will be given for the best lady's fancy and gent's fancy costume; best lady's comic and gent's comic; best boy's fancy and girl's fancy costume; best boy's comic and girl's comic costumes. There will be the usual Hallowe'en games and Politics. We hope to have a good crowd. Admission 15c and children 10c.

Our delegate to the convention, Mrs. Ed. Hamilton, was fortunate in the shawl contest, in securing the special prize, donated by Ms. Putnam, for a Canadian made shawl, which she wore, owned by Mrs. Frank Hamilton, of Kingston, who composed these verses as its history.

MY SHAWL

Full many times you're thrilled me,
With shaw's of beauteous sheen,
Whose fragrance gives a mystery,
Of ancient days, I ween;
But I, to you would now disclose
A shawl more wondrous still,
A shawl that shows in every line,
Real beauty, art and skill.
Well paid fingers wore each thread
Where child slaves are unknown,
'Tis product of Canadian soil
To deck Canada's own;
History—yes, of loyal hearts,
Of earnest, willing hands,
A very mine of Ancient lore
Come whispering from its bands.
Of pioneers with hearts of gold,
Who built the base of home,
Of lads who gave their own fair lives
To shield its star flecked dome;
So let us to work for our land
And buy our goods at home.

The October meeting was largely attended and the roll call, "uses of sour milk," brought out various uses.

Committees were formed and final arrangements were made for our November banquet to our husbands, and the members were reminded to have an answer to the roll-call, "My husband's best trait." The refreshment committee is Mrs. Herbert Ladley, Mrs. J. B. Sharp and Mrs. Winnie Thompson, and the entertainment committee, Mrs. Gordon Wagar, Mrs. William Chaplin and Mrs. Fred Hamm.

Mrs. Claude Thompson gave an excellent paper on "Hydro on the Farm" showing the many advantages and the many labour saving devices for both the house and barn. The "Current Events," by Mrs. William Kellar was a pleasing feature.

Mrs. Macmorine's address, "Poultry Facts" had many new ideas for us all, as she such an expert poultry woman. The subject was taken up most thoroughly from every angle. T. B., protein poisoning and conciliencies and the feeding and care of the hen from an egg to the market, were dealt with in a most capable manner.

The euchre party, held at Mrs. Gordon Young's was a decided success. Seven tables were in play and a Canadian pudding proved made a most enjoyable afternoon and added considerably to our funds.

The next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Hamm, October 30th.

SILVER FOX LEADS FUR FARMING INDUSTRY

The latest available figures show that fur farming is now definitely established in Canada as an industry. Today the capital value of fur farms is $22,980,617 of which $16,401,453 is invested in fur-bearing animals.

Although Prince Edward Island leads in the industry, Ontario and Quebec are not far behind. The value of fur bearing animals in Prince Edward Island is placed at $3,676,230; in Ontario, at $3,247,236; and in Quebec, at $3,236,456.

It is only ten years since the value of fur bearing animals in Canada was placed at $4,723,805, and the industry today is four times as great as it was in 1920. The silver fox heads the investment list with a capital investment of $14,922,276, an increase of $10,600,000 over 1920. The muskrat is the second most important fur bearing animal and it has an investment value of $538,826. This is an increase of 50 per cent over the preceding year. The otter, coyote, silver fox and beaver are generally new comers in the fur industry.

The City Of Bombay

CITY OF PARADOX

By Otto Rothfeld. (I.C.S., Retired)

There was a good indignation in Bombay when Lord Morley wrote to a visiting Governor of the city's "sordid splendor." If any reflection made he does not know what other epithet would be better.

Of course, even from a ship in the harbour, with a soft sepia haze hanging over the town, it appears undeniably beautiful. There are towers and cupolas, there are the contours of the land, the green of many trees, and the blue mountains beyond them; like the arid Deccan plateau with its sharp air. The great docks are filled with the masts and funnels of ships from all over the world; there are a couple of cruisers at anchor in the roadstead; and one watches a dozen fishing-boats make slowly out to sea, their sails flapping in the slight breeze and the long sweeps out to pull them past the moored vessels. Also is the other side of the island, with the broken curves of Back Bay and the crowded roundness of Malabar Hill, and then is Government House withdrawn in the luxuriant frontage of its long, cool garden. Very enjoyable are the Sunday drives with the scarlet of the Governor's bodyguard, lances in hand, along the broad stairs without a movement and the music of the recti-trained band, and the gay and uniformed crowd. Even better is it to swim there in the private cove in those still warm waters below the trees and tropic flowers.

These, however, are favoured aspects of the city's life; these and the pleasant hours at club, where Indians and English meet on terms more intimate and friendly than anywhere else, perhaps in India. But behind are other actualities. To begin with, there is not a single intelligent distraction in the place. Then most of the public buildings are architectural atrocities. One old building—the Town Hall—and there now come, due to the talent of the late Mr. Wittet, are really all which are satisfying. Of Indian buildings there is perhaps not one in the whole city which is worth a second look, a great contrast, in the not very distant towns of Surat, Broach, and Ahmedabad.

A Floating Population

The fact is, out of the million and a half inhabitants of Bombay there are not many who really want to stay there or who look on it in the full sense as home. Even now it is to a surprising extent a floating population. People come there to work. Mostly they are males of working age; women are in a scandalous minority; families are not encouraged. Moreover the economics of the place are wrong. There are a certain number of palatial residences, perfect in every way except for the snakes, the want of drainage, malaria, typhoid, and bad brickwork. There

Lennox Sunday School Convention

The annual Convention of the O. E. S. C. was held in Wilton United Church Church on Tuesday, October 28th. The morning session was opened by the pastor, Rev. George McQuade. Hymn, "O Master, let me walk with Thee," was sung, followed by reading a portion of the third chapter of Proverbs.

Rev. McQuade welcomed the delegates very warmly to the Wilton Church on behalf of their Sunday School. After the appointment of the Resolution and Nominating Committees, the President, Mr. E. Purcell gave a brief address. The Misses Asselstine and Babcock sang very sweetly, "Dear to the Heart of the Shepherd."

The department reports were very interesting, although there were three superintendents who did not report. It was very strongly urged that our reports must be up-to-date and reach the conventions on time. Mrs. MacGregor, superintendent of the Children's Division submitted the following:—16 cradle rolls in 26 schools; six schools have regular promotions. Several of the schools have separate or suitable rooms for the primary classes. Rev. MacKenzie gave an impromptu report of the Summer Camp for Girls at Varty Lake. This was mainly a recreation camp, yet, Bible study was given a prominent place. Mr. Mills reported from two townships, 24 adult classes with a membership of 671 members. Richmond reported six adult supporting Home Departments. Mr. J. C. Hudgins reported thirty schools giving Temperance Instruction. 17 of these having pledge signing. Rev. J. E. Beckel brought the Teachers' Training report, which told of schools for teachers' training course to be held in North Fredericksburg, Forest Mills and Enterprise. The Missionary report, from Mrs. James Wilson, was very encouraging, as from four townships there has been given $1,047 from the Sunday Schools, as well as $34.50 to other charitable purposes. Twenty-four schools have regular missionary instruction.

We were very fortunate to have with us at the convention, Mrs. B. I. England, from Kingston, who led us through the discussion period in a manner which was most animated and interesting. There were many problems presented, but when condensed, centred around three main questions, "How to get pupils interested in Bible study", "How to conduct the worship period"; and "How to keep up attendance in Sunday School during the summer."

The discussion period grew so lengthy through interest that Mrs. England was forced, owing to lack of time, to omit her address which the convention regretted very much.

The Resolution Committee presented the following, which were carried unanimously: A vote of thanks to the ladies of Wilton and to the Church Board, for their bountiful lunch and hospitality. Special mention was made of the quartette. Acceptance of the invitation from Centre Lennox to hold the next O. R. E. C. there October 27. That all superintendents of Sunday Schools be delegates to the convention without appointment. That copies of Convention programmes be sent to each pastor and department superintendent in the county. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each township secretary, who in turn shall send them to the superintendents of the Sunday Schools.

The secretary of the Nominating Committee brought in the slate of officers, which was read and Mrs. England installed the new officers in a most impressive service. "Breathe on me Breath of God," and "Lord speak to me that I may speak" were sung as prayers, and Rev. MacKenzie closed the very helpful convention with prayer.

The following officers were elected:
President—Rev. J. E. Beckel.
1st Vice-President—Mr. W. H. Mills.
2nd Vice-President—Mr. A. C. Baldwin.
Secretary-Treasurer — Mrs. Laura Parks.

List Of Winners

Lennox-Addington Plowing Match

The Annual Lennox and Addington Plowing Match was held on Saturday, November 1st, on the farm of W. H. Hunter, Napanee. The weather was ideal and over 500 spectators were present, although the list of competitors was somewhat smaller than that of former years. The directors claim that the decrease in the number of competitors was caused by the very hard condition of the soil, due to the continued period of drought.

Mr. J. J. Tierney, Ontario Hospital Farm, Brockville, officiated as Judge and spoke very highly of the work done by the competitors.

At the conclusion of the match, the competitors were the guests of Mr. W. H. Hunter, President of the Association, at a banquet held in the Palace House.

NAPANEE WINS BOTH GAMES

A large crowd of interested spectators viewed the Trenton-Napanee Girls' games on Wednesday evening, October 29th, in the N. C. I. gymnasium.

At the beginning of the first half of the Senior game, the Napanee Collegiate Institute team seemed to have difficulty in scoring but once a basket was made by them the score mounted quickly in their favour. All through the game the Napanee girls led by a good margin. The team as a whole played splendidly and the shooting of Dorothy Wilson and Fannie Waddell was noteworthy. The final score was 47 to 21 in Napanee's favour.

In the Junior game, Napanee's team started on its march to victory and defeated Trenton by a score of 34 to 16. C. I. Juniors displayed very good form and Letitia McCullough, who scored 20 of the 34 points, deserves special mention.

Following the games, refreshments were served to the teams after which two hours of dancing was enjoyed.

Miss Viola Culp, of Queen's University, was referee.

SUCCESSFUL SCHOOL CONCERT

A very successful Hallowe'en Concert was held at the Fourth Line school house on Thursday evening, October 30th. There was a good attendance of parents and friends who took great interest in the different events of the programme. The school was prettily decorated in Hollowe-en colors.

Mr. Elgin Parrott acter as chairman and very ably filled the position. The first item on the programme was a parade around the school to pick out the best costume. This took a little time, as ballots were passed out to the audience, who acted as judges. The prize was awarded to Mr. J. F. Creighton. The school then gave a chorus, "Octopus Party," after which solos, recitations and dialogues followed.

At the close of the programme, lunch was being prepared, fortune telling was indulged in by a couple of young girls, who did everything they could to delight the audience. Lunch was then served, consisting of sandwiches, pumpkin pie, coffee and apples.

A vote of thanks was moved to Miss Emberley for the success of the evening's programme and for the training of the children, whom all acted their parts very well.

Miss Emberley replied in a few well chosen words of appreciation for the help she had received in making the concert such an enjoyable affair.

The evening closed by singing the National Anthem.

The best powder yet discovered for killing lice on cattle or horses is "Zenoleum." Send (finely ground). Just one neighbor telling another about it has made a tremendous demand for "Zenoleum." A fresh supply just arrived at Wallace's, price 70c a lb.

OBITUARY

MR. ANDREW DAVID FRETTS

One of the best known residents of the Township of South Fredericksburg, and for the past two months a resident of Napanee, passed away at his residence on John Street on Thursday evening, in the person of Andrew D. Fretts. The deceased, who was in his 71st year, had been in poor health for some time, and it was thought that after leaving his arduous duties of the farm, a change would do him good, hence the removal to Napanee. The deceased was of U. E. Loyalist descent, being a native of Switzerville; one of a family of six, his parents being Mr. and Mrs. James Fretts. When seven years of age his parents moved to the Hamburg District, (now called Hawley) and there he resided for sixty-three years. There was no one who was better known and there was no one who was more highly respected. He always took a deep interest in the affairs of the church and was a regular adherent, until ill-health kept him at home. He was twice married; his first wife being Addie Hambly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hambly, of the Township of North Fredericksburg. Twenty-one years ago he was again united in marriage to Phoebe Farley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Farley, of Newburgh. Two brothers and two sisters have passed on, and he leaves to mourn his loss, his widow, one son, Ross Hambly, and one sister, Mrs. Annie Lampkin, of Brantford.

The funeral service, which was largely attended, was held at the Hawley Church, on Sunday afternoon, October 12th, and was conducted by Rev. Harry Pawson, of Trinity United Church, Napanee.

The pall-bearers were six nephews of the deceased: George Fretts, Clinton Fretts, Fraser Lampkin, George Creighton, Harold Dupree, Elgin Unger.

Frolic In The Armouries

NAPANEE ROTARY MAKE MERRY

Never before was there such a crowd in the Armouries on Hallowe'en as filled the building last Friday. It seemed as though the whole county had come in, attracted by the widespread interest in the frolic. It was a jolly, good natured and generous group, for after hour they paid their money over freely to the willing workers who one and all, were seeking to augment the Sick and Crippled Children's Fund. The evening was an unqualified success. The amount of money realized was in the neighborhood of $2,500.00, all of which will be spent on the crippled children in the county. Those who were lucky in the drawing at the close of the frolic were Mr. Tomlins, who is in the bond office of R. A. Daly, Toronto, who showed a very fine spirit in not claiming the wrist watch. The first ticket drawn was for the car, this ticket being Mr. Tomlins'. The next drawing was for the watch, and by a strange co-incidence the first ticket drawn was that of Mr. Tomlins. However he proved himself a real sport, by waiving any claim, and requested the committee to draw another ticket, and Albert Chalmers' name appeared on the ticket, and he was awarded the watch:

Ford Tudor Sedan — Mr. A. F. Tomlins, Toronto.

Gruen Watch — Mr. Albert Chalmers, Dorland.

Ton of Coal — Mr. James Stalker, Napanee.

Coxwell Chair — Mr. Carscallen, Tamworth.

Fleury Plow — Mr. Shane, Newburgh.

Mr. Charles Jackson, President of the Kingston Rotary Club, made the draw.

Children's Parade

In connection with the parade by the children, prizes were awarded to the following, the judging of the costumes being made at the entrance to the armouries.

Girls under 7 years of age — Rose Storey, Jean Lucas.

Boys under 7 years of age — Harold Zender, Junior Holmes.

Girls from 7 to 11 years — June Loucks, Eileen Seymour.

Boys from 7 to 11 years — Bob Clarke, Jim McGraw.

Girls over 11 years of age — Irene Storey, Mabel VanKoughnet.

Boys over 11 years of age — P. J. LaPointe, Eddie Young.

There were nearly 150 children in costume, and on entering the armouries each one was given candies.

ANNIVERSARY AT GRACE CHURCH

Grace United Church held their annual anniversary service on Sunday, which was followed by the supper and concert on Monday. The week end was an inspiration to all who, in any way, was priviledged to come into contact with the activities. The Sunday services were provided for by Dr. E. Hincks, of Toronto, the special preacher, and Mr. Dafoe, the soloist of Bloor Street Church of Toronto, as special singer. Dr. Hincks, who has been a powerful and popular preacher in Toronto for many years, has lost none of his old time fire and erudition. He preached two interesting and attractive messages. Mr. Dafoe, as before in his visits to Napanee, sang with great acceptance. The solos, which showed careful and persistent training, sang in the morning, "Thine Forever,", by Cooper, the solo parts being taken by Mr. Wiseman and Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dennison. In the evening, the anthem was "His Works of Love," by Sinuper. In this the solo parts were taken by Mr. Bert Seymour and Mrs. Dennison.

The supper, on Monday evening, necessitated three tables and was a decided success in every way. After the supper the concert was of a high order and was enjoyed by a crowded house. Miss Daly, accompanied by Mrs. Madden, Mr. Dafoe, Mr. Wiseman, Mr. A. R. Gray and Mrs. Hack, were the musical artists, while Mrs. Powell gave several interesting readings.

WEDDING BELLS

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Presbyterian Church, Deseronto, on high noon, on October the twenty-fifth, when Agnes McPherson, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Tulloch, Selby, became the bride of Albert E. Dunker, son of A. E. and the late Mrs. Dunker, of Kitchener. The officiating minister was Rev. A. G. Cameron, of Deseronto.

The bride looked charming in a gown of royal blue silk velvet, trimmed with lace, with hat and shoes of the same shade, and wore a shoulder bouquet of pale pink Sweetheart roses and maiden hair fern. She was attended by Miss Muriel Mellor, of Toronto, who was becomingly gowned in brown silk crepe, trimmed with lace, and wore a corsage bouquet of butterfly roses in shades to match her gown. Mr. Andrew J. Tulloch, brother of the bride, of Syracuse, N.Y., acted as best man.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, "Sunnyside Farm," Selby, Ont., attended by immediate relatives and a few friends.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Dunker left, amid showers of rice and confetti, by motor for a trip to Ottawa and other points east, the bride travelling in a brown crepe Elizabeth frock, with felt hat, shoes and bag to match, and a coat of black seal, trimmed with lynx.

On their return they will reside at Kitchener.

PRODUCTION INCREASES

"Statistics of dairy production at the present time indicate that there is an appreciable increase in milk and cream production all over Canada at the present time," observes Dr. J. A. Ruddick, Dairy Commissioner of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. With respect to butter production Ontario and Alberta show a 15 per cent increase for the first six months of the year of production year. Cheese production, of which 97 per cent is centred in Ontario and Quebec, was 30,000 boxes in excess of the first half last year as at October 11th. One of the interesting features in the dairy industry at the present time is the increasing demand for dairy stock in the Prairie Provinces.

FOOD IN STORE

One of the most important factors in providing stability to the market for agricultural products is cold storage. As at October 1, 1930, Canada had in storage:—

Creamery Butter	37,775,786 lbs.
Dairy Butter	250,489 "
Eggs — cases	51,720,241 "
Pork — fresh—frozen
and cured	17,586,268 "
Beef—fresh, frozen and cured	9,344,327 "
Veal	1,724,711 "
Mutton and Lamb	1,271,147 "
Poultry	2,597,625 "

Speaking broadly Canada is in much better shape to face the rigors of winter than she has been during the past five years by about 75 per cent of the average. — Dominion Department of Agriculture.

FREE FREIGHT POLICY

Maybe the Honourable Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, has announced a new free freight policy whereby heifers suitable for breeding stock bought by bona fide farmers and cattlemen at stockyards west of Port William will be returned to the buyer's farm or ranch free freight friends. She no longer has that "away-from-home" feeling.

DON'T BE FOOLED

When a butcher or retail meat shop offers you "Choice" or "Prime" don't be fooled into thinking it is government graded. Only the very best or Canadian prime beef carefully selected as to quality is government graded, and so protect the consumer the grades are branded in read and blue, the brand showing on every important retail cut. Ask for government graded beef "Choice" for the very best and "Good" for beef of really fine eating quality and watch for the brand mark in red or blue on beef your dealer delivers to you.—Dominion Department of Agriculture.

A REPEAT ORDER

Peaches, pears and plums from Ontario are proving their worth in the British West Indies. Early in September the Dominion Fruit Branch arranged a test shipment to Port au Spain, Trinidad. The shipment left Halifax on the S.S. "Lady Hawkins" on September 8th. The first report received on the shipment was a repeat order by cable—the most satisfactory form of report to receive.

ANTIDOTE FOR FATIGUE

But she soon discovered the telephone beside her could give her more joy than any outside pleasure—happy talk-trips to friends' homes. Hands flawlessly white. Tones and stimulates the skin. Useful for the family also. Protects the tender skin of the child and is excellent for the father as a hair fixative and cooling shaving lotion.

CHARCOAL

By-Product of the Process of Producing Other Things.

Charcoal is the form of amorphous carbon obtained by strongly heating wood. If required for fuel it can be obtained by the partial combustion of wood in heaps. The wood, cut into convenient and uniform lengths, is systematically piled in a mound-shaped heap with provision made for draft. The mound is covered with earth, except a small opening at the top. This is a charcoal kiln. When completed, it is fired, and by means of slow combustion the wood is converted into charcoal, which is usually almost dead black in color and much lighter in weight than wood.

That is the old way of producing charcoal. Most charcoal produced in Canada goes into ordinary domestic and industrial use. In the cities it is largely used as a kindling material. Both eastern and far-west produces a high degree of heat and readily ignites hard or anthracite coal. It also has a certain industrial use. In blacksmiths' shops, for instance.

This ordinary charcoal of commerce is, as a rule, a by-product of the process of producing other things. For example, it is a by-product in the production of wood alcohol, acetic acid and other like articles, and in the production of these articles special appliances are used. In the production of charcoal to be used in gunpowder extreme care has to be taken. In this case the wood is charred in externally - heated cylinders, the volatile products of the decomposition going to feed the fires. Pure or animal charcoal is obtained by charring bones, and it is used for decolorizing syrups.

FRENCH TOAST.

Survivals of the Days When Nobility Were Interested in Cookery.

French toast is one of the interesting survivals of the days when kings and noblemen were much interested in the art of cookery". This probably accounts for the old name of French toast, "Poor Knight." The oldest recipe in print for this dish dates back to 1655 and reads:

"To make a dish called 'Poor Knights'—Cut two gray manys into round slices, and dip them in half a pint of cream, or fair water; (by) let them abroad in a dish and let three eggs be beaten with cream, grate in a little nutmeg; that done, melt some butter in a frying pan, wet the sides of the toast, and lay them in on the wet side, colour in the next upon them, and so fry them; serve them, with rose water, sugar and cream."

The quantity of milk or cream in which the bread was steeped was varied to suit the emergency. Enough liquid was always used to soak the bread somewhat.

In New England as late as 1870 the making of French toast was an unknown way of using stale bread. At this time Louisa A. Alcott, who was writing her sister as Vivey, wrote home that for tea they were served "slices of cream, fruit, and a queer but very nice dish of slices of light bread dipped in egg and fried and eaten with sugar."

TUNA FISHING.

Leaping Tuna Was Caught by Rene Gray, Noted Author, In 1924.

Far off in the sparkling waters, a great fish suddenly takes the hook, line and sinker of one of the sea's spirit and tenacity. The steel wire line "whirrs" fiercely from the reel. The battle is on! The battle between sportsman and a giant Nova Scotia tuna. If the fisherman takes a moment or watchfulness for an instant, the battle will soon be over. The tuna is full of the tricks of the fisherman continues unceasingly alert, the struggle will go on for hours before the great fish is brought conquered to the boat's side. And into this fight for glory there will be crammed a continual succession of thrills.

This is a glimpse of the sport of tuna fishing off Nova Scotia's coasts, where the largest tuna known to have been caught with rod and line was captured by Zane Grey, noted author, in 1924. Each year now sees these waters visited by prominent Canadian and United States sportsmen seeking—and finding — the excitement of this thrilling sport.

Fishing off Jordan Bay Shelburne county, in the summer of 1924, Mr. Grey caught three tuna, the largest weighing 758 pounds, one of the best records previously made in California waters, where tuna have long for sport has a large and enthusiastic following, and Mr. Grey's prize stands as the biggest tuna taken with rod and line. Of the other two fish which he captured in 1924, one weighed 736 pounds and the other 684. Very large tuna have also been taken with rod and line in the waters as St. Ann Bay, Cape Breton Island.

Sport fishing for tuna is done from a boat, and "free rides" are often thrown in with the other excitement, as the boat is towed here and there by the great fish, to get away. A strong, sturdy rod is used with heavy reel, and a line of fine, strong steel wire.

The fish is a giant of the mackerel family. Indeed, along the North Atlantic coast of Canada and the United States it has quite commonly been known as the "horse mackerel." Sometimes it has also been miscalled "albacore." The albacore, however, while quite similar to the tuna in appearance, is much smaller, rarely reaching a weight of more than thirty pounds, whereas specimens of the tuna taken in the commercial fishery have quite frequently been found to weigh a thousand pounds, or even more.

THE KING'S ARCHIVES.

Is Kept In a Strong-Room in Great Round Tower.

Of all the great collections of historical documents to be found in the scores of museums and libraries of England, the most secretly kept and the most jealously guarded are the King's Archives in Windsor Castle.

All that the outside world actually knows about this valuable collection is that it is kept in a strong-room in the Great Round Tower of the ancient castle and that only the members of the royal family and the Recorder of the King's Archives are permitted to examine the papers.

The archives are the private property of the sovereign and the state can claim no ownership or supervision. They consist, of documents dealing with the royal family for the last several centuries. The archives are singularly rich in papers dealing with the Stuart period and largely concern the Pretender to the Stuart throne after the fall of the last Stuart monarch.

Other documents deal with King George III. and his memorable fight, George IV. and with various Ministers of State. Each of the latter are of a highly secret nature and are in script. There is also a large collection of Victorian papers of the time of Lord Melbourne, who was Queen Victoria's first Prime Minister. There are documents in the archives from all parts of the world, from sovereigns, princes, ministers of state and ambassadors.

Lures for Collectors.

The objects of the modern collector's quest are often, to the layman, inexplicably curious. An item which was sold at auction only recently, and which a wealthy purchaser at 1850, was the travelling organ which King James II. used for his chapel when encamped on Boyne Water.

Among the objects lately sold at Sotheby's were such unusual treasures as a sixteenth century German woodman's hatchet, complete with maker's name, and what is, to the uninitiate, appear to be a blunt steel rapier with the half-length figure of a girl as the hilt. Incredibly, however, that great rarity, an ancient functionary whose duty it was were to inspect and measure cloth. His office was abolished in the reign of William III.

World's Wonder Pearl.

The finest pearl in the world arrived in London recently. Although it is as large as a hazel nut it is entirely without blemish. Its value is said to be at least $750,000. It is stated that the pearl was found in the Persian Gulf. Experts declare that it is the largest absolutely perfect pearl they have ever seen. It is one of nature's miracles. There are pearls as large, but a pearl of such quality cannot equal this one, to make the beauty of the pearl more apparent it was placed beside a neck of lace worth $350,000. Lovely as were the pearls in this necklace, their rosy lustre was dimmed by the greater loveliness, of the same hue, of the wonder pearl.

Mineral Springs In Wales.

The discovery of iron water of a rare quality in an old Roman well has resulted in the opening of the Builo Wye Spa, at Trefynnon, Llandudno, North Wales. The well—which has been closed for more than a hundred and fifty years, and which more resembles a cave than a well—is approached by a narrow passage with steep rocks on either side; the water drips incessantly into glass funnels, along tubes, and into tanks; in this way the water is obtained unfiltered.

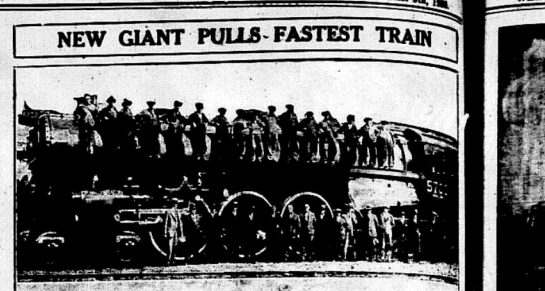
NEW GIANT PULLS FASTEST TRAIN



For its distance, the International Limited, the crack Canadian National train which runs between Montreal and Chicago, is the fastest in the world. Further to facilitate its speed, the Hudson locomotive, 5700 has come into being. With its eight-inch driving wheels, the largest ever cast in Canada, 5700 has no difficulty in making more than eighty miles an hour. The upper photograph, taken at the Montreal Locomotive Works, where the giant was built and four others like it are now being completed, shows C. E. Brooks, Chief of Motive Power, and other officers of the Canadian National Railways, and officers of the Locomotive Works, including H. C. Butler, Manager. Their height is contrasted effectively with the enormous drivers in front of which they are standing. In the lower photograph 5700 is compared with the navy work locomotive which pulled it out of the shops to have its photograph taken. The little fellow looks almost comical beside the powerful bulk of the Hudson, but for all that it could pull the 231 ton, about as part of its day's work. 5700 weighs more than 331 tons, in fact, and is within a fraction of 92 and a half feet long. The water and coal capacity of its tender is greater than that of any other locomotive on the continent, 20 tons of coal and 14,000 Imperial gallons of water. With the huge locomotive has a maximum tractive power of 93,100 pounds and a horsepower of approximately [illegible]. Other details of the new locomotive are given in the accompanying article.

EIGHT FACTORS

Botanical experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture emphasize eight factors as important in the control of cereal diseases. (1) Exclusion; (2) Eradication; (3) Field Selection; (4) Seed Treatment; (5) Dusting and Spraying; (6) Cultural Methods; (7) Sanitation and (8) Disease resistant Varieties. Only by careful attention to these important phases of disease control can crops be protected and developed and maintained on the most profitable basis to Canadian farmers.

Paris Letter.

The Ligue Nationale pour la Defense Des Funeuse—an organization devoted to the rights of man and his friends—is about to celebrate the 400th anniversary of the original Mother Montaigne de Montaigne was young Jean Nicot. The then Ambassador to London (under Francis II.) introduced tobacco into France long before Government manufacturers thought of advertising it with pictures of grass and selling it in yellow, blue and green packs.

It appears that Ambassador Nicot did a favor for a Portuguese merchant, an incident which quickly passed from his mind. Months later the ambassador received a mysterious package with the assurance that he might try it with pleasing effect. Being a true gentleman, M. Nicot sent the package up to Catherine de Medicis, but the latter, not wishing to be trapped by any practical joker, immediately called for the Cardinal of Lorraine. The latter crammed some of the powdery substance up his nostrils, staggered about the room as though fascinated, and pronounced the thing "fair enough at that."

Habit grew and soon everyone at the court took snuff. Not long after that epoch the Swiss match industry boomed; and then someone invented mouth washes and candy mints, so that man could smoke with impunity. By the beginning of the twentieth century 5,000,000 persons were busy thinking up slogans, 4,000,000 others were worrying with patent lighters and 100,000,000 movie fans were trying to roll 'em with one hand. A pity M. Nicot couldn't have lived to view his handiwork.

I gave her some Zam-Buk and in a very short time the ulcer matter was cleared right out. Further use of Zam-Buk caused the place to heal firmly with no scar-tissue. Also a neighbor, 76 years old, had inflammatory rheumatism. Doctors could do nothing for her, but my wife soon got her better by massaging with Zam-Buk. When I used Zam-Buk for blood-poison in my foot, it took me right."—Mr. E. Bretts, Clandeboye, Manitoba.

News and Information For the Farmer

The annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Poultry Association will be held in the Coliseum, Ottawa, on December 3rd.

Attendance at the Ontario Veterinary College this year is higher than usual, with a total of 95 students on the roll, of these, 40 are in the freshman year. The students are from every part of Canada and the United States.

The latest combine harvest-threshers, it is claimed, can harvest an acre in the time of 45 minutes. This is a reduction of over 95 per cent. in the time required in harvesting and threshing an acre a century ago. It is a striking instance of how machinery has facilitated work on the farm.

Royal Winter Fair

The next big event from an agricultural standpoint in Ontario is the Royal Winter Fair, which takes place in Toronto from November 19th to 27th. One new feature this year is the staging of 220 Ontario girls at the expense of the Provincial Government. These, with the 500 boys who annually throng the coliseum and take part, in the different Junior Farmer contests, should liven up matters considerably. Horseshoe pitching contests will provide another interesting feature, with special competition open only to winners at local agricultural fairs.

Ontario Apiaries Win

First and second prizes for honey, a silver and a bronze medal, were won in competition practically world wide at the British Dairy Show, London, England, by exhibitors from Ontario. The winner of the first prize and silver medal is T. J. Francis, Cannington, a member of the Ontario Honey Producers, and the winner of the second prize and bronze medal is J. McArthur, Park drive, Toronto, a member of the Toronto Beekeepers' Association, which held a preliminary campaign in order to encourage competition and secure the best possible of the season's honey crop to represent the organization at the London show.

Injurious to Wire Fence

Many times the advice is given in the fall of the year to "burn out the fence rows" to get rid of harmful weeds and insects. This, no doubt, is a good policy from these standpoints, but it should be kept in mind that it is distinctly harmful to any type of wire fence. Zinc melts at a comparatively low temperature and the heat from burning grass or weeds is often sufficient to scorch the protective coating and will probably shorten by several seasons the useful life of the fence.

Superintendent at Kapuskasing

L. H. Hanlan, of Kapuskasing, has been appointed superintendent of the demonstration farm at Hearst, according to an announcement of Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Hanlan graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College in 1922, later taking post-graduate work at McGill University and obtaining the degree of M. S. A. in agronomy in 1924. He was superintendent of the Kapuskasing experimental station. Mr. Hanlan has had very valuable experience and is particularly well-fitted for the work at Hearst," said Col. Kennedy, announcing the appointment.

Ottawa Winter Fair

The 28th annual Ottawa Winter Fair and Horse Show will be held from December 1st to 5th. In making this announcement, Prof. W. J. Bell, principal of the Kemptville Agricultural School, and president of the Fair, points out that $25,000 in cash is being offered—all for the purpose of improving cattle breeds, horses, poultry, pet stock, seeds and general farming conditions. Because of excellent crop conditions and splendid pasturage throughout the season in the Ottawa Valley, all live stock is in exceptionally fine form and a well-finished display is anticipated. All entries close November 22nd, with the secretary, John W. Grant, 66 Queen Street, Ottawa. As encouragement for junior farmers, there are many important trophies and cash prizes for inter-county live stock judging. Junior showmanship, seed judging, school fair seed and other classes, where there are various county competitions for agricultural representatives.

Raising Prolific Sows

Sterility in pigs is difficult to cure but most forms of it can be prevented by proper management. Pertility is heritable, therefore always select breeding stock from large litters. Breed sows must have more protein and calcium than fattening stock, in order to build up flesh and bone in their young. The important sources of supply of these are meat and protein meal and legumenous pasturage. Exercise is essential for regular production. Some condition sometimes causes sterility. Sows and boars in the pigs are over-fat and lack exercise. Exposure in winter will delay breeding. Contagious abortion is spread through it after birth, dead piglings and discharge contaminating the food, water and beddings.

Egyptian Barley For O. A. C.

The Ontario Agricultural College makes it a point to keep abreast of the times in all matters pertaining to agriculture, but it also gives its students instruction in the history of this most ancient and honorable art.

In this connection an interesting exhibit has been placed in its museum in the form of a sample of barley taken during the past summer, from grain found in the tomb of Solomon (tenth century B.C. at Tell-Beit-Mirsim, in Egypt. The grain is somewhat blackened by the fire that destroyed the tomb, but is otherwise in fine condition. Its length is natural form through these thirty centuries.

It was presented to the college by the Director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Archaeology.

Weekly Crop Report

Generally speaking the weekly crop report of the agricultural representatives would indicate that cattle are not in as good condition as they were a month ago, due to pastures drying up. The milk supply is also falling off, many cheese factories only receiving milk every other day. In the western portion of the province, fall wheat has suffered due to lack of rain and considerable acreage will go into winter with a light top. Heavy snows recently in Bruce County have melted and softened the ground to such an extent that plowing is now facilitated. Not in years has the weather been so good for the best harvest in Essex at this season, and a good revenue is expected from this crop. About ten per cent. in the outside estimate of the plowing done in Glengarry, the cause being attributed to the drouth. Potato digging is being rushed in Middlesex with the yield generally disappointing. Four carloads of Western cattle have arrived in Perth and herds in that district will be increased.

sent time," observes Dr. J. A. Ruddick, Dairy Commissioner of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, "with respect to butter production Ontario and Alberta show a 15 per cent. increase for the first six months of the production year. Cheese production, of which 97 per cent is exported in Ontario and Quebec, was 30,000 boxes behind last year as at October 11th. Quality of the interesting article in the dairy industry at the present time is the increasing demand for dairy stock in the Prairie Provinces.

FOOD IN STORE

One of the most important factors in providing stability to the market for agricultural products is cold storage. As at October 1, 1930, Canada had in storage:—

Creamery Butter	37,715,786 lbs.
Dairy Butter	950,489 "
Eggs	51,720,541 doz
Pork — fresh, frozen, and cured	17,586,268 "

Poultry	2,597,054 "

Speaking broadly Canada is in much better shape to face the rigors of winter than she has been during the past five years by about 75 per cent of the average.—Dominion Department of Agriculture.

FREE FREIGHT, POLICY

Major the Honourable Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, has announced a new free freight policy whereby heifers suitable for breeding stock bought by bona fide farmers and settlemen at stockyards west of Port William will be returned to the buyer's farm or ranch freight free. Application should be made to the nearest stockyards for the benefits of the policy. The concession extends to carloads of not less than twenty heifers to be used for breeding purposes only, to be, so far as possible, of the same type and breed and to be not more than twenty-four months old. Free freight is obtained on the certificate of the duly authorized Stockyards Representative of the Dominion Live Stock Branch at point of purchase. It entitles the shipper to have his car of breeding stock billed to his home station free of freight charges. The railway company assumes 25 per cent of the freight and the Dominion Live Stock Branch the balance.

AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

Half Barrels	19,225	18,460
Boxes	166,865	64,457

Increased efficiency all around is the outstanding characteristic of the fruit industry in Canada for 1930.

A REPEAT ORDER

Peaches, pears and plums from Ontario are proving their worth in the British West Indies. Early in September the Dominion Fruit Branch arranged a test shipment to Port au Spain, Trinidad. The shipment left Halifax on the S.S. "Lady Hawkins" on September 8th. The first report received on the shipment was a repeat order by cable—the most satisfactory form of report to receive.

Invaluable for softening and making hands flawlessly white. Tones and stimulates the skin. Useful for the family also. Protects the tender skin of the child and is excellent for the father as a hair dressative and cooling shaving lotion.

ANTIDOTE FOR FATIGUE

Mary found her nurse's training course interesting — but tiring. By night-time she didn't feel equal to anything but resting in her room. But she soon discovered the telephone beside her could give her more joy than any outside pleasure—by calling home to her family and friends. She no longer has that "away-from-home" feeling.

Eczema Vanishes In 7 Days or Money Back

Mighty, Powerful Antiseptic Prescription Stops Itching Instantly. Healing Begins At Once. Many Are Quickly Relieved Of Itch Due To Eczema, Boils and Abscesses That Discharge Are Quickly Relieved

Now that tens of thousands know that Moone's Emerald Oil helps to reduce ugly, dangerous varicose veins, we want them to know that this wonderfully effective agent will dry up eczema eruptions in a few days and cause the scales to drop off and disappear.

It acts the same way with any skin disease, such as barbers' itch, salt rheum, redness and inflammatory skin troubles.

So powerful and penetrating is Moone's Emerald Oil that abscesses, boils, ulcers and open sores are healed in a few days. Moone's Emerald Oil is not a patent medicine, but is a surgeon's prescription that for years has been successfully used. Wallace's Drug Store and all leading druggists dispense Moone's Emerald Oil.

EIGHT FACTORS

Botanical experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture emphasize the importance of eight principal factors in the control of cereal diseases, (1) Exclusion; (2) Eradication; (3) Seed Selection; (4) Seed Treatment; (5) Dusting and Spraying; (6) Cultural Methods; (7) Sanitation and (8) Disease resistant Varieties. Only by careful attention to these important phases of disease control can cereal crops be developed and maintained on the most profitable basis to Canadian farmers.

Asthma Victims. The man or woman subject to asthma is indeed a victim. What can be more terrifying than to suddenly be seized with paroxysms of choking which seem to fairly threaten the existence of life itself. From such distressing ills Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has brought many to completely restored health and happiness. It is known and prized in every section of this broad land.

CANADA IS TENTH

With the Dominion Department of Agriculture acting as an active head to assist the development and expansion of the beef industry in Canada it is of interest to note the relative standing of the Dominion among the big beef producing countries of the world, which in sequence are:

1	British India	146,288,556
2	Soviet Republics	66,791,800
3	United States	55,751,000
4	Argentina	46,560,000
5	Brazil	34,271,324
6	Germany	18,414,136
7	France	15,005,000
9	South Africa	10,477,777
10	Canada	8,793,272

Useful in Camp. — Explorers, surveyors, prospectors and hunters will find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil very useful in camp. When the feet and legs are wet and cold it is well to rub them freely with the Oil and the result will be the prevention of pain in the muscles and should a cut, or contusion, or sprain be sustained, nothing could be better as a dressing or lotion.

CHARCOAL

By-Product of the Process of Producing Other Things.

Charcoal is the form of amorphous carbon obtained by strongly heating wood. If required for fuel it can be obtained by the partial combustion of wood in heaps. The wood, cut in convenient and uniform lengths, is systematically piled in a mound-shaped heap with provision made for draft. The mound is covered with earth, except a small opening at the top. This is a charcoal kiln. When completed, it is fired, and by means of slow combustion the wood is converted into charcoal, which is usually shining and black in color and much lighter in weight than wood.

That is the old way of producing charcoal. Most charcoal produced in Canada goes into ordinary domestic and industrial use. In the cities it is largely used as a kindling material. Being easily set on fire, it soon produces a high degree of heat and readily ignites hard or anthracite coal. It also has a certain industrial use. In blacksmiths' shops, for instance.

This ordinary charcoal of commerce is, as a rule, a by-product of the process of producing other things. Per example, it is a by-product in the production of wood alcohol, acetic acid and other like articles, and in the production of these articles special appliances are used. In the production of charcoal to be used in making gunpowder more care has to be taken. In this case the wood is charred in externally-heated cylinders, the volatile products of the decomposition going to feed the fires. Bone or animal charcoal is obtained by charring bones, and it is used for decoloring syrups.

FRENCH TOAST.

Survivals of the Days When Nobility Were Interested in Cookery.

French toast is one of the interesting survivals of the days when kings and noblemen were much interested in the art of cookery. This probably accounts for the old name of French toast, "Poor Kaligh." The oldest recipe in print for this dish dates back to 1655 and reads:

"To make a dish called 'Poor Knight'—cut two penny loaves into handsome slices, and fry them in half a plat of cream, or fair water; they lay them abroad in a dish and let them soak; then take the cream, grated nutmeg and sugar; that done, put some butter in a frying pan, wet the sides of the dish, and lay them in on the wet side; pour in the next cream, and so fry them; serve them with rose water, sugar and cream."

The quantity of milk or cream in which the bread was dipped was variable, to suit the active bad taste of the period, and evaporation of the liquid was always used to soak the bread somewhat.

In New England as late as 1870 the making of French toast was an unknown art, or using stale bread. At this time Louisa A. Alcott, who was visiting her sister at Vinay, wrote home that for tea they were served "pitcher of cream, fruit, and a queer but very nice dish of slices of light bread dipped in egg and fried and eaten with sugar."

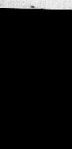
5 Years' Ulcerated Leg Yields to Famous Remedy

A Sure Healer of all Damaged or Diseased Skin

Sufferers from leg ulcers, old wounds, poisoned sores, etc., will find in Zam-Buk a truly remarkable healer. Hundreds of such cases have yielded to Zam-Buk after defying weeks and months of ordinary treatment. Zam-Buk stops the awful irritation at once, and drives out corruption and disease. Zam-Buk succeeds simply because its great soothing and antiseptic powers are backed by remarkable healing properties.



Mr. E. Bretts

Zam-Buk helps Nature to build up the new tissue-cells and once-diseased parts soon become strong and healthy again.

HAD TRIED ALMOST EVERYTHING

"For five years," writes Mr. Bretts, "I suffered with a terrible ulcerated leg. She had tried almost everything without getting relief. I gave her some Zam-Buk and it's very seldom time the bad matter was cleared right out. Further use of Zam-Buk ran the place to heal firmly with new skin. Also a neighbor, 70 years old, had inflammatory rheumatism. Doctors could do nothing for her, but my wife soon got her better by massaging with Zam-Buk. When I used Zam-Buk for blood-poisoning in my foot, it took me right."—Mr. E. Bretts, Clandeboye, Manitoba.

The unparalled success of Zam-Buk as a healer of skin troubles lies in its original and valuable formula. Zam-Buk is compounded from certain extracts of herbal origin. These, scientifically blended, attain the maximum of soothing, healing and antiseptic power.

Zam-Buk is so refined that it sinks through the tiny pores into underlying tissues. It kills poisonous germs, stops pain and itching, and grows new skin. Zam-Buk gets at the root of such troubles as eczema, salt rheum, bad legs, piles, scalp disease, poisoned sores, etc. It is also a splendid remedy for piles, and a fine all-round first-aid for injuries. For its distance, the International Limited, crack Canadian National train which runs between Montreal and Chicago, is the fastest in the world. Further to facilitate its speed, the Hudson locomotive, 6700 class, has been fitted with its eight-inch driving wheels, the largest ever cast in Canada, 5700 has no difficulty in making more than eighty miles an hour. The upper photograph, taken at the Montreal Locomotive Works, where the giant was built and four others like it are now being assembled, shows C. E. Brooks, Chief of Motive Power, and other officers of the Canadian National Railways, and officers of the Locomotive Works, including H. C. Butler, Manager. Their height is contrasted effectively with the enormous drivers in front of which they are standing. In the lower photograph 5700 is compared with the tiny work locomotive which pulled it out of the shops to have its photograph taken. The little fellow looks almost comical beside the powerful bulk of the Hudson, but for all that it could pull the 331 tons about as part of its daily work. 5700 weighs more than 331 tons, in fact, and is within a fraction of 62 and a half feet long. The water and coal capacity of its tender is greater than that any other locomotive on the line, 20 tons of coal and 14,000 Imperial gallons of water. With the booster in operation it has a maximum tractive power of 51,500 pounds. Its total pressure of 225 pounds is carried by two sets of six coupled wheels each and several other features of design, and it is now in service on one of the crack trains of the Canadian National.

News and Information For the Farmer

The annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Poultry Association will be held in the Coliseum, Ottawa, on December 3rd.

Attendance at the Ontario Veterinary College this year is higher than usual, with a total of 95 students on the roll. Of these, 36 are in the freshman year. The students are from every part of Canada and the United States.

The latest combine harvest-threshers, it is claimed, can harvest an acre in the average time of 45 minutes. This is a reduction of over 95 per cent. from the time required in harvesting and threshing an acre a century ago. It is a striking instance of how machinery has facilitated work on the farm.

Royal Winter Fair

The next big event from an agricultural standpoint in Toronto is the Royal Winter Fair, which takes place in Toronto from November 19th to 28th. One new feature this year is the visit of 230 Ontario girls at the expense of the Provincial Government. These, with the 500 boys who annually throng the coliseum and take part in the different Junior Farmer contests, should liven up matters considerably. Horseshoe pitching contests will provide another interesting feature, with a special competition open only to winners at local agricultural fairs.

Ontario Apiaries Win

First and second prizes for honey, silver and bronze medal, were won in competition practically world wide at the British Dairy Show, London, England, by exhibitors from Ontario. The winner of the first prize and silver medal is T. J. Francis, Cannington, member of the Ontario Honey Producers, and the winner of the second prize and bronze medal is J. Mason Arthur, Park drive, Toronto, a member of the Ontario Beekeeper's Association. This is the eighth consecutive time that the first prize and silver medal for honey has been won by a member of the Ontario Honey Producers' organization, which held a preliminary campaign in order to encourage competition and secure the best possible of the season's light colored honey crop to represent the organization at the London show.

Increase in Wire Fences

Many times can be quoted as given in the fall of the year to "turn out the fence rows" to get rid of harmful weeds and insects. This, no doubt, is a good policy from those standpoints, but it should be kept in mind that it is distinctly harmful to any type of wire fence. Zinc melts at a comparatively low temperature and the heat from burning grass or weeds is often sufficient to scorch the protective coating and will probably shorten the natural seasons the useful life of the fence.

Superintendent at Hearst

L. H. Hanlan, of Kapuskasing, has been appointed superintendent of the demonstration farm at Hearst, according to an announcement of Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Hanlan graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College in 1922, later taking post-graduate work at McGill University, where he secured the degree of M. S. in agronomy in 1924. He was superintendent of the Kapuskasing experimental station. "Mr. Hanlan has had very valuable experience and is particularly well-fitted for the work at Hearst," said Col. Kennedy, announcing the appointment.

Ottawa Winter Fair

The 28th annual Ottawa Winter Fair and Horse Show will be held from December 1st to 5th. In making this announcement, Prof. W. J. Bell, principal of the Kemptville Agricultural School, and president of the Fair, points out that $25,000 in prizes is being offered—all for the purpose of improving cattle breeds, horses, poultry, pet stock, seeds and general farming conditions. Because of excellent crop conditions and splendid pasturage throughout the season in the Ottawa Valley, all live stock is in exceptionally fine form and a well-finished display is anticipated. All entries close November 22nd, with the secretary, John W. Grant, 66 Queen Street, Ottawa. As encouragement for junior farmers, there are many important trophies and cash prizes for inter-county live stock judging, junior showmanship, seed judging, school fair seed and other classes, where there are various county competitions for agricultural representatives.

Raising Prolific Sows

Sterility in pigs is difficult to cure but most forms of it can be prevented by proper management. Fertility is heritable, therefore always select breeding stock from large litters. Breed sows must have more protein and calcium than fattening stock, in order to build up flesh and bone in their young. The important sources of supply of these are meat and protein meal, milk and leguminous pastures. Exercise is essential for regular reproduction. Show condition sometimes causes sterility, but this is when the pigs are over-fat and lack exercise. Exposure in winter will delay breeding. Contagious abortion is spread through the herd by dead fetal and discharges contaminating the food, water and beddings.

Egyptian Barley For O. A. C.

The Ontario Agricultural College makes it a point to keep abreast of the times in all matters pertaining to agriculture, but it also gives its students instruction in the history of the most ancient and honorable art.

In this connection an interesting exhibit has been placed in its museum in the form of a sample of barley taken during the past summer from grain fields of the time of Solomon (ninth century B.C. at Tell-Para, in Egypt. The grain is somewhat blackened by age, but has fairly well retained its shape, form through these thirty centuries.

It was presented to the college by the Director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Archaeology.

Weekly Crop Report

Generally speaking the weekly crop report of the agricultural representatives would indicate that cattle are now in as good condition as they were a month ago, due to pastures drying up. The milk supply is also falling off, many cheese factories only receiving milk every other day. In the western portion of the province, fall wheat has suffered due to lack of rain and considerable acreage will go into winter with a light top. Heavy snows recently in Bruce County have melted and softened the ground to such an extent that plowing is now facilitated. Not in years has the weather been so good for the best harvest in Essex at this season, and a good revenue is expected from this crop. About ten per cent. is the outside estimate of the plowing done in Glengarry, the cause being attributed to the drouth. Potato digging is being rushed in Middlesex with the yield generally disappointing. Four carloads of Western cattle have arrived in Perth and herds in that district will be increased.

CANADIAN TEXTILE MILLS EXPANDING

Every kind of cloth that is used in the making of men's and women's clothing will be made in Canada shortly and the mills will compare with those imported goods. Cloths which are now imported will be made by various mills, each mill undertaking to produce some of the lines of goods.

ERECT MONUMENT TO JESUIT MARTYR

On the spot where he sojourned 30 years previous to his martyrdom in 1649, a monument, a gift of Jacques Fraraud, prominent Huron resident, now stands to honor the memory of Rev. Father Saint-Jean de Brebeuf, missionary to the Indians whose name is revered by all Canadians. It is located on a rise of ground a short distance south of the village of Penetanguishene, and was unveiled with fitting ceremony in the presence of approximately 1,000 people of all walks of life the monument was unveiled with fitting ceremony.

Val Tetreau will boast of the biggest monument in the City of Hull when a statute will also honour the memory of Rev. Father Brebeuf, according to Lasalle, Assomptionist missionaries. Isaac Jogues, Gabriel Lalemant, Charles Garnier, Antoine Daniel, Noel Chabanel, Rene Goupil and Jean de Lalande.

The monument stands slightly over eight feet high and represents a great missionary in the role of a martyred Canadian.

NATIONAL POULTRY GRADING OPERATIVE

As a result of a nation-wide movement to introduce poultry grading to the people of Canada will start before the end of this year even before The grading movement is being sponsored by the egg and marketing service of the Department of Agriculture and packers and others handling poultry products. A big start has been agreed to by according to grade.

Canada's poultry season reaches roughly from October 15th to the end of the year. During that time approximately 15,000,000 chickens and older birds will be marketed in this country in addition to turkeys, ducks and geese.

All poultry will be graded into the main grades, "milk fed" and "non-milk fed." The milk fed are not necessarily fed with milk but are cared for and the selected are range fed. The two grades will be subdivided into weight classes and the buyers will pay a difference of four cents a pound for each of the milk fed classes. When the present price of feed it is estimated that the extra feeding will be a profitable investment.

REVENUE DOLLAR COST

The Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa provides some interesting information with respect to the amount of money invested in land, buildings, implements and livestock; it takes out the annual depreciation revenue is charged. Using the figures provided in the census estimates with respect to each year we find the investment in each producing the revenue dollar in the various provinces was:

WITH THE FISHING FLEETS OF NOVA SCOTIA

The Bluenose fishermen of Nova Scotia have won a world-wide reputation as intrepid sailors of the seven waters, and their skill and courage and their storm-beaten schooners have been preserved to posterity in some of the finest of American literature. A typical fishing harbour of Nova Scotia is shown in the upper picture. Lunenburg boats have always been famous as deep sea fishing fleets and in the foreground can be seen schooners in various stages of construction, while anchored in the background are a number of the ships waiting to leave for the banks. At the bottom is a scene reminiscent of the old world, but one not unusual in the Nova Scotia fishing towns. It shows an ox team bringing a catch of cod fish from a schooner upon its arrival in port.

In The Land Of The Soviets

TRAVEL IN RUSSIA

Railway Discomforts

(By Harry Sacher)

Great efforts are being made by the Soviet Government to attract tourists to Russia. Not only do they arrange numerous international congresses this year, for instance, of all sorts of experts and physicists,—but they have established a tourist organization of their own, the Inturist, which has offices in Moscow and other Russian cities and in several foreign capitals. Those, however, who contemplate anything like an extended journey in Russia should realise that travel there is not either so simple or so convenient as in most European countries. The first necessity, the obtaining of a visa, usually consumes a month, and the visa limits one strictly as to the route by which, and the time within which one may cross the border as well as to the duration of one's stay in the country. Changes can, if necessary, be made, but they involve the payment of additional fees. Again, every foreigner, coming in Russia, has to get a Russian pass, which costs more money, and to register, as a cost of two roubles, in every town where he stops. This constant supervision is slightly irritating, though in my own experience the officials were always courteous.

Crossing the frontier is a much less embarrassing business than I had supposed. There is virtually no restriction on what a tourist may bring into the country, and the Customs investigation of one's baggage is a good deal less rigorous when entering or leaving Russia than when passing through the Polish frontier from Russia. The Polish Customs confiscated a collection of Russian posters which I had, after much trouble, got together. Evidently the Polish Government is nervous of Bolshevik propaganda. A real but inevitable grievance is the embargo on the import and export of Russian currency. The rouble is heavily depreciated—you can buy it in Berlin or Warsaw at one-fifth of its nominal value,—but the Russian Government compels the law-abiding foreigner to buy his roubles at the full nominal rate of something over 10c to the dollar. Doubtless the veto on the import and export of Russian currency actually depreciates the rouble below its real value, but it enables the Soviet Government to extract from the foreign visitor some of that value of which it is in desperate need to pay for its imports. Clandestine traffic in roubles exists, in spite of the severity with which it is punished — casual within the country and more or less organised without. The couriers of some legations exploit their diplomatic immunity at a high rate of profit, and the existence of private international trade between Russia and her Asiatic neighbours leaves another loophole.

The Railways

One's first contact with the Russian railways is bound to be disappointing. On a few routes wagon-lits now run, and the Russian type of wagon-lit is more spacious than the Western; but as a rule one has to choose between a "soft" and a "hard" car. The "soft" car has padded seats and the "hard" is wooden. At its best the "soft" car is not too comfortable, and if you have to pay for all the four seats in a compartment there is no guarantee that you will have them to yourself. There may be reasonably clean and it may be very dirty, and almost certainly the windows will not open. Unless one is fortunate enough to belong to a party which is travelling by special train, there will be no dining car, and you must depend for food upon what you bring with you or can pick up at the stations. If your train stops long enough and at the right time, you can get a table d'hote meal at the station buffet—cabbage soup, bread, and rice, and sometimes sour milk, to which, at extravagant prices, the peasant women, in the more favoured regions, may add a chicken, eggs, or fruit. It is very imprudent not to take supplies with you and to trust to chance, and I have unpleasant recollections of hungering all the way from the frontier to Moscow.

Do not count on the punctuality of a Russian train. Out of seven long train journeys made by me on the trains I late in five cases, and late not only by minutes but by hours. The worst period, for official—who are by no means unprejudiced witnesses where Russia is concerned—told me that the time in which I travelled was the first in six weeks to make the connection with the Warsaw train, although the time table provides an ample margin for error. The engines are old and liable to break down, and the railway personnel has a bad reputation for carelessness and lack of skill.

Travel By Boat

Travel by boat plays a large part in Russian communications. I went down the Volga from Nijni Novgorod to Stalingrad, a four days' journey, and on the Black Sea from Batoum to Yalta and from Yalta to Odessa, a three days' journey. There is no luxury about the river steamers, and the cabins are very small, but they are reasonably clean, and the deck is kept clear, while food is on the whole, better than in Moscow. The Black Sea ships are quite handsome, but passengers eat and sleep on all the decks, so that it is impossible to take exercise and hardly possible to get in the open air, while the food and the cooking were almost the worst I met with in Russia. The Russians still seem to be in the migratory stage, and trains and boats are overcrowded. This has its compensations for everything is free and easy, and you have a chance of meeting people and getting them to talk more openly than they will or dare elsewhere. The travelling Russian especially on a boat, throws off some of the burden, the constant fear and repression of his normal life. For a brief space he is neither a mistakenly to the obtuse heathen nor the material of a theorist's experiment.

Hotels

To avoid disaster you must make certain in advance of your hotel booking. All hotels throughout Russia belong to the State or other public authority, and they are few and at most times of the year crowded. If you have not secured your room in advance the arts which chambers work will not save you from trudging the streets. In practice you must use the Inturist, the State tourist agency, in order to get a room in Moscow or elsewhere, for it controls the accommodation. Inturist's record will not work in Russia. I had omitted this precaution, but was saved from very great embarrassment by the kindness of the British Embassy, which lives for the time being at the Savoy Hotel. In a journey of several thousand miles in Russia I did not strike one first-class or even reasonably second class hotel. Perhaps the best hotel building was at Kiev, and there the food and service, everything else were very poor. The one thing certainly first class about Russian hotels is their charges. You pay for your room at the highest rates of Paris, London, or New York, and you get your food at rates at which Paris, London, or New York would blush to charge. There would be some compensation if quality corresponded, but it is practically impossible to eat well in Russia. Russian cooking before the war was famous; it has died out because the materials do not exist, without which the art cannot flourish. Native troubles are the lot of most Russians, and they lie in wait for the foreign visitor.

Plainly, Russia has little to offer the traveller who likes the ease and even the pleasures of life. Nor has it much to tempt the love of nature. Distances are enormous and in European Russia the scenes are monotonous — hundreds of miles of woodland, hundreds of miles of treeless steppe. Year after day the Volga shows the same level land and brown water, and even the multifarious races wear the common uniform of the Russian proletariat. The Caucasus is more beautiful than the Alps or the Tyrol, and far more inaccessible, and if the coasts of the Black Sea, and the towns are charming, Western Europe can show as fine or finer things within much easier reach. The traveller to Russia must make up his mind that he'll have to take pleasure or leave it severely,—or see in operation the most interesting, curious, and interesting social experiment in the temporarily world can show.

TOURISTS TO PASS OVER SUBMERGED CITY OF PORT ROYAL

This winter Canadians and Americans aboard the new Canadian cruise ship "Prince Robert" will pass over the "wickedest spot on earth," the now submerged city of Port Royal, whose privateer inhabitants sank to oblivion in the earthquake which visited Jamaica 300 years ago. On clear days the submerged streets can be seen beneath the ship's hull.

Finishing touches have been given to the plans of the Canadian National Steamships, in connection with their debut into the West Indies cruise business. Beginning December 20th, three cruises of a fortnight each will be conducted from Boston, visiting Jamaica, Nassau and Cuba.

The passengers will explore Kingston, Jamaica's capital, a city of 60,000 souls, chiefly negroes, and which was founded by Diego, natural son of Christopher Columbus. From here rebellious slaves were once deported to Halifax and again deported to Sierre Leone, Africa.

Three hundred small coral islands, on which Sir George Somers spent an enforced tropical holiday while marooned, will be "re-discovered" by the northern tourists. These coral reefs make up Bermuda, where summer visitors take refuge in winter and where automobiles are strictly forbidden.

Cuba and its capital, Havana, called the Paris of the Tropics, will be host to the members of the three Canadian cruises and the Oasino in Havana will be in gala garb, upholding its reputation for higher gaming than ever known at Monte Carlo.

Thus three countries, exclusive of Canada are included on the cruise route: the United States, the British colony of Bermuda and the Republic of Cuba. Direct overnight trains will take the Canadian pleasure groups to the point of embarkation.

A HELPFUL HABIT

John sighed—it was lonesome with his best girl away. Nothing seemed to appeal. He wanted to talk to her—that was all there was about it. Then his eye fell on the telephone. "Well, why not?" he thought, suddenly. And in a few moments he was talking to her. "This is great," said John, "may I call you often?"

WOMAN'S FORTITUDE

FORCES HERSELF TO SMILE THROUGH PAIN.

"I never seem to find time to rest." says many an overworked housewife. Under smiles and forced cheerfulness she conceals weariness and nervous depression, headaches and backaches. Often she is in real pain, but still refuses to give up. This very fortitude is apt to be her undoing. For continuing to neglect the signals of distress she will sooner or later suffer a serious breakdown.

A noted doctor has stated that nineteenths of the ills of womankind are due to poor blood. That anaemia is the cause of the low spirits, the poor appetite and palpitation that make life a burden for so many.

There is no need, however, for women to suffer in this way. All the miseries of anaemia can be banished by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills create an abundance of new, rich, red blood and this new blood will bring strength and vitality to pervous, overtired women. The Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GLAMIS'S SCOTTISH HOME

STEEPED IN ROMANCE AND ADVENTURE.

Central Portion of the Keep Known to Have Been Standing Since 1016 —Was Once a Royal Residence— An Infamous Execution.

One of the most ancient mansions in the north country, the Scottish home of the Duchess of York is steeped in that romance and adventure which gives piquancy to the records of the early history of Scotland, says the Glasgow Weekly Herald. But, apart from its purely historical associations, the castle must be of immense interest to the antiquary on account of the great age of the central portion or keep, which is known to have been standing as long ago as 1016; while to the romantic and superstitious it is—traditionally, at least—a place where ghosts and spirits moving silently down winding stairs and dark passages are wont to make night fearsome!

But how many of the younger generation are aware that Glamis Castle was once a royal residence? It was so in the time of King Malcolm II., and remained a regal mansion till 1372, when Sir John Lyon, a great favorite with Robert II., was made Lord Chamberlain of Scotland. At that time the King's daughter, Princess Jean, fell in love with this young knight, and was given him in marriage, together with the lands of the Thanedom of Glamis. In 1382, Sir John fell in a duel with Sir James Lindsay of Crawford, and he was buried at Stone among the Kings of Scotland. He left one son, from whom the duchess' family of Lyon have descended without a break from father to son to the present day. Fifty years later, Sir Patrick Lyon (Sir John's grandson), who was one of the hostages to the English for the ransom of James I. (1424 to 1427), was created Baron Glamis, and appointed Master of the Household to the King of Scotland.

For the next hundred years nothing of interest happened, till John, sixth Lord Glamis, married the beautiful Janet Douglas, granddaughter of the great Earl of Angus (Bell-the-Cat"), and died in 1528. Lady Glamis married, secondly, Archibald Campbell, of Kepneth, whose eldest son—another Campbell—fell in love with her. Finding, however, that his addresses were illreceived by the lady, his love was turned to hate, and he avenged himself by informing the authorities that Lady Glamis, her son Lord Glamis, and John Lyon, his relative, were conspiring against the life of the King (James V.) by poison or witchcraft. They were tried for high treason and wrongfully convicted. Lady Glamis and her young son were both sentenced to be burned, and the estate of Glamis was forfeited and annexed to the crown by Act of Parliament, dated Dec. 3, 1540.

However, on account of his extreme youth Lord Glamis was not executed, but was kept in prison, with the death sentence hanging over him, while the beautiful Lady Glamis was dragged forth and burned at the stake on the Castle Hill of Edinburgh on July 17, 1537. When this infamous execution was accomplished, rumour seems to have come over Campbell, who was visited by visions of his victim looking at him with sad reproachful eyes. When, some years later, his death was drawing nigh, he confessed that his evidence at the trial was altogether false. Lord Glamis was, therefore, released from prison and his estates and honors restored.

The principal entrance is one of the most striking features of the castle. It has a doorway in small arch and a stout iron-clenched oaken door, that is studded with nails, is guarded on the inside by a heavily grated iron gate, which opens right on to the great staircase. A flight of steps to the right of the entrance leads down to the dungeons, vaults, and the old well (now filled up) which supplied the inmates with water in times of siege; while another stair to the left leads up to the regular hall (or crypt, as it is now called), low, and 50 feet in length, with walls and arched roof entirely composed of stone. Of the seven windows, which are small, four or five are cut out of the thickness of the walls, and make recesses just large enough to form small rooms, which might have been used as sleeping chambers in old days. Lay figures, clad in complete armor, stand in the recesses, and especially in the dusk, give an eerie effect to this part of the castle.

The banqueting hall (now used as the drawing-room) is a fine specimen of architecture of the old baronial days. The walls are adorned with pictures and tapestry, and with a full length of some of the Stuart kings, the celebrated John Graham of Claverhouse (Viscount Dundee), and other notables.

The principal picture, which hangs at the end of the hall, represents Patrick, first Earl of Strathmore and third of Kinghorne, who inaugurated Glamis considerably both within and without, as attested by his diary which illustrates the social life of Scotland more than two hundred years ago. In this portrait he is depicted sitting with three of his sons, pointing with pride to the castle in the distance, on which he had spent so much care. At that time the castle was surrounded with walled courts, gardens, and a moat, and, the main approach to the south, about a mile in length, was guarded by two gates and was the work of Earl Patrick. These ramparts were all pulled down early in 1800, the two flanking towers alone being left.

While retaining its old-baronial features, the castle has been modernized and is an extremely comfortable residence. The central part, which the family usually occupy, is the oldest section of the house, and the great charm and character. Like all British mansions Glamis has a beautiful garden; and on the lawn stands the great sun-dial, quite modern, but with the old-world dials, supported by four lions, nearly life-sized, in stone.

LOCOMOTIVE GRATES IN HOME FURNACE

Leanox Torrid Zone Has Many Features Besides Steel-riveted, Gas-tight Construction

The most durable type of grates in the world are used in the Torrid Zone Warm Air Furnace. They are of the special rocking design as used in locomotives and are controlled from the outside by a long-handled "lazy" shaker. Hardly more effort is required to shake them than is used in brushing the teeth. Any woman can do it—and she could do it in a party dress without fear of dust or dirt because of the unusually tight-fitting doors.

The Torrid Zone is the ideal furnace for the fine residence and is made in types and sizes for homes of every class and for schools, churches, stores and office buildings.

They are combination coal, coke and warm air types and others equipped with electric blowers for large scale operating. They are made for hard or soft coal, coke, lignite, wood, gas or oil—and they'll save money for you in the burning of any one of them. Made by the Lennox Furnace Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Ont. and Winnipeg, Man.

Mother Restored to Family

If you asked the average happy and comfortable Ontario housewife what means a set of pounds would mean to her, she would probably answer that at the very suggestion. Suppose, however, she were in the position of Mrs. Rossetta, a woman with a family of young children in a small Ontario town where there was little to earn and many to keep, growing weaker and weaker from overwork and poverty, finally obliged to leave her little ones to friends and neighbors and to take herself to the Toronto Hospital for Consumptives.

Then began the long, long fight to put on those pounds of ground, skin and flesh and so many like her mean millions of dollars in public health. Thanks to two months of good care, rest, nourishing food and experienced medical attention, Mrs. Roberts one day saw the scales register 149 a happy gain of 29¼ pounds she registered on entering, the bowed question, "Is there is she now?" Back at home, joyously receiving up the care of her family, grateful for her restoration to health, Mrs. Roberts, thankfully, without assistance from friends because poverty and tuberculosis so often go hand in hand. Will you help, please? A subscription sent to Dept. A, Room 224 College Street, Toronto, will be greatly appreciated.

U. E. L. CHAPTER I. O. D. E.

The regular monthly meeting of the U. E. L. Chapter, I. O. D. E., was held at the home of the Regent, Mrs. W. P. Deroche, East Street, Monday afternoon, November 3rd, with a splendid attendance of members. Reports from various activities were read, correspondence and other business attended to, and the finance committee instructed to arrange the winter's activities.

The speaker of the afternoon was Rev. Harry Pawson, of Trinity United Church.

Prefacing his remarks with the statement that an address to any organization, to be of interest, should touch on some subject or phase of that organization, Mr. Pawson, in his talk dealt chiefly with a "Greater Patriotism."

He urged the members of this chapter to use their influence in instilling a broader patriotism into the hearts and minds of all with whom they came in contact.

Mrs. P. S. Richardson expressed appreciation of the splendid and exciting talk, told briefly of the efforts of this chapter since its inception in 1912.

Mrs. U. M. Wilson seconded the vote of thanks.

A new member was received into the chapter and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

ARMISTICE DAY IN NAPANEE

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

Sunday was Thanksgiving. Nature had conspired to make a perfect setting for the thanksgiving service at the Cenotaph. The sun shone brightly casting its lengthening shadows, as the crowd of citizens from town and county, gathered to honor the memory of the men who gave their lives in the Great War.

The service was conducted from a rostrum which had been erected close to the east of the monument. It was opened with prayer, by Rev. W. P. Woodger. This was followed by a hymn "God of Our Fathers," led by the Napanee citizens band and the Frontenac Regiment Band. His Worship, Mayor Simpson, then addressed the assembled group, and said: "This is indeed a day of thanksgiving." "For a few years," he continued, the service at the monument had been left to a few private individuals and organizations, but now it was one in which all the town and county were officially represented. His worship paid a fitting tribute to the memory of those who had laid down their lives, and while they had given all they possessed, yet there were many veterans on parade today who had done excellent service and, in their willingness to die for their country, had done all they could. A grateful town and country should never forget the sacrifice they had made. He then expressed for the town the appreciation and sympathy to those relatives of the men whose names are carved on the monument.

Following this a selection was played by the Frontenac Band, and the wreaths were placed on the monument. Those who placed the wreaths were: Napanee Town Council, County Council of Lennox and Addington, Lennox District Women's Institute, Daughters of the Empire, Mr. and Mrs. George Warriman, Mrs. Percy Hooper, Mr. J. A. Daly, I. O. O. F. 86, 312, The Rotary Club, Frontenac Regiment, Gibbard Furniture Company, Bath Conservatory, Union Lodge, A.F. & A.M., Catholic Women's League, L.O.L. 398, Napanee Women's League, Bedore and Mother, and the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League. The names were read by the Reeve of the County, Mr. George Tustin.

Mr. Tustin, the warden of the county, then gave an address, in which he said that, as a county, they had cause to be a thankful one, in this county, still keep bright the memory of those who had gone before, and who had given their lives for the country. He saw, he said many men before him who had been in the Great War and had come through great suffering. He hoped that their memory will ever be kept green. It was the privilege of the nation to remember the living as well as the dead.

The Rev. Captain Wright, of the Frontenac Regiment, then addressed the gathering on the subject. He said, in part, that the spirit of self sacrifice which was in the hearts of those who died in the Great War, should as well dominate those who were living to-day. Sacrifice in time involved three things. It involved self denial, suffering and self surrender. These were surrendered of personal pleasures, homes and happiness to serve their God and country. They endured the pangs of hunger, disease, wounds and finally death and they surrendered themselves entirely to the cause that is right, if not make right. If the peace of the world is to be productive of great good and the world be made into the kind of a world that these men died to make possible, those of us who are still alive should be willing to emulate them in those qualities. Let them rest in peace. May God above witness this day as a consecration to peace and good-will on the part of all present.

"B" Company then gave the salute. The Last Post was sounded and the parade reformed and marched to the armouries for dismissal.

Besides those already mentioned there were on the platform, George Tustin, Reeve of the County, who acted as chairman and C. W. Hambley, M. P. P.

After the service at the Cenotaph, the Rotarians, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, British Empire Service League, accompanied by the Frontenac firing party, and headed by the Napanee Band, proceeded to Deseronto, where a wreath was laid on the cenotaph there and a salute was fired.

Grand Jury Presentment

To His Lordship,
Mr. Justice Wright.

Your Lordship:—

We, your Grand Jurors for the Fall Assizes held in Napanee, in the county of Lennox, present our desire to express:

1. Our congratulations on your appointment to the Bench, and our hope that you may be spared long and useful years in the service of your country.

2. That the Court House of the public buildings, which included the Court House, Gaol, Registry Office and Collegiate Institute, prompts the recommendation that a new range should be painted this fall, and we in the women's corridor and also the confining walls around the gaol yards should be repaired this fall, and we recommend that the Property Committee of the County Council see to the Dundas Street gaol that was done on the Napanee Waterworks canal ten years ago, as we feel that such a job as that would be most lasting. We find that there are six prisoners in the gaol and may say there were no complaints from any of the prisoners. We found the Gaol, Court House, Registry Office and Napanee Collegiate Institute in a well-kept condition, except that the cornices and ceiling appliances in the Collegiate Institute are very antiquated. We further recommend the windows of the Court House be painted, and the cornice and windows should be painted.

All of which is submitted.

J. ED. HARRISON,
Foreman.

The ban against the importation of livestock from the United Kingdom which went into effect on September 9th last has been modified with respect to cattle, sheep, other ruminants and swine from Scotland. Effective from October 20th, 1930, an order issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture under Section 17 of the Animal Contagious Diseases Act provides for the issuing of permits for the importation of livestock into Canada direct from points in Scotland, but the regular health certificate must be accompanied by an affidavit from the shipper that the animals embarked for Canada have been in Scotland for at least sixty days; that the animals are shipped direct from Scotland without touching at an English port; and that the feed on the ship was grown and stored entirely in Scotland.

PRESENTATION

The following address and presentation of two lovely gifts, a silk umbrella and a pair of kid gloves, was given at Mrs. R. Asselstine's home, to Mrs. J. Albert Amey, by her Moscow friends, who regret very much her removal to Napanee.

Mrs. John Bell read the address and Mrs. Cline presented the gifts.

Mrs. Amey made a very feeling and lovely reply, thanking the ladies and invited them to see her in her new home.

Following is the address:—

To Mrs. J. A. Amey: We have met today as often before, to spend an afternoon together in the atmosphere of our Institute. We feel that we never could have attained the success we now enjoy had we not been fortunate in securing such an able leader at the time of organizing.

As the first presidents of this society, you cradled it in its infancy and watched incessantly with your members until you were rewarded in building up one of the most helpful institutions of which we are proud.

In recognition of the services you have rendered, we have bestowed upon you the highest office possible to attain. We are proud to call you our Honorary President.

On further appreciation of your untiring efforts, we wish you to accept these gifts, and as the rain shall often fall on the fabric of this umbrella, may each little patter serve to represent a friend at Moscow, who is wishing you abundance of happiness in your new home in Napanee.

Macdonald Government Decidedly Will Not Tax Foreign Wheat

Next Election to Prove Whether Great Britain Is Ready For Empire Economic Development

As the Imperial Conference at London draws to a close, it becomes evident that Canada's Premier has a least translated the question of Empire trade development from an abstract problem into a concrete issue. And the issue is one which is likely to determine the fate of political parties in the Motherland within the next year.

The Macdonald Government will not tax wheat. While it remains in power Canadian, Australian, South African and Indian wheat will enjoy no advantage over Russian wheat. The difficulty from the Canadian standpoint is that the average Canadian farmer to support himself and his family according to Canadian standards, requires an income the equivalent of perhaps $10 per day, while the Russian farmer gets 28 cents per day from Communist headquarters. A price that means a profit for the Russian may well mean ruin for the Canadian.

Tax Wheat For Canadian Benefit

Opponents of the Canadian Government's proposals, in Canada as well as in Britain, say the plan asks Britain to tax foreign wheat for the benefit of Canada. They fail to explain that in return for his preference Canada offers the people of Britain Market for hundreds of millions of dollars worth of manufactured British goods; that the labor going into these goods will create an earning capacity in Britain out of all proportion to any increased cost of wheat. As yet, even the Conservative party in Britain has not embraced with enthusiasm the policy of a "food tax." Party counsellors are afraid of the century-old tradition against such taxes in England. There are abundant indications that, in the face of present unemployment the British people are not entirely sure that they are right and all the rest of the world is in error. Nor are they deaf to the fact that Mr. Bennett had the cordial support of Australia and South Africa in his plea for Empire tariff preferences.

The next election should prove the most interesting in the recent history of Britain. It will go a long way toward settling for the immediate future the extent to which Britain is ready to go in Empire economic development and in that respect will be of as deep interest to Canadians as to residents of the British Isles.

Address and Presentation

(Too Late For Last Issue)

On Wednesday evening, October 29, the Young People's Society and Choir of the United Church, Enterprise, held a Hallowe'en party in the basement of the church, which was largely attended, mostly everyone present being in costume or comic dress. At this gathering, Mrs. Harry Badgley was presented with a beautiful satin-bound Arondale basket by A. Y. P. S. and Choir of the United Church, of which she was a member.

Following is the address:

Dear Muriel—We, the members of the Young People's Society and Choir could not let this opportunity pass without showing our appreciation of your service in the Y. P. S. and Choir. We shall not only miss you in our Y. P. S. meetings, but also in the choir to which you always gave, unsparingly, of your time and talent. Always a faithful attendant, we trust that the feeling of friendship which existed here between you and ourselves will still continue.

We ask you to accept this blanket, not for its value, but for the feeling it expresses and trust you may long be spared to use it. We all join in wishing you every success and much happiness in your new home.

Signed on behalf of the Young People's Society, Allen Burgess, president; H. A. Carscallen, choir director.

Mrs. Badgley, in a few well chosen words, thanked the Society and Choir for the beautiful gift.

Fascinating Links In Canada's History

Although of no great value to this generation, the bronze medals struck at the Royal Mint in 1927, in commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of the passing of the British North American Act, will no doubt be great treasure in another sixty years. A sample of each of these medals is treasured at the Dominion Archives at Ottawa where so many links with history are guarded.

The smallest of these medals, which are about one inch in diameter, were distributed to all of the school children of Canada. Many of these are already lost, no doubt, but it is interesting to speculate on the number of grandchildren who will listen wide-eyed to the stories told tomorrow by the school children of today. There is a second size which is a reproduction of the small ones but few of these were cast.

The most interesting of the three medals is one about four inches in diameter which has His Majesty's effigy, crowned and robed, on the obverse side and on the reverse side is the figure emblematic of confederated Canada. It is the figure of a woman with outstretched arms pointing to east and west and she is standing on a pedestal on which is cut 1867-1927. The die for the obverse side was cut in the Royal Mint at London, England, and the medal was struck in the Ottawa branch of the Royal Mint, next door to the Dominion Archives, from metal produced in Canada.

There are many articles, pieces of furniture and personal belongings which were formerly owned by prominent men and women of the Dominion of Canada, in the Dominion Archives, at Ottawa. Those passing through and viewing these specimens are filled with wonder at the many historical things which the Archives has in its storehouse and reviews automatically the lives of the people represented.

A cane, which looks like an everyday cane carried by the man of business, with the exception that it has an ivory handle, was owned by Sir John A. Macdonald. He presented it to George Taylor, who was chief whip under the Conservative leader from 1867 until his death.

George Taylor in turn, gave it to Sir Robert L. Borden, when he was elected to the leadership in February 1901.

A WEEKLY PRACTICE

Sending the children away to school kept Mrs. Dean too busy to worry much about missing them. But after they were gone—how empty the house seemed! So she took to telephoning them every week, and how they all looked forward to these happy voice visits! Everyone has so much news to tell!

A Simple Treatment For Children's Colds

Cold in the head is very common at this time of year, especially in the very young. Neglect of a cold in those children often leads to serious consequences. To relieve all congestion of the system is the first step in treating a cold, whether in infants or adults. For the very young, Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal means of doing this. Containing no narcotic or other harmful drugs they soothe the child's constitution, relieve its suffering and ensure convalescence.

Baby's Own Tablets are without an equal for relieving indigestion, constipation and colic. They check diarrhoea, break up colds and prompt early promote health-giving sleep and make the dreaded teething period easy. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CANADIANS AFTER CHAMPIONSHIPS

Canadian farmers will again compete in the International Live Stock, Grain and Hay Show which will be held in Chicago, November 29th to December 6th. For several years Canadian farmers have been attracted by this world event and they have won a fair share of the coveted awards. In the competitive classes for fat cattle which the winner of which is acclaimed as the world's wheat king, Canada has won 14 times in the past 18 years. The Province of Saskatchewan won the crown on 11 occasions. In the past three years the Dominion has won 103 of the 130 prizes offered in the international competitions for grain. Last year of 40 prizes awarded for grain, 34 came to Canada.

Canada also scores highest in the entries for sheep in the livestock show. For several years the Ontario breeders have won about 85 per cent of the blue ribbons for sheep. In recent years a number of records for cattle and horses have also come to Canadians.

THE HIGHBROW

("Why cannot botanists call a spud a spud?" was a question put to a member of the Fifth International Congress at Cambridge. "It is better to call it Solanum tuberosum," was the stern reply.)

Some wretches call a spade a spade,
Refinement, why, they flout it!
They speak of spuds and call a trafaid.
They even boast about it.
I think such people's name is mud,
Such cads are ingrain 'em—
The better sort would call a spud
Solanum tuberosum.

I do not chew a learned cud,
Nor am I modern Pliable,
But I would never call it spud
Nor even a potato.

Such people don't expecitorate
And vow that I verbose am—
Such cloots do not appreciate
Solanum tuberosum.

I like it mashed as white as snow,
Or new and embryonic;
And when my spirits, feeling low,
Require an instant tonic,
I creep into some polished crypt
And order, for to dose 'em,
A portion, please, of fish with chipped
Solanum tuberosum!"

The Care Of Farm Machinery

Larger machines, greater numbers and higher prices have combined to increase very considerably the average farm investment in machinery in recent years. It was estimated in 1929 that the average Manitoba farm had nearly $3,000 worth of implements on which the annual depreciation, interest and repairing alone, amounts to $460. An investment as costly as this, to be profitable, requires that machinery should not only operate efficiently but that the life of inefficiency should be as long as possible. This cannot be expected unless good care is given.

The sevenfold illustrations of stations in Manitoba and Eastern Saskatchewan, under supervision of the Dominion Experimental Farms, are a source for useful data relative to the cost of operation, the life period, and the influence of care on machinery. The majority of operators on these stations agree that there are two main essentials contributing towards the profitable use of a machine, (a) durability of build, (b) the care given to it. As to what care should be accorded a machine there is, however, a difference of opinion. It is generally conceded that proper lubrication and prompt housing are necessary, but, as a housing some do not think it pays to build a shed for machinery, while others consider the implement shed a very valuable part of the farm equipment.

Granting that the importance of timely and thorough lubrication is fully recognized, and that minor breakages are promptly repaired, they often lead to a disastrous end, the most debatable point of shelter for machinery will be discussed.

It is far too common a practice on prairie farms to leave a machine in the field where it was last used until it is again to be put into action. A high priced seed drill may be seen in a field at harvest, time being cut around and left in a smother of grass and weeds. A binder may sit along a fence row to decay throughout its long season of inactivity while other implements of lesser or even greater importance find resting places which are far from suitable to their preservation. The best and most profitable place for such machinery is not even in carefully placed rows in the corner of the farmyard but in a suitable shed which need not cost much to erect.

This is the opinion of a large number of Manitoba farmers who have implement sheds and who carefully store their machinery in them for the long winter season, and who take a pride in keeping machinery thus stored in go odshape. In fact, a lot of machinery and good farming go hand in hand for it is generally observed that the man who takes a pride in keeping his implements in good shape, in maintaining a tidy yard and farm and in placing these implements in a shed especially for the winter, is a farmer who is neat and thorough in all his work. He knows that tools in poor shape cannot do good work and that the results of inefficient work are decreased cash returns.

Another factor usually overlooked, but which affects materially the care given machinery, is the cost of maintainance and operation. Machinery accounts are so infrequently kept that farmers have little idea how expensive it is to operate a machine. Yet it are the running expenses for many of our recently introduced large machines that if accounts were kept as they should be, there would be a greater incentive to the particular care while the time a machine is in operation and while it is idle. During the last two years the Division of Illustration Stations, Brandon Experimental Farm, sent out questionaires to 200 farmers relative to the operation of harvester threshers. None of the replies carried complete cost of operating data, while only 20 per cent were able to give any of these data at all.

These days, when it is so essential to lower the cost of production, chiefly by the use of labour saving machinery, it is very necessary indeed to know what it costs to operate a machine and to give such careful attention as will ensure for it a longer and more profitable life.

TYENDINAGA EAST WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

(Too Late for Last Issue)

The regular meeting of Tyendinaga East Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. J. McKee, on October 17th, with an attendance of sixteen. The President, Mrs. W. M. Withington was in charge.

The roll call was answered by humorous stories. Correspondence re the Belleville Conference was read by Mrs. Robert MacFarlane in her own pleasing interesting style. It was decided to have the tickets on the quilt made by our W. I. members sold at 10 cents each and Mrs. MacKay kindly offered of the funds so received. The lucky ticket will be drawn at the December meeting and bazaar.

The T. E. W. I. accepted the invitation of the Corbyville W. I. to furnish the programme at their December meeting.

Mrs. James Haggerty gave a very interesting demonstration on the coverall dress hangers with crepe paper. She also showed a tray and explained how she had lacquered it from an old one into a pretty and useful article. She also explained how she was making muffin pans into a tray for carrying glasses.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

The quilt blocks were then set together and some work done on them. This was finished later and sold at the Institute Bazaar on the 29th of March. Gordon Topping. - A social half hour followed and the members left after a most interesting meeting.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert MacFarlane on Friday evening, 28th inst. Members please note the change of date and all visitors will be warmly welcomed.

EGYPTIAN BARLEY AS OLD AS THE HILLS ARRIVES AT THE O. A. C.

The Ontario Agricultural College makes it a point to keep abreast of the times in all matters pertaining to agriculture. It also gives its students instruction in the history of this most ancient, and honourable art.

In this connection an interesting exhibit has just been placed in its museum in the form of a sample of barley taken, during the past summer, from grain pits of the time of Solomon (Tenth Century, B.C.) at Tell-Para, in Egypt. The grain is somewhat blackened by age, but has fairly well retained its natural form through these thirty centuries.

It was presented to the College by the Director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Archaeology.

CANADIAN GROWN BEST GARDEN SEED

It has long been recognized by agricultural authorities and progressive farmers that the best seed for growing crops of field roots and garden vegetables is that which is produced in Canada. Such seed has the dual advantage of natural environment and careful selection for quality, thus ensuring results which make it well worth while paying even a substantial premium for Canadian grown seed.

The Seed Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has been giving special attention to the development of the production of field root and garden vegetable seed in Canada. The results to-the present time are particularly encouraging. British Columbia growers who used to count their plantation in acres now speak in terms of hundreds of acres, and where they used to speak of small lots of seed they now speak in terms of tons and hundreds of pounds. The Canadian seed industry is while rapidly assuming importance as a commercial feature is faced with two difficulties; the first of these is the lack of experienced seed growers, and the other, the fact that Canadian grown seed must bring a price slightly higher than imported seed for the present at least.

The south coast area of British Columbia is especially well adapted to the production of the seed of biennial root and vegetable crops, such as the mangel, carrot, beet, parsnip, onion, etc., which require two years for the production of seed. One of the most hopeful factors of the present situation is the similarity of climate in this part of Canada with that of the big seed producing areas of Europe, which are located in Holland, Denmark and part of France.

About all that remains necessary to establish a permanent supply of high grade Canadian field root and vegetable seed is for producers of seed and farmers requiring it to get together on a practical working basis. Not only the use of Canadian grown seed helps to develop an important Canadian industry but the higher and natural advantages for the production of such seed will mean a great deal to Canadian farmers.

PART II

FIVE - YEAR PLAN

Why Russia Is Dumping

(Bl Harry Sacher)

Everyone admits that the economic stress in Russia is greater than it was two or three years ago, and that the change is directly due to the attempt of the Soviet Government to carry into effect a double economic revolution. The New Economic Policy — Lenin's retreat under the pressure of desperate need -from the earlier crude military Socialism of the civil war period—gave considerable elbow-room to private enterprise in industry and commerce, while agriculture remained on a strictly individualistic basis. It restored Russia's industrial capacity practically to the pre-war level, but it made Socialism appear a very distant prospect. Private enterprise having achieved its purpose of saving Russia from complete economic collapse, its death sentence was certain to be pronounced by a Russian Communist Government. The first blow was struck in the industrial and commercial sphere. The Five-year Plan, to operate from 1927-8 to 1932-3, was to achieve transformation. It was estimated that in the first of these years public capital invested in Russia, (including agriculture) was 56.7 per cent and private 43.3 per cent, and that in 1932-3 the corresponding figures would be 72.6 per cent and 21.4 per cent. These estimates will, in all probability be greatly exceeded. First, the socialisation of industry and still more of agriculture has proceeded at a greater pace than was included in the Five-year Plan, to operate from 1927-8 to 1932-3, was to achieve transformation. Tobacco, besides being grown in Ontario, is manufactured in 32 factories in that province. There are 115 tobacco factories in the whole of Canada, which in 1928 used 22,000,000 pounds of Canadian raw leaf and 17,900,000 pounds of imported leaf. Over 6,200,000 pounds of manufactured tobacco leaf were exported from Canada during the year 1929, of which the United Kingdom took nearly 95 per cent.

Old, Contracted Limbs, Joints and Tendons

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy to help their condition.

Sufferers should ask for a small bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any good druggist's. It softens the cartilage, takes the soreness out of the ligaments and tendons and eases the pain. The first application gives instant relief and comfort. Thousands have reduced large, ugly varicose veins and ulcers by simply applying Moone's Emerald Oil as directed. All good druggists have it.

The Human Element

In a Socialist as in a capitalist State the national income must proceed from the costs of production. These are undoubtedly very high in Russia, and it must be many years, if ever, before they drop to the level of Western countries. It is not enough to have the latest plant and equipment; there must be skill and energy in direction and efficiency in labour. Russia has a shortage of technical specialists and of organisers, and the political system reduces the value of what she has. Every large enterprise has side by side its technical director and its political director, a Communist who is to see that the expert does not "sabotage" and to adjust the relations between administrators and workers. Ever since Stalin established and confirmed his indisputable ascendancy he has come to be a member of the "intelligentsia" is to be suspect. The tendency is to attribute every flaw in the working out of the plan to deliberate sabotage by the experts, whose life is becoming increasingly precarious and unhappy. The expert hand of a works will not risk any step unless he is covered by express authority from his political masters, and energy, vigour and enterprise fade. Only a minority of the workers are skilled and trained. The great majority are inexperienced peasants, quite new to industry, so that their efficiency is, and must be for years, low. Nor has the Communist State eliminated the antagonism between employed and employer. The State, as employer, is interested to have the maximum surplus, so that it may have the means to carry out its vast designs; the worker tends to look upon the factory as his, so that he is entitled to as much of the output as he can lay hold on. Not all the preaching and propaganda avail to prevent bad timekeeping and bad work, and not all the machinery of adjustment and control eliminate friction in the determination of wages and conditions. Tomsky was removed from the headship of the trade unions because he developed too definitely a trade union point of view. The biggest disappointment and the biggest accumulation of the framers of the Five-year Plan has been the human element.

A minor but serious difficulty hardly foreseen has been in the financing of the plan. The industrial equipment of Russian requires large imports of machinery and plant to be paid for by corresponding exports of Russian products. The fall in commodity prices has stranded Russia's finances almost to breaking point. She has had to dump her goods abroad at any price they would fetch, and in any quantities, no matter how short her own subjects might have to go. It is an error to suppose that this dumping springs from a deep design to upset the economy of capitalistic countries and to hasten the coming of a Bolshevik revolution. It springs from the bitter need to obtain foreign currency with which to meet foreign bills, and it involves the Russian Government and the Russian people in heavy sacrifices.

Government Grades Are New Standard

One of the most important developments in many years in the poultry industry, and one which means a really great deal to the individual farmer, is the announcement made last week by the Hon. Hon. Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, of the acceptance by the "trade" as represented at the point of contact in the leading wholesale buyers, of the "Canadian Standards for Dressed Poultry," more popularly referred to as the "official government grades", as the standard for trading purposes.

Equally important is the establishment of price differentials between the several grades which make up the Canadian Standards, which will ensure that the farmer who feeds and finishes his poultry in shape for the better grades will get direct and substantial financial benefit.

The story in a nutshell is that the wholesale buyer finds that the old flat rate system of purchase doesn't work out on the right side of the ledger, and that buying with a comparatively few "milkfed" and "Selected A" birds he gets a whole raft of poor to fair grade stuff which he can only work off at a loss, and in many instances during the past two or three years that loss has been written down in red ink to the tune of thousands and in some instances hundreds of thousands of dollars. The result of the situation is that the leading wholesale buyers are coming right out into the open, declaring that their success and success of the farmer who supplies them, alike, lies in a square deal for quality products. That is the reason they are now willing to operate on the official government grades as the basis for trading.

Just how important this is to the individual farmer can be readily appreciated in the light of the information supplied by poultry experts of the Federal Department of Agriculture. In the first place, the average farm flock bird marked without special finishing would probably grade around "Selected B". By crate feeding from two to five weeks, depending on the type of bird, it should be possible to add around one pound in weight, and to raise grade classification from "Selected B" to "Milkfed A or B"—in other words, to cash in on the premium differentials on from two to three grades, or something around 50 to 75 cents per bird. In the second place, feeding experts state that it requires around 7 to 8 cents per pound to raise a bird to maturity, around five pounds, and only from 5 to 6 cents per pound to crate feed and properly finish that bird—in other words, the last pound of weight costs less to put on.

Consumer demand to-day is for a quality product in poultry. By the provision of a scale of adequate differentials controlled by current economic considerations, the direct benefit of the consumer price for the better grades of poultry is passed on to the producer. It means that it now pays the farmer to feed and finish his poultry before sending it to market, in fact, unless he finished his poultry he is going to be rather disappointed in the net returns he receives, while if he create feeds and finishes his market birds he stands to get substantially better returns than he would by selling his flock without special feeding on a flat rate basis as formerly.

The way in which this benefit is passed on to the producer is through the medium of differentials in price between grades. The leading wholesale buyers have guaranteed the payment of a minimum differential premium of 3 cents per pound for poultry grading in the milkfed classes over the corresponding grades in the selected class. Supplementing this will be differentials between grades within classes, the differential increasing substantially with each increase in grade.

The really big feature in the agreement on the part of the leading wholesale buyers is that they have given a real incentive to make poultry raising an attractive business proposition for the farmer, since he's now assured of getting adequate return for producing a quality product for the dressed poultry market.

FERTILIZERS BRING PROFITS ON POTATOES

During the past summer the Department of Chemistry, Ontario Agricultural College, in co-operation with the Boys' Training School at Bowmanville, has conducted an extensive test with fertilizers of varying analyses on the potato crop. In the experiments two sets of plots were used. On the first set the fertilizers were applied at the rate of 1,000 lbs. per acre and in the second set at the rate of 500 lbs per acre. In each set one plot was left without fertilizer for comparison. Uniform soil and uniform quality of seed was used throughout, and each plot, 1/20 acre in acre, all plots were given the same treatment.

In both these tests and on this soil a 2-12-6 fertilizer seemed to give materially better results than any other. A partial explanation of this may be found in the fact that the potato field was fairly well covered with barnyard manure.

Where fertilizers were applied at 1000 lbs per acre the average yield of potatoes was 241.5 bushels against an average where no fertilizer was applied of 162.1, leaving a gain from fertilizers of 79.4 bushels per acre. The average cash appropriation was $22.50. If potatoes at $1.00 per bushel this would leave a net gain of $56.90 an acre after the fertilizer was paid for.

Where fertilizers were applied at the rate of 500 lbs per acre the average yield of potatoes was 190.6 bushels as compared with 162.1 bushels where no fertilizer was used, leaving a gain of 28.5 bushels per acre. Here the average cost of fertilization was $11.25 per acre with an average yield of 28.5 bushels of potatoes. At $1.00 per bushel this would leave a net gain of $16.24 per acre after the fertilizer was paid for.

The above results are for a one year test only, and while they corroborate findings in other places, it is planned to repeat the experiment for at least one more year.

SENDS SARGON TO FAR OFF ROUMANIA

President of Big Canadian Firm Says He Found Sure Anything To Equal New Treatment

"After taking five bottles of Sargon and two bottles of the Soft Mass Pills I want to say that in all my 70 years I've never seen anything to equal this remarkable treatment," recently said Jacob Gherman, President of the Western Hardware Co., Limited, Winnipeg, Canada, who moved to Winnipeg from Roumania 30 years ago and who has acquired extensive real estate holdings in that city.

"In fact, Sargon has been of such great help to me that I am sending a full treatment to two friends of mine back in my old home country. I wrote them what a wonderful medicine it is and how it relieved my health after all other medicines and treatments failed.

"I suffered torture with indigestion after meals and only those who have had this terrible affliction know what a blessed relief it means to get rid of it. I also suffered from chronic constipation almost as far back as I can remember.

"After the first few doses of Sargon my stomach seemed to right itself, my nerves grew stronger and I began to sleep well and now I am in better health generally than I have been in years.

"I used to take a physic almost every day of my life, but since taking Sargon Pills my bowels are as regular as clockwork. Their action is natural and makes them especially suited to elderly people like myself. I only hope my statements will help other sufferers."

This is only one of the thousands of cases where grateful men and women have told of the wonderful benefits from Sargon that they have sent it to their relatives and friends in distant lands.

Sargon may be obtained in Napanee, at Wallace's Drug Store, who has been awarded the exclusive Sargon agency for this town.

EGG CONSUMPTION

Occasion was taken by the President of the Canadian Poultry Pool to, the recent Poultry Congress to explain to his audience how it is that Canada has the largest per capita consumption of eggs. This is attributed to the efficient co-operative marketing system and the compulsory egg grading which standardized the eggs and created at strategic freight centres for assembling, grading and packing the eggs which are handled and graded according to Government regulations. The purchaser receives a graded statement to which is attached a cash ticket, or advance payment for approximately 75% of the current wholesale value of the eggs. At the end of the Pool period, which generally runs about two months a final settlement is made.

The entire operating cost of the marketing organization was stated to be not more than 4½ cents per dozen. The Canadian Poultry Pool, it was stated, now markets about 75% of the surplus products from the four Western provinces, the value of which last year amounted to $5,364,000.

DANGER FROM COLDS

Every woman beyond middle age should realize that a majority of the troubles she has to fear have their origin in what is known as common colds. Each attack lowers her vitality and reduces resistance to disease. At this season of the year every woman should see that her blood is toned up to meet the rigors of the climate and especially that strength should be restored after any cold, however slight. After this Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a reliable tonic.

These Pills are not a mere stimulant giving temporary relief. They build up the body by creating that rich red blood which imparts the glow of health; steadies the nerves improves the appetite and digestion and make the users capable of withstanding the rigors of our Fall and Winter months. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PETERBOROUGH, ONT.

Recent trade enquiries received by the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce from outside points include the following commodities: cheese, eggs, condensed milk, canned fruits, potatoes lard, flour, drugs, yarns, wooden handles, hardware, apples, wheat, silk goods, leather, hand shuttles, raw hides, rabbit skins, woollen stockings, lumber, electrical accessories, maple syrup, binder twine, rolled oats, asbestos, farm implements and machinery, and barrel staves.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?

Countless remedies are advertised for constipation. Many relieve for the moment but they are habit forming and must be continued. Others contain calomel and dangerous mineral drugs, which remain in the system, settle in the joints and cause aches and pains. Some are harsh purgatives which cramp and gripe and leave a depressed after effect.

Avoid lubricating oils which only grease the intestines and encourage nature's machinery to become lazy.

A purely vegetable laxative such as Carter's Little Liver Pills, gently touches the liver, bile starts to flow, the bowels move gently, the intestines are thoroughly cleansed and constipation poisons pass away. The stomach, liver and bowels are now active and the system enjoys a real tonic effect. All druggists 25c and 75c red pkge.

JUST LIKE OLD TIMES

A runaway team is a novelty nowadays. But is a novelty still frought with danger as Mr. Benjamin Post found out on Saturday. He was holding a team of young horses in front of Wilson's Hardware store, when they bolted, smashing into a car, owned by C. D. Cramer, of Eginsburg. The team smashed the fenders of the car and cut one of the tires in two.

WORK BEGINS AGAIN

On Monday afternoon, the ladies of Napanee begin their annual task of preparing to meet the needs of children in Napanee. Already, a preliminary survey has been made and the need is pressing.

The depression and consequent lack of employment hits Napanee as well as other places. Those who suffer most are those least able to bear the strain. The little children will be the first to suffer. In the past The Beaver has been the medium through which much relief work was done. Again we come to our readers, asking help—not for ourselves but others.

Next Monday, the women who cooperate with The Beaver, begin work. They need funds at once to buy material. Please make your subscription as generous as possible. Make all cheques payable to Beaver Santa Claus Fund. The gifts will be acknowledged through The Beaver. All amounts will be economically spent and all accounts properly audited.

WEDDING BELLS

HAGERMAN—CAMPBELL

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in Grace United Church, by Rev. W. P. Woodger, on Wednesday, November 5th, at 2.00 p.m., when Maude Campbell, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vanclief, of Marlbank, became the bride of Leonard Earle Hagerman, of Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hagerman, of Bath.

The young couple were unattended. The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Frank Vanclief, looked charming in a gown of white silk crepe with veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pink roses with maiden hair fern. Mendelsohn's Wedding March was played by a sister of the groom, Mrs. B. Kitchen, A.L.C.M., of Kingston, and during the signing of the register, another sister of the groom, Miss Lorraine Hagerman, sang "Melody of Love."

The ceremony was witnessed by quite an assembly of friends of both bride and groom, who were given a very hearty sendoff upon their honeymoon. The happy couple will make their home in Oshawa.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of our dear Son and Brother, Elmer A. Bradshaw, who passed away at Montreal, November 11th, 1922.

Gone from our home forever,
A beloved one of our band;
Crossed o'er the mystic river
Into the Sunshine Land.
Gone from a world of sorrow,
Gone from a bed of pain;
Into eternal gladness
Never to weep again.
Lovingly remembered by his Mother, Sister and Brothers. 46ap

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear Mother Margaret Storr, who departed this life, November 7th, 1928.

She always had some cheerful word,
Her smiles we see them yet;
Her tender love for every one
We never shall forget.
And when all is still and silent,
And sleep furnishes our eyes;
Our thoughts are in that silent grave
Where our dear Mother lies.
Tenderly remembered by her Daughters. 46ap

Steel-riveted Lennox Torrid Zone Furnace Has Extra Large Radiator—And Its Gas-tight

Many home owners report a yearly saving of from $30 to $50 in fuel since buying a Torrid Zone Warm Air Furnace. The special coil-burning model saves even more, and is recommended by all oil burner manufacturers.

Design as much as construction is responsible for this economy. The steel plate, which is hot-riveted and cold-calked to prevent leaking of gas, smoke, or dust, conducts heat more quickly than cast iron and is more durable. But it is the efficient design of the fire-pot and radiator which gets more heat from fuel.

The deep fire-pot insures better combustion. The oversized radiator makes the gases and smoke escaping from the fire-pot travel from 15 to 20 feet before going up the chimney—squeezing from them every last possible bit of heat.

There are seventy-nine different Torrid Zone types and sizes for heating every different type and size of building—and they burn and save hard coal, soft coal, coke, lignite, wood, gas or oil. The Lennox Furnace Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Ont. and Winnipeg, Man.

WORLD SUBSIDIZE REGULAR ATLANTIC COMMERCE BY AIR

Granting of subsidies to British ships for the assistance in the establishment of a regular commercial air service between Canada and Great Britain should be viewed with favor by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, according to a resolution accorded by that body at its recent fifth annual meeting.

Following the same meeting the Canadian organization expressed the opinion that every encouragement be given to the development of "All Red" aviation routes connecting the various parts of the British Empire.

A resolution was also passed to encourage in every way possible the establishment and maintenance of air ports and airdromes at municipal centres throughout Canada."

Miller's Worm Powders not only make the infantile system untenable to worms, but by their action on the stomach, liver and bowels, they correct such troubles as lack of appetite, biliousness and other internal disorders that the worms create. Children thrive upon them and no matter what condition their worm-driven stomachs may be in, they will show improvement as soon as the treatment begins.

HAS LOWEST INFANT MORTALITY RECORD

New Zealand has broken its own record for the lowest infant mortality in the world by a new low of 34 deaths per 1,000 live births during 1929. A limited attack in New Zealand on the causes of infants deaths has been responsible for the record of the country in the South Pacific.

The most recent figures for the majority of foreign countries are for 1927. Following New Zealand are Santa Domingo, Norway, Australia, Switzerland and The Netherlands. Official records for 1928 give England and Wales an infant death rate of 65 per 1,000 live births. 68 for the Irish Free State.

Great War Created Firmer Unity Within The British Empire

URGES PURCHASE OF EMPIRE GOODS

A splendid article, written by Jean Graham, was recently issued in the Canadian Home Journal. It deals with shopping in the Empire and she insists that Canadian manufacturers are quite equal to the demand of today. She says:

"Many years ago, a certain wise statesman adviser us to think imperially." Ever since the late Joseph Chamberlain gave up that advice we British subjects have been widening our political outlook, until Monitors now understands the difference between Australia and New Zealand, while Tortactually is interested in the aspirations of Gandhi. The advance in transportation and sound transmission may account partly for the increase in imperial acquaintanceship. But there is a firmer and greater bond to day between the nations which form the British Empire. The offering made in those dark years (1914-1918) when the manhood of all British countries made the supreme sacrifice in the cause of freedom and righteousness, has created a unity unknown before.

However, in recent years, the loyalty to country and empire, has been expressed in material form, as British subjects have realized that their patriotic spirit should take a practical expression. It is all very well to sing "Rule Britannia" and "God Save The King," but we must let our patriotism touch our pocket books, if it is to be the real thing. The women of the country are the purchasers of the household supplies and often of the clothing for every member of the household. Then, let the housewife see to it that she gives preference to goods made in Canada and in other countries. If Canada is referred to, proudly, as the granary of the Empire — and our flour supplies are referred to none. There is no excuse for the Canadian woman not to be a good cook. The Golden Wheat sends us such wonderful flour in thousands of barrels. Some years ago, the Manitoba Free Press", in a desire to impress upon Canadians the importance of their grain products, sent out as gifts at Christmas, tiny barrels of flour from Vermilion, Alberta, the farthest north flour mills in the British Empire, where Jesuit missionaries preached several centuries ago. Now, we do not need to be urged to buy our flour — nor our fruit — but our manufactures are another story. Many of us who talk with enthusiasm of our British traditions, and who wave the Union Jack on all national holidays will avoid the purchase of Canadian shoes or perfume or tea. Suppose that the Germans should produce the prettiest and most ingenious toys in the world. Is, that any reason why we should give them our perfectly good Canadian dollars, in exchange for a doll or a horn? Let us develop and encourage top industries of our own, instead of building up the manufactures of those who intend to crush British trade — and even Britain, herself.

Then a Canadian woman may come along and ask: "What about our own manufactures? Why don't they produce better goods?" Now, it just happens that she was complaining of Canadian shoes. Fortunately, we are able to tell her where she could buy good Canadian shoes and she has been delighted ever since. In hosiery and gloves, Canada produces excellent goods, and everyone knows that the modern woman must be fastidious in the choice of each. Then in the matter of underwear and lingerie, we find that Canadian manufacturers are quite equal to the demands of today. This is saving a great deal, for we believe that never were women more exacting than in these days, when dainty undies — as our English friends call them — are to be considered. Then in the finer toilet products, the Canadian manufacturer has made great strides, until the soap, toilet water, perfume and face powder can be compared with Parisian products. In spite of the fact that which we should be expected of the Canadian manufacturer pays higher wages than the Frenchman or the German, he has been able to produce toys and jewellery which vie with anything from Berlin or even Geneva. While we are opposed to the world trade, we wish to place Canada and other British countries on their own feets fifty cents or a dollar to encourage our own folk. There is an imperialism which we all dislike — that of snobbery which prostrates itself before a decoration or a title. But there is imperialism in both practical and ideal, when it says: "Buy from British firms."

Authority No Longer Dreaded.— The

dread of renewed attacks from asthma has no hold upon those who have learned to rely upon Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. So safe do they feel that complete reliance is placed upon this specific with the certainty that it will always do all that its makers claim. If you have not yet learned how safe you are with this preparation at hand get it to-day and know for yourself.

CANADIAN OUTFIT WILL BE SENT TO LITTLE PRINCESS

An outfit for the new princess, whose name they have not chosen, made in the Canada-produced Angora rabbit wool has been the work of the new Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire Chapter at North Vancouver, who have applied for the charter name of Princess Margaret Rose of York.

The little outfit has been completed and will be mailed to Buckingham Palace before December. Spun in superfine quality of angora rabbit honespun the three pieces of the set are beautifully worked in pearl stich and finished with soft satin ribbons in an oyster white which harmonizes with the soft nature hairs of the rabbit wool.

The wool was obtained from a rabbit farm in Victoria, spun into yarn by a Victoria lady and knitted by the president of the Women's Institute in Victoria.

His Faux Pas. "Do you mean to say," asked the magistrate, "that such a physical wreck as your husband gave you that black eye"?

The women smiled proudly.

"It wasn't a physical wreck, your worship," she said, "till 'e gave me that black eye."

The Fruits Of Inventive Minds

New Ideas From International Exhibits in London

One of the things to be learned at this year's international exhibition of inventions, which opened to-day at the Central Hall, is that man is preeminently the inventing animal. Out about four thousand applicants for patents every year only about 500 are women.

There are a good many women's ideas among the hundreds of interesting and entertaining new devices, but they are usually small domestic contrivances, such as a kettle that will not boil over, or the electric cooker that will grill, toast, and boil, and, if put to it, acts as a radiator as well. But even in the kitchen the male mind is active, and it is, for instance, a man who has thought of a way how to make a steak tender, not by flogging it, but by pricking it with a sharp little knife.

There are over four hundred inventions on view of every degree of usefulness and ingenuity. In the hall upstairs one can see the bright thoughts that have survived the experimental stage, and become commercial propositions. Downstairs are the inventions on trial, and these are perhaps the most entertaining. The lower hall might be compared to an experimental garden where new notions are allowed to sprout, the hardy and attractive plants being afterwards transplanted and grown for the market.

Perpetual Motion Again

One notes that the ancient problems on which ingenious people have been working for centuries are still being tackled — perpetual motion, for example. There is a clerk at St. Albans who has produced a new kind of coupling on an engine shaft; and it is claimed for the machine that the power output exceeds the power input, if the word may be used. The more modern worry of what to do with old razor-blades has stimulated a fresh crop of solutions. One of these uses the blade in a patent vegetable peeler.

A new question that inventors are answering in various ways is the grave one of what to ro with half-burnt cigarettes when it is inconvenient to go on smoking—at a dance, for instance. There is a kind of cigarette-holder into which you can slip the cigarette for concealment in the pocket and another notion is a little pocket ash case which will appeal to very tidy people. Then there is the old trouble of how to invent an unloseable collar stud. There is one here with an attachment which grips the neckband of the shirt.

Thief Alarm For Cars

Among the new machines nothing is more curious than the model of a thing called the helsiplane, which looks rather like a combination of a submarine, aeroplane and battleship. The inventor says that in this helsiplane he hopes to cross the Atlantic with 900 passengers in about fifteen hours. Lancashire inventions, of whom there are between forty and fifty are most prominent in the heavy mechanical and electrical sections. One Lancashire notion is a theft-proof contraption for motor-cars. It is a ball-controlled arrangement, and if the car is started by someone who has no business to do it a ball will fall and cut out the ignition and give an alarm.

A Manchester man shows a metal chair made in parts so that it can be used as a stool, and from Lancashire comes a collapsible umbrella that will go in the pocket or an attache case. One has the specifications of a boat that is propelled by the motion of the waves, and details are available of a machine for utilizing the energy of the wind to drive mechanism or perform other useful work.

A large number of inventions are of the space-saving order, an important consideration in the day of limited house room. There is, for instance, a sort of dressing cabinet which should appeal to the sort of man who objects to getting out of bed. It is mounted on a wheeled stand, and has drawers for clothes and all the necessary gadgets for the toilet. It can be placed over the bed like an invalid's table so that your lazy man can shave and wash and have another sleep till someone gets him out for breakfast.

There are not many agricultural inventions, but there is a six-motorcar seat for hens, which keeps a record of each egg, and, what is more, detains recently in the nest the hen that lays too light an egg, until she has done her duty one supposes. The automatic hen feeder is another boon to poultry. Once inside, the rat might as well give it up, and as for the cautious animal, it is well to be assured that the working of the apparatus cannot be disturbed either by the rat.

Engagements on Watch Face

Among the aids to memory there is a method of jotting down appointments on the face of your watch, so that when you have to see Jones at 10.30 you write it on the hour. There is a new musical instrument which hums melodiously, and first aid is given to the benighted man by the totalisator odds calculator, which will show you at any moment the state of the betting on any horse and the dividend payable.

In the way of sport, apart from miniature golf courses, there is a bicycle fitted with a gadget which allows the rider to raise or lower the saddle while he is riding. This should be useful in traffic, as the cyclist is able to put his feet on the ground while seated. There is even a pipe specially designed for the man with false teeth.

Rachel Had A Brooch

(BY LOUIS GOLDING)

Rachel Shulman was our Rabbi's only daughter. All the other children were boys. It was a fortunate dispensation of providence that Rachel had been born a girl, for who else could have looked after all those boys when Mrs. Shulman, -peace be upon her, died?

It was a difficult problem feeding so many mouths. Rabbi Shulman had as much instinct for money as for Ming china. People came. Sometimes they left money for the advice he gave them, sometimes they did not. Sometimes a fat chicken would turn up from nowhere, dead or alive. Sometimes there would be nothing in the house for days on end but a few raw herrings. Sometimes the house, all of a sudden, was as full of clucking as a farmyard. There might even be a guided quacking at the kitchen sink.

All the children looked exactly like each other. Rachel looked exactly like the boys, excepting that she was a girl, and they were boys. Solly looked exactly like Benjamin, one year his junior, and Benjamin exactly like Yossel. The only way of getting them their right names was to see them all together at work downward from the eldest or upward from the baby.

Rabbi Shulman regularly mixed them all up. Rachel was the only member of the household who could say their names straight off. Her own stockings were always falling down, she spent so much times lifting up the stockings of her brothers. She had a heart of gold. It is possible that there was some beauty in her face, if you could ever have seen it clean enough her hair. But the boys' hair and the boys' clothes required every moment of her working day, and that went on far into the night and might not end till heaven knew when after noon the next day.

Rachel Shulman had a brooch. It was a nickel-gilt brooch with diamonds in it as large as the Koh-i-noor. They were not real diamonds. One of them was missing. Rachel overlooking else in the world, from the bread-knife to the washing-tub. She dropped them behind the sofa, as a rule, even the washing-tub; for if one washing-tub was missing sooner or later another washing-tub would turn up from somewhere. But she and her brooch clung to each other with the tenacity of a rock and a shellfish. It was a lovely brooch, and Rachel everything else can explain its sublime persistence. There was a time when she did not possess it. Then there was a time when she did. Only one diamond was missing from it earlier on. There were two missing some years later. But she had not yet learned it, though no one could say how many bread-knives and wash-tubs she had mislaid by that time or dropped carelessly behind the sofa.

Her Boy' Friend's Gift

Who gave it her? I for my part was never in a position to say who gave it her. She had a boy, clearly, some time in her girlhood. She never had a boy again; at least not in the secret, rosy sense of the word. A boy in inverted commas, a boy whom you might fearfully meet on the edge of a picture-fair, beyond the brightness of lamplight, a boy who held your hands and kissed you, and gave you a love-token. A brooch with diamonds as big as the Koh-i-noor.

Who could such a boy be, who kissed Rachel Shulman on the edge of the clayeroft? Or would say there was not, there could not be such a boy? Would even say that she found that brooch and built up in her imagination a boy to give it to her? Only one sort of hands he'd have when he pinned it on her breast, and the sort of lips he'd have to kiss her with after he'd pinned it on? Let us not suspect such a-thing. Or the thought of that fifteen-cent piece of jewellery with its two or three persisting diamonds and its two blind sockets becomes painful indeed.

Of course she must have had a boy once. Nobody suspected him. Who would suspect? Wasn't she in the house for whole days at a time, to look after Solly and Benjamin and Yossel and Yankel and Issy? But if she was not there, nobody would miss her, either. If no food was ready, then none would be eaten. One or two of the smallest boys might get fractious. But the others wouldn't, not for a day or two anyhow. As for the old man, he'd not notice it if he didn't get anything to eat for a week or so. Or longer perhaps; until his clothes fell from out of his enfeebled and enormous body, still bowed over the page of Talmud in which he was always glazing eyes, of the light that shone in the Cave of Machpelah whilst Jacob dwelt in the tent that was Rachel's he went forth to Egypt, and did not cause again to be his body was brought back to his own land.

So Rachel had a brooch. She will have had it still when she died, on the day she dies. It will not occur to anyone to jab it into her shroud, and much as I would like to, I will not be a herself give any instructions to that effect. Perhaps somebody that time will drop it behind the sofa. And perhaps somebody, the day after that, will dig it up behind the sofa. But, nobody will want that brooch.

Rachel had a brooch, but she never had a garden party. She had no idea about the first. But she told the girls of our street more than once how nice it would be to go to a garden party, even more, to give a garden party for her birthday. It wasn't that she had social ambitions. But it had happened once that the aristocratic young lady from the big store at the corner had some in "from an aristocratic suburb, and she was all pink like a pink fairy. Everything she had a pink frock and sash; and she did not smell so much of bath-salts as she waddled down the street as of petals falling from a pink tree, and of pink ice-cream; and the word went about she had just come from a garden party.

The Garden Party

Somehow, Rachel Shulman, the word was less like a pink petal than a pink bun. It stuck. It stuck in her throat, her hair, her soul. She, too, wanted to go to a garden party. A garden party would be so different from the kitchen of their house, with all her brothers sitting about everywhere, on the sofa, on the kitchen-step, on the yard-step, all with their noses buried in books. She saw pink bonnets all over a green lawn, and there was music and tennis, and ice-cream which tall gentlemen with shining hair and princely manners offered languid ladies in pink deck-chairs. The daisies had pink edges to the whiteness, and there was pink raspberry-pop and pink icing on the cakes. Oh, what bliss it would be to go to a garden party. But garden parties didn't happen out of themselves like holes in stockings or spider's webs. People must give garden parties. One self, on one's birthday, to give a garden party.

But at this point her imagination stopped dead. If her imagination had been capable of advancing one step farther she had no language to interpret it. Here was Heaven, and herself in a pale blue dress with a pink sash, and a large floppy straw hat sheltering her face from the supernal sunshine. Her guests came in two by two.

So she turned round — from Heaven. The pink ices melted in the stream sun because there was no one to eat them. There were no ices for them to eat.

There was no garden party. Solly, Benjamin, and Yossel hadn't had anything to eat, though they came in from school two hours ago. She hadn't even given them any food to put in their pockets for at lunch-time, as they sat on the hot-water pipes in the school basement.

"Well, boys, wouldn't you like a little lunch now?" she asked. She had a vague sense of guilt. The boys kept their eyes glued on the "Via Latina" and the "Anabasis" of Xenophon. They never dreamed of pink pop and ices in celestial garden parties.

"Well, boys, a little lunch now??" she asked again. Nobody answered. There was no sound except a tap leaking and the leaves of the textbooks turning, turning.

The telephone is always a convenience and often a life saver. Out-of-town calls are quick, dependable and inexpensive. And they are easy as simple to make as calling your next-door neighbour.

The afternoon was nearly over when he suddenly remembered — their wedding anniversary to-morrow and he had neglected to find out about that stone marten neckpiece. If only Betty were home to help him, instead of a hundred miles away at school.

His eye fell on the telephone — a happy inspiration. Two minutes later — while he held the line — Betty's voice came over the wire. Yes, certainly, she knew the fur her mother wanted. Moreover, she could tell him exactly where to go to get it.

GAS IN STOMACH HURTS THE HEART

Thousands of Cases of Heart Failure Are Caused by Acute Indigestion. Says Medical Writer

Gas pressure from sour acid, upset stomach is not only nauseating and highly uncomfortable but some day it may prove fatal.

When your meals are followed by bloating, a feeling of fulness or pressure, shortness of breath and pains around the heart, you may be sure that the acid condition of your stomach is producing a GAS that is pushing upwards and crowding your heart. That's the reason for the shortness of breath and sharp, shooting pains.

Whether young or old, the presence of stomach gas is truly serious and should always be given prompt and careful attention.

Bisurated Magnesia, cleanse and sweeten the stomach, neutralize the acidity — nothing is better than the daily or "as needed" use of ordinary Bisurated Magnesia. It gives almost instant relief.

Any good druggist can supply Bisurated Magnesia, in powder or tablet form, at very small cost—but be sure you get BISURATED Magnesia — recommended by Doctors and Druggists throughout the civilized world for more than 13 years.

RESULT IN BREEDING SHROPSHIRE SHEEP

Many farmers, and more particularly farmers' sons who may not have had much experience in sheep raising, should be interested in learning something of the average results that may be expected over a period of years.

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Kapuskasing, Ontario, a flock of pure-bred Shropshire sheep has been kept since the Station was established. Over an eleven-year period the average number of lambs born per ewe was 1.54 and the average number raised was 1.18.

It has also been observed that when the male used was a twin there has been a greater percentage of twin lambs born than where the male used was a single. The weight and quality of fleece produced has also been materially affected by the weight and quality of fleece on the ram heading the flock.

Sheep ordinarily do very well in this climate. The principal drawback is the danger of attack by dogs. However, this can be overcome to some extent by the use of a suitable fence. Sheep which are enclosed each night during the lambing season have been found to be safe. There is also danger of the flock being attacked during the day. One dog will not be a menace but several would be to much for the whole flock with a dog in charge. A wire fence of 5 feet in height will be found sufficient to keep the dogs out. Where this is impossible, a dog fence is the cheapest and safest plan to follow.

The Weakening Agony of Piles (Haemorrhoids) Ended

Thousands Bless This Famous Herbal Ointment

Piles or hemorrhoids cause excruciating pain and often serious loss of blood. The famous Zam-Buk ointment is wonderfully soothing to the swollen veins and itching parts. Zam-Buk derives its healing and mildly astringent influence from herbal extracts of special value in this healing and agonizing complaint. Zam-Buk has a wonderful record of success.

THE BEST OF PROOF

Mrs. R. L. Garber, of 1345 Ohio Avenue, Southgate, California, a nurse, writes as follows:— "My husband suffered from Piles for years, but a year ago they reached an acute stage and he could neither sleep nor attend his work. He had medical advice, tried all sorts of baths, hot packs, enemas and ointments which cost him hundreds of dollars without obtaining any relief. Finally a friend gave him a box of Zam-Buk; after application for which he obtained a good night's rest. He continued the treatment and

Young Airman In Grave Difficulty

Little Ted is going to be an airman some day. He has a picture book full of airplane pictures, and also an airplane which he wistfully tells you is down in the basement, broken. Although he is only seven, he seems to know already that there is a difference between him and the boys he hears shouting and playing out on the lawn. And, indeed, there is a difference. Like the broken plane that will take long to mend, it is by patient nurses and the kindly doctors at the Queen Mary Hospital that doing their best, and hope to restore the wasted lungs to health and vigor. Children are very susceptible to consumption, but nine out of ten can be saved if taken in time. This work requires the co-operation of many, many friends if it is to grow in usefulness.

CHANGING SEED GRAIN

Registered Seed Is Farmers' Protection

Persons who have new varieties to introduce and seeds to sell have always been strong advocates of seed exchange, saying, in effect, that it is a good principle of farm management often to vary the strain of seed grain to be sown. It is also a common belief of grain growers that there is a necessity for frequent change of seed to prevent any actual deterioration due to continuous culture upon the same soil or under the same conditions.

Farmers are continually changing seed grain. He on the black land must have the seed from the sand region, and a man upon the hill must have his brought from the heavy soil regions. So, also with the question of latitudes, seed grain is often shipped long distances north and south very much at random as to reason but usually with the hope that some good will come in increased yield because of the change.

Undoubtedly, seed may become of but little value because of injury arising from disease, improper cultivation and a great number of causes which militate against the production of a normal type of kernel. Various types of plants will undoubtedly be produced from a given type of seed depending upon the character of the soil upon which each has grown. The Dominion Experimental Farms system composed as it is of numerous widely separated branch Farms, has given a particularly good opportunity to study this problem. However it has not been demonstrated that such variations will in any way have an effect upon the next season's crop upon using this seed.

In considering the supply of good seed the farmer should take into account the suitability of his own stock. Is it the best variety available for his conditions? Is it relatively free from other varieties, other kinds of grain, and weed seeds? Has it strong vitality? Can it be cleaned into first class seed? If these questions cannot all be answered in the affirmative it is advisable to secure seed of suitable quality and purity elsewhere. Registered seed is the farmers' protection and should be considered if possible for at least a portion of the crop. Seed requirements should be filled as early as possible before the supply of suitable grain is exhausted.

The Royal Connaught Hotel has completed plans for an extension to be made in the immediate future, providing between 150 and 200 rooms. This addition will likely be ready for occupancy by June 1st, 1931.

LARGE POTATO YIELD

One of the largest potato yields in the history of the Thunder Bay district is reported by G. W. Buchanan, of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, for 1930. The exceptional yield of over 300 bushels to the acre is reported, while there are many cases of crops above the average, in size of crop, size of potato and quality.

THE PARACHUTE

Every Onlooker Holds His Breath at Parade Of."

No exhibition of flying is now considered complete without several parachute descents. The thrill of the event is continued from the time the parachutist jumps clear of the machine until he lands.

Many still think there is a large element of danger in allowing a life to be dependent upon the opening of twelve square yards of cotton fabric. But in reality parachuting is checked into a steady glide.

When a jump is to be made from a height, the parachutist takes care to see that he will not come into contact with any part of the machine. Then, for additional safety, the jumps that were made at the last Hendon pageant were taken from the tips of the wings, says a writer in Answers.

Usually, however, the man, strapped into the parachute with broad bands that come round the thighs, the waist, and under the arms, falls from his cockpit into space. On his left side is a pocket containing a large ring. He falls and counts.

"Nine—ten"—and he gives the ring a vigorous pull. A noise like a peal of thunder follows, and almost before he is aware of it, his rapid descent is checked into a steady glide.

The ring that is pulled, and which is known as the rip cord, releases a small "pilot chute," which in turn pulls the main parachute from its case. Thus, practically as soon as the rip cord is pulled the parachute which will hold the folds of the parachute gives way and allows the rush of air to fill the fabric.

It is this sudden opening of the fabric that causes the noise like a clap of thunder. As soon as it is heard the parachutist knows all is well.

In the old days, when parachutes were unsafe and feared, the greatest danger—apart from that of the parachute not opening—was that a person could not control the direction of the descent. A jump might be taken over fields, but the wind might blow the parachutist over a lake or town and endanger his life.

This fault has now been rectified, and a modern parachute can be guided by pulling on the cords that reach from the mast to the envelope. If the drift is, says, eastward, then the shroud lines on the opposite side are pulled. This causes the area of fabric to be lessened on that side, with the result that the wind has a decreased effect.

Another improvement of the modern parachute is that on landing it can be collapsed immediately by pulling the central cords.

MAKING SICKLES.

Most of Them Come From a Little Factory In Yorkshire.

The sickle, one of the oldest reaping instruments in the world, is still in use in many countries. With sickles Japan and Burma reap their rice; sickles cut the pampas of South America and various crops in Poland, New Zealand, the Fiji Islands, Peru, and a hundred and one other lands.

Most of these sickles come from one little factory in the town of Conisborough, Yorkshire, England.

Conisborough, by the way, was the central scene of Sir Walter Scott's "Ivanhoe," and it was in the little town that he wrote many of the pages of that great novel.

The factory employs only thirty-five hands. Yet it turns out nearly 12,000 sickles every week. Steel from Sheffield, only a dozen miles distant, quarter of an inch wide, is first are sliced by a shearing machine into the proper lengths, whilst other machines shape them, bend them, and perform the preliminary processes. Then blacksmiths, grinders, hafters, and other craftsmen give them their final edge.

The workers in this little town are directly affected by happenings in half the world. Good crops in China mean prosperity for them, whilst a revolution in South American may spell short time.

Familiar.

Douglas Fairbanks, a friend just back from Hollywood says, takes the high position he holds in the movie society very seriously, but is troubled by his bad memory for faces. Sometimes he snubs people he shouldn't. This failing distresses him, and not long ago he decided to take special pains to be cordial to everyone. So when he caught a dignified gentleman striding to him with outstretched hand, he not only returned the greeting, but stopped, chatted with the gentleman, and even spent some time showing him about the place.

Fairbanks strove all the while to place him, but couldn't—all he knew was that he had seen the courtly fellow somewhere in the best movie society. And, indeed, it was not until he actually had, for afterwards he asked his secretary, "Who was that man?" The butler was a bit acrid. "It was the butler," he said, "that you discharged last week."

That Word "Colossal."

Philology, the science of words, is a most mysterious affair. There is a discussion going on about the word "colossal". It is pronounced, as we all know, "kersal," and that seems right if we look back at the way that it was once spelt "corosal." That was in Spanish. "Corosal" meant the commander of a column ("colonna" in Latin). And now you ask, "How did the 'r' get in then?" And why do we spell the word with an "l" and pronounce it as if it were spelt with an "r"? The French are correct in saying "kolossl". Our practice seems to have been taken from Spain instead of France. All very puzzling—and interesting too.

Trees Have Big Thirst.

Trees need large quantities of water to keep them in healthy condition. An apple tree fifty years old gives off about a barrel of water a day in summer, and a good sized birch gives off twice that much on a hot day, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. A single oak is known to have given off into the air in the form of vapor more than 100 tons of water in one growing season.

ISOLATION GONE

There is no need for families to feel separated any more, nor for anyone to be isolated — lonely. There is always nearby a telephone to take you "over" visiting with friends and relatives. It is so simple—convenient—and the evening and night rates make it very inexpensive.

Hard Times in Australia

RELIEF AGENCIES BUSY

It is possible to get up a strike over any thing in Australia. The most humorous event of the present agitation is that the Melbourne unemployed formally declared the Salvation Army soup kitchen "black"—i.e., for what reason given being that the fare was too monotonous.

There is no likelihood that the promoters of the kitchen will have any difficulty in getting people to eat the meals. There is sitting accommodation for 120 diners on the premises, and it is stated that there were as many as 1,800 people waiting when it opened every day.

The ban has now been lifted from the Salvation Army soup kitchen, as a result of conciliation, the unemployed removed from the building the chalk marks declaring it black. It is stated that meals are served twice daily, commencing at 7 a.m. and 3 p.m. respectively. The morning meal now consists of a plate of stew or curry with vegetables and a slice of bread; this is followed by a mug of tea or cocoa with a slice of bread and jam and a slice of raisin bread. The afternoon meal is added to be exactly the same except that corned beef or pressed beef or mutton is substituted for the stew. Bigger premises are to be taken to prevent the long waits. The unemployed claim a victory.

At the present time Melbourne is a huge benevolent home. There are numerous agencies for the distribution of food. In front of St. Vincent Hospital a queue may be seen standing all day about noon. The nuns hand out a paper parcel to each applicant. This contains bread, meat, cheese, tea, sugar, and various other edibles sufficient to keep an average family for a day. There are also Free Gospel breakfasts, Church of England dinners, and Presbyterian teas, with Methodist and Baptist lunches at frequent intervals. A man who was determined to do the rounds could easily get five meals a day in Melbourne for the asking.

There are also various agencies for visiting people in their homes. Toc. H. has come to the fore in this direction and spent the first $5,000 raised for the purpose in a few days. The Order of the Eastern Star, a women's society not on Masonic or quasi-Masonic lines, has rendered excellent service to many poor families. Any organization which is genuinely doing relief work has little difficulty in getting all the money it requires.

Sydney

There is probably more distress in Sydney than in Melbourne. It produces some curious results. The following paragraph circulated by an Australian news syndicate and printed in dozens of papers speaks for itself:—"There are hundreds of empty houses in the city. In one district between Auburn and Guildford the number empty is at least 1,000 though it was difficult three years ago to obtain one of these. In many cases landlords are offering a homer rent free for the first two weeks, while others are offering free monthly tenancies to anyone who will live there."

To anybody who has known Sydney for some years, this item is really sensational. In 1921 owners and agents were inundated with applications for renting a house. If one wanted to buy a house they were prepared to talk. Many people entered into building contracts, and when they got caught in the depression they had to part with their interests in their houses at a very much depreciated figure—which often meant forfeiting all they had paid.

At Lithgow, a mining town ninety miles west of Sydney, the unemployed who had abandoned their homes of had been evicted appealed to local land-owners to allow them places to "camp". They intended to live in "humpies" — frames of posts covered with sacking. These humpies were used to some extent in the mining areas even in the prosperous times. The roof is covered with sheet-iron — generally kerosene tins nailed together. Now many people who lived in houses are leaving them to live in humpies.

There is a tremendous amount of voluntary charitable work in Sydney, but the Government of New South Wales pays relief in some cases. The Labour Bureau at Sydney was stated to have been swamped early in August by women seeking orders for relief; they realized that it was useless looking for work; they wanted to register themselves as destitute so that they might become eligible for relief.

Even in South Australia, with a population of half a million and over, four times that of Great Britain, the sum of $50,000 a week is spent by the Government in relieving distress. And there are numerous philanthropic agencies in Adelaide, which is known as the City of Churches.

Canberra, the capital of the Federal Territory and the seat of Government, although only a decade or so old, has its unemployment problem, and a fund is organized there for the relief of distress.

Queensland

In Queensland the unemployed are better looked after than in most States. To begin with, there is the unemployment Insurance Act. When the worker becomes unemployed he is entitled to 25s. a week for himself and additional allowances for his wife and children. If he is unemployed for fifteen weeks, he runs out of benefit—the thousands of unemployed in Queensland are. But anybody in Queensland is entitled to "rations" if he can show that for days of the week crowds can be seen waiting around any Queensland police station. The police sergeant is the relieving officer.

There is a certain amount of justification for the criticism that an assured supply of rations has the effect of inducing some men to display little anxiety in the quest. of work. This is due to the demoralizing effect of unemployment. But there are the men are frantically anxious to get work, but in the end they cannot get work, and cannot being asked to work.

Relief works have been started in Queensland and New South Wales with funds raised by a weekly tax of 3d. in the pound levied on all wage-earners. A man who does not contribute to relief work is not entitled to rations. The Queenslanders are saying that this is "conscription of labour."

The unemployment difficulty raises many problems. The Government is between Scylla and Charybdis. It cannot let people starve and it cannot do so and for the unemployed that nobody will have any inducement to work. But it is easy to understand why the Commonwealth does not encourage immigration at the present time.

IN HAITI

Voodoo Rites May Be Gone, But Natives are Steeped In Superstition —Drums in the Hills

When a stranger meets one of the "blacks," which are 95 per cent. of the population of Haiti, he sees the finished shade of black, tears a potato which is not French as expected in the country, but notices their clothes are about the same as generally worn in the tropics. He does not take long to discover that the individual inside the clothes is more tribal than modern, and has beliefs and customs, in other words, which after centuries are those of the African jungles. Books have been written about the voodooism and superstitions of Haiti and despite the fact that fiction is a better seller than fact, much more of it remains than officials admit.

They insist that the old voodoo rites with their human sacrifices are of the distant past. Its superstitions are ingrained in the people. Giving them ballot boxes and opening schools may start a new mode of thought, possibly quicker than putting a derby hat on an African chief, but it will not change them. Years ago the big drums, hollow logs with skins over the ends, were ordered destroyed. They became ornaments in city homes, with poisoned arrows and spears, no longer used. Then suddenly on a silent starry night the sounds of drums echoed from the hills through the length of the country. City dwellers shivered but they did not venture off the highways into those mountains after dark. The next morning the women are gossiping in the market over their baskets of vegetables and fruit as if nothing had happened and with no big hea, for all they will tell. Africa is just outside of town in the hills. Confiscating the big drums, and that has not been accomplished, is easy compared to getting an idea or belief out of a million skulls.

Like all superstitions, those of Haiti are diversified. The "ouanga," usually pronounced "whang!" is the everyday jinx and gives an idea of how complicated others may be. When a Haitian gets an idea somebody has put a "whang" on him, he quits cold without further ado. Its efficiency is increased by its simplicity. It can be anonymous, invariably is, and anybody can go around "whanging" and terrifying his rivals. Probably there are mystic penalties for indiscriminate "whanging," and only a black can be a "whanger" for they alone can work African voodoo in Haiti.

The sign of a "ouanga" is not stabilized. The favorite ingredients are strips of red cloth, pieces of bones, tufts of hair and other scraps arranged in the form of a cross. A cook who sees a "ouanga" outside his window in the morning quits and starts for the mountains before breakfast. The fact that a rival for his good job is starting at the door does not arouse suspicion of the voodoo method. Dr. Smith's wife and servants will attest to all of this. A cook, attempted opposition "whanging" a cockroach in the pantry was the most convenient material and he poured reason outside the three eggs in his yard. Though he did not know it, corn has the highest efficiency in "whanging" and when nobody ventured into the yard to scare a cock.

Another officer's wife was annoyed by the fondness of their neighbors' chickens for her flower beds. The neighboring family took the attitude that they were Haitian chickens, Haitian dirt and Haitian worms and whose country is this, anyway? One day the officer got a rock handy and cut two holes in the centre, caught the old rooster, stuck its legs through, tied the ends under its wings and tossed it back over the fence. When the Haitian family saw the head of the flock in red panties, they moved out, baggage and chickens, not waiting to inquire who had put the "whanger" by an outlander who could not work voodoo magic.

But the "ouanga" is seldom confined for those who are not its frightened victims. Occasionally national politics start an epidemic of hours by setting fire to their employers' houses. The gendarmes, voodoo rulers in their hands despite autonomy and discipline, understand and question the boy. Was he sore at his employer? No, not at all. Why did he do it? A man told him to and threatened to put a "ouanga" on him if he didn't. No, he wouldn't help put out the fire but he had cleaned up the mess afterwards.

Haitians advise shooting a few suspected firebugs to end the trouble. This is not justice according to American administration, and consequently the firebugs are not convicted in a court. If the prisoner is a "white," which means all the dollar class, they are all interviewed and some relative will get him off. If he is a "black," which all of the dollar, the African tribal association of the hills is just as effective.

Violet Rays for Plants.

The King and Queen recently visited a violet farm at Cumberland Lodge, Windsor Great Park, where Lord and Lady Stalibridge have a wonderful underground garden. By means of two ultra-violet ray lamps and a double glass roof. The cellar is kept at a moderate temperature, and the flowers and fruit are seldom given more than eight hours a day of the ultra-violet rays.

It is stated that there are only two similar gardens in existence—one in Sussex, and the other in New York.

Women In Majority.

Recent census figures show that the city of Mexico contains 107,000 more women than men.

When Oae Meets In Stamboul

It is not often that one meets a man over forty who has hope and optimism. I had almost written "over twenty," thinking of the aged youth of today. If such an overbearing person does present himself it is natural to wonder what secret sorrow is covered up by his bluff and bounce. Or it may be simply that an overstock of original vitality has not yet worked itself out of his mere body, and just this accounts for his antics. Life, it is sure and certain, cannot have touched him with its real hardnesses if he still keeps up his presence of enjoyment. He is a prickable bubble. One shrugs. The next wind will burst Him.

So, when I was hurrying through a narrow Stamboul street and was loudly overtaken, shouted at and submerged by a man with also greying hair, when seen rarely, I knew to have made, lost, thrown away, leaked, and licked up money in the adversities of the years and to be still on the hunt, I expected the usual antipodean greeting with its real hardnesses if he still keeps up his presence of enjoyment. He is a prickable bubble. One shrugs. The next wind will burst Him.

So, when I was hurrying through a narrow Stamboul street and was loudly overtaken, shouted at and submerged by a man with also greying hair, when seen rarely, I knew to have made, lost, thrown away, leaked, and licked up money in the adversities of the years and to be still on the hunt, I expected the usual antipodean greeting with its real hardnesses if he still keeps up his presence of enjoyment. He is a prickable bubble. One shrugs. The next wind will burst Him.

"And how is the world treating you?" I said. I have long since found that it is no use in the world trying to be original or to use language that means anything to fellow-men. They go about in disguises: why shouldn't I?

But I started when he answered: "The world's maximum, my dear fellow, the world's maximum."

At that moment we were threading an open-air market, and I had to negotiate my way between a circular tray of green mulberries and a tray of cotton stockings. When I had safely made the passage I turned inquiringly to him.

"Oh, of course," he said cheerfully. "you can't understand it. You could never experience it simply because you are only an Anglais. My dear sir, you don't know what you miss. The world's maximum of enjoyment, that's what I'm having and what I'm able to have just because I'm not an Anglais and tied down by one nationality."

"Yes?"

"I was wary. I know these people in Stamboul who try to draw you to a deal in the middle of the street, words. Besides, I have met so very few people who are not liars. How often have I said to her during our journey—looking at my fellow – men for the tiniest bit of Truth or Beauty or Novelty to come from them, and have waited in vain. I glanced aside at the graveyard we were passing, and the happy silence and unfuzzity there pleased me.

"Ah, at six," he responded, "and straight into the Bosphorus from my terrace. I am with Turkish friends in their hall, and the water laps all night against the piles which carry it. An hour's sea come from a massage and friction from Ebene the Greek in the shuttered, light-slanting room, which opens into the dark-eyed women at the ark as only one in the Turkish tradition can; hall an hour's rest on the balcony, well wrapped and screened. One quiet, the place on the bustling ferryboat; the fresh morning air catching your little newspaper with its large new Latin print. Stamboul, business, back, another bathe or a row – dinner off the dishes that only Turks know—greasily glorious,—and such an appetite that it is itself a feast, my dear sir. Then the dancers dancing with the charming daughters of the Turkish homes to dance up with. Could you do it? Of course you couldn't. I'm living as a Turk right in their life, doing like them, feeling like them."

With A Pinch of Salt

He sat—he was fumbling in his pocket, interrupted himself, and asked what I wanted.

"I was looking for my packet of salt," I said, and when he wondered at my carrying such a thing about, "I take," I told him, "a pinch with most of what I hear in Stamboul.

He was indignant. He rose riotously when I tried to justify himself. "You don't realise the gain of having no nationality that matters, like me. Last year you found me in Paris. I was a Frenchman and had been for two years and more. You took pleasure with me at my French club. I left you to play poker with my French cronies all the afternoon. My house was in the banlieue, and I told you I was living in hundreds instead of thousands as I had been doing before, and that it did not matter to me. I have no nationality to tie me down. Glass to tie me down. You, a mere Anglais, don't know what you miss. You are a prisoner on the outside. That is why your people have to read so many novels."

The Stamboul accents seemed to be getting steeper as his tale go steeper. There was the truth in it, and it piqued me. So, to head him off, I said the trite "Business? Les affaires?"

"Oh, I am making up my losses now. You think I want money? I don't. I like big business because it's in the line of my tradition. I had it and I know what it is. You remember when I took a commission in the British Army of the East in the war? I gave up hundreds a week to do it. I might have been a rich man by now if I hadn't done that. I wanted the experience. I wanted to be a British officer. I wanted the mess, the uniform, the comradeship. Once again I was something new, something my all-nationality could give me."

Over a tiny Turkish coffee in the office — "the vilest mixture in the world," he calls it — and the spate continued, I passive.

"The worst of it is, my dear fellow," he confessed, "that I am too honest. I was badly brought up. I was brought up in a bad tradition, a bad milieu. I can't get my home training out of me. I try to descend to all the tricks of the commercial East and to have its sole and sordid ideal. But home holds me down. If I had only been brought up—"

I wonder when I shall respond to his hearty "come and see me again." He is, I feel, so much the sort of man who wants me to see him rather than to see me. I omitted to say he is not a Jew. He is an Armenian.

LIGHT BAD—CAR SUFFERS

Five miles east of Napanee a truck owned by T. L. Burton, of Sherbrooke Que., was parked this morning. About 2.00 a.m. a Ford touring, owned by William Selleck, of Oxford Township, Grenville County, crashed into it. The Selleck car was badly done up. The lights, it is claimed, were not efficient Nobody hurt. Nobody hurt.

SELBY ROAD GETTING FAMOUS

Another accident occurred on the Selby Road on Sunday night, about 3 miles from Napanee. A Ford car, driven by Bert Windover, attempted to pass another car proceeding in the same direction when it collided head on with a Chrysler, driven by Orval Pitchett, Napanee, No. 2, going north. Both cars were badly damaged. The Ford car was completely demolished. The Chrysler may be fixed. It seems a miracle that no one suffered injury.

"POPPY DAY" IN NAPANEE

About one hundred dollars was received by the Legion on Saturday, in their tag day. Of this, about 75% goes to the inmates of Christie Street Hospital for poppies, the remainder goes to the local branch of the Legion. It may not be generally known that it is illegal for any firm or firms to manufacture or sell poppies for "Poppy Day." That right is given to the inmates of Christie Street. These men incapacitated for life, give their time to the making of many useful articles, the sale of which net them a small income. The government protects them in the business, this enabling them to secure quite a generous amount to their fund. In addition all the wreaths placed on the monument were made by these same veterans. The value of the wreaths was $300.

ACCIDENT ON JOHN STREET

What might have been a rather serious accident occurred on John St., on Sunday afternoon. Just as the crowd was gathering at the Cenotaph, a car driven by G. C. Brook, Sharp's Corners, and with him his sister and cousin, was proceeding across John on Thomas, going east. It had almost got through the intersection when another car going north on John crashed into it. This car was driven by J. Iitas, of Toronto, who was going hunting. It struck the rear wheel and completely upset the Brook's car. The gasoline began to run freely. The occupants were penned in and unable to extricate themselves. Passersby, who witnessed the collision, climbed on top of the car and assisted the occupants through the windows. Fortunately no injuries were sustained and except for a bent fender or two the cars looked non the worse for the crash.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

Well, it seems at last that something definite has been done in to town toward turning out hockey players.

* * *

Chief "Eddie" Watts did some good work last year with the youngsters and is going to follow it up with an even better plan this year.

* * *

There are to be two juvenile divisions senior and junior, with four or five teams to each group.

* * *

Both groups will play off for a trophy. Two friends of the Chief have donated a large cup, now on display in Wallace's window, which the teams in the senior loop will battle for. This has been accompanied by ten medals for the members of the winning outfit.

* * *

Dr. Hall has donated a trophy for the juniors, which will arrive about December 1st.

* * *

The Chief is to be highly commended for this work with the younger lads, not only for teaching them the rudiments of hockey at an age when they can learn it best, but also for providing them with organized recreation and exercise.

* * *

It is to be hoped that the boys themselves will realize what is being done for them and that they do their part. They did last year and very likely it will be the same this season.

* * *

The only drawback is the financing and it is not very great. This is a mighty worthy cause and should receive hearty support.

* * *

Reg. Douglas is going to manage the rink again this year. As yet nothing definite has been done concerning any other teams, although likely an intermediate squads will be turned out.

* * *

Charlie Douglas, the local golf pro' is fitting up the former Davy & Allison Store for indoor golf.

* * *

However, we have a plan which should knock all his preparations into a cocked hat.

* * *

And it is very inexpensive for those in a position to use it.

* * *

The following are complete instructions: Procure a ton of hard coal from your favorite anthracite dealer and have it delivered the way of all coal, every likely coal would be best.

* * *

Then take the old mashie, open the furnace door and proceed to shoot the hunks of coal into the fire-pot. Shots may be tried from various distances, for variety's sake.

* * *

While we do not want to spoil Mr. Douglas' business for the winter, we think we owe it to the many faithful readers of this column to pass this new marvellous invention on to them.

* * *

We might add that if anyone tries this, it will be useless to sue this column for damages to the furnace-room, for the simple reason that you can't get blood out of a stone.

FRANK SHANE OF CENTREVILLE FATALLY HURT

A death, under rather tragic circumstances, occurred in the Kingston General Hospital on Sunday when Mr. Frank Shane, of Centreville, passed away. Mr. Shane, it is alleged, gathered with a number of friends, at Camden East, for a party, last Wednesday night. Apparently there had been some drinking, for during the evening Mr. Shane got hurt somehow or other. Dr. Mounce was called and at once rushed Mr. Shane to the Kingston General Hospital. A trepan operation was performed on his skull. He lingered until Sunday, when he finally succumbed to his injuries.

This is the first heavy rain since August 29th. — A very unfortunate and serious accident happened on Saturday, when Mr. and Mrs. M. Joyce and Gordon Shipkins were on their way to Kingston market with a load of apples. The fog was very dense and driving was difficult, and, according to reports, it is unknown, passed Mr. Joyce, cutting in so close to him that it forced Mr. Joyce's truck into the ditch. The truck turned over pinning Mrs. Joyce between the car and the truck, causing some little time before they could raise the truck sufficiently to release her. Spends $120,000 In Lennox & Addington During Past Summer

Hydro Adds 56 Miles To The County System

Without any advertising or boasting the Napanee Public Utilities Commission during the past few months carried on one of the biggest construction programmes in the history of Hydro-Electric work in this county. 56 miles of new service has been opened up; fifty-six miles of poles and wires have been erected, and for the first time hundreds of people have been brought within the range of this modern miracle worker. The lines have been extended to include Robbin, Marlbank, Centreville, Enterprise, Moscow, Yarker, Colebrook, and all the intervening roads. This has added 286 new customers to the system. The dream of Sir Adam Beck, of a Province in which every householder would have power available at cost, is rapidly becoming a reality.

Good Business For Napanee

The construction in this period of depression and unemployment has been a great boon to Napanee. During the summer, 25 to 30 men have been employed continuously. The unskilled were paid 35 cents an hour and the skilled 50 cents per hour. Throughout the four months, the Commission paid out in wages, between thirty and thirty-five thousand dollars, or an average of over two hundred and fifty dollars a day. As most of the men employed lived in Napanee, that has been of great benefit to the whole town. In addition to the amount paid by the local commission the Provincial Commission paid out ten thousand in wages to men in the construction camps. At the present time fifteen of the men are being carried on the pay roll of the Commission and will be needed until Christmas time. The work which was begun on July 7th will see power turned on, on December 1st.

In addition to the work in the rural sections, the Commission, at the present time, is engaged in rebuilding the system on Thomas Street, where new poles are being erected; cross arms put in place, new wires being strung, and transformers installed. This is being done on the Newburgh Road as well. When the extension is being erected on Clarkville Road, within the town limits, at a cost of nine thousand dollars.

Napanee a Great Distributing Centre

All this work of construction and development of the system is handled in Napanee. The local Commission receives a percentage on construction and for administration. This insures a steady flow of income to the town. The purchase, for the first time the local Commission took over the administration, will show a nice surplus. This will, in the years to come, be transferred, as it should be to a sinking fund. Few people realize that Napanee is situated for distribution of power. It is in the centre of a rectangular territory, capable of development programme will serve three sides of that rectangle. Next summer it is hoped to extend the service to North and South Fredericksburgh, Adolphustown and Ernestown, completing the fourth and last side of the square.

Method of Financing

The financing of the enterprise has been done with the intent of making the burden on the individual farmer as light as possible. The Provincial Government pays fifty per cent of the cost. It loans the other fifty per cent to the municipalities, which is paid back over a period of forty years. The payments are included in the charges. That this is not a heavy one is shown by, the following accounts actually paid by farmers who have received service this summer.

The cost of this service over the three month period in which it is possible to make estimates is that the farmer pays about three to three and a half dollars a month. Each farmer, of the cost, one farmer's account for power for three months was $12.50. For that he has his House, drive shed, ben house, and barn lighted. He used, as well, an electric washing machine, a fanning mill, an electric washing machine, a fanning mill, an iron, and ground 9,000 pounds of grain.

With the new filteration plant being built this summer, a large amount of road work completed, and this great achievement of the Public Utilities Commission, Napanee has seen more money spent in wages and in materials than in any single realize. Had it not been for this, Napanee would be feeling the pinch of depression much more keenly that it now feels it. Too much praise cannot be given to the Commission and to its genial and energetic manager, Mr. C. A. Walters, who carried out this enterprise. A grateful public at a time when it was most needed, and with such success.

Hon. R. B. Bennett A National Leader

DYNAMIC PERSONALITY

(Editorial in Canadian Magazine)

Looking back through the long vista of the years one cannot fail to be impressed by the way in which great empires have arisen, flourished mightily for a space, then crumbled into majestic desuetude. The pages of history are crowded with these Imperial failures. Empires were bought with blood and steel; they were held for the profit and glory of the conquerors and they passed when the vanquished threw off the victor's yoke.

Today our conceptions of Empire have changed. Even the word has become a misnomer. We of the British Empire belong to a commonwealth of nations and our collective strength depends upon the individual strength of each. We are like masons building a wall that will stand against the fury of 1,000—and every man bulldeth that portion of the wall over against his own house.

In very recent years we Canadians have been shaking off an inferiority complex. The last vestige of it we hope was thrown aside this year when a new Government was swept into power on a policy of Canada First. That victory was decisive. It marked the end of namby pamby subservience to the interests of foreign nations. It marked the beginning of a national sentiment which found expression in the person of a man. That man was R. B. Bennett.

Inevitably Canada would have achieved its destiny, but the way might have been long and hard as in years gone by. Fortunately the need for a national leader produced the man and Bennett brought into the arena of politics all those forthright qualities which made him successful in business. That much people recognized during his whirlwind election campaign. He declared himself in plain terms. He avoided evasion and generalities. He pledged himself and his party to the task of national rehabilitation.

"Canada First"

The key-note of his message was the development of Canada first, the promotion of Intra-imperial trade second and trade with the rest of the world last. If other nations chose to construe that as an offensive policy that was their business. His duty was to Canada.

There were times when even hardshell Tories were disturbed by his frankness. They were accustomed to diplomatic equivocations, and clear cut opinions supplemented by clear cut promises gave them an uneasy feeling of fear. What if he failed? He had left no loop-holes for escape, no qualifying alibis.

Their fears were groundless. After his election Bennett proved himself as bold in action as he had been in words. He took less than ten days to complete his Administration. By order-in-council he placed a check upon immigration so that it should not aggravate existing unemployment. He put teeth into the anti-dumping law protecting Canadian fruit and vegetable growers. Within seven weeks of election day Parliament was in session and a three-fold program to cope with unemployment was rushed through both Houses. He drove through the vote for $20,000,000 for public works and unemployment relief which by negotiation with the provinces and municipalities, has grown into a fund of nearly $100,000,000. He placed upon the statute books anti-dumping legislation and the most drastic emergency revision of the tariff ever made in this country.

With this upward revision of the tariff R. B. Bennett coupled a threat and a warning. He promised the consumers of the country that prices would not be increased. He warned the manufacturers that if they adopted profiteering tactics the new tariffs would be removed. In the Lausanne treaty his warning was ignored and he fulfilled his promise swiftly. The added protection was removed.

This courageous offensive against hard times produced an effect. There was a noticeable improvement in business and the bugbear of pessimism gave place to a new born confidence. These changed conditions were partly due to the action taken by the Government, but it must be conceded, too, that the personality of R. B. Bennett was a dominant factor in the situation. He was not a silver-tongued orator. He had not, perhaps, those endearing qualities which make a man a national idol. But he was forthright and fearless, and people trusted him.

It was his courage which appealed to Canadians as no other qualities could have done. "Courage is what it takes," said the man in the street, "but he will get something done."

Courage and Capacity

Courage also might be a dangerous asset. Before today it has led men into foolhardy ventures; lured them to disaster. Yet Bennett has courage in spades. His courage is combined with capacity as well as courage. He possesses that rare power which enables a man to strip a problem down to its essentials. Clearly, logically and with unerring insight he diagnoses the ills. Clearly, logically he proposes the cure.

After implementing his pledges to Canada Bennett went overseas. The Imperial Conference was scarcely in session before he made the Mother Country and her Dominions a concrete offer of increased preferences in the Canadian market in return for similar concessions. He made no sentimental plea. He used as his argument save that of mutual advantage.

The reaction in the conference was electrical. The delegates from every one of the other Dominions endorsed his proposal. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the Conservative party, expressed himself as favorable to the plan and promised to submit a practical conference at Ottawa if returned to power.

He did more than electrify the delegates. He, in striking phrases, placed Empire policies beyond the bounds of party contention. He spoke as a friendly ambassador. He appealed to what did thirty-odd years ago when the Mother Country was first offered reciprocal preferences. And the offer was made without lip service to the ideal of Empire although, if returned, it will do more than anything else to weld together the countries of the Commonwealth.

There is a tag which says that men are never more sincere than when saying anything. That is just as true of politicians as it is of ordinary mortals.

TRINITY CHURCH W. M. S.

On Tuesday afternoon, November 4th, at 2.00 o'clock, the Autumn Thankoffering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was held in the Sunday School with the President, Mrs. R. Daly, in the chair. An unusually large number of the members had gathered for this important meeting. It was opened by the singing of hymn 88, after which Mrs. H. Vanloven read the minutes of the October meeting, and Mrs. J. E. Robinson gave the treasurer's report. The secretary's report was read by Mrs. Edward Kaylor after which Mrs. Rose led in prayer. Following a very sweet solo, rendered by Mrs. W. R. Gray, a few items of business were attended to. It was decided that the day of the W. M. S. meeting be changed from the first Tuesday to the third Tuesday of the month, and as the recent afternoon meetings had proved more successful than the evening ones, it was definitely decided to hold all meetings in the afternoon. For the past five years the W. M. S. and Ladies' Aid meetings have been held on Tuesday and Wednesday of the same week, and it is the opinion of the members of both organizations that the attendance would be better if the meetings were further apart. This change will not take effect until the New Year so members are requested to bear in mind that the December meeting will be held, as usual, on the first Tuesday of the month.

The nominating Committee appointed for this year are Mrs. Geo. Switzer, Convener; Mrs. J. E. Robinson and Mrs. Charles Garrison.

At the close of the business, Mrs. T. H. P. Anderson, of Newburgh, gave a very fine address. Mrs. Anderson's addresses are invariably inspirational in tone, but this was exceptionally effective, so much so, that it is difficult to convey any real conception of the gracious spirit, and yet with all the vivid portrayal of the necessity for enthusiasm in our church work, using as a basis for her talk, verses 15 and 16 of the 5th Chapter of Revelations: "I would thou wert cold or hot. So because thou art lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will spew thee out of my mouth."

It is difficult to conceive of there being half-hearted followers under Mrs. Anderson's leadership and if only we could all give way to the response which she raised in our hearts, our W. M. S. would in fact all our church activities would be a joy and not, as they are all too frequently, a burden. While Miss Anderson, we are tempted to shirk.

Mrs. Pawson voiced the gratitude of the Trinity women to Mrs. Anderson in a few words of appreciation.

The happy social hour followed during which tea was served by Mrs W. D. Pennell's committee.

A Mother's Anxiety

About Her Delicate Daughter

"She seems to be fading away," said an anxious mother recently about her daughter. Thousands of mothers could say the same thing. They are alarmed at the rapid decline in the blood. They make sickly girls well and happy. improve the blood supply and bring back all their color.

Douglas' Egyptian Liniment should be in every household. Stops bleeding at once, cauterizes wounds and prevents blood poisoning. Keeps away inflammation and proud flesh.

R. B. Bennett may make mistakes. He will do things which will rouse the wrath, perhaps, of his own henchmen. But he will achieve greatly and he will avoid the paralyzing fault of indecision.

Removes Bitterness from Discussion

In addition to the renewed confidence which has swept the country since Bennett came into power a change has taken place. Policies are discussed in the light of agreed bitterness which was born of over-zealous allegiance to party. Differences of opinion but good-humored have taken their cue from party leaders and national issues are discussed without rancor.

Bennett did not straddle issues. He made his attempt at a solution and all men. But neither was his appeal made along definite party lines. He offered a clear-cut policy and he will be returned to power because that policy was endorsed by the Dominion. As a country's greatest leader and inspiring a national need and expressing a national consciousness.

We recognize, of course, that a number of people may disagree with the particular policy which Bennett has formulated. Whether that policy is right or wrong it is not within the province of this article to discuss. Neither do we claim for the present Prime Minister that he is either superhuman or infallible. He does possess, however, a dynamic personality — that quality of personality which will get things done. And that is Canada's most urgent need.

If one impressed most of us anew with the extent of our national resources, and with a new vision of the commercial and industrial potentialities under an enlightened fiscal policy. He has tried to apply to home-keeping British people, as he has our own people and those of the United Kingdom, that by co-operation in fiscal policy the British Empire can be made the scene of the most tremendous development and consumption in the history of the world. The promise of material greatness for Canada and the Empire which he holds out is an inspiring one, and we do not believe that this opportunity for Empire co-operation will be allowed to pass unnoticed or unexploited.

Of one thing we may be certain. R. B. Bennett will play his part in the fulfilment of Laurier's prophecy that the twentieth century belongs to Canada.

WEDDING BELLS

GELLAN — KING

On Wednesday evening, November 5th, the home of Rev. Dr. Albert C. Fulton, 909 Bellevue Avenue, Syracuse, N.Y., was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding, when Miss Pearl King, third eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert King, Enterprise, Ontario, became the bride of James Gellan, 316 North West Street, Syracuse, N.Y. The bride looked charming in a gown of mauve crepe and wore the groom's gift, a platinum necklace. The happy couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Henry King, brother and sister-in-law of the bride. The happy couple left by motor for Clayton, N.Y. Enterprise, Ont., where they will spend the winter. They received many useful and beautiful gifts showing the high esteem in which they are held. All join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Gellan many years of happy wedded life.

HE WAS CURED

"Red" Young thought it wasn't manly to let domestic ills get him hard to forget it. But his roommate knew the symptoms. One night he sent Red's wife a telegram, "Red very sick. Come home some evening and greet him at the door." Next day Red returned. "Red" was jubilant. "I did call home, Bill. The folks are coming back for the week-end. That's what the voice does! Gee, I feel great."

THE PIANISSIMO PIANO

There is something at once pathetic and assuaging in the praises of the piano in these latter days. One scarcely needs to be middle-aged to remember a time when the piano was the chief organ of domestic happiness. Indeed it was the rarest thing in the world to hear of anyone who had not something to say for himself and his piano. "Humorists" lived and drank and brought up families off the proceeds of jokes directed against it and its embittering effects; no man was considered literary unless he had put the "literary gent" who had to work within earshot of a piano; it was thought that almost anything was permissible in retaliation against the practisers of scales and exercises.

It seems long ago — and also far away. When we thing of the superannuated bore, the tireless loud-speaker, the aeroplane, overhead, the street drill outside, the saxophone and the ukulele, it does seem incredible that anyone can ever have complained of the piano.

THWARTING THE BURGLAR

In these days of hold-ups and burglaries and general insecurity, even of them, one is carried back to an ancient spinster lady whose burglar alarms consisted of a polonaise on the piano, on the table and a chair behind the door of the hall. As the latter was bare of rugs or carpet and well sanded, the body would be able to push the door open, thus making a fearful amount of noise. Beneath the window was a generous sprinkling of cockleshells. The burglar, however, has risen to all these devices and circumvented them. But what about this evidence of a lack of courage which we thought unnecessary, for as the lucidly put it, "If they like anything' out they'll have to bring it in with wi' 'em."

Father of Ten in Hospital

When you have a small farm with a heavy mortgage and a family of ten children to look after, you don't feel like passing up any chance to earn a few extra dollars. This was Daniel A. Paquin's position when he was first asked to work in the evenings, cutting wood and doing chores for his neighbors, because the demands for food and clothing for the wife and children kept it up for several years and at the same time left little for himself. But when Daniel fell ill, he was admitted to the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives, very ill indeed.

However, rest, good food and kindly care are performing their customary miracle for Daniel at this Institution, and there is every hope that he will soon be sent home, able to take care of his family again.

The sergeant said the man was drunk and acted most ridiculously.

The surgeon said the case was one for handling more judiciously.

For if in truth the man was drunk that danger to society.

The time had come to test him for the signs of inebriety.

But "round the rugged rock the ragged rascal" managed readily.

And he could also toe the line and walk along it steadily.

And "British Constitution" he emitted like an oracle—

So they applied their "Fourth Degree", or scrutiny historical.

With "Hayden's Dictionary of Dates" they leant for him forcelessly;

They asked him when Queen Anne was born—and that he muffed atrociously.

They asked how long Stephen reigned, but it could not imagine it.

Nor did he know the epoch of one genuine Plantagenet.

When questioned on the Commonwealth he could not answer fittingly.

They asked him when Will Shakespeare died; he shook his head unwittingly.

His views on Magna Charta would not be fit to mention.

Nor could he date a single scrap twixt Yorkist and Lancastrian.

To give him one last chance (for justice does not like miscarriages)

They asked him for a dated list of Tudors and Stuarts.

But when his vague responses showed a chaos quite unpleasable

The verdict was "Oh, very drunk—and obviously incapable."

News and Information For the Farmer

Increased Potato Crop

Notwithstanding dry weather conditions throughout most of the potato producing districts of Canada, and the delayed harvesting of late blight in certain sections, the final estimate indicates a total production of over 47 million cwt., or an increase of ten per cent. over last year's crop. Ontario's share will be 11,240,000 bags.

Housewife Is Interested

That an enthusiastic response is being given by the city buyer to the Ontario Government's "Use Ontario Products" campaign is shown by the flood of letters received from listeners-in to the daily broadcast from station CFRB, Toronto. These short daily talks which are addressed to the city and town housewife discuss market conditions and prices, ways of utilizing Ontario farm produce, and in general aim at arousing interest in farm produce from Ontario farms.

Three Years Show Progress

Can good potatoes be grown in Ontario? The Central Ontario Potato Growers are showing that this province can produce potatoes which need not take second place to those from any other province. The association is demanding a premium for their "Tee-Pee" brand over New Brunswick's, and is securing a ready market that seems extremely pleased with the quality offered. The situation today stands out in decided contrast with the conditions of three years ago when eastern carload shipments invariably sold above locally grown stocks.

Royal Party For Girls

As in the case of the Royal 500 Party for farm boys in previous years, the chief object of the Royal Pair trip, sponsored by the Department for representative girls from each county this year is to provide opportunities and privileges which would otherwise not be available. They will visit all sections of the Fair and witness interesting portions of ring programs. In addition, visits will be made to educational institutions, manufacturing plants and retail centres which will be of particular interest and value to rural girls. The Department hopes that the trip will establish ideals on the part of the girls concerned and enable them to return home and introduce improvements and methods which will add to efficiency and comfort of the farm home. The Department is providing railway fare, lodging accommodation and meals.

Raised 2,000 Turkeys

In its effort to promote the profitable raising of turkeys, the Ontario Government established a turkey farm in the County of Norfolk. The object was to show that birds of this variety can be raised with profit. The experiment has proven quite successful. This year more than 2,000 turkeys were hatched and raised on the farm. A short time one thousand of them were sold at 30 cents per pound. What is possible on the Norfolk farm is equally possible on the farms in the province. Turkeys can be raised and sold profitably at a much lower price than that demanded about Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Window Display of Ontario Farm Products

The Ontario Department of Agriculture has a large program mapped out planned to extend the demand for Ontario farm products in the cities and towns of Ontario. A new feature of this program will be a window-dressing display for the retail merchants of Ontario cities. This display will consist of Ontario farm produce alone and is planned to interest the Ontario housewife as well as the retail merchant. Cash prizes and ribbons will be awarded. Local city organizations will assist the Government by looking after the details of the contest in each city. It is expected that judging of the window displays will take place on or about November 15th. The Royal Winter Fair is co-operating with the Department in conducting this contest.

A Timely Address

Addressing the St. Thomas Kiwanis Club, W. R. Reek, superintendent of the Ridgetown Experimental Farm, predicted that when the present period of depression and reduced prices for farm products had passed, about ten per cent. of those in the agricultural industry whom he described as "fair weather farmers" would be out of business, while the farmers who would weather the storm would be thinking more seriously than they have in the past. He declared that it takes perfect of hens from their flocks. He criticised the doctrine of reduced farm production, at the same time advising that the farmer should endeavor to produce just as much grain on a smaller acreage and devote the other land to production of roughtage and pasture.

Preparing Turkeys

Turkey growers are now beginning to finish or fatten their birds for the Christmas holidays. It is customary to begin the process of preparing the luscious turkeys for the nation's festive season by feeding them small amounts of grain which gradually are increased until the birds are on full feed. Due to the large supply of wheat available, this grain should be used to advantage in the fattening ration. Wheat has nearly the same fattening qualities as corn, but does not produce the rich yellow color of flesh that yellow corn does. It is important, however, that all grains be free from moldiness and they should be fed in hoppers to counteract certain diseases that cause heavy loss. Do not confine turkeys for fattening especially if they have been run on a range, for range birds cannot stand confinement.

Plans To Aid Farmers

Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, announced in a recent address that the Ferguson Government through the Department proposes in the next few years to spend more money for the benefit of Ontario farmers than even before in the province's history. He stated further that within five years it was hoped to dot the province with high schools teaching scientific agriculture and domestic science, similar to the one at Ridgetown. A survey would also be made of the province to determine what was grown for export and what was purchased, in order to increase farmers' revenues. Another proposal to which effect had already been given, was the spending of more of the Department's appropriation on marketing, in discovering and holding direct markets for the produce of Ontario farmers.

Weekly Crop Report

According to the weekly reports of the agricultural representatives, fall work is well advanced in many parts of the province. In a few counties from 75 to 80 per cent. of the fall plowing is completed while in others not over 50 per cent. has been done. In Eastern Ontario there appears to be an increased interest in drainage. In several counties, it is reported that many farmers are taking advantage of ideal weather conditions to clean out and open up satisfactory ditches.

The report deals for the greater part with the difficulty experienced by farmers in plowing, on account of the dry weather. Bruce County had a snow a short time ago which left the ground in good condition but the dryness has been a serious handicap. In Dundas the milk supply took a 30 per cent. drop in one week. A yield of 8½ tons per acre of sugar beets is reported from Essex, while Lambton states that the crop is above the average of the past three years.

Miller's Worm Powders are the medicine for children who are found suffering from the ravages of worms. They immediately alter the stomachic conditions under which the worms subsist and drive them from the system, and, at the same time, they are tonical in their effect upon the digestive organs, restoring them to healthful operation, and ensuring immunity from further disorders from such a cause.

Guard the Baby Against Colds

To guard the baby against colds nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are a mild laxative that will keep the little one's stomach and bowels working regularly. It is a recognized fact that where the stomach and bowels are in good order that colds will not exist; that the health of the little one will be good and that it will thrive and be happy and good-natured. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A CLOSE FINISH

It would be hard to find anything more interesting than the closing stages of the Eleventh Canadian Egg Laying Contest, which has just concluded its year at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. When all the factors entering into meritorious performance were balanced up the results showed that a pen of White Leghorns entered by Richard Green of Farrington Park, Preston, England, took first place, scoring a total of 2,176 points for 1,904 eggs, second place, leading Canadian entries was the pen of Barred Plymouth Rocks entered by Mrs. W. J. Thompson, of Birch Hills, Sask., with a total point score of 2174.6 for 2,228 eggs. The third place went to a pen of Rhode Island Reds entered by the University of British Columbia with a score of 2165.3 points for 2,174 eggs. This shows plainly how very keen competition was right up to the closing day of the contest when less than ten points separated the first three pens. Another point of interest in connection with the contest is that out of a total of 800 hens competing only 142 qualified for official registration.

KING RECIPIENT OF FIRST SILK STOCKINGS

It is interesting to know that the first pair of silk stockings which were brought into England from Spain, was presented to Henry VIII who greatly prized them. In the third year of Elizabeth's reign her lady-in-waiting, Mrs. Montague, presented Her Majesty with a pair of black silk stockings as a New Year's present. Her Majesty asked if she could have more of them, in which case she would never again wear cloth ones.

Silk stockings were equally rare things in the Court of Scotland for it appears that before James VI (1588) received the ambassadors sent to congratulate him on his accession to the throne of England, he requested one of the lords of his court to lend him his pair of silk hose, so that he might "not appear as a scrub before strangers."

HOME CAMPAIGN MAKES HEADWAY

According to a statement by G. A. Putnam, of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and well known throughout Canada as being the director of Women's Institutes in the province, Canadian goods are replacing imported products in the average village store in Ontario as a result of rural residents demanding home grown and manufactured products.

ALLEN — SHANE

On Saturday, November 15th, a quiet wedding took place in St. George Cathedral, Kingston, when Gladys Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Shane, of Newburgh, was united in marriage to Mr. Alvin Allen, of Moscow, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Allen of Yarker. The Rev. Robt. W. Spencer of Camden East, officiated in the presence of the immediate family. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attractively gowned in a green ensemble of georgette and lace with hat and shoes to match, and wore the groom's gift, a crystal pendant on white gold chain. She was attended by Mr. W. A. Shane, of Bowmanville, who wore a green ensemble, and the groom was assisted by Mr. W. A. Shane, of Bowmanville, brother of the bride. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pearl necklace and to the best man a knife and chain, set of green and white gold. After the ceremony, the happy couple left by motor for Ottawa and points in Quebec, the bride wearing a frock of travel tweed with touches of beige and brown coat, trimmed with sable, with hat, shoes and bag to match. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm near Moscow. Those present from Newburgh were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Shane, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Shane, and Mrs. T. Mihap.

Successful Concert At Trinity Church

Iarge Attendance at Annual Gathering

The annual Trinity Church Ladies' Aid Supper and Concert, held last Thursday evening, were most successful events. The supper, attended by about four hundred, was of fine quality and was excellently served by the ladies in attendance.

The concert, held in the church auditorium under the direction of Mr. W. R. Gray, was warmly received by a large and most appreciative audience.

Mrs. J. E. Madden opened the programme with two brilliantly rendered numbers on the organ. Mr. Reg. Wiseman rendered in fine voice "Bird Songs at Eventide." Mrs. Arthur Kinsey conveyed very characteristically the spirit of her song "Fathers". Master Elwyn Gray was enthusiastically received in his solo, as were both he and his brother, Lynden, later, in a duet, in which their young boyish voices here heard with fine effect.

Mrs. Pawson sang the ever popular Tosti's "Good-Bye" and "Little Son," by William Axt. Mrs. Epplett was heard in "Ah! Moon of my Delight," and "In Lilac Time," manifesting admirable voice quality and agility.

Mrs. Gray's two songs revealed her to be a soloist of rare sweetness and perfect technique.

The male quartette, including Mr. C. Garrison, Mr. Fred LaSalle, Mr. Bert Weese and Mr. Charles Vandervoort; and the octette, composed of Mrs. A. Kimmerley, Mrs. Georges Foster, Miss Letha Scott, Mrs. Frank Mills, Mr. Fred LaSalle, Mr. Chas. Garrison, Mr. Bert Weese and Mr. Robt. Hannah, were conducted by Mr. Gray and accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Gray. The efforts of both groups of singers, winning much merited praise. All the singers received encores.

Mr. Gray, who played two numbers on the organ with great distinction, is showing himself to be a well trained musician and an outstanding leader, which, with his attractive personal qualities, explain his ever-growing popularity in the church and community.

COLLEGIATE NOTES

During the last school year the Collegiate was provided with a beautiful new stage curtain. The material for this was presented by Mr. Ernest Gibbard, while the teacher of dressmaking in the evening vocational classes, Miss L. Vanalstyne, arranged to have the curtain made up without expense to the school. The new curtain makes a great improvement in the appearance of the Assembly Hall.

We are indebted to Mr. John Fennell, who has presented a couple of dozen volumes to the school library. The interest of these citizens in the school is very gratifying.

CAR DRIVERS PAY DAMAGES

On the Selby Road, Bert Windover of Richmond, was arrested for reckless driving and fined $10.00 and costs, and had his drivers' permit suspended for 6 months.

Orval Fitcher was fined for driving with only one head light.

On Saturday night there was a bad accident on the Newburgh Road. Jim Plumley, of Napanee, heading north, sounded his horn and then went to pass the car driven by Mr. Pero, of Newburgh. Mr. Pero pulled his car to the right too quickly and the car turned over, doing about $50 damage and he was very badly shaken-up.

The charge against Stewart Waddell, Napanee, for reckless driving, when he and Mr. Sexsmith collided, was dismissed on Monday morning.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

Some of our faithful readers have been commenting on the conspicuous comments in this column on the outcome of the college rugby tilts of last Saturday and a week ago.

Conspicuous because of their absence.

* * *

The truth of the matter is that we were away two weeks ago and did not get the shots in before the paper went to press.

* * *

And last week there were other matters of note pertaining to local events which took up all our space.

* * *

And if these excuses are not sufficient, we might say confidentially that things got into such a hopeless mess in the Intercollegiate union that ever to think about it was unpleasant, to say the least.

* * *

Enough said!

* * *

And if by any chance this explanation is not enough, we will be glad to discuss the matter further in private.

* * *

It was with mingled feeling that the local gridiron warriors watched Peterboro trim Belleville Collegiate in two straight games.

* * *

They would like to have seen the team representing their loop go, at least, to the finals, but on the other hand, it was good to see them taken down a peg.

* * *

At one time this fall, the Belleville team were discussing whether or not the team representing Toronto would give them much opposition.

* * *

They likely know now.

* * *

The Deseronto aggregation were woefully outclassed by Argonaut Juniors at Port Hope, on Saturday. The score was 53 to 0.

* * *

It was just a process of Deseronto kicking off and Argos making another touch. They did not let up until the final whistle.

* * *

The local hockey players are in hopes of entering a team in the Kingston City League. The final decision is to be made tonight, (Tuesday) by the officials of the League. Chief Watts will represent the locals' interests at the meeting and in all probability will succeed in entering a team. His former connection in the Limestone city will aid him materially.

* * *

The squad will be coached by the Chief and will be under the management of the Gibbard Athletic Association.

* * *

There is still a lot of good material in town and a few newcomers. Some of the boys were at the Collegiate gym. last night, working out with the Gibbard Basketball team, in an effort to be in as good condition as possible when they take the ice.

* * *

This entry will not interfere with the local hockey season as it because the city series is over early in January. The boys will see some good hockey and should stand a fair chance of finishing the series in the play-offs.

After the first of the year, this same team will likely stick together and play exhibition the remainder of the season.

MORVEN

(Por last week)

The young people of Vidar, and the Mission Circle of Fourth Line, were entertained at the parsonage on Wednesday evening, November 5th. All report a splendid evening spent.—Mrs. Matt Shetler entertained about one hundred guests at her home on Wednesday evening, the occasion being a social evening in the interests of the Morven-Hawley Branch of the Women's Auxiliary.—The Young People's Society will meet at the home of Mrs. George Prests on Friday evening. The programme is in charge of Mrs. R. Street.—Miss Bessie Henwood, Oshawa, spent the week end under the parental roof.—Miss Ella Wood spent Thanksgiving at home.—Mrs. Willie Ball is spending his holiday in quest of deer. —Mr. Ray Mills, Windsor, is visiting his mother, Mrs. A. Mills.—Our sympathy is extended to Mrs. Arthur Currie, who has been bereaved in the death of her mother.—We are glad to welcome Mr. Wells and family into our midst.— In spite of a head-on crash between two cars, on the Selby Road, on Sunday night, the occupants escaped uninjured; one of the boys was a Morvenite.—Mr. Will Reid, Toronto, called at Mrs. J. S. Pralick's on Monday.

THE BETTER HALF

The captain of the American bridge team which had been defeating the various British opponents says that "the average woman player of bridge is better than the average man player." Presumably this refers to the United States—and well it might. After all, it was in Kansas City not very long ago that an aggrieved wife observed to her husband at the end of a game of bridge "You're a bum player!" went to her room for a revolver, returned with it, and shot the delinquent stone dead. In order to justify a step of this kind the woman must obviously have been the better player—indeed the wonder is that there are any men who dare to play at all after such a stern demonstration of their inefficiency.

RIVETS MAKE STEEL FURNACE GAS-TIGHT

Lennox Torrid Zone Has Revolutionized Warm Air Heating in Thousands of Homes

The manufacturers of this unusual warm air furnace have taken a lesson from the builders of automotive boilers, tank cars and submarines. The Lennox Torrid Zone is made of boiler-plate steel. It is hot-riveted and cold-calked for safety and permanence. No gas, dust or smoke can escape into the rooms of your home.

But safety and cleanliness are not the only improvements the Torrid Zone brings. It furnishes the vital humidity lacking in so many homes during the heating season. The Torrid Zone humidifier has twice the evaporating area of ordinary water pans, right inside the casing and is over the firing doors for rapid evaporation. It can eliminate in your home that kiln-dried atmosphere which causes sore throats and colds and makes furniture crack and loosen at the joints.

Burn your favorite fuel in the Lennox Torrid Zone—hard or soft coal, coke, lignite, wood, gas or oil — and save money. Plans and estimates quickly furnished for all types of buildings. Factory engineering service for special problems. Lennox Furnace Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Ont. and Winnipeg, Man.

AUTO PRODUCTION DROPS

Canada produced fewer automobiles in September than in any month this year, according to a report published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The total was 7,667 cars, being 17 per cent lower than for August and 42 per cent. lower than for September, 1929.

Likewise production figures for the nine months of the year showed substantial reductions over 1929 totals. To the end of September, Canadian plants produced 136,622 cars compared with 233,853 cars for the same period last year. This reduction amounts to 41 per cent.

A BETTER WAY !

Miscellaneous Column

TOO CAN

Believe that you can—and you will not fail, though great be the task begun. Believe that you can—though hard the trail, and rugged the road you run. Have faith in yourself, and know that you can and you're simply bound to do; and never a barrier, bar or ban can keep you from carrying through.

Believe in yourself and then go in and work with your heart and soul. Believe in yourself and you'll surely win, no matter how far your goal. There's a marvellous force in the faith that springs from this great and noble thought; by the magic spell of the strength it brings, the greatest of deeds are wrought !

Believe in your soul that you will succeed. For as sure as you hold this thought, you will back your faith with the power of deed, till the last hard fight is fought ! Aye, hold to that thought and you'll do your part in the way that it should be done. Just start with a winner's confident heart, and your battle is really won !

So go to it, boy, and hit your stride, at the crack of the starting gun, and never falter or turn aside 'til the whole long course is run. You may not be brilliant, or clever, or smart; you may not be fast of pace, but if you have grit and a confident heart you'll be there at the end of the race.

High Art in Home-Making

Those who hold that necessity is the mother of invention will perhaps see some significance in the fact that it is "a father of twins" who has invented what he calls "a family coach," which, "among other things," can be used as: a baby's cot, a dinner-wagon, a music-stand, a pair of high chairs for twins, a bachelor's desk, a bedside table, a safety scooter, a settee with pneumatic back and seat, a bath, an occasional table, and a folding sink for a caravan.

The "other things" presumably include a portable wireless, a dog kennel, a harmonium, a miniature golf course, and a combined mangle and washing machine. And it should keep even the twins occupied in wondering what to do with it next.

A New Colour

It seems as if the pleasant practice of giving new and exciting names to old colours is no longer confined to women's fashions. From dress materials and hosiery it has spread to Dutch bulbs. At an auction sale the other day some lots of Darwin tulips were described in the catalogue as "bell red" a colour which the auctioneer laughingly admitted was quite outside his experience, and he hoped it would always remain so. Compared with this the feminine equivalents of "flirt red" and "flame" sound rather feeble, and the Dutchman has certainly left us with no more words to conquer—at that end of the spectrum.

Romanticising Crime

The Grand Jury which was called to investigate conditions in Chicago has reported the existence of a three-cornered alliance between members of the police department, corrupt politicians, and criminals. This will not surprise anyone. Nor will the fact that the Grand Jury's only practical suggestion is the calling of another grand jury to make further investigations. You have in Chicago a state of affairs not hitherto known in the civilized world. You have a great city with two universities and an art gallery and a famous opera-house — all the plant and paraphernalia of civilization, but lacking a true system of law and of government. Men known to be murderers may walk about openly in the streets of Chicago and no policeman dare arrest them. Such a state of affairs is significant of much. It shows how little the outward symbols of civilization count as compared with its reality, which is a certain spirit, a particular standard of values. No doubt the majority of the citizens of Chicago imagine themselves to be law-abiding. They pay their taxes and go to bed at nights. But they are not fully law-abiding because they consent to the appointment of corrupt officers and of corrupt politicians. If they really cared about the wretched state into which their city has fallen they would soon mend it. But they don't. Worse, there is a definite tendency to romanticise the big men of the Chicago underworld; to build up a sort of Robin Hood myth about them. Actually, they are the most revolting type of criminal imaginable—bullies, blackmailers, purveyors of bad liquor and drugs, owners of brothels.—Editorial in Manchester Guardian.

Watching the Clock

Some new notes on Paris fashions announce that there should be a different skirt-length for different times of the day. At 10 a.m., in the privacy of the home, the skirt may be 17 inches from the floor. At noon, "for streets and shopping," 15 inches is the suggested extreme, but by tea-time and 4.30 ten inches only are permitted. At dinner-time "eight inches from the floor" is the ruling (though what does it matter if the legs are under a table?) and the length descends with a rush "for the theatre," where "one inch from the floor" is prescribed.

It seems rather a nuisance to have to rush round and change in between dinner and theatre—there will be more people than ever struggling into the theatre half-way through the feature.

But the whole idea of fashion suggests that Cinderella was really a very lucky girl; her famous outing was, comparatively speaking, entirely free from restrictions. Her only business was to watch the clock and be off home by midnight; the modern leader of fashion will have to watch it all the time and, at its bidding double back to her boudoir or robing-room half a dozen times a day.

The Royal Winter Fair

For nine years the Royal Winter Fair has become less and less an increasingly important factor in Canada's agricultural and animal industries. Formed to promote and develop these industries, it has become a medium for drawing the nine provinces more closely together, as well as for the establishment of a Dominion-wide standard of excellence. The Fair is splendidly housed: the Coliseum with its spacious ring is the best of its kind on the North American continent, and the seating accommodation for visitors is the last word in show comfort.

At the Royal last year entries in all departments totalled 16,366, representing 2,366 exhibitors. There are special exhibits of horses, cattle, sheep, swine, dogs, cats, foxes, poultry, dairying, fruit and flower growing, seed, grains and pet stock. Special days are set apart for all the provinces in order to promote provincial interests and to enable produce from all parts of Canada to be exhibited.

This year the Royal Winter Fair will be held in the permanent buildings in Toronto from November 19 to 27, and will occupy some 20 acres of space, all indoors and comfortably heated. The horse section is perhaps unique in North America. The Coliseum seats 10,000 people, and nowhere are conditions better for good sport and feats of horsemanship. A feature this year are the competitions for any teams from Europe, the United States and Canada. The poultry section will have 8,00 exhibits, and the fox show is the premier exhibit of Canadian fox breeding. The dog show is held in cooperation with the National Kennel Club and will contain some 600 animals of the highest class, while the cat show is the largest winter exhibition in Canada.

The regular butter section at the Royal has been termed "the largest dairy display ever made on the North American continent." For beef and dairy cattle, and sheep and swine, there are altogether 64 divisions, including championships. Matters of general interest include the entertainment of 500 junior farms and 230 Ontario girls by the Ontario Government. LARGEST TURKEY FARM IS WOMAN'S

Nine years ago, Mrs. W. A. Freeman, of Ardenode, Alberta, a native of Wisconsin, U. S. A., won a pair of bronze turkeys in a raffle. She now has the largest turkey ranch in Canada and is the acknowledged queen of turkey raising in the Dominion. Her turkeys will return a revenue of $10,000 this year.

The winning of the pair of turkeys in the raffle suggested to Mrs. Freeman the idea of raising turkeys as a side line.

This year she has raised 2,500 birds. Three hundred hens, all government inspected, have supplied the demand for eggs in 1930 and 45 of the most select hens have been selected for first class breeding stock. A revenue of $2,000 has already been obtained for the sale of eggs and chicks and $2,500 from the breeding stock. The receipts from the sale of table birds for Thanksgiving and Christmas are expected to bring this year's total up to $10,000.

The Freeman farm on which the turkeys are raised has a creek running through it, which supplies an unfailing and plentiful supply of good water, an essential for successful turkey raising. The land is sandy, which assures good drainage. Most of the chicks are hatched in incubators. After hatching the chicks are sheltered from the rain days in large coops and then allowed to roam. The main flock is kept on about 300 acres of land, fenced in. Scrupulous attention is paid to the cleanliness of the sheds, the coops, which are sprayed with shingle oil from time to time to destroy fleas, lice, etc.

NOT RULED BY WASHINGTON

Phenomenal Democratic gains in United States Congressional elections this month have been hailed by many Canadian editors as likely to prove something of a barrier to tariff changes projected by Premier Bennett for submission to Parliament at its next session.

The contention has been offered that the complexion of Congress may lead to a lowering of the tariff wall against Canada. In any important essential no such lowering is probable whether Democrats or Republicans are in office. And, if any change is made it will be dictated solely in the interests of the United States.

Whether any action is taken one way or the other will have no effect upon the policy which Mr. Bennett will pursue. He has repeatedly laid it down that his policy was in no sense one of retaliation. It was and will be dictated only by what his Government conceives to be the selfish interest of the Canadian people.

Whether the change be up or down, the Canadian tariff will not be made in Washington while Mr. Bennett is Prime Minister.

CANADIAN RUBBER FACTORY SHATTERS PRODUCTION SPEED RECORDS

Existing production speed records were broken in the Goodyear factory here, according to A. M. Hardy, plant superintendent.

The factory received, states Hardy, an order for a conveyor belt approximately one-quarter mile long and weighing five and a quarter tons, for urgent delivery to a customer at a point 268 miles away. Despite the fact that vulcanization alone required 42 hours, the belt was delivered 72 hours after the order was received.

Nature has been lavish in distributing her charms throughout this most attractive province, but the Lakes district a scenic she has fixed for Lakes district a scenic the finest is perhaps a typical view of Annapolis section of the Maritime Provinces. Apart from its interesting historic story, Nova Scotia is also noted for its fine streams, and the picture here is one of an exciting moment in the sport of kings, when one of the gamest of Canadian fish is netted almost at the end of a long fight. Sometimes more than one salmon, so well known and so delicious, is hooked in the rushing streams of Nova Scotia, but anglers come from all over the continent to fish their waters.

In The Bhil Country

INDIAN VIGNETTES

(By Otto Rothfield, I.C.S., retired)

The Bhils are, as far as one knows, of the earliest aborigines of India. Thousands of years ago, when the first Aryans were already in possession of hills and forests and the rich parklands which stretch from Rajputana to the shores of Gujarat and the lesser Rann, Gaikrik poetry is full of romantic episodes between Bhil queens and dashing Aryan or Scythian warriors and knights errant.

For centuries, however, the Bhils were harried and hunted by the conquering Hindus. It was not till the middle of the nineteenth century that various English officers, of whom the best known is Outram, managed both to protect and to reclaim these wild and suspicious forest tribes. But as late as the beginning of the twentieth century there were regions where they remained wild and shy enough. I have myself ridden to settlements where no white man had ever been seen before, children ran and cut off into the jungle at my approach. Even to-day the Bhil tribes are still to a great extent outside the usual course of Indian life and civilisation.

Some among the Bhils live in settled districts and are what is called civilised. They are degraded—that is to say, to the ordinary level of the Hindu lower classes,—are serfs to the moneylender and the landlord, and spend their days in shiftless vice and drunkenness. But the majority are to be found in two less-developed British districts, Khandesh and the Panch Mahals, and in greater number in the medieval native States, which extend from the forests of Mewar to the Mahi and Rewa rivers. Here they live as they have lived for centuries, in separate glades of their native woods, grazing their herds, sowing a little maize and pulse broadcast, and feeding on the beasts and the fruits of the jungle. Bows and arrows are carried by all men, and remarkably good shots they are. I have had my eye wiped before now by a Bhil shikari and seen an Indian gazelle that I had missed with my rifle brought down next moment by his arrow. They are fine trackers, who read footprints in the jungle as a scholar reads a printed page. Of wild animals they know no fear; they creep to the very mouth of the leopard's lair; and the most sacred of oaths to them is "By the tiger."

A Likeable Race

No one who knows the Bhils can have failed to like them. They are an honest, truthful, laughing people, who love a good broad joke and a bit of adventure, frank and merry, manly and self-respecting. One can mix with them equally and familiarly without ever a fear of being overstepped. I have known them in famine days, when they were near starving, and again in seasons of good and game plentiful and everything in their little world happy and glorious. I have stalked and shot with them, and pleasant indeed were the luncheon hours under the teak trees beside a forest sprite, or as they sat in a circle round me and told stories and, unlike the Hindus, ate of my food and partook of my beer and cider. And I owed my life on one occasion when a wounded panther caught me before I could reload to the courage and devotion of a Bhil orderly. They have their little faults. They drink too much when they can get it; they have an ingenious interpretation of meum et tuum, ever to the forests in an anxious way at times and call it "washing the hills"; they are given to immodacity, which they consider "play"; and they can never see why they should not drive off the fat cattle of the Hindu villagers of the plains, whom they despise. But take them in their own homers and they are as pretty men as could be wished. To those who are good to them they are true and devoted. There are no more faithful police anywhere than the Bhil Corps; even if they do not rise to a Prussian perfection of pipeclay and drill.

A thing no one can forget who has ever heard it is the beating of the Bhil war-drums in the hills. Every settlement has its drum. There are times when the tribal headmen send a message resounding in the night from one hilltop to another to call the tribesmen together with their bows and arrows against some Indian prince's troops or tax-collectors. But the same drums usually beat out happier tidings, and summon men and women for a dance on a festival or after a successful chase. The last such dance I saw was when about a thousand Bhils, whom we were enrolling in co-operative societies came together as my invitation, and feasted on a stew of rice and kids' flesh with lots of country liquor. Large fires are built on these occasions, and round them they dance, both sexes together, the women often standing on the men's shoulders in a circle, as they shuffle round. So from sunset till well into the cold hours of the early morning they dance and sing and shout.

The Bhils are not fond of the Hindu and have a proverb (based on Hindu funeral customs) that "to kill a Brahmin feeds a hundred others." Nor are caste Hindus tolerant of the Bhils. They hate them equally for their faults and virtues. Also they prefer them their land and freedom. The Bhils' future, I fear, looks black under any probable political dispensation. But it would be sad if a people so frank, so manly, and in their own way so historic were to be extinguished.

In The Land Of The Soviets

PART III

RUSSIA'S DOUBLE REVOLUTION

A Danger Of Serfdom?

(By Harry Sacher.)

Russia's economic distresses are due to the cataclysm through simultaneously of two economic revolutions, industrial and agricultural, involving profound changes of habit, social relation, and occupation and much privation for 150,000,000 people. At present nobody can assert dogmatically that the attempt has definitely failed or succeeded, but the chances favour success. The new system looks like being established. The Government has the necessary ruthless will-power, the people the necessary submission and fortitude, the country the necessary resources. Less zeal and less hurry might have moderated the pace and eased the stress, but the weight of the experiment, though heavy, is not intolerable. Still, now and for years to come the costs of production might be high and the divisible surplus modest. Success will still mean a standard of living low in Western eyes, but there will be something approximating to equality for all, and perhaps, once the bourgeoisie have died out, no poverty. The problem now baffling Europe of adjusting production and distribution will have been mastered. What price will the Russian people have paid?

One may set aside the privations of the period of transition; they are obvious. But there are certain deeper tendencies which may threaten the future. The revolution now, as before, is the work of a minority imposed upon a relatively submissive majority. It expresses the mind and the will of the minority, which controls all the machinery, which is ready to use that machinery at whatever cost to attain its purpose, and which has the logical ruthlessness of a religious fanatic. The Communist minority believes that its Communism is saving the soul of Russia and ultimately of the world, so that whatever appears necessary to achieve Communism is right and proper. The urge of Russia's economic needs may carry them very far.

The Kremlin has an all-embracing economic plan, backed by unrestricted power, and the Kremlin has the faith of an apostle coupled with a complete contempt for bourgeois liberty and individuality. When you have fixed in advance how much grain or flax or sugar or milk or meat Russia must produce in one year you must take the necessary steps to secure that they are produced. The methods deemed necessary show an interesting evolution. At first the appeal was to the natural greed of the farmer fortified on occasion suggested by violence. Then the individualist farmer was persuaded, cajoled, tricked, or driven into the collective farm. The initiative, however, was still left to the farmer to produce what he thought proper, leaving the State to make the best of the result. But the State, with the demands of industry and export upon it, feels under the necessity of determining beforehand what shall be produced. The present tendency is to induce the peasant to produce what it requires. It offers him credits, machines, manures on condition that he produces what the State dictates and turns the whole surplus over to the State at a fixed price. The peasant is tending to change from an independent farmer into a labourer hired by the State, not appreciably distinguishable in status from the factory worker of the town.

Compulsion?

That is not the final stage. If you are to be certain of receiving a definite product you must be assured not only of the land, the seeds, and the machines, but also of the labour. The Russian peasant is migratory, but the migratory habit is in conflict with planning, organisation, system. Yet the peasants' natural attachment to the soil must weaken as ownership gives way to collective partnership, and collective partnership to hired dependence. The State may compel the labourer to stay on the land and so restore something not distinguishable from serfdom.

A like process may operate, and perhaps even more readily, in industry. The State is investing vast capitals in new plants, but the new plants will be idle or inefficient unless there is an adequate supply of qualified and conscientious labour. But Russian industrial labour is migratory and irresponsible. It passes lightly from factory to farm and from one factory to another; it keeps bad time; it spoils good raw material; it damages costly plant; it introduces that element of the uncalculable which is so obnoxious to the planning autocratic mind. The Soviet Government is seeking to check these evils by propaganda, by adjusting wages to output, by promoting competition between factory and factory. Essentially it is a sentimental or emotional appeal, and it is incredible that it can be sustained for more effective over a long period. Already in the towns eye and ear have become dulled to it, and already the cry is being heard that the workman should be compelled to stick to his job. The line of compulsion is fatally easy to tread. For practical purposes the Government is the only employer. A man or person on its black list must starve. He cannot get work and he cannot emigrate. He becomes a prisoner without rations.

A Russian Communist would say that this is a fantastic speculation, that the tendency towards a servile State does not exist, that Russia is controlled by the workers and peasants themselves, and so could not suffer such a degeneration, and that the real menace to civilisation

Girls' Basketball

N. C. I. TAKE BOTH GAMES

Seniors 57 - 8; — Juniors 31-29

In the Picton Collegiate Institute gymnasium, on Friday, November 14, the Napanee Girls were again victorious in both games played.

Napanee Collegiate Institute senior team started right from the first of the game to pile up the score. On the other hand, P. C. I. team was unable to prevent N. C. I. from doing so. Pansy Waddell played a "sure shot" game and the rest of the N. C. I. team showed they knew the secret of keeping their forwards busy shooting. There was no doubt throughout the game which team would win and the final score of 57 to 8 showed Napanee's superiority. Mr. Alexander, of Belleville Y. and Miss McLaughlin, of Napanee, were the referees.

The Napanee Collegiate Institute Juniors continued their march to victory by defeating the Picton Collegiate Institute Juniors. The Napanee team seemed to be getting the worst of the battle at first. Picton repeated great things from its Juniors and were not surprised when at the end of the first half, the score was 19 to 7 in Picton's favor. But in the second half, inspired with a great determination to win, N. C. I's team put up a wonderful fight and succeeded in making the score become larger very rapidly. When the score stood 27 to 26 P. C. I's favor with only three minutes to play, the excitement was intense. It reached its heighth when the whistle blew and the score was announced to be 31 to 29 in Napanee's favor. Margaret Wallace is to be praised for her brilliant playing and especially for her last two goals which decided the game.

After the games the Picton teams entertained their visitors and friends.

CHILDREN AT CHRISTMAS TIME

Men and women out of work know the meaning of Christmas. They get, in a measure, to understand the cause of poverty. But the children—the little boys and girls—they haven't learned to think, they can't understand. All they know is that they haven't the things other children have, and they dream of days when they will have them.

Help to make their dreams come true. Give a donation to The Beaver Santa Claus Fund. It will buy gifts and little necessities for boys and girls in Napanee. A consecrated group of women will gather the fund and administer it, as in past years.

The children need your help now as never before. Every dollar counts.

YOUTH FACES MURDER COUNT

Camden East Resident Remanded — Jury Finds Man Hit With Stone

A jury at Centreville, probing the death of Frank Shane, about forty years of age, who died in Kingston General Hospital last Sunday, as a result of a skull injury, rendered a verdict that Shane met his death as the result of a blow on the head caused by a stone in the hands of Lorne Rogers, 21, Camden East, during a celebration on Hallowe'en.

Following the verdict Provincial Constable F. W. Barrett, of Napanee, arrested Rogers on a charge of murder. Magistrate Graham, at Napanee, remanded him for a week.

It is alleged there was considerable "horse play" on the square at Camden East during the celebration, and that Shane was hit behind the ear.

Mrs. Shane testified she saw Rogers throw the stone at her husband.

—The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid and W. M. S. of Bawley United Church, will be held at the home of Mrs. Rd. McDougherty on Thursday afternoon, November 20th, at 2.00 p.m. Election of officers.

—There will be two girls' basketball games in the Napanee Collegiate Institute gymnasium on Friday evening, November 21st at 7.30 p.m. Belleville Collegiate vs Napanee Collegiate. These should prove very interesting games. 47ab

—A Christmas present, to be of the best sort, should be a continuous one. What better than a year's subscription of the home paper. It only costs a dollar and a half in Canada and two dollars to the States. The Beaver gives the sort of news the home folk want to know. Make this a Beaver Xmas.

—The Women's Christian Temperance Union will hold their regular monthly meeting in the Library, next Tuesday, November 25th, at 3.00 p.m. Reports are to be given by the Provincial Convention held at Bridge St. Church, Belleville, in October. All the ladies are cordially invited to attend.

The writing public has placed the seal of approval on Sheaffer Life Time Pens. Last year the sale of Sheaffer's exceeded the combined sales of the next two larger selling pens—For your personal use or as a perfect gift, select a Sheaffer Fountain Pen at Wallace's, Napanee agents.

—Grace United Church Sunday School Bazaar will be held in the basement of the church on the afternoon of December 1st. Aprons, novelties, fancy work, toys and home cooking. Afternoon tea will be served. In the evening the play "Three Pegs" will be presented by the "Phylithea." Bible Class. 47b

—It is hard, often, to decide just the right kind of present to give to the member of the family who is away from home—why not a year's subscription of The Beaver's—Fifty-two times a year it conveys all that home news. We can send a neat card to'reach your loved one just before Christmas. It costs a dollar and a half in Canada; two dollars for the States.

—Letter writing is becoming a lost art. The telephone, the typewriter and other modern inventions have made obsolete the long and carefully written letters of last century. The newspaper—particularly that of the smaller town, carries so much that we formerly included in letters. Why not send The Beaver for a year to the address of the family who is away.— $1.50 per year; $2.00 to the States.

—So many people put off buying their gifts until, in desperation, they purchase oftentimes things which are speedily forgotten. Now that Mr. Average man from home won't forget the gift if it be a copy of The Beaver. It comes regularly every week and is a link the home news—one dollar and a half in Canada and two dollars in the States. If you wish, we will send a neatly printed card, conveying your greetings, to arrive just before Christmas.

—What might have been a very serious accident occurred last Sunday afternoon at Newburgh, when a car, driven by Mr. S. Herd, who is senior clerk of Vandervoort's store collided with a pole at the corner of Main and River Streets. Mr. Herd and two lady friends were approaching the south hill when the car failed to make the hill backing down into a pole. Mr. Herd was very fortunate in only running two cuts, and the girls escaped without injury.

—A surprise party was given to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garrison, Centre St., on the eve of December 11th, when Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lake, Morven; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Garrison, Fairview; Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Lampkin, Fairview; Mr. Alman, Mrs. J. Madden, Fairview; Mr. Wilfred Morley Lake and Mr. J. Garrison, were guests on his birthday. After spending a few hours at games, music and a pleasant social chat, all were invited to the dining room, the centre attraction of which was a large bouquet of carnations and a huge birthday cake, beautifully decorated and surrounded with candles, furnished by their daughter, Mrs. Percy Lake. About midnight, all left for their respective homes, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Garrison many happy returns.

New Novelist Found

NAPANEE AND DISTRICT SETTING

Former Resident of Lennox and Addington Writes Fascinating Story

The first novel to be written around the life and environs of Napanee has made its appearance. It is written, too, by one who spent most of her early life hereabouts and knows of what she writes. The writer is Ella Belle Wallis, and the book "The Outside Circle." This is not a common place book. It is written with charm and restrained power and has received good favourable comment from the various literary reviewers. The editor of McMillan's and Neilie McClung are enthusiastic over it. It has been listed by Eaton's among the three best Canadian books of the year. It is published by the Ariston Publishing Company, of Ottawa, and is the president of the Company, Frederick Phillip Grove, of Ottawa, is enthusiastic about its future. In a recent letter Mr. Grove says to Mrs. Wallis: "Professor A. L. Phelps, his wife and family are here and he is delighted with what has been done so far. I heard him, the other night, speak to Graham Spry, the national secretary of the Canadian Clubs, who asked him about what was emerging in Canadian writing, and he mentioned your book in the very first place, saying that in his opinion, it was a marvelous piece of work. Needless to say I agree with him."

Huntington, in reviewing it, says: "The result is fascinating and unique. This moving story, not so much of love as of unconscious motherhood, is set in the Napanee District, of Ontario, a landscape which lives through its pages with an almost uncanny vitality. It is a quiet book and its great power is seen and felt only by repeated reading. It will improve with age."

Author From Colebrook

The author, Ella Bell Wallis, who came to Colebrook when four years old along with her brother and sister. She was brought up by her aunt Mrs. Mary Mrs. Charles Warman, of Colebrook, since Margaret Bell) to whom the book is dedicated.

Later she removed to Tamworth. She attended the Tamworth High School under the principalship of J. M. Denyes and D. A. Nesbitt. She then took the model course in Napanee and the Normal at Ottawa. She taught in Prince Edward, Merrickville, Brantford and Strathcona. She then moved west, where she taught in Calgary, prior to her marriage to E. L. Wallis.

The many friends and acquaintances in this community are delighted at her success.

The book may be had for two dollars and doubtless will have a great run in this territory.

The Beaver Santa Claus Fund

FIRST CONTRIBUTION COMES FROM LITTLE GIRLS

Mary Kimmerly and Miriam Miller Hold Bazaar

It nearly always happens that way. The grown-ups are so busy with their business and the home life that these thoughts, about other people's children are a long time in asserting themselves. But not so the little ones. They can sympathize with the poor boys and girls. They know what a disappointment it would be if they did not have a visit from Santa Claus on Christmas. They know how badly they would feel if they had to go without Christmas gifts. And so the children who have, and who can, are always the first to start our Beaver Santa Claus Fund.

This year it was Mary Kimmerly and Miriam Miller. They held a bazaar and brought to the office the splendid sum of $1.66 a really splendid gift from these girls—Well done Mary and Mariam!

Parents should encourage more of this spirit among the children. it will help a lot.

But there must be other gifts. The grown-ups must give some larger contributions if all the children are to be supplied this Christmas. The women are busy now on all sorts of needy articles. And we have authorized them to go on and buy the material, for we know that Napanee citizens will not let us down in this needy work.

WILTON

The Ladies' Aid Bazaar, of the United Church, which was held on Tuesday afternoon of last week, together with its entertainment in the evening, were both decided successes. The sale of articles, in the afternoon was well attended and a very large crowd gathered in the evening to greet the artiste from Harrowsmith and Camden East, who gave a fine programme. Lunch was served after the concert.

The Concert of Hydro power was turned on on Wednesday morning of last week, and those who were in readiness are delighted with the lights.

About twenty enthusiastic workers of the Wilton Women's Institute gathered last Thursday afternoon at the Grange Hall, to meet Miss Hawley, of Napanee, who came to demonstrate article made from Dennison's crepe paper, parchment paper, etc. Many fine ideas were obtained pertaining to the making of lamp shades, table ornaments, etc.—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hawley, of Odessa, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Simmons, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harr Simmons.—Mrs. Mills and Parrott visited last week with Mrs. Mills' daughter, Mrs. Roy Campbell, of Harrowsmith.—Each of the Sabbath schools in the village have been visited by the leadership presentative, Mr. F. Allison entertained the Ladies' Aid at her home last Wednesday afternoon. Plans were made for holding a tea meeting on the evening of December 4th. CRATE FEEDING

The most important work done on the farm and work which yields the greatest return for the labour expended, is the proper feeding of poultry, both for market. This is particularly true in the case of poultry. P. C. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman, states that it costs from 7 cents to 8 cents per pound to feed a bird to maturity, around five months of age, and only 5 cents to 6 cents per pound to crate-feed and properly finish that bird. The significant fact in the situation is that it is the last pound of finish which raises the quality, raises the grade, and improves the weight of the bird to be sold. Crate-feeding is a comparatively simple operation. A suitable crate is made of slatted frame-work 6 feet long, 16 inches wide and 20 inches deep divided into three compartments through the use of solid partitions and ends, the slats in front are placed up and down about two inches apart, and a feeding trough is placed in front at a suitable height. Any farmer intending to market poultry this fall will find that it will more than pay him to crate-feed his birds.

In crate-feeding the essential points to remember are that the feeding is being done to raise the quality of the farm flock so that the birds will grade when dressed into the "Milk-fed A and B" classes. Only finely ground or mashed feeds should be used. Coarse grains which give best results in producing a milk-fed grade are barley, oats, and buckwheat. These should be mixed with buttermilk or skim-milk to the consistency of thin porridge. Where sour milk is available it gives best results. The feed should be prepared one meal ahead. Care must be taken when putting birds into the feeding crate to see that they are hungry enough to eat and also that they are not over-fed the first few days they are in the crate. They should be fed as much as they will clean up in twenty minutes. This feeding ought should be cleaned out after each meal. At this time of the year two meals a day is sufficient. The first should be given in the morning for the birds to see to eat and the other about an hour before sunset in the evening.

THE NEW STANDARDS

One of the most important developments in many years in the poultry industry is the announcement made by the Honourable Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, of the reception on the part of wholesale buyers of the official government grades as the standard for trading in dressed poultry. Coupled with this development is the further statement that certificates in price will be paid between the several grades making up the Canadian standards for dressed poultry. This means, in a word, that the producer—farmer or poultryman—is going to get a better measure of value for the real quality of his poultry than he has received heretofore. It also means that to take advantage of the opportunity presented more attention will have to be paid to the proper feeding and finishing of poultry for market.

ATTRACTIVE WAY OF USING APPLES

At this time of the year when apples are so plentiful housekeepers should utilize them as much as possible. There are so many ways of cooking apples that the cook should not get into the prescribed habit of apple sauce, apple pie and baked apples. A jellied apple sauce is a delightful dish and the recipe appears below:

1 tablespoon of gelatine, ½ cup of cold water, 1 cupful of sugar, 1 cupful of water, 1 tablespoon of lemon juice, 1 cupful of strained applesauce; 1½ to 12 maraschino cherries.

Soak the gelatine in cold water. Make a syrup by boiling for ten minutes the sugar and water. Pour the boiling syrup over the soaked gelatine and mix well. To this mixture add the strained apple sauce, the lemon juice and the cherries cut in small pieces. Pour into individual wet molds and allow to set. Serve garnished with whipped cream and red and green cherries.

It is hoped that the much needed rain will come before the general freeze up for the long winter months.—We are very sorry to report the sudden death of Mrs. William McWilliams, she having been taken ill on Monday morning, the 10th inst. Her only daughter, Mrs. Clarence Allen being in the hospital at the time, having undergone an operation for appendicitis, just two weeks before, was able to be brought home to attend her mother's funeral, but she was in a very weak condition. ROBLIN UNITED CHURCH ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

The Roblin United Church Anniversary Services were held on the morning and evening of Thanksgiving Day. Both services were exceptionally well attended and attracted by the presence of Rev. C. J. Wilson, of Toronto, a former pastor who returned to the village after an absence of nearly four years, and who had been invited to take charge of the services. In the morning a mixed quartette from Forest Mills assisted the local choir in a splendid musical service and in the evening the music was by local talent. While the audience was gathering Mrs. Brooks and son, Garnet, sang "Glories of Sunset." The choir sang the anthem "Rejoice in the Lord" by Bierley and Mr. Garnet Brooks gave a solo entitled "Sweet and Low my Master calls."

At the annual supper, on the following evening, a bountiful repast was served in the Ladies' Aid. The people were present at the hall at a very early hour and serving began at six and finished at eight. The ladies left nothing to be desired in the manner of cooking it was plentiful and the tables were groaning under their Thanksgiving load of delicacies. The programme was given in the church across from the hall and the building filled to the doors.

Rev. C. J. Wilson was again present and in a short address, pleased old and young alike. Mr. Wilson was a great favourite with our young folks and they heartily applauded his address. The programme was given mostly by outside talent; Roblin being represented by Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Brooks, who sang in duetts, the latter giving readings. Those were well received. These programmes are assisting to make good programmes in Roblin and surrounding district, since young and old are always heartily welcomed in their home church. Our minister, Rev. A. E. Oliver, (who acted as chairman) and Mr. A. Scott, of Forest Mills, delighted the audience with instrumental music. Mr. Hugh Nagar and daughters, of Enterprise, gave fine solos and readings and their numbers were insisted on by the large gathering. Napanee was well represented by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Smith, and these artists were favorites. Mrs. Smith is a former Roblin girl, of whom this locality is proud. Mrs. Robert Asselstine and Miss Nina Kimmett, of Marlbank, gave a fine duet, entitled "Tying Up down the old Pine Tree," and graciously responded to an encore and Miss Asselstine's little daughter, Marion was a great favorite of the evening. Miss Marie Ramsay, of Newburgh, was well received by the Roblin audience. Miss Ramsay is not a stranger to the Roblin people, she having assisted at the Roblin services last year. Many pleasing comments were heard at the close of the evening regarding the fine voice of the young Newburgh singer. Encores to her numbers were insisted upon. She was also heard in a splendid song with Miss Marion Brooks, both appearing in costume. Mrs. Lewis Fox, Forest Mills, acted as accompanist for the greater portion of the programme, and to her a large measure of the evening's success is due.

The ladies were delighted with the sum of one hundred and three dollars to swell their coffers and the success of the anniversary and supper is still a topic of conversation.

POTATOES AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR CORN IN FATTING MASH FOR PIGS

During the past four years, experiments have been conducted at the Fredericton Experimental Station to determine if potatoes could be used as substitute for corn. This work was begun in 1926 and covered a period each year from December 1st to May 1st. In each instance, fifteen Barred Rock pullets were confined in each pen at the beginning of the experiment and no birds were replaced during the period. 100 pounds of a mash composed of 4 scratch grain consisting of 200 pounds cracked corn, 200 pounds feed wheat, 100 pounds oats, and 5 pounds hopperss consisting of 100 pounds wheat bran, 100 pounds wheat middlings, 100 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds oat feeds, 20 pounds bone char, 4 pounds salt, 5 pounds charcoal, Grit, oyster shell, green feed, skim-milk and water were also supplied.

Group 2 was fed the same scratch grain mixture as Group 1. Instead of receiving a dry mash, as Group 1, they were fed twice a day a wet mash consisting of 100 pounds wheat middlings, 100 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds crushed oats, 15 pounds bone char, 3 pounds salt, and 5 pounds charcoal mixed with boiled potatoes. The proportion fed were two parts of potatoes (raw weight) to one part, mash. Grit, oyster shell, skim-milk, green feed and water were also supplied.

Where potatoes were substituted for corn in the mash, the results over a period of four years gave an average production of 84.13 eggs per bird, as against 84.13 for corn. This would indicate that potatoes are a valuable feed for egg production, but that they are not as valuable than when corn is used. The birds fed potatoes were quite as encouraging. The fertility of the eggs was highest where potatoes replaced corn, but the hatchability was superior where corn replaced potatoes.

WILL TAKE YEARS TO HEAR APPEALS BEFORE TRIBUNALS

Though the new and extensive pensions legislation passed early this year only becomes operative in October it is already apparent that it is going to be materially enlarged.

As now constituted it will take five, or even ten years to deal with the hearings and appeals already in hand and to come in. This situation, should at least half the purpose of the legislation, it was first intended that the new law should embrace and thus guarantee most generous interpretation to the soldier. The secondary consideration was eliminated in the matter of dealing with cases.

The machinery created to carry the law into effect is already confronted by applications and appeals which will require years to dispose of, and there are enough cases in waiting to occupy tribunals and appeal courts at least another two years.

If recommendations of soldiers' organizations are carried out parliament, during the approaching session, will be asked to at least double the tribunals and to open the doors more elasticity in the work of the appeal court.

Overwork or Worry

Takes the Health of Thousands of Young Girls

In the "teen-age" years when school or office work is exacting and outside activities use up so much energy, many girls undermine their health and spoil their happiness for years to come.

In such a time Dr. Williams Pink Pills will be found most valuable. They purify and enrich the blood; build up the nerve cells and correct run-down conditions. Concerning them Miss Margaret Tyne, Indian Road, Toronto, Ont., says: "When I was attending high school I suffered a complete breakdown. My head would palpitate at the least exertion; I could not sleep and nothing I ate agreed with me. I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and before long I gained in weight and every distressing symptom left me."

Dr. Williams Pink Pills are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

MORE BEANS GROWN

The growing of beans as a commercial crop is rapidly gaining importance throughout Canada. The Seed Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, reports that this is the case particularly with respect to Ontario and Prince Columbia. This year's crop in Ontario is expected to reach 250,000 bushels, and while a dry summer resulted in a comparatively low yield the quality of the crop leaves little to be desired.

One of the outstanding requirements in connection with bean production at the present time appears to be a system of uniform grading. Canadian grown beans are particularly desired by canners because of their low moisture content, which is from 14 to 16 per cent, making them superior for canning purposes to imported beans.

Laughed when he used Tender. Jimmie giggled when the teacher read the story of a man who swam a river three times before breakfast.

"You do not mean that a trained swimmer could do that, do you?" she asked in surprise.

"Yes, I do," Jimmie replied. "But I wonder why he did not make it four and get back to the side where his clothes were."

Skin Covered With Eczema—Now Clear and Healthy

Marvellous Healing by Well Known Remedy

There is nothing so simple in its origin and so effective as Zam-Buk to get rid of as skin disease. On the first sign of irritation, roughness, or eruption, anoint the place with Zam-Buk. This herbal ointment will speedily banish all trouble.

When the skin is already aflame with eczema, or poisoned or ulcerated, Zam-Buk is the one external application powerful enough to get to the root of the disease. It quickly relieves unhealthy tissue to new clear skin. You will be astounded at the quick soothing and healing of Zam-Buk.

MEDICAL TREATMENT BRINGS NO RELIEF

"My daughter's face and neck were covered with a mass of sores, which our doctor diagnosed as eczema. He prescribed treatment which we tried for two months without relief. The poor child's face had to be swathed in bandages and she was confined to the house. I was about to call in a skin specialist, when I heard how Zam-Buk had healed many sufferers from this dread disease, so purchased a box of ointment and tablet of soap. After a few days treatment there was a great improvement; day by day the sores disappeared and within a month my daughter's face was entirely cleared of any sign of the terrible disease, without a single scar. I can't say too much of the wonderful healing power of Zam-Buk."—Mrs. H. A., Toronto, Ont.

IF YOU have a sore inflamed or blotchy skin, or suffer from salt rheum, scalp troubles, poisoned wounds, or piles, you will find Zam-Buk quickly soothing and healing. It is also a marvellous first-aid for cuts, burns, etc. Zam-Buk Ointment 50c. box, Zam-Buk Medicinal Soap 25c. cake.

NEW FODDER

Reports made by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa and the Jerusalem Artichoke as an ideal forage crop, giving a good or dry matter per acre, and when considered from the standpoint of the added value of the tubers, gives a greater value than either sunflowers or corn. At the Sidney B.C., Experimental Station the average yield of tubers over a period of years was 601 tons above ground, which after crushing an additional 40 tons of tubers was also found to be a good silage to handle in the ensilage with sunflowers. In addition to this it is valuable as a general forage crop for cattle, sheep and poultry. The Jerusalem Artichoke is a particularly good forage for hogs and poultry.

PARLIAMENT WILL NOT MEET UNTIL EARLY IN MARCH

While official announcement will not be made until within a month of the event, it is not the intention of the Bennett Government to call parliament together until approximately March 1st.

The decision is, of course, subject to amendment but the reasons which have led to it will hardly be altered. They are, firstly that the delay will permit the Government to complete its entire tariff revision and to have its budget ready for submission as soon as the debate on the address from the Throne is concluded. Secondly, that by meeting in January, the House will only add two additional months of debate to Hansard.

While the House is in session, departmental business necessarily languishes as Ministers are otherwise engaged. A January to June session, followed by the holiday months of July and August, would knock eight months out of the departmental year, or at least hamper administration for that length of time.

All the general argument on tariff revision might be concluded in two weeks but it is a matter of record that on a major tariff revision, every item will see reiteration of the argument until hot weather drives the membership home. Next year, whether the House assembles in January or March, it will talk until July. Hence the viewpoint that two months can be saved for departmental work if the session is called in March.

Miller's Worm Powders are the medicine for children who are found suffering from the ravages of worms. They immediately alter the stomachic conditions under which the worms subsist and drive them from the system. At the same time, they are tonical in their effect upon the digestive organs, restoring them to healthful operation and ensuring immunity from further disorders from such a cause.

BIG PROGRAM PLANNED FOR LIVE STOCK SHOW

Chicago will be host to the country from November 29 to December 6th, when the International Live Stock Exposition will draw to it a mammoth display of the manifold wonders of the rural world.

Extending throughout twenty acres of buildings and a large part of the adjoining area in the Chicago Stock Yards, this renowned exposition will unfold to the visiting thousands an eye filling pageant of the final products of scientific methods applied to present day agriculture, says B. H. Heide, secretary-manager of the Show.

Junior Contests First

Although, according to the management, the exposition is not scheduled to open officially until November 29, the first Saturday following Thanksgiving, one important event, the Junior Live Stock Judging Contest, will take place on Friday, November 28th. State champion teams of farm boys and girls are sent to Chicago from a large number of states to compete for national honors.

Saturday, November 29th, marks the official opening of the exposition. It will be a day crowded with events of interest to young people, with the Junior Live Stock Feeding Contest, the Collegiate Live Stock Judging Contest, and the opening of the 4-H Club Congress. Saturday evening will bring the first of the Horse Shows, which will continue each night, except Sunday, until the close of the exposition.

Grand Program Monday

On Monday every available ring will be filled with aspirants for the highest honors of the year which go to International winners. Important on Monday's program are the steer classes, as well, as many of the separate breeds of cattle, horses, sheep, and swine, while Tuesday will furnish a highly spectacular event on the occasion of the selection of the grand-champion steer.

Auction sales of both purebred and fat cattle, fat sheep, and swine will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, culminating in the open air auction in the Stock Yards of the grand-champion steer and the carload lots of commercial cattle which compete in themselves one of the most impressive sights of the exposition.

Record breaking prices for these choice meat animals are received. At the 1928 International $7.00 a pound was paid for the grand-champion steer and last year $8.25 a pound.

330 PER CENT PROFIT SOUGHT

Unless profits come up near the 300% mark out this way, they hardly consider it worth the making.

A farmer living a few miles outside the town of Gananoque, bought a cheese the other day from the factory with which he usually deals.

He paid the market price of 13 cents a pound.

The cheese, however, was not old enough to be eaten, so he paid another visit to town and bought some more—this time from a grocery store.

He paid 35 cents a pound for it, that is 22 cents a pound more than the producer received for it. His comment was: "There's too wide a spread here, surely."

ELECTRICAL ROBOT COUNTS AUTOS

Pooiproof electrical robots, operated by pressure rather than by light beams, will count every auto that passes through the new Detroit - Windsor Fleetway tunnel. They will automatically record each car right after the driver has paid his fare. It takes both front and back wheels of the auto passing over a bar that is flush with the pavement and connected with the counting part of the robot "brain" to make the automatic accountant add one more to the total.

THE LOP DESERT

Once the Roaring - Ground of Races Most Went North and Populated Other Countries.

Sir Aurel Stein, the famous Hungarian traveller, now at his 66th year, is once more working in the remote and fascina...ng but lolisome Lop Desert of Chinese Turkestan.

Sir Aurel has long been a faithful, daring and learned servant of British India, of civilisation and of knowledge, on and beyond the borders of India. This time it is the American Harvard University and the British Museum that are jointly paying the cost of his expedition.

They do so because the sands of this Central Asian desert hide much of the early history of mankind. Once the desert was an inland sea in the midst of a prosperous country that by its trade linked China with Eastern Europe.

It is surrounded by lofty mountains. The Karakorum, K'wen-Lun, and Altin-Tagh mountains on the north and down their streams into this wide intervening plain where few people dwell.

The people are few because the mountains are being fast disintegrated by wind and weather; their sands, driven on the winds, are covering up the plain, and have nearly sanded over the bed of the basin that was a sea. The rivers are lost in the sands that are the ruins of the hills, and the last of the sea, and after the Lake Lob Nor, is now only a salt-crusted stretch of marshy land, lake-like only in the wettest season. Yet this and other neighboring lands of Central Asia were once the rearing-ground of races that went forth and populated countries now rich and populous, while their cradle-land is crumbling and silting-up into ruins and desolation.

Sir Aurel Stein has been there before and has made very interesting discoveries. He has clearly proved that though this plain there passed 2,000 years ago trading caravans carrying westward the products of China to the markets of the Greeks and the Romans in Europe, and, returning eastward to China, brought the products of Europe thither; and we know that six and a half centuries ago the Venetian traveller Marco Polo followed this route between Persia and China and described it faithfully. But the destructive powers of nature, more even than the destructive powers of Man, have been at work here, and such powers as the shrinking ancient sea may have had is itself shrinking into dry, arid existence. So Sir Aurel is toiling again over the mountains and into the dreary plain to find out knowledge of the past which, if it is not soon found, may be obliterated.

He is just the man for the work, for he has an extensive knowledge of Eastern languages, a great experience of all forms of travel, a remarkable power of observation and a rare knowledge of ancient history and archaeology.

His expedition is crossing the great mountain barriers north of India, in two parties, through passes that lie between the lofty ranges of Hindu Kush and Karakorum. One party will skirt Afghanistan through the State of Swat and the other will start from Kashmir and traverse Ladak, before it joins the northerly point in the course of the River Indus. Then they will together cross the Tibetan Plateau, where the Russians are in possession, to Kashgar in Chinese Turkestan, and from there the ancient caravan route will lead them into the Lop Desert, in far more dry a state than it was 2,000 years ago.

It is a journey which will take years, and all we think it is well that the history of the ancient world should be dug up with the aid of the modern world will follow Sir Aurel's enterprise with keen interest, and will wish that the hardy and long career with a notable triumph. He was a fine example to men half his age.

BATHS BY ORDER.

Inhabitants of Poland Compelled to Bath Once a Month.

"The order of the bath" is to be introduced into Poland. The Polish Government is introducing a law under which every inhabitant of the country will be compelled to take at least one bath a month. What is more, he must have a card stamped to prove it.

Though we are famous throughout the world, says a writer in Answers, as a nation of "tub-lovers," we have never tried to do anything quite so drastic as this. But there was a time when the authorities were suspected of trying to interfere with personal liberty in much the same way.

This was in the days of the old Board of Health. In a book published in 1854 the London Times declared that the nation would rather die in dirt and be cholera than be bullied into health." And it wrote of certain uses of the Board of Health:

"It was a perpetual Saturday night, and Master John Bull was scrubbed and rubbed and smallhoothcombed till the tears ran into his eyes, and his teeth chattered, and his fists clenched themselves with worry and pain."

Spain's National Parks.

Spain has become a recruit to the ranks of nations developing national park systems, an idea which was initiated in the new world with the founding of Yellowstone National Park in 1872. Spain now has two national parks and areas designated as "reserves of national interest."

One of the parks is in northern Spain, and the other in the northeast, deep in the Pyrenees. Both are in exceedingly rugged territory, where there are still many wild animals—chamois, the wild boar, deer, etc. In the Pyrenees park there is one deep dell-like that leads out toward the famous last stand of the medieval hero Roland, who lost his life in a rear-guard action protecting Charlemagne's army and gained immortal fame in a thousand legends.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

"What can I get for Ann's birthday," sighed Mary. "If I could only think of something different!" Then she remembered having read about Long Distance telephoning. "Now, that's an idea! I know Ann would appreciate something personal—like that. I'll call her right away!" —P.S. Mary enjoyed it, too!

It is easy to die, but to bravely live and face each new day—that often takes courage.

Hospital for Sick Children

67 COLLEGE ST., TORONTO 2
(Toronto Branch Dispensary)

December, 1930.

Dear Mr. Editor:

As a friend of afflicted little folks, who will serve with satisfaction that quarter century hospital at its service, I ask the hospital for Sick Children to assistance to increase its service considerably during the next year. That means its costs were estimated by nearly 100% small patients most of whom were restored to see well upon the way to recovery now. An enormous amount of work is always accomplished for Ontario's sons "Sick Kids" and in addition, this information along to the good-hearted people your newspaper serves you will interest them and at the same time be instrumental in assisting the maintenance of this humane service. It is a splendid understanding into the hospital needs every of of your town yet.

Perhaps now for interesting officials figures for the year which ended September 30 1930 indicating the magnitude and rapid extension of this mission of mercy. Total number on out patients' visits total 76,676 an increase of 371 over the previous year, actual number of patients' visits 22,718 an increase of 1,781 during these visits of 30 patients.

These figures include the wonderful country hospital at Bracebridge, where the year's total of patient days was 46,676 and the daily average 104.

In addition to this the out-patient department at the main hospital had 48,700 attendances within the year the largest number of any country treated in a single day being 413.

The little sufferers who are mainly of in the hospitals for Sick Children come from all over the province of Ontario through the munificent generosity of the readers the very poor have not an equal advantage with the very rich in securing the benefit of the latest known medical and surgical skill. There are no strings to admittance or the rule requiring hospital care there. Cases of circumstances in life make no difference at a great Mother Charity. Every year the trustees have to see that every large amount is provided for and they rely on sums people to help.

Many cases appear men soldiers, ambulancemen up to early teen age boys and girls some stricken with disease others deformed crippled or lame make up the countless large population of the hospital for Sick Children which has been in operation for 58 years. The annual appeal for funds is always made at the approach of the Christmas season as a most appropriate time to urge upon readers of this paper the claims of little sufferers

OVERHAULING THE VACUUM

As there are many different makes of vacuum cleaners, the mechanism should be thoroughly studied before the cleaner is disassembled. If the motor does not revolve when the switch is operated, the cord and switch should be inspected, after making sure, however, that the line fuse has not blown and that current is being delivered to the cleaner. If there are no breaks in the cord and the switch makes contact when operated, which can be determined by inspection, the motor should be looked over. If the trouble is caused by a stalling of the motor, look at the gears and the bearings in order to determine if grime, lint or other material had wedged between. Sometimes a solid object will get into the fan housing and wedge itself in such a way that the fan will be locked and thereby be prevented from turning. Such a condition is likely to cause the motor to burn out if current is applied for any length of time. Should it be possible to turn the motor by hand, however, the trouble is an electrical one in the motor. Remove the brushes and examine the commutator. If this is blackened and cut, the armature must be removed and a light cut taken from the commutator as it is rotated between centres on a lathe. If the commutator is not scored, a cleaning with No. 00 sandpaper will often be sufficient. The motor can then be re-assembled, and if the brushes are in good condition and sufficient tension is exerted by the brush springs, it should again operate when current is applied.

WORRYING ABOUT IT

The hardest thing you ever do
Is worrying about it;
What makes an hour resemble two
Is worrying about it;
The time goes mighty slowly when
You sit and sigh and sigh again
And think of work ahead, and then—
Keep worrying about it.
Just buckle up and buckle in—
A task is easy, once begun.
It has its labor and its fun;
So grab a hold and do it, son—
Quit worrying about it!

THINK IT OVER

On of the most precious things in the world is the good will of others. And just how are we to obtain and hold this. It is not by being sweet and cordial when meeting each other face to face, greeting with a warm hand-shake and a kiss, then when backs are turned deliver that "stab" that forever leaves its mark. We cannot in this day and age "pretend" friendship, and the majority of us have too good an understanding of human nature to be deceived and blinded by one of so-called friends. It is quite possible to take inventory of those who have been and are loyal to us. Of course we must not expect too much of our friends, we all make mistakes and must make the same allowances for the faults of our friends as we expect them to make for us, but we do expect Loyalty when occasion demands, therefore not having to list among our true friends persons who at any time would either be traitors and then, like Judas, meet us with a cordial kiss.

NO PARTIZAN PRESS POLICY PROPOSED

Emphatic denial is given at Conservative headquarters to rumors that a string of daily newspapers would either be acquired or inaugurated to promote the Conservative cause.

The rumors grew out of persistent reports that a new Conservative morning paper in Toronto for Toronto, a number of Ontario Conservatives are said to be interested in the Toronto project as a personal business proposition.

"The Conservative party" said Robert Lipsett, director of publicity for the party, "has no thought of buying or starting newspapers. The fair criticism of an uncontrolled press is healthiest for all parties and certainly best serves the public interest. We know nothing whatever about the Toronto rumor."

Miscellaneous Column

PROFANITY
(By Dr. Frank Crane)

The trouble with profanity is not so much that it is wicked, as that it is just plain dirty.

It is not so much that you shock religious people as that you disgust decent people, that we object to it.

Swearers are behind the times. They are holdovers from a former century.

Nowadays anybody who swears is set down at once as being coarse and vulgar.

The young man who wants to succeed needs the distinct impression everything that may help him on. And swearing will be a black mark against him in any job he may have.

And if he wants to associate with the right sort of girls he must keep his talk clean.

Nobody wants a swearer in the office nor in the workshop, nor the train, nor in the hotel. The only place swearing fits is the saloon.

Swearing means you don't know how to talk. Your vocabulary is limited. It is a sign of ignorance.

Swearing shows weakness. You will notice that forceful men, whose words carry weight, use simple, plain words.

When you swear it shows your impotence. It is the petty refuge of the helpless. If we can help a thing, help it; if not, keep still; anyway, don't swear.

Swearing has had kin. It goes with ignorance, brutality, cruelty, drunkenness, licentiousness, viciousness, and anger. And you can tell a habit by the company it keeps.

Swearing that is the sudden, impulsive exclamation is not so bad compared with swearing that has become a vile habit. And when a man gets the habit of sprinkling oaths through his speech constantly he ought to be tied out in the barn with the pigs.

To abstain from swearing does 'not mean you are a stay. It simply means you're decent.

To show you are manly, you don't have to have a dirty face, not black finger nails, nor greasy clothes, nor tousled hair. You can be manly though clean. And you are not showing any manliness by filthy talk.

Even if you want to hurt anybody's feeling, or insult anyone the worst way, use plain English; it hurts much more than curses.

Altogether, swearing is a useless, unclean, and offensive habit.

Fascinating Links In Canada's History

When His Royal Highness, The Prince of Wales, the eldest son of King Edward VII, of England, visited Canada in 1860, he was the most charming hostesses who entertained in his honor, was Mrs. Cauchon, wife of the Hon. Joseph Cauchon, at that time Minister of the Crown. If we will but think a moment, we can easily picture that dinner party, in those days when entertaining was the most lavish affair, in the grand old City of Quebec, and with the most beautiful woman in Canada as hostess.

In the Dominion Archives at Ottawa, on a long case in the public room, is the bust of this woman, considered the most beautiful of her day, carved in parian marble by Marshal Wood, the famous English sculptor, who also carved the figure of Queen Victoria which stands in the library of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa. At present there is no plate to tell who this bust represents, and a great deal of confusion has been caused. The figure is so beautiful that it is often mistaken for Princess Louise, and it is also so regal that it is claimed by many to be Queen Victoria. This, however, will be remedied in the near future, for a brass plate is being prepared for it by the lady's only son, Mr. Noulan Cauchon, who has lent this piece of art to the Archives.

Mrs. Cauchon was Maria Louise Noulan, of Sillery parish, and by her marriage to Joseph Cauchon of Chateau Richer, connected two very old and famous families. For some years she lived in Quebec City where she had a beautiful home. Later they moved to Ottawa where Mr. Cauchon occupied several important governmental positions, among them being the Speaker of the Senate, the first after confederation. In Ottawa, Mrs. Cauchon became noted for her grace as hostess, and her beautiful home on Laurier Avenue, which she named Stadacona Hall after the old name of Quebec City, is still one of the most beautiful homes in the Capital City.

Mrs. Cauchon died at the age of seventy-six after she had lived for several years in Manitoba where her husband was the Lieutenant - Governor. Her death occurred in 1877, while she was still in the prime of youth, but her name will go down in history as one of Canada's most famous hostesses.

A cairn dressed in stone, erected by the Historical Sites and Monuments Commission of Canada, to mark the Trail of Champlain and other early explorers, was recently unveiled at Mattawa.

An instructive talk on the early history of the explorations in Canada pointing out that the Ottawa and Mattawa rivers were the main canoe route to the Great Lakes, Plains, Rocky Mountains and beyond, was given by Brigadier General Cruickshank. On each spot where the Indians, missionaries, traders and explorers had landed a cairn is being erected. The methods of portage and a vivid picture of their early experience and struggles were given by General Cruickshank.

The cairn is a splendid structure, solidly built in dressed stone which was collected in the immediate vicinity and bears a bronze plate in French and English which gives a concise record of the trail of the early explorers.

EX-GOVERNOR NOW ENDORSES SARGON

Former Governor Clifford Walker, of Georgia, twice honored with the highest office the people of his state could give him, is prominent among the luminaries of well known men and women throughout America, who have publicly expressed their gratitude for benefits they have obtained from the use of Sargon. He recently said:

"Not being stalwart in physical strength, I have been cautious in several years to recoup my physical energies at each change of season with some tonic. Owing to close confinement in my office, and rather sedentary habits of life, my physical condition was such that I decided to take a course of treatment at Battle Creek. During recent years, I am glad to have been compelled to report almost continually to laxatives and other special agents for pleasures to maintain my health.

Sargon season a friend of mine suggested Sargon. I was convinced from literature which I read that it was a splendid tonic prepared product and decided to try it.

"Almost from the start its invigorating effects were noticeable. I seemed more alert, my appetite improved, my digestion was better, I slept sounder and I was conscious of a feeling of general well-being. I have gotten by the summer and am now entering the fall season with more energy and in better physical tone than I have experienced in many years.

"From my own experience I am convinced that Sargon contains certain therapeutic agents which are highly valuable wherever a tonic impression is required, and also for their influence upon the appetite and digestion. From its effects in my case I cheerfully recommend it as a tonic, and corrective worthy the trial of all tired business men."

Sargon may be obtained at Napanee, at Hooper's Drug Store, who has been awarded the exclusive Sargon agency for this town.

MARLBANK

A large number of our residents have been enoying the electric light since the first of the month and a number more have been connected up this week. The Marlbank Young People's Union held a very interesting meeting on Thursday evening in the United Church, there being forty-one present. Miss Edna Wells, the vice-president for the evening, presided and was in charge of the programme. Mrs. (Rev. Waite read a very interesting paper on the life history of Tennyson, while Miss Velda Badgley gave a recitation of one of Tennyson's poems; this was followed by a duet by Billie Perry and Vimy York. The programme concluded with a contest and a debate. — The Young People have secured talent from Sulphide to put on a play entitled "His Uncle's Niece," in the Community Hall, on Thursday evening, November 27th. A real good evening is promised. Do not miss it!— The choir of the United Church here went to Lime Lake Sunday evening and took part in the anniversary service there by rendering two beautiful anthems which were greatly appreciated by the congregation; also a number from the choir attended their tea meeting on Monday night.—Mr. William Wilson, of Colborne, has been renewing acquaintances in our village this week.— Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Asselstine, Pine Grove, spent Sunday at his father's, Mr. Oscar Asselstine.

AUTO CENSUS

World Ownership of Cars Passes the Thirty-Million Million Mark—U. S. Leads All Other Nations.

This business of putting the world on wheels is making giant strides. Driving at the rate of one new number of cars in the world passed the 3,000,000 mark, according to the annual world census of the automotive division of the United States Department of Commerce.

Reports covering 157 different nations, possessions and dependencies show a total of 35,177,394 passenger cars, trucks, and buses registered throughout the world on January 1, 1930—an increase of 3,092,836 vehicles, or 9 per cent. over the total registered at the beginning of 1929. This vast cavalcade of progress operating on the streets and highways of the world is larger by 155 per cent. than it was in 1922 when the world total motors totalled 13,804,416.

The slow-moving conveyance of yesterday has been supplanted by the efficient and sturdy motor vehicle, and the movements of man and commerce throughout the world on a larger impossible under other conditions. This far-flung fleet of more than 35,000,000 automobiles is not only contributive to the world's material welfare, but is making necessary the building of better roads, and enabling the people of the world to know each other better, and nations and tribes that were strangers a few years ago are being brought together. The automobile has become not only a producer of wealth and a convenience, but is an instrument of international enlightenment, dispelling the clouds of ignorance which have been responsible for misunderstanding among the peoples of the world.

The beginning of 1930 there was one automobile for every 55 persons in the world, assuming a world population of 1,900,000,000. Ten years before the ratio was one to 61. The latest estimate of the number in one motor vehicle to every 14 inhabitants of the United States as compared with 1 to one 4.77 a year before. Outside the United States the ratio is 1 to every 116 persons, whereas at the beginning of 1929 it was one to 247.

Canada and New Zealand tied for second place in ratio of cars to population, each with one to every eight persons. Australia ranked third with a ratio of one to ten. Yemen, in South western Arabia, had only one car for every 104,166 persons. Ethiopia, Abyssinia, one for every 17,-781; and Afghanistan, one for every 17,778.

But in some ways this amazing spread of cars is only just beginning. Russia, for instance, covers one-sixth of the earth's surface, yet has a total automobile registration of only 8,-000, or one car to every 6,130 inhabitants. In contrast, Canada has 1,189,188 cars, or one car for every eight people. If Canada had her present population, and only enough cars to match Russia, she would have 1,534 cars; in other words, as many cars in all of Canada as there are today in Brockville, Ont., 1,439; Carleton County, N.B., 1,534; Lotbiniere, Que., 1,534; Duncan, B.C., 1,637; or St. Boniface, Man., 1,534.

On the other hand, if Canada had her present car registration and a population per car to match Russia, the population of Canada would be 7,140,888,440. But, getting back again to world motorization, if there were cars in Russia, as in Canada, on the basis of one for every eight people, Russia would have a car registration of 214,646, which is 16,342,666 more cars than she has now.

PRINT YOUR TRANSFERS.

Berlin Street Cars to Speed Up Rush Hour Service.

Transfers are printed while you wait by a new machine put into use on Berlin's municipal street cars to speed up rush hour service. They are printed from the desk of the conductor, for the entire operation is performed before the passenger's eyes and he can see that a new transfer is issued to him instead of an old one pulled out of the conductor's pockets, says Popular Science Monthly.

The transfer machine is carried slung around the back of the conductor and is in a small metal case, a series of wheels on one side allows the machine to be set for the correct transfer. The conductor turns a crank on the other side which prints the transfer on a continuous roll of paper. As the crank is turned completely around, the transfer issues from the case and is torn off by the conductor and given to the passenger.

The machine is credited with being able to print and punch a transfer in less time than the conductor could tear one off and punch it under the old system. It also keeps a mechanically exact record of the number of transfers issued, thus reducing the possibility for theft by the employes and making it easy for the auditors to get quick report on total business.

Imperial Economic Cooperation

Conference Created Personal Interest in Trade Development Within Empire

The Imperial Conference at London has concluded its six weeks' meeting with three tangible results.

It has created a new and more personal interest in trade development within the Empire. It has, in this regard, inserted the wedge of careful thought into minds which heretofore were absolutely closed to consideration of tariffs. Even the Labor Government of Britain, with Snowden, Graham and Alexander—unswerving free traders of the period—has bent to the extent of pledging that such tariff preferences as are now given the Dominion by Britain gill continue for at least three years.

These preferences are not many but they are of some importance to Canadian industry and it was only prior to the meeting of the conference that announcement was made they would be permitted to lapse in the immediate future. The change of the attitude of the British Government is not so much a concession to Dominion representations as it is a recognition of an important and growing doubt in the mind of the British voter as to the selfish wisdom of standing by free trade while all the rest of the world has turned to higher protection. It is this growing doubt which forms perhaps, from Canada's viewpoint, the most hopeful development of the conference.

Mr. Bennett was criticized in some quarters for the extreme candor with which he advanced Canada's position. It was probably the only method by which his side of the case could be fairly presented to the British people. Soft-pedalling diplomatic language would never have reached beyond the conference room and it has been abundantly proved that he could expect nothing from the present British Government except what public opinion compelled it to give in the way of preferences. It was to the public he spoke when with unprecedented candor he voiced his views as to the methods best calculated to stimulate Empire development. Because of his frankness he has been accused of interfering in British domestic politics. As a Canadian and none the less a Britisher he would have failed in his duty to both Canada and Empire had he hesitated to expose the present drift towards economic disintegration and to point the remedy if he had one.

It is a singular feature of the conference that Australia, New Zealand and South Africa agreed with him as to the menace of present tendencies and expressed confidence in his remedy. In these circumstances it would be far more just to say that if British domestic politics were insinuated into the conference it was by British politicians who did not back Mr. Bennett.

Those are the first two results of the conference; an awakened public interest in the major subject on some before it, and extension of existing preferences granted by Britain for at least three years.

The third important development was the acceptance of the Canadian invitation to the Dominion Premiers to meet in Ottawa within the next two years. Australia has already agreed to attend. Such a meeting will exceed in importance any conference yet held. It is making necessary the building of better roads, and enabling the people of the world to know each other better, and nations and tribes that were strangers a few years ago are being brought together. The automobile has become not only a producer of wealth and a convenience, but is an instrument of international enlightenment, dispelling the clouds of ignorance which have been responsible for misunderstanding among the peoples of the world.

The potentialities are great. And all the while the British mind is being stimulated with fresh interest in a very solid economic problem. History shows the British mind to be unusually well adapted to the solution of such a problem.

Even in its first meeting of this year the Imperial Conference has not been a failure.

WHAT WILL WE DO WITH IT?

One thing Canadians won't have to worry about is the new ownership of the North Pole. It now appears that payment of $67,000 to a Norwegian explorer has enabled the government our title to the top of the world. The next worry is to know what we have it, what will we do with it?

Whose the Title becomes good on the First Payment

THIS is an age of instalment buying. Furniture, homes, motors—even clothing—is being bought so time. If income stops for any reason and funds are insufficient to meet payments the home or motor or furniture is forfeited, and the money already paid is lost. Life assurance is merely buying an estate on a yearly payment plan

BUT... Life assurance is the only form of property upon which unpaid balances are cancelled by death, and the property transferred, unencumbered, to the heirs.

CARBON MONOXIDE DANGERS

With the approach of winter, the danger of carbon mon-oxide gas poisoning from motor cars increases. Although warnings have been widely broadcast in recent years, the precautions that must be taken against the insidious action of the gas which gets in its deadly work when a motor is allowed to run in a closed garage, cannot be too greatly emphasized. Because carbon mon-oxide is a colorless, odorless and tasteless gas it gets in its killing work frequently without warning of any kind to the victim. Motor vehicles, therefore, should never be started and warmed up, or run in closed or public garages, while adjustments are being made. The wise procedure is to open the garage doors always before starting the engine and to shut off the engine always before shutting the doors.

WILL USE HONEY FOR NATIVE WINE TO HELP APIARIST

The Liquor Control Board of Ontario has asked amendment of the Provincial Liquor Act to permit the substitution of honey for sugar in the manufacture of wine, as a means to relieve the surplus of honey in the province. It is stated that the minister of agriculture has given his sanction to the proposal.

The department's statement is as follows: To assist Ontario honey producers who are this year reported to be holding surplus stocks of honey, the Liquor Control Board of Ontario has asked the Government to amend the Provincial Liquor Act in order that honey may be substituted for sugar in the manufacture of native wines. The request for an amendment was submitted to the Attorney General after certain tests were said to have been made from wine made from honey as well as of equal quality to that made from sugar.

It is stated that 1,000,000 pounds of surplus honey is said to be on hand in Ontario as a result of this condition. The Ontario Honey Producers Co-operative Limited, initiated action to have honey be substituted for imported sugar in wine making. The question was discussed with Hon. T. E. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, who has given full support to the plan.

The manufacture of wine with honey as the principal product is expected to create a demand for honey, and individual manufacturers are willing to share this increase in business with the retail producers who will be benefited. Ontario Wineries, Limited, have purchased $70,000 worth of honey at the price of 7 cents a pound. The Ontario honey producers foresee benefits as result of the action of the Liquor Board.

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 16,450,194 pounds of sugar, valued at $658,841 were used by Canadian Wineries. The industries are centered in Ontario where 41 of the 47 reporting plants are located.

A consignment of live mink, badger and silver fox were shipped recently from Winnipeg to European farms. The value of the animals was placed at $10,000. The bulk of the shipment was of mink, 86 animals in 22 crates, valued at $6,500. Seven silver foxes valued at $3,000 were destined for Aledgra. The mink and badger were en route to Bayern, Germany. The mink shipment will have a large representation of females which points to European breeding requirements.

News and Information For the Farmer

Too Many Dirty Barrels

Many Ontario growers have lost from 50 to 60 cents a barrel on their apples because of dirty barrels, says Andrew Fulton, overseas fruit representative. An unusual number of dirty barrels have been received this season, he states, and always to disadvantage as they certainly do not enhance the attractiveness of the apples. The drop in price, therefore, makes it very doubtful if it is worth while financially to send apples overseas packed in barrels of this sort. He sugests that these barrels be kept at home for storage purposes. In every case growers are advised to keep them off the export market.

Featured Ontario Produce

Conspicuous success attended the Department's contest among city retail stores throughout Ontario, for the best window displays of all Ontario farm products. Not only were the exhibits artistically arranged, but they gave a fine conception of the many excellent Ontario farm products available for table use. The majority of them included milk products of all kinds, flour, cheese, honey, apples, potatoes, bacon, fresh meats and a host of other commodities which local people are visiting than any samples of imported goods. This contest will have the effect of inducing the consumer to ask for Ontario-grown farm products in preference to any other.

Will Market Ontario Cider

Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, has announced that an effort is now under way to put Ontario cider on the market "in a big way." The province has completed arrangements with the Ottawa authorities whereby the Canadian Wineries at Oakville will put 500 barrels of apples through their plant under the new English recipe. The resultant product will be matured until about April and then put under a government label and extensively advertised in the hope that a wide scale production and sale can be effected by the fall of 1931. In this venture, the Government has a twofold objective: first, the establishment of a big market for surplus "cull" apples, and secondly, reduction of Ontario's annual liquor consumption. The product, according to the Minister, will be somewhat similar to that produced in Canada, the best quality of sparkling cider as produced and bottled in England, with the addition of carbonic gas similar to a light beer. This product has become enormously popular in England and its consumption increasing every year, while beer consumption is falling proportionately.

Current Crop Report

Fall plowing is nearing completion in most districts. The continued fine weather enabled farmers to get the odd work finished and they are in fair circumstances to greet the winter months. One regrettable feature has been the lack of rain as a result of which many wells and cisterns have run dry. The dry weather, however, has given farmers an opportunity to kill out perfect grass and destructive weeds. Fall wheat and seeds in most counties have a good top which seems to be in a rugged condition to withstand the rigours of winter. The mild weather enabled farmers in many regions to delay housing their stock, thus saving a considerable quantity of feed.

Royal Fair Winners

In the inter-county competition at the Royal for the Jeffrey Bull Memorial Trophy awarded to the county whose team of three contestants under 26 years of age makes the highest aggregate score in judging heavy horses, beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and swine, the standing was as follows: 1, York; 2, Middlesex; 3, Wentworth; 4, Dufferin; 5, Peel; 6, Wellington. The O. A. C. live stock judging team carried off premier honors in the inter-college competition for the fifth time, thus giving them permanent possession of the trophy. Clarence Graham, of Maple, York County, won the trophy for the contestant under 26 years of age, making the highest marks in judging one class of heavy and one class of light horses.

TARIFF REVISION THROWS HUGE TASK ON CUSTOMS STAFF

The last nine months of 1931 promise to be the worst in history for the customs division of the Department of National Revenue.

Complete revision of the 1168 items which comprise the tariff schedules will be introduced in Parliament late in March on early in April. While the revision may not be endorsed by the House for three months the schedules, almost in their entirety, become effective from the moment they are presented.

Such changes as are made are confidential until laid before the House and are not, therefor, available to the men who must apply them until they are made public. The net result is that every appraising officer must learn anew the rates to be charged and the regulations affecting valuations in every class of goods.

Revision of approximately 300 items this year has swamped the department with appeals and protests from importers to such an extent that a special customs court to deal with them is strongly advocated.

With the most extensive revision in history scheduled for 1931 complications will be at least four times as great as in the current year.

ELECTRIC RAILWAYS CARRY $36,729,851

The Canadian Electric Railway Companies carried $36,729,851 fare passengers in 1929, while at the close of that year the companies were operating 2,203 miles of electrified railways. The gross revenues for 1929 aggregated $58,368,980. After all profit and loss adjustments had been made a net surplus of $1,014,016 remained for the year.

A Successful Potato Club

The Middlesex Farm Boys' Potato Club, sponsored by the Department's Middlesex branch in co-operation with the London Chamber of Commerce, which with its 130 members is one of the largest organizations of its kind in Ontario, held its annual Club Palt on November 6th. The club members had an exhibit of 54 bushel lots of Dooley potatoes and 60 plate lots, while their club members took part in the potato judging competition. There were 158 prises amounting to well over $300, and presentation of these was a leading feature of the largely attended banquet which followed. Martin Ingram, of Delaware, R.R. No. 1, won the Elliott trophy for the highest scoring plot in the entire contest. Short winter short courses at O. A. C. were awarded to Clifford Long, Delaware, and Harold Hutchinson, Lambeth, for the highest standing in general proficiency.

National Agricultural Policy

Speaking at a banquet at the Royal Winter Fair last week, immediately following the conference of Provincial Ministers of Agriculture at Ottawa, the Hon. Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, enunciated four important measures, to be known as the "National Agricultural Policy":

1. The introduction of better blood in Canadian live stock.

2. The scientific use of homegrown products for herd-feeding purposes.

3. Continuous and careful study of the general science of rural marketing.

4. The prevention of the implantation and spread of disease in Canadian poultry.

PLEADS GUILTY TO THREE CHARGES

Sentences To Run Concurrently With Two Imposed in Cobourg

Allen Archer, Toronto, was sentenced to eight years in Portsmouth Penitentiary today by Magistrate Floyd. Archer pleaded guilty last Saturday in Brighton to four charges of receiving stolen goods. No evidence was offered by the Crown in connection with similar charges against Claudia Digo, said to be Archer's companion in the offences.

A. R. Willmott was retained as solicitor for Archer who is a returned man, by the local Legion. The prisoner, who enlisted overseas at the age of 16, lost a leg in the war. Following his return he is said to have worked on the Victory Loan staff in the United States.

Archer, who is wanted in Napanee and other towns, on house-breaking charges, evidenced considerable emotion, and swayed when he received the sentence.

Archer and Digo appeared before Magistrate Graham, on Monday morning of this week. Archer pleaded guilty to three charges of breaking and entering and was sentenced to two years in Portsmouth Penitentiary, on each charge, to run concurrently with the sentence imposed in Cobourg. Digo was remanded to gaol for one week and will come up next Monday for trial.

This cleans up the Newburgh and Napanee shop breakings and thefts which occurred last Fall and in February, 1930.

OBITUARY

THE LATE MRS. JOHN McLAURIN

On Thursday there passed away an old and former resident in the person of the late Mrs. John MacLaurin. Deceased was ninety-three years of age at the time of her death, and succumbed finally to advanced age and the gradual decline of her physical powers.

Mrs. MacLaurin was, before her marriage, Miss Mary Dryden and was born in North Fredericksburgh, where she lived, until the time of her marriage. She then moved, with her husband, to Gananoque, where he was foreman for the Rathbun Company, of that place. On his death she moved back to her home in North Fredericksburgh, until about twenty-five years ago when she went to Toronto with her step daughter, and she continued to reside there until the time of her death.

The body was brought to Napanee on Sunday, and the funeral was held from St. Andrew's Church, which was her church when she lived in Napanee. She was borne to her last resting place in the Western Cemetery by Messrs. Orville Church, Frank Carkill, J. M. Thompson, J. H. Moffat, William MacKenzie, J. Birrill, William Howitt.

She leaves to mourn her loss a large number of nieces and nephews.

OBITUARY.

DEATH OF MRS. OKEL PARKS

On Friday, November 14th, death claimed another well-known and highly respected resident of North Fredericksburgh in the person of Flora Jane Collier, wife of Mr. Okel Parks, her death taking place at her late residence, Palace Road. The deceased who was in her 69th year, was a native of Picton and was the only daughter of the late Captain Collier and Mrs. Collier, the former, for many years, being the captain and owner of many steamers which plied the Bay and lake ports.

The deceased throughout her lifetime had been a faithful member of the Methodist (now United Church) and has always taken a keen interest in church work. She attended Trinity Church in Napanee, and until her sickness was a regular attendant. Her whole life had been spent in the Bay of Quinte district where she will be mourned by a host of friends as well as the immediate family.

She leaves to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and mother, her husband, two daughters, Mrs. D. J. McLeod, of Fredericton, N.B., who has been home for some time owing to her mother's illness; Mrs. Stanley Sexsmith of Selby; also one brother, Mr. Sam Collier of Picton.

The funeral service was held at the family residence on Sunday afternoon and was largely attended by friends and acquaintances from many points, including Napanee, Selby and Picton.

Rev. Harry Pawson conducted the service and made fitting references to the very upright and honorable character of the deceased and the loss sustained by the family and community.

Interment took place in the family plot at Morven. The pallbearers were neighbors, namely Sanford Long, Harry Nugent, George Sexsmith, G. H. Rankin, J. A. Coulter and Alvin Vanderwater.

The deceased was a good neighbour a true friend and will be missed by a host of friends, and the floral tributes bore silent testimony to the esteem in which she was held.

Girls' Basketball

WELL CONTESTED GAME ENDS IN VICTORY FOR N. C. I. SENIORS

Juniors Lose Close Game

Any basketball enthusiast who failed to see the Napanee Collegiate Institute vs. Belleville Collegiate Institute basketball games on Friday, November 21st, certainly was most unfortunate. At that time the Napanee Collegiate gymnasium was filled to its capacity with interested onlookers.

Every member of the Napanee senior team put up a valiant fight and showed splendid form throughout the game. Belleville seemed quite determined to win and worked desperately that they might defeat their most feared opponents. But, all in vain, the N. C. I. team again showed its superiority and were victorious with a score of 40 to 24.

Dorothy Wilson and Fannie Waddell did a great deal of splendid shooting and the defense line was ably supported by Marion Embury and Jean Graham.

N. C. I's senior team showed how far good training, speedy playing and thorough cooperation of every member go towards ultimate success, by sinking the teeth of the four games they have played this year.

The Junior teams were more closely matched and, as was expected, the game was one of the season's best. Although the Napanee girls were defeated, they are to be congratulated upon their exceptional playing and good sportsmanship.

The game was feverish from start to finish. For, no sooner had one team obtained the basket and were rejoicing in their slight lead than the other followed suit and evened up the score. At the end of the first half the score stood 13 to 14 with Belleville ahead.

After a period of rest, into the fray went both teams, each hoping to win in spite of all difficulties. A regular "free-for-all" ensued but fortunately there were no casualties. When the final whistle blew the score was 25-21 in Belleville's favour.

Refreshments were then served to the teams and a very enjoyable hour of dancing followed in the Assembly Hall.

However, everybody worked hard last week in the gym, and they should take the ice in almost as good condition as the Kingston teams, as they have only had ice for a short time.

* * *

It will likely take the locals a couple of games to get going, but you can be sure that they will be heard from before a winner is decided.

* * *

The admission is a quarter, and all ladies are admitted free. At the end of the series the proceeds are split between the competing teams.

* * *

Any fans who miss any of the girls' basketball games at the Collegiate are missing some real battles.

* * *

The Seniors won handily on Friday night and appear to be even better than last year.

* * *

However, the Junior fracas was a beautiful battle from start to finish. They only lost by one basket.

* * *

And likely, if Mary Walters had been there, it would have been a double victory.

* * *

We aren't going to comment on this branch of local sport again until the girls win the league.

* * *

Or until a miracle happens and they drop a game.

* * *

The repetition would be monotonous week after week. "The local ladies win from so-and-so by 42-6" or some such count.

* * *

And judging from the crowds they draw, they don't need much boosting.

Local Jottings

—Local and long distance trucking. FRANK HARNDEN, Napanee, 'Phone 249. 29sp-tf

—A Christmas present, to be of the best sort, should be a continuous one. What better than a year's subscription to The Beaver. It only costs a dollar and a half in Canada and two dollars to the States. The Beaver gives the sort of news the home folk want to know. Make this a Beaver X'mas.

—Grace United Church Sunday School Bazaar will be held in the basement of the church on the afternoon of December 1st. Aprons, novelties, fancy work, toys and home cooking. Afternoon tea will be served. In the evening the play "Future Pegs" will be presented by the "Phyllithea" Bible Class. 47b

—The December meeting of Bath W. I. will be held at the home of Mrs. Bert Morrow, on Monday, December 8th, at 1.30 p.m. sharp. A special feature of the meeting will be an address by Mr. Cuppage. The programme consists of readings, music, demonstration, etc. Everybody welcome. Don't forget day and date!

—Go many people put off buying their gifts until, in desperation, they purchase worthless things which are speedily forgotten. Your boy or girl away from home won't forget the gift if it be a copy of The Beaver. It comes regularly every week and tells all the home news—one dollar and a half in Canada, two dollars in the States. If you wish, we will send a neatly printed card, conveying your greetings, to arrive just before Christmas.

The Beaver Santa Claus Fund

What a glorious surprise for the children when they awoke the other morning and find the ground covered with snow. Sleighs which had been polished were brought out, skates were overhauled and hockey sticks were resurrected from the attic. There is no time of the year that is so thrilling for the young folk as the winter in the northern climate. This is what of those who have no skates, no sleighs, while attic hides no hockey sticks, those who simply have to look, shiveringly, admiringly, at the fortunate ones? What of these? Well, The Beaver will see to it that no child in Napanee will go without warm garments, a good Christmas dinner and some simple, sensible Christmas gift. Bethany Christmas Bazaar will be under the committee of women to get the necessary articles. And we know that the citizens of Napanee will not fail us. They never have.

Some money has already come in. There are gifts from ind viduals groups and organizations. The "Philathea Class" of Grace Church, brought in their gift this morning. They never forget. And this year, they are generous to the extent of fifteen dollars. Gretna Ladies' Aid, even though not directly in town, have sent in a donation, and the Eastern Stars have not forgotten.

But this is but a beginning. There must be more gifts, small ones, from those who can only afford small gifts, but generous hearts, from those who are able. Make all cheques payable to The Beaver Santa Claus Fund, and bring it to the office. All gifts will be acknowledged through the columns of The Beaver.

Premier G. H. Ferguson Receives High Honor

Accepts Post As High Commissioner To Great Britain

For a long time the political barometer in Ontario indicated change. And what was expected has happened, the Prime Minister of Ontario, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, has been appointed Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain, and has accepted. He will shortly take up his residence there. He is not a stranger to London having been there many times as a student of Imperial affairs, and his recent trip with Premier Bennett, gave him an introduction to the men of work that will be expected of him. Of course, Premier Ferguson will make his own job. He is not the kind of character to be bound either by convention or by other people's conception of his duty.

Since becoming Premier of Ontario, Premier Ferguson has shown himself a master of political strategy, a keen and strong executive mind, and a public opinion and a doughty and brilliant fighter. In campaigns he is a fascinating, attractive and persuasive speaker, and even his bitterest opponents have to recognize this ability in him. But bring it to the office. All gifts will be acknowledged through the columns of The Beaver.

Canada will be well represented in England. Hon. G. Howard Ferguson will bring to this great post, a trained mind, a driving personality, and unexcelled knowledge of Canada, which should go a long way in the mind of the Dominion known in the Mother Country.

A Market For Canadian Livestock

Present Conditions Favourable For Increased Production of Industry

At a time when the prices for grains and other farm products have been declining rapidly, livestock prices have shown outstanding strength. At present relative prices it is decidedly more profitable for the farmer to export his grain in the form of cattle, cheese and bacon than to attempt to sell his grain in a world market burdened with surplus supplies from many countries.

During the past few weeks shipments of live cattle from Canada to Great Britain have been resumed after a lapse of three years. This trade was at one time an important outlet for the Canadian livestock industry. Increasing demand and higher prices in the markets of the United States diverted these exports, and shipments overseas ceased. The initial shipments of the last few weeks have been cattle from Eastern Canada, but a trial shipment of Western cattle has been made from Montreal and there is a sound basis for the hope that Western cattle can be finished for this trade at a profit.

Perhaps the outstanding opportunity in livestock at the present moment is in the market for pork and bacon. The demand for bacon in Great Britain has grown at an amazing rate. In 1921, imports of bacon into Great Britain amounted to 636 million pounds. In each of the last three years the total imports into that market have been more than 900 million pounds. This is an increase of 50%, and most of the additional supplies have come from Denmark. Canadian shipments, however, are no greater today than they were forty years ago.

In 1924, the average price of Canadian bacon on the British market was equivalent to the price which prevailed in September, 1930, in that market. In 1924, Canadian exports amounted to 120 million pounds. For the present year it is doubtful whether they will amount to as much as 20 million pounds. In 1924, the price of wheat was approximately 75% higher than at present, and the price of barley the most important grain for the bacon hog, was more than two and one-half times the price now prevailing. These facts seem to indicate that the possible margin of profit in hogs has improved decidedly.

British imports of dairy products have also been maintained although the proportion secured from Canada is declining. Canadian exports of butter have practically disappeared and shipments of cheese are one-third less than they were five years ago. Canadian cheese long held first place in the British market and as late as 1926 received a substantial premium for its high quality.

The rapid decline in Canada's export trade in animal products has been partly due to the great increase in domestic requirements. This has been very great during the past few years and production has not increased in keeping with the growing demand. Shipments overseas have been drastically cut, and in some instances, such as butter and lamb, large quantities have been shipped into Canada. Butter imports amounted to nearly 36 million pounds in 1929 and imports of mutton and lamb to over four million pounds. Substantial quantities of beef and pork were also brought in.

Millions of bushels of low grade wheat and coarse grains are produced in Canada each year. Mill offals, screenings and similar products are available in abundance. Under prevailing conditions, it is more profitable to market these commodities through the medium of livestock and animal products than by selling them as raw materials.

Animal husbandry already brings the farmers of Canada a total revenue estimated at half a billion dollars each year. The home market itself offers opportunities for the expansion of Canadian production. The effects of the British Government through the Imperial Economic Conference and the Empire Marketing Board have created conditions favourable to the extension of Canadian exports in the British markets. The high standard of quality achieved by producers of Canadian bacon and cheese is well known overseas. Farmers and others interested in Canadian livestock might well consider their opportunities for the development of the industry and the extension of both the domestic and export markets for such products. The assurance to importers of adequate and steady supplies with quality and price in keeping with similar products from other countries is necessary if Canada is to regain her former position in the international field. Present conditions seem to be favorable for the expansion of this industry and for greater diversification in Canadian agriculture.

The Political Review

PREMIER ABANDONS IDEA OF HOLIDAY OVERSEAS

Election Scheduled for Province of Quebec in 1931 .

Premier Bennett has abandoned the idea of a brief holiday overseas and is hurrying home to throw himself into the task of finding either a palliative or remedy for the very serious economic conditions confronting agriculture.

As has been pointed out in these letters the Government, ever since it took office, has been prosecuting a vigorous inquiry into farm economics. The first expression of the results of that inquiry was the recent program laid down by Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture. That programme was a constructive effort but its favorable results cannot be fully operative except in succeeding years. It does not meet the very real and immediate crisis which found around sixty cents per bushel creates.

It is more particularly with the crisis that Mr. Bennett will deal. Mr. Weir, Sir George Perley, Hon. Dr. Manion and other Ministers are assembling data for him. The general facts have gone to him by cable each day. When he does reach Ottawa the prairie premiers and heads of the grain selling organizations, co-op and private will probably be called here. Leading bankers will be consulted and the whole situation reduced to the most useful form of action that can be devised.

Until Mr. Bennett has canvassed the situation at first hand there will be no statement of his policy. It is, however, very generally agreed here that any cash bonus which would be acceptable to the farmer would impose an impossible burden upon the country.

Conclusion of the Imperial Conference has been followed by a mass of editorial opinion as to the negative or positive results achieved. Even Labor spokesmen are agreed that useful progress was made, Since the Conference Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas has visited the Labor Government as favorable to Empire preference. The fear of putting them into operation seems to lie in the difficulty of making a start and the fear of even implying any tax on food.

Evidence accumulates that public interest in Empire trade is steadily expanding in Britain and that there is genuine hopefulness that the conference to be held in Ottawa next year, will make concrete progress towards the goal of increased inter-empire economic cooperation.

Politically minded people of the Dominion are following developments in the province of Quebec with deep interest. The landslide towards the Bennett party in Quebec last July was a severe shock to the long-entrenched Liberals. It was almost as much of a surprise to the Conservatives albeit a more pleasant one. By-elections since July have indicated that the slide was not limited to Federal politics.

The Taschereau ex-commanding majority in the Legislature but Quebec has a habit of violent turns and the Government finds itself threatened by the unrest which inevitably associates against a party long in office and, particularly, in periods of economic depression.

An election is scheduled in the province for 1931 and then for the first time in twenty years, federal and provincial Conservatives will be united in their test of strength.

The recent death of Hon. J. L. Perron has deprived Mr. Taschereau of his outstanding lieutenant, both as an administrator and strategist, but he has also removed the spear-head against whom practically all opposition attacks on the Government were launched.

At least Nova Scotia and Alberta are deeply interested in studies now being made of methods by which the distribution and sale of Canadian coal can be extended in the Canadian market. A plank in the Bennett platform was the active encouragement of the use of Canadian fuel and an investigation is proceeding to determine along what lines that policy can be made most effective. Those who have the work in hand expect that it will be concluded before Parliament meets and that in 1931 will see the inauguration of a more expansive machinery to promote the economical use of Canadian fuel in Central Canada.

BEEKEEPERS AND CO-OPERATION

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Canada has again been blessed with a good crop of honey but in keeping with many other agricultural products the prices it is being sold for are ridiculously low, this, however, is largely due to the prevalent methods of, marketing. A few years ago there was no such thing as co-operation in honey circles and were able to sell their honey at fair prices without grading or advertising. All there was to it was the telephone. Bill said it always cured his blues, and kept him reconciled more than anything else could have done.

Bill Jr. came it was harder than ever for big Bill to go away for weeks at a time ! There was one thing that helped though— the telephone. Bill said it always cured his blues, and kept him reconciled more than anything else could have done.

PRAIRIE PROVINCES ARE 25 YEARS OLD

It is just 25 years since the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were created. At that time the population of Alberta was 185,000. It is now about 680,000. Saskatchewan in 1930 had a population of 186,000; now it is 887,000. The total area under cultivation in Alberta 25 years ago was 600,000 acres; in Saskatchewan 2,000,000 acres. In 1930 Alberta had 15,000,000 under crop and Saskatchewan 30,000,000 acres. The dairy production of Alberta has advanced in value from $2,000,000 in 1905 to over $20,000,000 this year. Similar progress in dairying has been made in Saskatchewan.

Progress has been equally noticeable in a number of other directions in each of the two provinces. In 1905 there was comparatively no manufacturing in either Alberta or Saskatchewan now either province of the annual industrial output is over $150,000,000 of which Alberta accounts for $100,000,000 and Saskatchewan $50,000,000. Each of the two provinces has a well equipped university, several high schools and many hundreds of public schools. From mere frontier towns of 25 years ago, Calgary, Edmonton, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Regina, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw and other places have grown into well established and beautiful cities, with every advantage found in any of the older cities of the new or of old world.

These two provinces, the youngest of the nine which form the Dominion of Canada, have certainly acquitted themselves well since their admission into the family group a brief 25 years ago.

MODERN METHODS IMPROVE APPLE CROP

It is estimated that a better crop of apples have been grown in Canada this year than fruit growers have enjoyed for many years. While the total estimated crop of Canada for the current year is 3,165,858 barrels it is now 20,000 barrels below the five year average it is considered very fair.

Practically 90 per cent of the apple crop this year is being shipped out under the new recommended rules brought into effect by the Dominion Fruit branch this season. These rules have two distinct advantages; the number of grades is reduced to two, No. 1 and Domestic; and apples are packed by size, the number of size wells in the container being limited to one quarter of an inch.

Not only is the domestic market this year receiving a big impetus but with the apple fruit regulations applying to Nova Scotia the outward movement of apples is more than 50 per cent. greater than at the same time last year. The total export in barrels to October 10th this year was 265,078 as against 157,258 last year, the export of boxed apples is more than 200 per cent ahead of last year, the total to date being 196,865 boxes as against 64,457 up to the same date last year.

VENTILATION FOR CELLARS

A great many potatoes and roots are stored for winter use. The question of ventilation for bins and storage cellars is a most important one. The potato tuber is a living unit and requires pure air for respiration. This was demonstrated at the Charlottetown Experimental Station by putting potatoes in a glass preserve jar and sealing it for a few weeks. When the potatoes had used up the air in the jar they died and the vile odor that escaped when the jar was opened would convince anyone that potatoes must have air to live.

The essential requirements for good ventilation in the cellar are to provide sufficient intakes for pure dry air, to maintain such temperatures as between 38 degrees F. to 40 degrees F., if possible, and to provide outlets large enough to carry off surplus heat and impure air. Potatoes also require storage in the dark. Provision should be made for cooling potatoes right roots rapidly when first stored by means of other than the regular ventilators. For this purpose the doors and hatches may be left open at night during the early autumn. Slatted ventilating shafts should extend along the floor of the cellar and up through the roots to an outlet. For potatoes double slatted partitions between ten foot bins provide satisfactory ventilation if outlets are large enough. The ventilators should be fitted with hinged doors so that the openings can be reduced or closed when the weather becomes severe.

Sea Breeze Health In your Home

THE health and buoyancy that sea breezes bring can be produced in your home with clean, moist heat from a Torrid Zone gas-tight steel furnace, seldom from radiation heat.

Heat from the desert sends dries moisture from the air. It dries and cracks your skin.

Heat in a kiln dries moisture from lumber. It can be so dry in our homes that furniture will come apart and the sound board in the piano may crack.

Radiation heat and furnace heat must have an abundance of moisture added from evaporating pans or people will be living in kiln-dried, desert air in their homes. When they go out of doors into moist air the change will be too violent. They will take cold more easily, throat affections will be invited or aggravated.

Torrid Zone furnaces are made of steel boiler plates, riveted and caulked gas-tight so as to deliver clean heat and lots of it. They have large water pans placed directly over their doors where evaporation of moisture will be most rapid. They restore moisture to warm air heat, bringing sea breeze health into your home without the expense of a seashore resort.

RIVETED

Torrid Zone steel furnaces are the only riveted and caulked gas-tight boiler plate furnaces in Canada. When installed according to the Standard Code, as designed by research engineers for the National Warm Air Heating Association, they will recirculate warm, fresh air evenly throughout every room in your home. Guesswork has surrendered to science in Torrid Zone heating.

FIRST MANUFACTURING IN CANADA 325 YEARS AGO WAS FLOUR MILLING

Manufacturing in Canada on anything like a large scale did not really begin until about the time of the grandfathers of the present generation, although for some generations previously there had been wayside blacksmiths and woodturners, tailors, carpenters and gun smiths.

The early manufacturers first to appear in the new country always depend upon the raw materials at hand, for manufacturing at first is engaged in only to supply articles commonly needed and too bulky to be easily imported. Later manufacturing is enjoyed in for another and by this time other important reason, the growth of population, by natural increase and immigration, which makes it necessary to provide avenues of employment.

These principles have been borne out in Canada's manufacturing history.

In 1606 the first manufacturing by Europeans in Canada took place and the circumstance was prophetic of the later development of the country. At Port Royal, N.S., in that year a crop of grain was raised and after being threshed by the primitive method of the time, was ground into flour. Thus 325 years ago the interdependence of the farmer and the manufacturer was demonstrated.

The early settlers were concerned primarily with the necessity of providing themselves with food, fuel, shelter, clothing and protection from the savage inhabitants of the country. They could grow food on their own land as they cleared away the forest timbers which they used to supply shelter and fuel.

When Canada was New France, only one expedition a year arrived from Old France and to eke out the supplies of clothing the settlers made clothing from furs and buckskin. Had it not been for the resourcefulness of the colonists in the year 1705 there would have been a tragedy. In that year the English captured the yearly convoy and no supplies arrived so the settlers were forced to replenish their wardrobes themselves. As a result of this drastic object lesson sheep were imported and the production of home-spun woollens had its start. Each year brought more immigrants who settled as close to each other as possible and community life was started. Then the colonists began to barter their profits for ploughshares made in the wayside smithies instated of beating out crude instruments for themselves.

In 1809 manufacturing had been established as an industry and ten years later products valued at $220,000 were produced. The industry did not develop rapidly but in 1922 the value of the manufactured products amounted to

JAPAN'S EMPEROR BUYS CANADIAN HENS

His Imperial Majesty, the Emperor of Japan, is the most recent large customer for British Columbia pure bred poultry. His cheque for ten thousand yen ($4,500) has been received by the H. O. P. The Canadian poultry will be used on governmental farms in the various Japanese prefectures as the foundation stock for the ever increasing Japanese industry.

200,000 BUSHELS CANADIAN WHEAT GOES TO MEXICO

News has reached Ottawa, that, through the efforts of Hon H. H. Stevens, the Department of Trade and Commerce has arranged a sale of 200,000 bushels of Canadian wheat in Mexico. In the previous year Canada shipped only 30 bushels to that country. A short time ago, through similar trade efforts, Canada shipped her first wheat to another Central American republic.

News Of Women's Organizations

MAPLE LEAF W. I.

The regular meeting of the Maple Leaf Women's Institute was held on Friday evening, November 14th, with a goodly number of members and friends in attendance. The meeting opened in the usual way. Owing to the Secretary's absence, it was moved and seconded that Mrs. Will Pretts act in the secretary's place. Carried. Then followed the roll call, and the minutes were read and confirmed. Reports were received from the various committees.

The President explained about the quilt and stated that tickets were ready to be sold on above quilt, at 10 cents each. Our President then called on our Warden, Mr. J. B. Elliott, who spoke to us on "Old Age Pensions." He made it very clear to us what were the requirements in order for an applicant to receive the pension. We were then favored with a lovely piano solo, rendered by Miss Thompson, of Stillsville.

Mr. Charles Walters then addressed the meeting on "Hydro Power for Rural Communities." Mr. Walters said they did not send out agents to sell the Hydro power, but they stand ready to build the lines when there are three customers to the mile. It was up to the people themselves to canvass the community for signatures of those in favor, then the Hydro people were in a position to map out their lines.

Miss Thompson again favored us with an instrumental solo. A vote of thanks was tendered, Miss Thompson, Mr. Elliott and Mr. Walters for their assistance in the programme.

The meeting closed by singing God Save the King. Lunch was then served by the committee in charge.

STILLSVILLE LADIES' AID

Stillsville Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. R. Merritt on November 26th, with fifteen members present. The meeting was opened by singing hymn 234, "Come Ye who Love the Lord," after which all repeated the Lord's Prayer.

There were three readings given, "Dan's Wife," by Mrs. Harold Hough; "Tea and Toast," Mrs. Fred Robinson; "Appreciation," Mrs. Morley Whyte. A hymn, "Near the Cross" was sung, after which the roll call, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. B. Merritt read a letter which she received from one of our members, Mrs. George Sharpe, in California. The members were glad to know that Mrs. Sharpe is well and is enjoying herself in a much warmer climate than we experience at Stillsville.

Several new articles were put in the basket and were readily picked up, after which some time was spent on the business part of our meeting. The meetig closed by Mizpah benediction, after which Grace was sung and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess. Lunch fees amounted to $3.75.

BATH WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The November meeting of Bath Women's Institute was held on Friday evening, November 14th, in the Bath Town Hall. There was a splendid attendance and several joined the ranks.

The meeting opened by singing the Ode, repeating the Lord's Prayer and the Institute creed. The minutes of the October meeting were read and confirmed. An appeal for relief in Northern districts was read and was laid aside for further thought. A favorable report of the masquerade dance, held on November 9th, was given. Bills were brought forward and it was moved that they be paid. The regular business being over, Reeve Loyst took the chair and the programme opened with community singing, led by Mr. Hagadorn.

Our District President, Mrs. Wright, was then called on and spoke very nicely on "Institute Work," stressing the great need of team work. She also suggested having a woman on the School Board; promoting musical talent in schools, etc. Mrs. Wright's many helpful suggestions were appreciated by all.

Mr. Loyst spoke briefly but nicely. He thanked the Bath W. I. for their co-operation with the Library Board and congratulated them on their success in other branches of their work.

A splendid report of the Convention, held at Kingston, was then given by Mrs. A. Ruttan. Mr. Meyadorn gave a selection on the violin. Mrs. Stevenson gave "Current Events." A humorous reading was given by Mrs. Collins. The chairman then called on Mrs. Ham, who gave us her message as being contained in four words: "Service, Unselfishness, Team Work and Broad Mindedness." These things, the Women's Institute promote. Another selection on the violin was enjoyed and Mrs. A. E. Young then spoke.

Her paper was on "Duties of the Secretary and District Secretary." Have your reports in on time for all reports must be away before the 26th of the month.

A vote of thanks was passed. Mr. Loyst replying to same, after which the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

After a delightful lunch the meeting adjourned.

The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. B. Morrow, on December 8th, at 1.30 p.m. Everybody welcome.

VIOLET-SWITZERVILLE, W. I.

A very enjoyable euchre and dance was held at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. James A. McCormick, Switzerville, on Friday evening, November 28th. Several other counter attractions came upon the same night but a goodly gathering enjoyed a very pleasant evening. Several tables of euchre were played and the prizes were awarded to Mrs. A. Reid, ladies', and Mr. Percy Miller, gentlemen's, off the gentleman's prize. At 11.00 o'clock, a delightful lunch was served and a nice little sum was realized for Violet-Switzerville Women's Institute. Dancing followed and at the close, all voted Mr. and Mrs. McCormick and family ideal hosts. These social gatherings are to promote the social life of the community and not altogether to raise funds. Watch the papers for the next announcement and spend a happy and neighborly evening with the members and families of Violet-Switzerville Women's Institute.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELIZABETH WEES

On October 25th, 1930 at the age of eighty-two years, there passed peacefully away out of life's earthly shadows into the clearer light and heavenly joy which God has prepared for His followers, Mrs. Elizabeth Wees, who was a loving, devoted mother, a good neighbor, always ready to render services in time of sickness and trouble; living her religion daily by obeying the principles of the Golden Rule, by "doing unto others as ye would they should do unto you." She was a member of the Methodist Church of which she had been a faithful member since girlhood. Her husband, William Wees, predeceased her in August, 1913.

Three children mourn the loss of a loving mother, David, of Newburgh; Mrs. Briden, of Centreville; Mrs. Will Henderson, of Switzerville; also twenty-one grand-children and twelve great grand-children. The funeral service was held on Monday, October 27th, at 2.00 o'clock, in the United Church, the Rev. T. H. P. Anderson officiating. The remains were conveyed to Centreville Cemetery for interment, besides those of her husband, and son, Andrew, who died many years ago.

The heartfelt sympathy of the community is expressed for the bereaved family.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

N. C. I. S FIFTH STRAIGHT WIN

Trenton Collegiate Institute No Match For Fast N. C. I. Team

Napanee Collegiate Girls administered another defeat to a "would-be-rival for the Bay of Quinte championship, when they played Trenton girls, in Trenton, on Friday evening. Again Napanee girls did not have to extend themselves to win a victory, although they piled up a big score. The final verdict was 51 to 13, in favor of Napanee Collegiate Institute. This is the fifth straight victory for the Collegiate girls and it is conceded that there is no team in this league able to match them. It seems that the secret of the N. C. I's ability to win game after game, lies in their aggressiveness. The forwards never stop their quest for the ball, although they play a strictly non-contact game. And there is always a N. C. I. forward unguarded to receive a pass and the resulting shot is rarely missed. Surely these are receiving wonderful coaching. In this Trenton game, rebounds resulted in many of N. C. I.'s baskets. When the whole Trenton team was scrambling to get a rebounding ball, one of Napanee's forwards would spring up and flip the ball back to one of her mates, who is waiting for a clear unguarded shot. These plays always worked.

Trenton worked hard. After Napanee scored the first three baskets, the girls from up the bay wakened up and earned one. Then they seemed to have hard luck on several other occasions when they missed many passes and countless shots, right under the basket.

Napanee took advantage of Trenton's muffed passes and with a far superior combination, went down the floor eight times, and eight baskets or sixteen points were recorded on the score board. The score now stood at 22 to 7.

In the last half, Trenton started with a nice basket and a free shot. But they could not cut down the lead. It might have been possible against any other team, but not so against the champions. They finished up the game scoring twenty-nine points against eleven for Trenton. It was just a procession of baskets.

Napanee's defense functions perfectly. Marion Embury has played that position now for three years and she ought to know, and surely does know, how to break up plays. Jean Graham does credit to the team as the other guard on the defence. She teams up well with Marion.

At centre, Doris Anderson has not yet been out-jumped. She is poison to all the other centre players on the teams around us.

Dorothy Wilson, one of the best forwards, Napanee Collegiate Institute ever developed, is of inestimable value to the team. Her shots all find the basket.

Fannie Waddell, the other forward has an accurate shot and speed to burn. Like "Danny" Joyce, of last year's team, she is all over the floor.

Margaret Dennison plays side-centre a roaming position requiring a speedy, elusive player, with an accurate shot. Margaret fills the bill.

Napanee Collegiate Institute Girls' basketball team have just about clinched this year's championship in their school league.

Juniors Beaten 32 to 30.

The Juniors did not do so well, in Trenton. Again they lost a game by one basket. The final score was 32-30. The Trenton gym is a hard one to play in. One basket is on the solid wall, with a back board painted, behind it, and in the other goal is suspended a back board that is suspended from the ceiling. Our Juniors had a lot of trouble shooting on this diversified target. But leaving out the alibi, Trenton has a good Junior team and unless N. C. I girls get busy the Junior Cup will rest in some other school during the coming year.

The next games will be played in the Napanee Collegiate Institute gym this Friday evening, when Picton Collegiate provide the opposition. This should be an interesting game as these two schools have always been great rivals.

Come and give the girls the support they deserve.

Bath Soap 5c Cake

DO NOT CUT UNTIL CHRISTMAS

(By Barbara B. Brooks)

Yule-tide cakes—festive with holly—mellowed by time and delicious by nature! How we like them! In the earliest records of food history we find, indeed, a keen appreciation of these fruit laden sweets. Even before the invasion of Christianity into the Scandinavian countries, cakes, made with honey, were eaten at feasts in honor of the great god "Thor" who temperamentally controlled the fate of the lands.

Later on the good Queen Elizabeth, thoroughly interested in the atmosphere of learning which pervaded England in her day, ordered her "plumb-cakes" to be embossed in sugary figures depicting the fall of Troy. Masterpieces of culinary art have since passed through many changes. Fruit cakes may now be purchased from the baker or caterer or even in tins from the shelves of our grocery stores. These modern cakes are excellent, but many housewives still enjoy making their own fruit cakes, using a recipe which has stood the test of time. As the days between now and the twenty-fifth of December are growing fewer, the cake should be made carefully, wrapped and stored away in the extra bread-box and marked "Not to be cut until Christmas."

A recipe is given here for a fruit cake which calls for a sweetening known long before there was such a thing as a written recipe. Honey is this sweetening and it has the added advantage of helping to keep the cake moist.

Honey All-Bran Fruit Cake

½ Cup honied orange strips.
½ Cup honied grapefruit strips.
½ Cup prunes (soaked).
½ Cup apricots (soaked).
1 Cup candied cherries.
½ Cup chopped figs.
½ Cup raisins.
½ Cup chopped dates.
½ Cup currants.
1½ Cups honey.
1 Cup shortening.
1 Cup brown sugar.
3 Eggs (beaten well).
1 Cup bran.
2 Cups flour.
½ Teaspoon soda.
1 Teaspoon cream of tartar.
½ Teaspoon cloves.
½ Teaspoon allspice.
½ Teaspoon salt.
1 Teaspoon cinnamon.
½ Teaspoon nutmeg.
1 Cup chopped walnut meats.
1 Cup chopped pecan nut meats.
½ Cup chopped almonds.
½ Cup of coffee.

Mix al fruit and pour honey over it. Let stand over night if possible. Cream shortening and brown sugar. Add eggs and bran. Sift together all dry ingredients saving one cup to mix with nut meats. Add sifted dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with the honied fruit to which the coffee has been added. Add nuts dredged with remaining dry ingredients. Bake slowly (225 degrees F.) for three hours, in pans lined with waxed paper. Remove from oven and pour warm honey over tops of cakes. When cool, wrap in heavy waxed paper. Store in covered crocks or bread box.

Yield: 2 cakes—each 2½ lbs.

STORING APPLES FOR WINTER USE

Apples to be kept for use during the winter months should be carefully selected for that purpose. Early maturing sorts like Wealthy and Gravenstein can hardly be kept past Christmas, so that later keeping varieties, like McIntosh, Northern Spy, Russet and Baldwin, should be selected for this purpose.

All bruised fruit, or scabby fruit, should be discarded and only perfectly sound specimens utilized. If these are wrapped in oiled tissue or in ordinary tissue paper, keeping is greatly facilitated. Storing in bushel boxes is preferable to large containers and these should be kept in a cellar where the temperature does not go much above 40 degrees F., and does not fall below freezing. The average basement cellar with a heating plant, is not satisfactory for apple storage. The best type of cellar is an ordinary dirt floor cellar without any artificial heat. In such a cellar both temperature and moisture conditions are generally satisfactory for good keeping. In the event of a cement cellar being the only available place, it would be wise to cover the floor with several inches of sawdust, which should be kept well dampened down to provide the necessary humidity. Such a procedure accompanied by wrapping and a temperature of from 40 degrees to 45 degrees F., should result in satisfactory storage conditions.

A WEEKLY THRILL

Grandmother doesn't, of course, find many thrills in life nowadays. One which she does get—which she treasures and looks forward to — is that which comes every week when her little granddaughter talks to her on the long distance telephone. The words which no letter can equal are: "Is that you, grandmother."

Dr. Tagore On Russia

EVILS OF VIOLENCE

An Appreciation And a Warning

Dr. Rabindranath Tagore, during his recent visit to Moscow, gave an interview to a reporter of the "Izvestia," in which he gave his impression of Moscow. Dr. Rabindranath Tagore said:—

"I wish to let you know how deeply I have been impressed by the amazing intensity of your energy in spreading education among the peasant masses, the most intelligent direction you have given to this work, and also the variety of channels that have been opened out to train their minds and senses and limbs. I appreciate it all the more keenly because I belong to that country where millions of my fellow countrymen are denied the light that education can bring them. For human beings all other boons that are external and superficial, that are imposed from outside, are like paints and patches that never represent the bloom of health but only disguise the anaemic skin without enriching the blood. You have recognized the truth that, in extirpating all social evils one has to go to the root, which can only be done through education and not through police batons and military brow-beating.

"But I find here certain contradictions to the great mission which you have undertaken. Certain attitudes of mind are being cultivated which are contrary to your ideal about the method of radical social improvement. I must ask you: Are you doing your ideal a service by ensuring in the minds of those under your training anger, class hatred, and revengefulness against those whom you consider to be your enemies? True, you have to fight against tremendous obstacles, you have to overcome ignorance and lack of sympathy, and even persistently virulent antagonism. But your mission is not restricted to your own nation or your own party, but it is for the betterment of humanity according to your light. But does not humanity include those who do not agree with your aims? Just as you try to help peasants who have other ideas than yours about religion, economics, and social life, not by getting fatally angry with them but by patiently teaching them and showing them where the evil lurks in secret, should you not have the same mission to those other people who have other ideals than your own? These you may consider to be mistaken ideals, but they have an historical origin, and have become inevitable through combinations of circumstances. You may consider the men who hold them to be misguided. But it should all the more prove your power to convert them by pity and love, realizing that they are as much a party of humanity as the peasants whom you serve.

"Be Great in Mercy"

"If you dwell too much upon the evil elements of your opponents, assuming that those are inherent in their human nature, meriting eternal damnation, you inspire an attitude of mind which with its content of hatred and animosity may some day react against your own ideal and destroy it. You are working in a great cause. Therefore you must be great in your mind, great in your mercy, your understanding and your patience. I feel profound admiration for the greatness of the things you are trying to accomplish, and therefore I cannot help expecting for it a motive force of love and an environment of charitable understanding.

"There must be disagreement where minds are allowed to be free. It would be not only an uninteresting world but a sterile world of mechanical regularity if all of our opinions were forcibly made alike. If you have a mission which includes all humanity for the sake of that living humanity you must acknowledge the existence of differences of temperament and of opinion. Opinions are constantly changed and exchanged through the free circulation of intellectual forces and moral persuasion. Violence begets violence and blind stupidity. Freedom of mind is needed for the reception of truth; terror hopelessly kills it. The brute cannot subdue the brute. It is only the man who can do it. This is being proved every day in our human history.

"Before leaving your country let me once again assure you that I am struck with admiration for all that you are doing to free those who were in slavery to raise up those who were lowly and oppressed, and to bring help to those who were utterly helpless, reminding them that the source of their salvation lies in a proper education and their power to combine their human resources.

A Legacy of Violence

"For the sake of humanity I hope that you may never create a vicious force of violence, which will be on weaving an interminable chain of violence and cruelty. Already you have inherited much of this legacy from the Czarist regime. It is the worst legacy you possibly could have. You have tried to destroy many of the other evils of that period. Why not try to destroy this one also, I have learned much from you, how skillfully you evolve usefulness out of the helplessness of the weak and ignorant. Your ideal is great, and so I ask you for perfection in serving it and a broad field of freedom for laying its permanent foundation."

The poet was asked to say, in conclusion what institutions in Moscow had impressed him most.

He replied: "The orphans at the Home of the Young Pioneers showed such confidence in their ability to realise their ideal for a new world. Their behaviour to me was so natural. Their conduct impressed me deeply. Then at the Peasants' House I met the peasants. We questioned each other quite frankly. Their problems are so similar to the problem of the peasants in my own country. I was deeply impressed by the attitude of mind of your peasants towards the methods you have evolved for solving these problems.

"Places which I have not been able to visit have been visited by my secretaries. My doctor tells me of the fine work you are doing in sanitation, hygiene, scientific research. You are accomplishing a great deal in these lines, under conditions not nearly as favourable, economically at least, as in other countries. My secretaries tell me of your splendid work in trains students of agriculture, in caring for and training the homeless children left by war and famine, and of the outstanding experiment in practical education being carried on by Mr. Shatsky in his colony. Mr. Shatsky did me the honor of coming to visit me. I find that the ideal of his institution I also share. I am certain that your methods of education would be of great benefit in other countries, where there is so much in education that is merely academic and abstract. Yours is much more practical, and therefore truly moral, and it is closer in touch with the varied aspects and purposes of life."

Russia and Inia

In a speech delivered at the Dom Soyuzoff, Moscow, Dr. Rabindranath Tagore said:

"I believe that all human problems find their fundamental solution in education. And outside of my own vocation as a poet I have accepted this responsibility to educate my people as much as it lies in my individual power to do. I know that all the evils, almost without exception, from which my land suffers are solely owing to the utter lack of education of the people.

"Poverty, pestilence, and communal fights and industrial backwardness, which make our path of life so narrow and perilous, are simply owing to the meagreness of education. You all know that our condition in India is very similar to yours. She has an agricultural population which is in need of all the help and encouragement that you have accorded to this country. You know how precarious is the living which exclusively depends upon agriculture, and to how utterly necessary it is for the cultivators to have the education, the up-to-date method of producing crops in order to meet the increasing demands of life and of expensive government.

"Our people are living on the verge of perpetual famine, and do not know how to help this because they have lost their faith and confidence in their own humanity. This is the greatest misfortune that people, over 300,000,000 of men and women burdened with profound ignorance, a closed prospect, and incompetence.

Changed Mental Attitude

"So I came to this land to see how you deal with this problem, you who have struggled against the incubus of ignorance, superstition and apathy which were once prevalent in this oppressed land among the working men and peasantry. The little that I have seen has convinced me of the marvellous progress that has been made, the miracle that has been achieved. How the mental attitude of the people has been changed in such a short time it is difficult for us to realise, we who live in the darkest shadow of ignorance and futility. It gladdens my heart to know that the people, the real people who maintain the life of society, bear the burden of civilisation, are not deprived of their own rights, and that they enjoy an equal share of all the advantages of a progressive community.

"And I dream of the time when it will be possible for this ancient land of Aryan civilisation to enjoy the great boon of education and equal opportunity for all the people. I am thankful, truly thankful to you all, who have helped me in visualising in a concrete form the dream, which I have been carrying for a long, long time in my mind, the dream of emancipating the peoples' mind, which has been shackled for ages. For this I thank you."

INSTANT VISITING

Two friends were taking an evening walk down-town. Suddenly one of them stopped, and exclaimed, "I'm going home!" "Tonight?" asked the other. "Why, it's a long trip!" "Not by telephone. Look at that sign—'Visit Home Tonight—by Long Distance!'" "Well I'm going to — right now, old man!"

MONTREAL USES 100 TONS OF BEEF EVERY DAY IN YEAR

A recent estimate places the per capita consumption of beef in Canada at around 80 pounds a year. In a city the size of Montreal with an estimated population of a million and a quarter this means that 27,500 tons, more than 100 tons of beef every day in the year, are used in supplying the demand.

In a city the size of Toronto, with a population of some 750,000, it takes 22,500 tons of beef a year to keep the soup, pot and ovens busy.

Translated into terms of cattle it takes 125,000 head of best canale weighing an average of 600 pounds, each dressed to supply a city the size of Montreal, and 75,000 head of the same average dressed weight to supply a city the size of Toronto.

Only 30 per cent of this volume at the present time is good enough in quality for government grading. — By Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

It Will Relieve a Cold.— Colds are the commonest ailments of mankind and if neglected may lead to serious conditions. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will relieve the bronchial passages of inflammation speedily and thoroughly and will strengthen them against subsequent attack. And as it eases the inflammation it will usually stop the cough because it allays the irritation in the throat. Try it and prove it.

CRATE FEEDING PAYS

Some very good reasons why crate feeding poultry pays are supplied by the Division of Poultry Husbandry of the Dominion Experimental Farms, among which are the following:—

Crate feeding pays because it produces the milkfed grades which bring the best prices.

The leading wholesale merchants are now buying poultry by government grades, with substantial differentials between each grade.

The premium assured for birds which grade "Milkfed" makes crate feeding well worth while.

All poultry intended for eating purposes should be properly finished before being marketed.

The farmer should crate feed because: It is the only way by which he can get the premium assured for milkfed poultry; the last pound, which brings the finish, costs the least to produce and increases the value of the bird by from 50 to 75 cents or more; it is the best way in which to properly finish poultry for market.

The consumer wants milkfed poultry because: It is the milkfed grades alone which give assurance of the quality which satisfies; it gives him the best value for his money in tender succulent chicken; it comes from the oven tender, juicy and sweet, the kind of bird he really likes to eat.

"My troubles started in 1900 with chronic constipation that defied every effort I made for relief. My whole system became toxic. Rheumatism settled in my arms and legs; my digestion was impaired; I had constant headaches and dizzy attacks and was finally forced to give up my practice. Knowing something of the scientific background of the Sargon formula I tried the treatment. Sargon Pills reestablished a regularity of bowel movements and overcame my toxic condition. The Sargon liquid restored my digestion and my strength returned. Every trouble I had disappeared and I expect to soon resume my practice. When I do, I will recommend this remarkable treatment." — Dr. H. Verner Golding 12 Christie-Grant Block, Bitmonton, Alberta, Canada, former Intern at the Boston City Hospital.

Sargon may be obtained in Napanee, at Hooper's Drug Store, who has been awarded the exclusive Sargon agency for this town.

Fin De Saison

(By E. Nagler)

Apple harvest! Huge barrels rolled into the street, and water poured through them to clean out the dregs, so that a thick yellow liquid runs in the gutters and the stench of cider incarnate rises out of the mud to rob the sea air of its salt. There are yellow ungarnered apples lying in circles under the trees; red clinging apples swaying with branches that seem too frail to carry them; children, trudging through deep lanes behind squelching cows, saving a trail of cheered cores for the mud to swallow. In the hotel yard there is a pile of fruit grown big enough almost to hide the empty bottles that lie heaped upon each other like spillikins to testify to the good season that has been.

Lonely disconsolate waves sweep the crescent of pink sand that was the bathing beach. There is never an orange nor a cigarette paper, not a discarded shoe nor a broken pail, for the sea to make its own. Villas have shuttered their eyes and bathing boxes die dismembered on the cliff top. There is nothing for the surf to play with; nothing save a forgotten diving-board, and this it beats and buffets and rocks and tumbles until the poor tethered thing rears and plunges in agony, only to fall flat again upon the very sea that mocks and tortures it. In the little port round the corner under the big crucifix fishermen are putting away their boats.

"A good season, Madame? Eh bien, non, it has not been a good season. Voyez-vous, there were no mackerel. In the winter it was too cold and in the summer it was too hot, and in April, the month in which one counts to make one's living, one took only a hundred francs' worth of fish. Tourists, Madame? Ah, for the hotels it has been a good season, and for the boarding-houses and for the little green pension on the cliff; but tourists, it appears, no longer hire boats nor go fishing. For us, Madame, it has not been a good season. . . . . "

Bitter cold blows the wind over the water. Grey sails and red sails reel and dip, as the spray covers them. White horses fleck the pale green clouded sea, and the bright blue sea shining out under the raw sun, and the deep purple sea that lies over hidden rocks. Now that the summer visitors have gone away the permanent boarders draw closer to each other, huddling together a little as though to keep out the cold. The oval table in the dining-room, set for fifty people, remains undisturbed from meal to meal. We sit to eat by little tables in the windows looking out over the chill grey mud that the tide leaves bare. At the edge of the retreating sea little black figures stoop and pick and dig and sand eels wriggle and squirm to avoid the inevitable spade, and when discovered leap and curve into the air to escape the quick grasping hands that clutch and throw them into baskets upon a heap of their kind. Old women thrust steel prongs into the sand and draw up impaled bodies of long thin shellfish.

The Colonel's daughter is playing "Ole Man River" on the piano. Six months ago she began to learn it, and she does not quite know it yet, but the varnished pine walls know it, and the cafe tables know it, and the bustled and coiffured ladies in the pictures advertising somebody's champagne know it, and they echo it back to her, so that it sounds well enough. The colour paper flaps, torn and dishevelled are stretched across the sitting-room ceiling where they were hung two months ago for the fancy-dress dance. The draught blows them gently to and fro, spreading a fine dust to make the Colonel's lady sneeze as she draws her shawl round her and holds thin yellow fingers to the fire.

"My daughter," she says, and her long upper lip quivers as she reveals the wound that has seared her pride, "my daughter is going to England on Wednesday. She is going to work in a shop."

"She don't plant 'taties, does she? (Don't plant cotton.") "Not in one of those big common stores, of course, but in a little place started by a friend. We find it very hard to understand, her father and I, because you see we really—dear, dear, forgive me, I don't like to boast, but we really . . . ."

The Colonel shuffles his patience cards and sinks deeper into the grew flannel suit that seems to grow looser as the days grow cold.

"I remember," he says suddenly, "it was in Burma in '72. I was stationed on the Irrawaddy." The Irrawaddy? "Ol' Man River" has struck a chord fifty years old and hundreds of miles away. The Irrawaddy. The Mississippi. They keep on rolling while we, fortunes of genius" . . . yonder, the tide is turning into backwater to circle slowly, slowly round each other until we die.

"From my bungalow you could see just half a mile up the river and half a mile down, and up and down on either side the forest stood to the water's edge straight and dark as an unbroken wall, unbroken—"

The tide is full now, and the water laps the sea wall under the uncurtained windows. Across the bay the cliff rises straight and black against a blue-black sky. Gabrielle has brought in the vermouth and the eau de seltse and a little wineglass standing on a white saucer.

"Sometimes," says the Colonel, and he looks grimly at the aperatif that is such a feeble alternative to the chota peg of long ago—"sometimes," he says, "I think of Kipling's advice. You remember how the old song goes." And softly against the Mississippi rhythm, he murmurs, "Get you back, you British soldier, get you back to Mandalay," while into his eyes creeps the far-away look of an old man who is peering into the past and finding it better than the present.

Grapes are harvesting the apples. The big barrels have been rolled out of the street and back into the cellars, but the dregs of last year's cider still lie in stagnant pools in the roadway. A broken a butter bangs monotonously against the hotel wall, whining on its hinges. Rain slides off the roof to trickle by long, thin pipes into the tank in the kitchen. Let us draw up the plush sofa and the armchairs and put another log on the fire and tell each other of all the homes we have ever had, of which this is the last. Our cets Thiver qui s'amene.

Canada To Obtain Plants From Abroad Soon

BUSINESS REVIVING

Dominion Concerns Export Factory Extensions and More Work

Canada is assured of the expansion of present industries and the addition of scores of new plants, either of Canadian institutions or branches of British and American factories; this is the view of the industrial situation and outlook expressed by Hon. Senator Robertson, Minister of Labor.

Already new plants are assured and several industries, especially textile, are working increased hours and employing more hands. A prominent Ottawa broker is acting for one Scotch and five American firms desiring to establish branches here, while the acting Prime Minister, the Department of Trade and Commerce and the National Revenue Department are receiving letters from other firms that will establish here. It is believed that by this time next year there will be established in Canada or in the course of establishment 50 or more new branch factories of British and American concerns.

Of a score of letters from various industries, Senator Robertson, to illustrate the industrial revival, has made a summary of several. Most of these letters were sent voluntarily by manufacturers.

Fertiliser Prices Reduced

National Fertilizers, Limited, state they are pleased to advise that the prices on all brands of national fertilizers are approximately $2 per ton lower than they were a year ago. They state the chief reason for this reduction is due to the fact that the Canadian Government seeking ways and means of relieving unemployment and of promoting the purchase and sale of "Made in Canada" goods, is protecting the fertilizer industry by imposing a duty of 10 per cent on all fertilizers imported, which increases their tonnage to such an extent that they are warranted in making these reductions in prices.

The Monarch Knitting Company of Dunville, Ont., states that in September it added 32 employees to its staff and started operating full time instead of four days a week. It further states that in the past two weeks it has secured a hosiery order, which would have gone to the United States if tariff changes had not been made. As a result of this one order, the company is immediately starting 26 knitting machines. This order will keep these machines busy for a period of five months. These machines, it is stated, have been standing idle for a year. The situation would be still further improved if it was not for the limitations imposed by the provisions of the French treaty, this company claims, and urges further consideration on this matter.

Textile Improvement

The Dominion Textile Company, Limited, under date of October 22, by a table showing the percentage of looms in loom hours run in the plants for each week beginning September 6 to October 18, indicates improvement in that industry. The table is as follows:

September 6	50.73 per cent
September 13	58.83 "
September 20	62.40 "
September 27	64.61 "
October 4	69.34 "
October 11	74.72 "
October 18	81.86 "

The net result is that from September 6th to October 18th, a period of seven weeks, the possible loom hours' run increased from 50.73 per cent to 81.86 per cent.

Courtaulds, Canada, Limited, at Cornwall, is extending its plant and is at present building a new factory 150 feet wide by 450 feet long and by July of next year expects to employ at least 300 to 400 additional persons. The company states that at the present time it is working up to the limit, recently has taken on from 60 to 70 girls, and that some 200 men are employed in the construction of the plant extension.

The Cobourg Dyeing Company expects expansion of its business and is increasing its floor space by some 5,000 square feet, and installing a quantity of machinery costing between $15,000 and $20,000.

The Paton Manufacturing Company of Sherbrooke, Que., under date of October 17th, states that since the bringing down of the emergency tariff measure it has increased the help in its spinning departments by 250 hands, and made a payroll increase of $3,000 a week. The weaving and finishing departments are beginning to receive yarn in quantity so that shortly the company will expand them by 50 or more hands of the higher-priced labor type, which will bring a further increase in its payroll of approximately $1,500 a week. The company is already taking on numerous learners on the day force and expects soon to have a proficient night force engaged in the spinning department. It states that the tariff measures have certainly given it confidence to look forward to an expansion of its mechanical equipment and the employment of still more Canadian workmen.

The Carl Stehn of Canada, Limited, Granby, Que., under date of October 16th, advised that they are erecting an additional 36,000 square feet of plant, that they have at present in operation 56 looms, and the building under construction will eventually hold 220 looms, 100 of which will be in operation in a short period. They are employing 85 hands at present, which force will be increased to between 200 and 250.

Celanese Plant Growing

The Canadian Celanese, Limited, at Drummondville, Que., is increasing its plant by an expenditure of over $2,000,000 to give employment to 2,000 additional persons, and only a few days ago, A. Schwartz, representing this important industry, extended an invitation to the Minister of Labor, or any of his colleagues, to visit Drummondville, Que., to see the expansion that is actually going on.

Greeta, Limited, of St. Catharines, Ont., textile manufacturers, advise that they have started up 10 per cent of the machinery, which had been standing idle and are building a 20 per cent addition to their plant, which they hope to have running some time in January.

The George Hirst and Company, Limited, of Batley, England, have purchased the Hawthorn Mills, at Carleton Place, Ont., which have been standing idle for the past three years. They already had delivered in Canada a large consignment of weaving equipment, expect to open the mill by December 1st, and will ultimately employ upwards of 300 operatives. As this plant will produce classes of goods never heretofore manufactured in Canada, it has been necessary for the Department of Immigration, with the approval of the Department of Labor, to authorize the importation of a small number of skilled workmen to supervise operations and train Canadians to man this plant.

The Renfrew Woollen Mills, advise, under date of October 28th, that the re-opening of their mills is th eresult of the recent tariff changes, and it is expected, when operating to capacity, there will be from 150 to 200 employees engaged.

The Harris Woollen Mills at Rockwood, Ont., after being closed for some four years, have been re-opened, according to information received from that company, dated October 31st, creating in that community a new payroll of approximately $60,000 per year, which had during recent years been wholly lost.

For a week the new filteration plant of the Public Utilities Commission has been in operation. Several samples of the water taken at random through the tap, have been sent to Queen's University, Kingston, for analysis. From now on Napanee citizens will be able to use the water out of the tap for all drinking and cooking purposes.

NAPANEE CLERGYMAN RECEIVES LITERARY AWARD

"The New Outlook" some time ago announced a competition, of a literary character. A short article of not more than three hundred words on "The best book I have read during the year," was to be rewarded with a worth while prize. On this competition The New Outlook had this to say, last week:

"Our competition on "The Best Book I Have Read During the Past Year" has met with the keenest kind of interest. Three hundred essays have been received from all over the country and from all sorts and classes of people, and the task of judging will be a difficult one indeed. Announcement of the winners will be made next week and some of the winning essays will be published."

Yesterday morning, word was received in Napanee, that Rev. A. J. Wilson, the pastor of St. Andrew's Church, had been awarded first place in this contest.

Annual Poultry Banquet

Over Two Hundred and Fifty Members Hear Instructive Addresses

On Friday evening, about two hundred and fifty members of the Napanee Poultry Association met in the Town Hall for their annual banquet. The ladies of the association had provided the eatables, and had tastily decorated the table. President Mr. William Ballance presided and in opening the meeting introduced Miss Wrinkley, Mayor Simpson. Mr. Simpson spoke on the value of a poultry association to the community, in bringing together those who were interested in raising fowl of the better sort. He spoke, as well, of the banquet place which Napanee occupied as a shipper of dressed poultry.

J. G. Fraser, inspector of the Poultry Division of the Agricultural School, Kemptville, gave an interesting address on the needs of optimism in the poultry business. Like every other business, at the present time, the poultry situation was not all what it might be. And compared to some other branches of agriculture, it was more lucrative. The days when a man could raise a few chickens and let them scratch for themselves were over, he said. Now the poultry business is a highly specialized business and the successful poultry raiser must study not only how to raise poultry, but how to prepare them best for the market.

Mr. George Robertson, the next speaker, said he had just returned from the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto. Before that he had been at the World's Poultry Congress in London. Both these great exhibitions, Mr. Robertson described and praised. This address was full of interest and information of the world's progress in poultry rearing.

During the banquet a musical programme was given, in which Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Kimmerly and Mr. Caldwell took part. Mrs. Powell gave several readings in her usual attractive fashion.

After the supper the members engaged in dancing to the strains of the Star Five Orchestra from Tarker.

Much of the success of the evening was well as the success of the Club generally, was given to the indefatigable Secretary, Mr. R. W. Metcalf.

AN INTERESTING PRESENTATION

On Monday evening, December 1st, a goodly number of ladies of St. Andrew's Church gathered at the home of Mrs. H. Bush, Market Square, to congratulate her daughter, Minnie, on her very recent marriage to Mr. H. A. Deckert, of Fenelon. The ladies met at the home of Mrs. W. Metcalfe and then gave the bride a wonderful surprise when they went to her home. Contests, games and music filled the evening pleasantly after which Mrs. Deckert was presented with an illuminated address, engraved by Mr. R. Valkman, accompanied by a gift of fine silver and a table lamp.

In a few well chosen words, Mrs. Deckert expressed her appreciation to the ladies for their thoughtfulness. A very fine lunch was then enjoyed by all.

Many thanks are due to Mrs. W. H. Hooper for her delightful arrangement of this very pleasant evening.

MEN'S FORUM

AGED RESIDENT PASSES

On Thursday last there passed away at her late residence on East Street, Mrs. Ann E. Johnston. Mrs. Johnston, before her marriage was Anne Miller, daughter of Samuel Miller and Amanda Hawley. She was born on the old Miller Farm on the Bath Road in Ernestown. She remained there until the time of her marriage to Mr. John Jacob Johnston of Bath, the brother of Mrs. Johnston, the reeve of Adolphustown. For many years they resided in Bath. About fifteen years ago Mr. Johnston retired and came to Napanee. Mr. Johnston predeceased Mrs. Johnston by about four years.

There are left as immediate relatives, a daughter, Miss Clara, at home in Napanee and Mr. Harry, of Adolphustown. Although the late Mrs. Johnston had been eighty-six last years of age next March, yet she retained all her faculties right up until the end. A sudden heart attack took the cause of her death. She was a kindly, generous lady, who had made a host of friends through her long life.

The funeral took place from her late home on Friday, and she was borne to her last resting place by J. A. Boyle, W. A. Grange, Luke Trumpour, C. I. Maybee, Ed. Boyle and W. Smith.

The service was conducted by Rev. R. J. Dumbrille of St. Mary Magdalene Church.

HOCKEY

NAPANEE LOSE TO KINGSTON DARK HORSES

Setting a pace that held the Dark Horses hard for almost the whole of the first period, Napanee's entry into the O.H.A. series played a close checking and sweeping game that kept the Red Shirts pretty much in their own end of the rink. Hardly had the game got under way when Bentley took the puck on a close check and slammed the puck past Gaswell for the first goal.

Dark Horses tried repeatedly to get even on breaks in combination, but so close was the back-checking of the Napanee team that they were disorganized for much of the first twenty minutes of the game.

The Dark Horses settled down, however, right from the start of the second frame and in thirteen seconds a combination of Matheson pass netted the tieing goal. A few seconds later Thurlby broke away and on one of the prettiest bits of stick-handling given in the whole game, went through to score the goal that put the Dark Horses one up.

The Napanee team checked back a lot in the opening of the third period, but despite that, Matheson got the puck by allpped away on a jaunt of their own and Thurlby took a pass from Matheson to score. With the score three to one, both teams battled hard, but the Napanee team was beginning to slow up a bit under the pace and Blake went through on a nice rush to score the score 4-1. Play livened up and became more even for the next few minutes and Napanee staged a come-back and were rewarded with another goal just before the final bell.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

The local hockey fans who missed the two games the local entry has played in the Kingston City League, don't know what they are missing.

* * *

In the first game the lads really showed up better than in the one last (Monday) night.

* * *

The first battle, played last Wednesday, was against the "Dark Horses" who are really last year's Junior O. H. A. semi-finalists and ended in a 4 to 2 loss for Napanee. The Kingston team were in perfect condition from rugby, and had good team-play.

* * *

In spite of this the locals had them bottled up three quarters of the time and it was only by the toughest kind luck that they didn't, at least, tie the score.

* * *

The winning goalie made some wonderful saves off the local sharpshooters' offerings and pulled his teammates out of many a hole.

* * *

This game was followed by a midnight work-out on Friday night, but only some of the stalwarts were present.

* * *

The game last night was more of the rough and ready type and some of the local lads felt the effect of the contest.

* * *

Sunbury, the other outside entry, was lucky to hold them to a two-all tie. They had one goal handed to them and the locals missed another chance by inches.

* * *

The Napanee boys play again next Monday and Wednesday, and will have to come out on top to stay in the running for the silverware.

* * *

If this weather keeps up, they will likely have a workout in town the end of the week, which should improve their condition materially.

The Warden's Annual Banquet

The annual banquet, given by the Warden of the County to the Councillors and other civic representatives, was held in the Town Hall, on Friday evening. This turkey dinner was prepared and served by the Ladies of St. Mary Magdalene Church, and was all that could be desired. During the banquet Normlers' Orchestra supplied music.

The chairman of the evening was W. S. Wilson, Warden of the County, who called upon the Rev. A. Strother, of Adolphustown, to ask the blessing. The Warden had secured, as a special entertainer, the Radio Quartette of Belleville, consisting of Harry Spearman, Ross Hunter, Al. Sullman, Dr. Haffner, with Leo Riggs, accompanist. During the meal, Ross Hunter led the guests in community singing.

After the National Anthem had been sung, the Radio Quartette gave several selections.

The Warden expressed his appreciation of the presence of the guests, in a few words of welcome. This was followed by a humorous address by Dr. Haffner, of Belleville.

Ex-Warden J. S. Johnston, Reeve of Adolphustown, introduced Mr. E. C. Muir, the Chief Engineer of Municipal Highways of Ontario. Mr. Muir addressed the audience, giving in brief an outline of the various system of roads which are being constructed in the province; providing township, county roads, and township roads. He outlined the assistance which the Government was giving by way of subsidy for each of these. He especially emphasized the necessity of carrying on the construction of the township roads.

The quartette then gave another selection which was well received. This was followed by another season of community singing, led by Leo Riggs.

Each of the County Councillors then addressed the audience, telling in brief of the work which they generally had been engaged in during the session of Council. Regret was expressed at the absence of Councillor Aylesworth, of Newburgh, who was away on account of illness.

His Worship Mayor Simpson then introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. C. A. Seager, the Bishop of Ontario.

The Bishop chose for his subject the complicated conditions following the Great War, with those which followed the Napoleonic wars, a hundred years ago. He pointed out that following the Napoleonic wars, there was economic disruption with trade, and social poverty and disturbance, from which the world did not recover until the present generation, succeeding this outbreak. He pointed out that the same thing had happened after the Great War. But, that in the meantime, the social conscience had been trained and educated. He stated that the governments had done more than following any wars in mitigating evils. In spite of that we were still suffering from its effects. We could not, however, stop progress and order of affairs, he pointed out, much before the second generation following the Great War.

The Napoleonic Wars were followed by a great period of industry in the Western Hemisphere, as the Atlantic was then the highway of commerce. The same thing had applied to the Pacific where the Great East was going through a revolution which would be one of the greatest events in our future in Canada and in the world.

The speaker was one of the best of its kind in the history of Warden's banquets in the County, and was brought to a close by the singing of "O Canada."

Cut Flowers, funeral and wedding designs, at Hooper's Drug Store.—Direct from Dale Estate, florists. Sent to any address on shorter notice.

CAMDEN EAST

One of our oldest residents, in the person of Mr. Ellen Sherlock, passed away at her home at 12.00 p.m. on Wednesday, December 3rd, after a short illness. She was a devout member of the United Church, taking a keen interest in all activities of the church. She was a staunch member of the Ladies' Aid, and for several years past has been president of her W. M. S. She was known as a devout Christian, and was loved by young and old in the community. Her husband predeceased her in 1906. She leaves to mourn her loss, one son, Phillip, of Kilarney, who was with her at the last. Her funeral took place at the United Church, her pastor, Rev. T. H. P. Anderson taking charge, assisted by the Rev. Hoare, who was pastor here a number of years ago. They each spoke of the high esteem in which Mrs. Sherlock was held. She had made the request that "Shall We gather at The River," be sung at her funeral, and the choir sang it very feelingly. Her remains were laid to rest in the United Church cemetery. Relatives from Kilarney, Mrs. Jones, Belleville, Petterborough and Centreville, also a large number of friends from the surrounding district, were present.—A number from here attended the Poultry Fair held in Napanee on Wednesday and Thursday last.—Miss Norman Blakeley spent a few days recently with friends, Mrs. Percy Histed, last week.—Miss Nellie Berry, of Kingston, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Barry.—Mrs. D. K. Saul is spending a few days in Kingston with her daughter, Mrs. Oakley Watson, who underwent an operation for appendicitis. Mrs. Watson's many friends hope for a speedy recovery.—Miss Eva Stewart spent a few days with Mrs. A. Gorsline, of West-brooke.—Mrs. Phillip Sherlock, of Kilarney, Man., is expected to join her brother here, on Monday.—The teachers and scholars are busy practicing for their annual school concert.—The Ladies' Aid will hold their December meeting in the United Church Hall on Tuesday at 2.00 p.m., December 16. All the ladies are requested to attend, as it is the election of officers.

The Beaver Santa Claus Fund

Two families, who for several years have received help from the Santa Claus Fund, won't need it this year. Conditions in the home are better. The fund helped them over a hard place, and they will be forever grateful to those who, by their contributions, made it possible for them to carry on when sickness and unemployment hit them.

But there are some on this year's list who never before had to be assisted. It is hard for people who have pride and courage to be faced with poverty, and hunger, and a cheerless Christmas for their children. This is where the Santa Claus Fund comes in. There are nearly a hundred children who will get no Christmas but what this fund provides. The money is coming in slowly. We think we need a good deal more than has yet been received if our bills are all to be met.

All amounts will be acknowledged through The Beaver, books audited and statement given early in the New Year.

The following contributions have been received since our last issue:—

BAY CIRCUIT

All roads lead to Christmas Bazaars this week. Wednesday evening, December 10th, at Mr. and Mrs. E. O. McCabe's, Sand Hill; Thursday evening, December 11th, at Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Mellow's, Gretna; and Friday evening, December 12th, at Orange Hall, Bethany.—Rev. H.-W. Poley, of Selby, preached Bethany Harvest Home Sunday noon.— Congratulations are hereby extended to Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bald-win on the arrival of a baby boy. Both mother and babe are doing well in Kingston Hospital.— Miss Pearl Spencer who has been ill so long at her home at Hay Bay, is at present at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Spencer, Napanee.—Remember the W. M. S. annual meetings this week. Wednesday afternoon, December 10th at Mrs. F. Parks', and Thursday afternoon, December 11th, at Mrs. Herb Mellow's.— Mr. Walter Huffman was in Belleville last week attending the Presbytery meeting in John St. United Church.—Reserve the dates of our Christmas entertainments, Wednesday December 17th at Hay Bay; Thursday, December 18th, at Bethany; and Friday, December 19th, at Sand Hill. Our local day school teachers and Sunday school staffs are busy making preparation.— Hay Bay young folk are preparing a play which they are planning to present on New Year's night.—The parsonage people are quarantined with scarlet fever, three of the children being down with the malady.—Rev. Hall's subject of the Bay Circuit is called to meet in Gretna Church on Thursday afternoon, December 15th, at 2.30 p.m. This special meeting will be in charge of the President of the Conference, Rev. A. J. Wilson, Napanee.—Services will be held on this circuit next Sunday as follows: Anderson, 11.00 a.m.; Sand Hill 2.30 p.m.; and Gretna, 7.30 p.m.

DORLAND

The Ladies' Aid is very busy preparing for "The Old Fashioned Tea Meeting," to be held on Friday evening of this week. The programme will be varied and interesting, with a special period for the children. The provision made for the inner man is also the modest fee asked for make it altogether an opportunity not to be missed.—The date of the postponed W. M. S. meeting has been set for the afternoon of December 16th, when the closing meeting of the year will be held at the home of Mrs. J. A. Humphrey. This is a very important session, as the mite boxes, and thank-offering will be received. A report of the year's work will be given and the officers elected for the coming year.—Messrs. C. F. Allison and F. E. Foster, attended the Dairymen's Banquet, in Belleville, last Wednesday.— The prizes paid at the Napanee Poultry Fair last week were low in comparison with previous years, but fair, according to other commodities. There is a wide spread between what the farmer receives for his produce and what it costs him to buy it back in the form of a meal at any eating house.—We are glad to receive favourable reports from both Mrs. James Cleland and Mrs. Hugh Allison, who recently underwent operations.—Mrs. J. A. Humphrey is also much improved.—The mild weather over the week end had drawn out most of the frost that was in the ground. Consderable ice had formed in Hay Bay but only the coves remain frozen.

FACTS CONCERNING THE POULTRY FAIR

HOW GOVERNMENT GRADING WORKED

Unusual Interest Shown By Producers In Regard To Government Grading At This Year's Napanee Poultry Fair.

Perhaps no better time could be taken to review the Poultry situation in this County than that following the recent Poultry Fair. This fair has been an annual feature of the town and community for many years. And the Fair has a national reputation. The prizes paid here for fowl, largely set the price that shall obtain throughout the whole Dominion. If this is so it is well that the poultry raisers and the farming community should give the whole situation careful and scientific study.

It is a fact, visible even to the casual observer, that there has been a growing change in the poultry situation during recent years, due to several causes, the main ones being, perhaps, the throwing open of the great west for poultry raising purposes, and the demand in the East for a finer grade of dressed poultry.

This year, in the County, there was as much poultry raised as ever before. But, it would appear from the amount displayed and sold at the Fair, that a good deal more than usual was shipped direct to the buyers in the centres. This can be easily accounted for. The demand of late years, has been for crate fattened fowl. Naturally, chickens which are hatched at different times from April until June, cannot all be brought to perfection by marketing purposes at the same time. Hence it is that, as they mature, they are disposed of by the raisers.

This year, it seemed advisable to institute a Government Grading System. This was done largely as a matter of experiment. It is now possible for us to appraise to some extent, at least, the results of this experiment.

Mr. W. A. Brown, the chief of the Poultry Division at Ottawa, came to the Fair with twelve assistants, all expert graders. The Armouries were placed at their disposal. And buyers were advised that poultry could be bought at the Fair on a graded basis, if the producers desired. All the buyers were in favor of this method of buying. Early in the morning the graders were busy. But as the crowds began to gather, many producers hesitated to give up their position on the market in order to go to the Armouries. This little difficult to properly estimate its value.

So far as could be learned from those producers who took advantage of the Innovation, all were very much pleased. One group of chickens brought in by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Perry, of Wilton, were an outstanding lot, and were bought, for the best grade, at the price of 25c per pound, by Mr. Teddy Metcalf, of Kingston. Mr. and Mrs. Perry said: "How do you like the grading system ?" Mr. and Mrs. Perry said: "We are immensely pleased that we availed ourselves of the opportunity of grading our poultry. We think it is the proper method of marketing poultry. When it is sold this way, we find that the Napanee Fair provides the best market we have ever had. On the basis of the best offer we had for our chickens, before they were graded, we made $51.48 more by having our chickens graded by government graders, and sold on a graded basis."

On Thursday morning, Mr. and Mrs. Morley White, of Sillsville, had chickens graded and exhibited in the Armouries, and these were another choice lot. The senior grader stated that no finer group of dressed fowl is likely to be offered anywhere in Canada. The entire shipment was purchased for the T. Eaton Company, in Toronto, by Mr. L. D. King, the manager of the C. D. Ice Co., in Napanee. These were bought at the following prices: "Milkfed Specials, 35c lb." "Milkfed 'A', 32c lb., "Milkfed 'B' 27c lb., and sold on that basis.

On account of the new scheme of grading, the Fair created an unusual amount of interest in the poultry industry, this year. As Napanee is the first centre to attempt a fair of this kind in Canada, and prices quoted here are set as the standard throughout the whole Dominion, such buyers as Mr. D. W. Storey, general sales manager, representing the Canada Packers, Limited, with 22 cars loads of Western Poultry to sell, was here on Wednesday; Mr. Ford Wiggins, who represents the Canadian Packing Company, was here on Thursday; and Mr. Sanders, also attended the Fair. The latter was prepared to buy several thousand pounds of "Class A" poultry, at an attractive figure, to the producer of a sufficient amount, if it had been offered in an individual class.

No attempt is made in this article to express an opinion. The facts are set forth as they appeared to an unbiased observer. But they should afford food for study and comment, in the formulated judgment, may be formed by the poultry industry in this County, before the next Poultry Fair.

Do You Envy WEALTH?

IN any house the foundation invariably precedes the roof. And so it is with the building of financial independence. Its foundation is work —and a Savings Account.

Saving is common sense, not stinginess. The regular habit of putting aside a certain percentage of earnings into bank savings, to accumulate healthily at interest, means comfort, security and independence. You have money always at hand to use in emergencies, in business or for pleasure.

Don't envy wealth. Acquire it. Save regularly. Deposit your money in a bank.

CREAM EXPORTS DROP

The current news letter of the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch of the Department of Agriculture contains some interesting information with respect to the decline in the export of milk, cream and milk products to the United States.

For the twelve months ending September 1930, the export of cream amounted to 1,465,115 gallons as compared with, 2,465,207, gallons for the corresponding period last year. This represents a decrease of over $2,000,000 in revenue. The figure for the period concerned for 1930 being $2,885,870, and for the same period last year $5,087,870.

During the same period exports of fresh milk amounted to 1,936,523 gallons, or practically 50 per cent less than in the corresponding period in 1929. The selling value of fresh milk shows about the same proportion of decline. The total for the period under review for 1929 being $429,721 as compared with $848,153 for the same period last year.

With respect to milk products, it is interesting to note that the exports of butter for the twelve months ending September 1930 were 1,162,300 lbs. as compared with 1,666,800 lbs. for the corresponding period in 1929. The exports of cheese were only 80,223,900 lbs. as compared with 102,200,700 lbs. for the same period in 1929. Exports of condensed milk were 14,500,000 odd lbs. as compared with 17,800,000 odd lbs. and the exports of milk powder were 4,495,800 lbs. as compared with 5,343,-700 lbs last year.

The exports of evaporated milk were 9,600,600 lbs., valued at $1,084,714, as compared with 6,905,200 lbs., valued at $778,173, for the corresponding period in 1929.

EGG LAYING CONTEST STARTS IN NEW HOME

The Twelfth Canadian Egg Laying Contest conducted by the Poultry Division of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ottawa, has got away to a good start, on its 51-week test of the laying performances and personalities of 800 representatives of the best egg laying poultry in Canada, England and the United States.

Official egg laying contests are rapidly growing in importance. This is because it is the one medium recognized as competent to establish the ellgibility of a hen for registration and the advantages to breeders that registration brings.

Entered in the contest are 62 hens from Ontario, 7 from British Columbia, 2 from Saskatchewan, 3 from Quebec, 2 from New Brunswick, 2 from England and 1 from the United States.

The breeds represented in the contest include 42 White Leghorns, 30 Barred Plymouth Rocks, 3 Rhode Island Reds, 2 White Wyandottes, 1 Australorp, 1 Light Sussex.

The new contest house is being used for the Twelfth Canadian Egg Laying Contest. It has an improved location with a southern exposure and the protection of a wind-break on the north making it much more favorable for the purposes of the contest than houses previously occupied. The total length of the new house is 354 feet, made up of a central house and feed room 30 feet by 30 feet with wings on either side 162 feet long by 16 feet wide. Each pen is 18 feet by 16 feet, which accommodates four pens of the light breeds, (60 birds).

Premier Ferguson's Appointment As Canadian High Commissioner Occasions No Surprise

Announcement of the appointment of Premier Ferguson as Canadian High Commissioner at London, occasioned no surprise. It is known that it was offered to him by Premier Bennett as soon as Major General A. D. McRae, C. B., informed Mr. Bennett that the health of Mrs. McRae would not permit her to undertake the onerous social duties associated with the Commissionership.

General McRae was the organizing genius behind the Winnipeg convention which chose Mr. Bennett leader of the party and later was chief whip and Dominion organizer for the campaign which brought victory to the Bennett standard. His liking, however, was for organization and reorganization rather than for politics and before the campaign began he announced his withdrawal from politics to take place on polling day.

It is general knowledge that Mr. Bennett offered him his choice of appointments. He would have liked to return to London for a year as High Commissioner, but Mrs. McRae, early last spring, underwent a very serious operation. Her physicians were opposed to her accepting the strain of Dominion hostess in the capital of the Empire, so General McRae stood aside.

The post was then offered to Mr. Ferguson. He, too, had been a loyal ally of Mr. Bennett's and was singularly well qualified to fill the office. Again there were difficulties. Just last year Mr. Ferguson was given the greatest tribute of esteem and confidence by the people of Ontario. There was no reason, other than personal predilection why he should quit as Premier. His followers were most anxious to have him continue in Ontario public life, for while there were many able men available to succeed him, none at the moment possessed the qualities of leadership which are peculiarly his.

It is probably no exaggeration to say that "Perpy" is the most effective platform speaker in public life in Canada. He has the happy faculty of talking right to his audiences, in terms they can understand, about the things they are thinking about. His Scotch ancestry gives him a canniness that is uncanny, while from his Irish mother he inherits a ready and kindly wit, that is pleasing to his friends and to neutrals and discomforting to his political opponents.

A couple of years ago, Mr. Ferguson said he would quit public life at the age of sixty years. He hoped to spend his life after that in less hectic and tollsome arenas. Few took him seriously. At least, while giving him credit for sincerity they thought the tide of events would carry him along in active politics until the end.

Well, George Howard Ferguson was 60 years of age on June 19th. He is keeping his promise of retirement from party politics, but in so doing he is translating himself to a broader, if less arduous, field.

Another shift in Provincial Premierships has, it appears, been averted. Two weeks ago, it was a practical certainty that Premier Brownlee, of Alberta would leave his office to take charge of the Canadian Cooperative Wheat Producers.

The Producers, however, were in such a dilemma financially that they were not entirely free to say who would take charge of the pool. The appointment must meet the approval of the banks which, with the market tobogganing as it was, were holding the pool out of liquidation.

While Mr. Brownlee's capacity as an administrator was not questioned the banks favored the appointment of one more thoroughly initiated into the intricacies of grain marketing. It was that attitude which resulted in the announcement that J. I. McFarland, of Calgary, not Mr. Brownlee, would be the man.

Mr. McFarland was prior to 1926 president of the Alberta Pacific Grain Company, one of the largest grain companies in the west. He is a close personal friend of Premier Bennett's and attended the Imperial Conference as advisor on grain matters. It is understood that Mr. Bennett was largely instrumental in getting Mr. McFarland to undertake his new work — work which he will do without remuneration.

His acceptance indicates that the pools need have no fear of being forced into liquidation in the near future. Unless he had secured the assurance from the banks he would never have undertaken the job.

FEELING BLUE ?

Mrs. Dole was the kind of person who is always cheerful. "Don't you ever blue ?" suggested a friend. "Oh, yes, often. But I don't stay that way long. I take telephone trips to my out-of-town friends. It's the best way I know to keep smiling !"

FEEDING STEERS FOR PROFIT

Some pertinent points for feeding steers for profit are supplied by S. A. Hilton of the Experimental Farm, Nappan, N.S., who calls attention to the fact that there are many factors that influence the profits to be derived from steer feeding during the winter months.

Steers must be of sufficiently good type to finish well and command top prices on the market.

The age and size of the steer to put in for winter feeding is another factor to be considered, as are also the quantity and quality of feed supply, housing conditions, and the spread between buying and selling price.

Experiments show that dairy-type steers are not profitable feeders.

The young steer weighing around 825 lbs., well developed, efficiently makes the best gains, and feeding on an average of 6 to 7 lbs. of meal per day — starting at 2 lbs. and finishing at 8 lbs. per day, appears to give the most economical results.

A spread of at least 2.5 cents per lb. between buying and selling price, appears to be necessary in order to make a profit feeding steers.

MR. BENNETT MAKES PROGRESS

The progress toward inter-Empire economic co-operation made at the London Conference, should, and will, be heartening to Canadians.

There are a few, of course, who looked or hoped for immediate adoption of a definite program which would throw open the British market on favorable terms to Canadian wheat and other agricultural products. These are people unfamiliar with the last century's politico-economic history in Britain and more particularly with the unwavering opposition to tariffs which has been an outstanding characteristic of the Labor Government now in power in Britain.

Certainly Premier Bennett was not one of those who expected more for the present than he got. For eighteen months he has insisted that the only promising course of procedure was to advance the issue of inter-Empire preferences, to awaken and stimulate public interest in them and then to call a conference of Empire statesmen in Ottawa. This latter conference would have before it the findings and theories of the leading economists of the different units of the Empire and here the statesmen would endeavor to piece their hopes and aspirations together into a fabric of mutually advantageous preferences for the economic advancement of the Empire.

Mr. Bennett has carried every step in his program up to the present. Interest in Britain has been stimulated as never before in inter-Empire trade. The Ottawa conference has been agreed upon and will be held next year. The experts are at work to reduce theories to workable realities.

There is sound ground for hoping that the final outcome will justify Mr. Bennett's best expectations.

BIGGER RETURNS WITH LOWER HONEY PRICES

While the average wholesale price for honey in Canada has steadily decreased during the last three years, the increase in production volume has been so substantial that the net returns to producers show an increase of nearly half a million dollars on a honey crop totalling 30,978,735 lbs. in 1929.

It is interesting to note that honey brings the best price in British Columbia where the average price for the three years has been 21.5 cents per lb. Production in British Columbia has remained almost consistent for the years 1927, 1928 and 1929. It was 986,719 lbs. in 1927, 983,709 lbs. in 1928, and 969,393 lbs. last year. The price in 1929 dropped to a 20c average and the net returns to producers in British Columbia on a slightly lower volume dropped from $217,078 to $197,-278.

Ontario is the largest honey producing province in Canada. Production in 1927 was 9,500,000 lbs. this increased 4,200,000 lbs in 1928 and another 4,500,000 lbs last year. The average price in 1927 and 1928 was 9c while last year it rose to 10c with a corresponding increase in net returns to producers.

Take Canada as a whole there has been a steady decline in the average wholesale price of honey of ½c per lb. in the last three years, the figure for last year being 11c. Production increased in 1928 about 2,500,000 lbs. and in 1929 3,500,000 lbs. With a 2c gain in 1927 the honey crop of 22,196,493 lbs. was worth $2,936,558 to producers. In 1928 the price dropped to 12c and the production increased as indicated, with an increase in the total value to producers of nearly $190,000 over the preceding year. In 1929, the average wholesale price dropped to 11c, and the estimated production at 30,978,735 lbs. gave a value of $3,402,837.

Government Program To Stimulate Agriculture

Department Searching For Stable Markets For Canadian Products

The establishment of stable markets for the products of Canadian farms, agriculture and livestock—presents the most important and, in many respects, the most difficult problem confronting Canada today.

At the present time the marketing end of the problem is being attacked by the Departments of Finance and Trade and Commerce. The Finance Department is endeavoring through tariff adjustments to build up the home market and at the same time to conserve it for the benefit of the Canadian farmer. The first move in that direction was made in September. Steps are now being taken in gathering information upon which more widespread plans will be built for submission to Parliament this winter.

The Department of Trade and Commerce has its entire staff abroad searching for new or greater outlets for grain, dairy products and livestock and at home it is prosecuting a national campaign in favor of the use of made-in-Canada goods.

Those activities, however successful they may be, do not meet all the requirements of the situation. It is necessary that farm producers fit their production in kind, quality and quantity to the consumptive capacity of the available markets and that they conduct their operations along methods which will yield them a profit as well as a market for their labor.

It is to this complete the program of the Government for the stimulating of agriculture that a new and highly important program will be launched within a few weeks under direction of Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Weir's plan will bring the federal department into a more direct contact with the farmer than has hitherto been the case. To launch the campaign the Minister will shortly make a tour of Canada, meeting provincial agricultural officers and leading practical farmers. He will discuss with them the methods he proposes to use, methods used by himself as a successful farmer, and others suggested by the information which has come to him as a minister of the crown.

An exhaustive study will all the facilities of Government, covering three months, plus many years practical experience, has shown conclusively that the future of farm life depends upon energetic development of markets and the lowest possible production costs of products for which there is a market. The Government's plan is to locate the markets, to advise the farmer what can be sold in them and to assist him in producing the quality of goods demanded at a cost which will allow him a profit.

No system of bonus offers any solution. This year, for example, to give the farmer $1.00 a bushel for his wheat —not much profit at that price, either —would cost the country approximately $130,000,000, or more than is spent annually on all services apart from fixed interest on war debt, and the money going into pensions and soldiers reestablishment.

ENGINEER AT 72, HALE AND HEARTY and I was troubled continually with constipation. Four bottles of Sargon have built me up as well and strong as I was 10 years ago. I have a fine appetite and my stomach is in as good shape as it ever was in my life.

At 72 I'm hale and hearty !

CANADIAN TEMPERAMENT IS MORE ACCEPTABLE

Sheffield, England, has laid claim to having inspired Longfellow to organize the trade mission party of 200 members which leaves Halifax March 2nd, aboard the Canadian National liner, "Prince Robert," for South America, to return late in April.

The English town sent a delegation all its own this fall to "drum up" trade in the Latin countries.

Commenting on Canada's forthcoming visit to the countries of the southern continent, many journals in England have commented that the British Empire Fair, to be held at Buenos Ayres, and to be opened there by the Prince of Wales in the spring, will be the first affair of its kind ever to be held in a foreign country.

The Old Country publications have shown a decided interest in Canada's visit to the south. Several newspapers and magazines in England and Scotland, have drawn attention to the fact that Canada is eminently better situated to trade with South America than Great Britain is. They go further and point out that the United States' forays into the Latin countries of South America and that the Canadian temperament is more acceptable on the Southern continent.

TROPICAL FRUITS.

Delicious Fruits of Which We Know Nothing.

The tropics are dealing with delicious fruit of which we know nothing in this country, such as mangosteens, granadillas, shaddocks, pomacanocillos, longans, rambutans, akees, cherimoyas, pawpaws, and pulasacas. It has been shown again and again that once means of transporting some delicious fruit have been found, so that it can be placed on the market in good condition, a huge industry may be developed.

Just over thirty years ago there were no banana plantations except those round native villages. Some readers may remember the coming of the banana to this country. The first consignments could not be sold and had to be given away. But those who had the idea of importing the banana persevered, and today banana-growing is among the world's big agricultural industries.

It is less than that few years since the grape fruit made its appearance in any numbers on our markets, and nobody then thought that thousands of acres of land would soon be devoted to grape-fruit orchards.

The mangosteen is one of the world's most delicious fruits, it is not attractive to look at, with its shell of faded purple about the size of an orange. When the shell is cut open snowy white segments are found within, resting on a bed of royal purple. Try one, and you have the sensation of eating the most perfect plum, which absolutely melts in your mouth.

The world contains only one mangosteen orchard of any size. This is in Cochin China, and it has but four hundred trees. When the shell is cut can be grown in many parts of the Empire, and a great new fruit-growing industry may arise.

It was some time before a satisfactory method of bringing mangosteens across the seas could be found. Some consignments were sent across with each fruit wrapped in a thin sheet of rubber. The key to the problem has been found in cold storage at exactly the right temperature.

It is cold storage that will make possible the bringing to this country of other wonderful fruits from the world's sunniest countries. Among these is the leechee or litchi, which is held by many to be the king of all fruits. It was prized by the Chinese more than two thousand years ago, and relays of runners used to bring the fruit for the emperor's table. The leechee has been compared to the orange of the very finest quality, which tastes like a strawberry.

The avocado pear first made its appearance in England a few years ago, and it now can be bought at a few shops.

The queer fruit of one generation may be the popular fruit of the next. Queen Elizabeth probably never ate an orange, but Nell Gwynne sold them in Covent Garden.

COLORS OF THE RAINBOW.

Scientists Tells Us Rainbow Contains Seven Colors.

Rainbows contain seven colors but it is doubtful whether anyone ever saw all of them. The division into seven colors: red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet, is that proposed by Sir Isaac Newton many years ago for the division of colors in the spectrum produced when a beam of white light is broken up by a glass prism.

The falling raindrops responsible for the rainbow ought, in theory, to break up white sunlight in this same way, giving the full series of spectrum colors. In actual fact, however, the colors often overlap in rainbows, so that some of them cancel each other. It may happen that the central part of the dashed rainbow strip is almost colorless because of this overlapping and cancelling of the colors. Two or more rainbows may be formed side by side, may overlap and thus destroy still further the theoretical perfection of seven colors.

Another cause of rainbow imperfection is that colors near the blue end of the spectrum frequently are faint in the bows, so that the ordinary eye misses them altogether or fails to separate the blue indigo and violet as different tints. Most actual rainbows impress the eye of the ordinary observer as consisting of red, orange and yellow bands, sometimes with the addition of a rather faint and indefinite bluish green.

STEEL BUILDINGS SAFE.

Stand Up Well Under Excessive Heat, Says Mr. G. E. J. Pistor.

The increasing extent to which steel is being used as a building material is causing the question of safety to be raised in countries where the summer may be very hot.

During the recent heat-wave in the United States, for instance, many rails expanded and buckled because of the heat, and anxiety was felt regarding the great steel skyscrapers. So a very careful study of the effects of the abnormal heat on these buildings was undertaken. Up to the time of writing nothing has been found amiss.

This seems to confirm the opinion of Mr. G. E. J. Pistor, a member of the executive council of the American Institute of Steel Construction. He believes that skyscrapers are quite safe.

Indeed, he expressed the view that they could safely be built to a height of 2,000 feet, which is much higher than the tallest skyscraper built or projected to-day.

A Polite Machine.

Vienna has such a mania for politeness that a new automatic machine has just been produced that supplies packets of sweets in return for coins, and says politely, "Thank you; please favor me again."

Turning from Wine to Beer.

Frenchmen are taking to making and drinking beer instead of wines; last year they consumed 1,800,000,000 quarts, of which only 2,500,000 quarts were imported. 1,800,000 quarts coming from England.

Embarrassing Moment Two charming young women attended the show together, but were offered to get adjoining seats. One C. Y. W., thinking to arrange a trade of seats, asked her male neighbor if he was alone, and the brute replied: "Try away, Hilda, I got the whole darn family with me."

News and Information For the Farmer

A Word to Junior Farmers

"Hats off to the past, cools off to the future," was the slogan given to Junior Farmers by Mr. J. D. Page, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, in an address at a banquet tendered this organization in Toronto last week. Mr. Fairbairn impressed upon his youthful hearers the fact that money was not everything. "The greatest force in the world today is intelligence," he said, in urging his audience to develop an ideal. "Honesty and straightforwardness are of greater service to agriculture than monetary returns.

Current Crop Report

Live stock throughout the province is reported to be in a generally good condition. In Brant the absence of rain has created a difficulty as far as watering stock is concerned, but farm work is well completed. Stock appears healthy in Bruce but some classes appear to have gone back somewhat because of the poor grass. In Kent a complete clean-up of the sugar beet crop is indicated. Fall wheat in Hastings is in good condition and the report states that live stock will go into winter quarters in fine shape. Cattle are moving briskly in Oxford with many head being shipped to Quebec and the United States. Seven 30 and 35 carload of cattle have been shipped out of Peterborough so far and all live stock is reported in first-class condition. Farmers in Welland are fearing that a famine this winter as a result of the absence of rain. Many wells and streams are already dry.

Fertilizer Tests on Potatoes

During the past summer the Department of Chemistry, O. A. C., in cooperation with the Dairy Training School at Bowmanville, has conducted an extensive test with fertilizers on varying analyses on the potato crop. In the experiments two sets of plots were used. On the first set, the fertilizers were applied at the rate of 1000 pounds per acre and on the second set at the rate of 500 pounds. In each set one plot was left without fertilizer for comparison. In these tests and on this soil, a 2-12-6 fertilizer seems to give materially better results than any other. Where fertilizers were applied at 1000 pounds per acre, the average yield of potatoes was 241.5 bushels against an average where no fertilizer was applied of 162.1 bushels. This figured out at a net gain of $56.90 for the crop. Where fertilizers were applied at the rate of 500 pounds to the acre, the average yield was 190.6 bushels as compared with 162.1 where no fertilizer was used, and a net gain of $18.34 per acre was recorded. The experiments will be repeated next year.

Junior Judging Contest

In connection with the 1932 World's Grain Conference, a junior grain judging competition will be held according to a recent announcement. Many enquiries have been received recently by officials of the exhibition from agricultural societies and junior grain clubs throughout Canada, while many similar organizations in various parts of the United States have signified their desire to become acquainted with the rules and regulations. Copies of the preliminary announcement may be obtained upon application, from the Secretary, World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, Imperial Bank Chambers, Regina, Canada.

Fattening Poultry

In crate-feeding poultry particular care should be taken to feed a ration which will produce the white fat and the milk-fed quality. The following ration has been tested and found suitable for crate-feeding: Equal parts of middlings, ground oats and barley; equal parts of middlings ground oats and ground new potatoes; equal parts of middlings, ground oats and mashed potatoes; equal parts of middlings, ground oats and cornmeal; equal parts of shorts, ground oats and ground barley; equal parts of low-grade flour, ground barley and ground oats; equal parts of ground whole wheat, ground whole oats and ground whole barley; equal parts of ground barley, ground buckwheat and bran.

New Plan of Instruction

Institution of a plan of instruction in rural districts in nutrition, home nursing and first aid, sewing, millinery and handicrafts, was announced at the 29th annual convention of Women's Institutes' Central Council, held in Toronto last week, by the superintendent, George A. Putnam. "It is evident," he said, "that many rural home workers cannot attend classes every afternoon from day to day for two weeks or more, so we are planning to give instruction in a form which meets the convenience of either small or large groups. Instruction will be given for two, three, four days or a whole week, as well as the present courses. Up-to-date information will be given on nutrition, how to produce and market the best advantage home-grown products, how to remodel the old house to make it convenient, attractive and healthful, how to make one's own dresses and hats and how to make on a minimum expense many articles which add to the attractiveness, beauty and comfort of the home."

Recommend Cow Ration

A committee of leading agriculturists was recently appointed to study rations and suggest minimum feeds that would be suitable to Ontario conditions. The committee comprised Prof. J. C. Steckley, Ontario Agricultural College; R. W. Wade, Director, Ontario Live Stock Branch; W. J. Bell, Kemptville Agricultural School, and W. R. Reek, Ridgetown Experimental Station. The following rations are suggested for cows in milk and getting clover or alfalfa hay: 1 pound grain per 100 lbs. live weight; 2 pounds silage per 100 pounds live weight; 2 pounds roots per 100 pounds. Instead of a grain mixture of 200 pounds ground or rolled oats, 200 pounds bran, 100 pounds barley, 100 pounds oil cake and 50 pounds cotton seed. Another suggested mixture is 200 pounds ground oats, 200 pounds bran and 25 pounds oil cake. The protein content of the first ration is 18 per cent. and the second 17½ per cent. Either is to be fed at the rate of one pound of meal for each four pounds of milk. Wheat may be used in place of barley and, if roots are not available, feed three pounds silage. If silage is not available, feed four pounds roots per 100 pounds live weight.

Minister Announces Program

In an address at the opening of the Royal Winter Fair, Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, announced a program of agricultural expansion and development on a scale never before attempted in the province. The chief points enumerated by the Minister are:

1. To build up the live stock industry by use of pure stock.

2. To cut down by 10 per cent. the annual field crop production in Ontario.

3. To reduce cost of manufacturing field crops into dairy products and meat by more skilful feeding and balanced rations.

4. Extension of agricultural educational training throughout Ontario and co-operation of county councils in spreading information to farmers.

5. Erection of cold storage plants in various parts of the province for storing produce and fruit and creating an orderly market as well as improving quality of products.

The Minister stated that legislation of far-reaching nature affecting agriculture would be introduced at the next session of the Legislature and that a committee would shortly be formed to make a survey of Ontario to investigate every phase of agriculture. County councils throughout Ontario will be asked to help the Department in spreading vocational education to the farmers. Formation of rural clubs will be one of the chief objectives. A committee has been engaged for the past six weeks in making a province-wide survey with a view to extension of the three-and-one month instructional courses in rural communities to ten months instead of the three months' course. The Department proposes to extend these courses to embrace the whole province eventually.

The use of Miller's Worm Powders insures healthy children so far as the elimination of stomach worms are concerned. A high mortality among children is traceable to worms, for the weak strength of infants so that they are unable to maintain the battle of life against the parasite. This preparation gives promise of health and hope it.

NEWBURGH W. I.

The regular meeting of the Newburgh Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Bd. Harrison on Thursday afternoon, November 27th, with the President, Mrs. Fred. Irwin, presiding. The meeting was opened by the singing of O Canada and the repeating of the Creed. The Secretary then read the minutes of the last meeting which were approved. This was followed by the roll-call. The business meeting then followed.

Several letters of thanks and appreciation were read from members, who had received flowers and fruit. The Treasurer gave her report, which showed a substantial balance on hand.

Mrs. J. Wilson, our delegate to the Convention, held in Kingston on October 22nd and 23rd, gave her report, which was much enjoyed by all. It was decided to withdraw our December meeting as it came on Christmas Day.

Tea was served and this feature closed a very pleasant and instructive afternoon.

JEDDO COAL

WHEN you buy coal, aren't you actually buying the result you get from coal rather than the article itself? That result, of course, is heat.

Carbon is the element in coal which produces heat. Jeddo anthracite contains more pure carbon than any other coal mined in America, will therefore produce more heat and less ash, will be easier to handle and most economical to use.

This is not only a practical but a scientific basis on which to buy coal. It is not a new idea. It sounds new because the consumer has never used this method and coal dealers have never urged them to do so.

Much is being said and written today on the "Know Before You Buy" method of purchasing your daily needs, and it is exactly the method we applied in selecting Jeddo, "Aristocrat of Anthracite."

Patrol Ship Completes Successful Voyage

S. S. "Beothic" With Department of Interior's Expedition Aboard Made Long Trip to Point In Eastern Arctic

The Department of the Interior has recorded another successful patrol to the posts in the Canadian Arctic archipelago, with the return of the S.S. "Beothic" on September 27th, this year's expedition completed a 9,000-mile voyage during which all the posts were re-provisioned, relief personnel was landed at the various detachments and considerable other work accomplished. The "Beothic" left North Sydney, Nova Scotia on July 31st and during the fifty-nine day trip calls were made at Godhavn, Greenlnad; and at the Canadian posts at Bache Peninsula, Ellesmere Island; Dundas Harbour; Devon Island; Pond Inlet, Clyde River, Pangnirtung, and Lake Harbour Baffin Island; Chesterfield, and Coats Island, Hudson Bay; and Port Burwell, Hudson strait.

The "Beothic" was more heavily laden during this year's voyage than on any of her four previous trips north for the North West Territories and Yukon Branch. Including the crew there were sixty-nine on board. The ship's personnel included Captain E. Falk, Master, and Captain J. D. Morin, Ice Pilot, and forty-four officers and men. Mr. George P. Mackenzie was again the Officer in Charge of the expedition, four other members being Dr. D. S. Bruce, Ship's Doctor; Mr. J. P. Richards, Secretary; Inspector A. H. Joy, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and eleven non-commissioned officers and men; and Messrs. A. Y. Jackson and Lawren Harris, artist. Dr. M. Porsild, of the Danish Scientific Station at Godhavn, Greenland and his granddaughter, and Messrs. Carlson and Demorest, of the University of Michigan, were carried to Godhavn. Dr. Peter Heinbecker, of St. Louis, who is engaged in a study of the blood groups of the Eskimos, made the complete voyage. Additional quarters had been provided on the ship so that satisfactory accommodation was available for the large number of persons on board.

The cargo was also a heavy one. Four motor boats and 120 barrels of gasolene and oil for their operation were taken north for the use of the police. Two of these, the "Lady Borden," and the "Lady Willingdon," were 45-foot launches, while the other two were surf-boats equipped with engines. The launches were left at Pangnirtung and Chesterfield, respectively, and the surf-boats at Bache Peninsula and Baker Lake. Materials for the erection of Mr. J. D. Soper's dwelling at Lake Harbour and for a building at Pangnirtung were also carried as was 300 tons of coal for the Department of Marine's ship, "Acadia." This was all in addition to the usual supplies for the re-provisioning and re-fuelling of the various posts.

Unusual weather conditions in the North made the 1930 patrol one of the most eventful in the history of the work. Evidences of a particularly winter during 1929-30 was found in the fact that the much-dreaded ice pack in Baffin bay was not encountered. During the voyage from North Sydney to Etah, North Greenland, and again during the southern part of the trip from Pond Inlet to Chesterfield, no field ice was met with. Bergs were numerous as usual but the immense pans of ice which are a matter of much concern to northern navigators were not met with in these areas during this year's voyage. However, prevailing easterly winds prevented a large part of the ice from moving eastward of the barrow channels to the north and west. The trip through Smith sound and Buchanan bay to Bache Peninsula, Ellesmere Island, was most difficult on this account, while the attempted passage to Dundas Harbour, Melville Island, was a fight all the way.

The battle with the ice in Buchanan bay was in many respects only a preliminary to the varying hours during a storm while crossing from the entrance to Smith sound to Dundas Harbour, Devon Island. In this every wave breaking over the ship during the storm the heavy deck cargo became a matter of deep concern. The terrific power of the great waves as they swept across the deck loosened the lashings on the barrels of gasolene and oil and the deck was soon a scene of wildly swaying casks weighing 360 pounds. The ship was hove to while all hands turned out in an effort to control the runaway casks. During this squall Constable Currie suffered a dislocated shoulder, preventing himself being swept overboard.

The voyage westward from Dundas Harbour, Devon Island, to Melville Island was probably the most trying of the entire patrol. Old ice, piled high with the wind and driven by strong tides in spite of no effect of the spring thaw, was being held in huge pans in the channels. It was through this that "Beothic" had to fight her way for the approximately 1,200-mile trip through the heart of the archipelago. It was when she ship was faced with an impenetrable barrier of ice immediately to the east of Melville Island that the decision was reached to abandon the attempt to reach Melville Island for this year. The trip back to the east was in many respects as hazardous as the voyage to the west.

Conditions among the Eskimos were in the main satisfactory. With the exception of a few outbreaks of influenza, one at Lake Harbour during which eight natives died and a rather more serious occurrence along the west coast of Hudson Bay during which ten Eskimos succumbed, the health of the natives was comparatively good. Dr. H. A. Stuart, medical health officer, also visited at Pangnirtung, Baffin Island, made a spring patrol from that point of 1,000 miles northward along the coast to Pond Inlet, where he was picked up by the "Beothic" and brought south to his headquarters. The native settlements visited were in a prosperous condition. The fur-catch had been exceptionally good; fish and seals were plentiful, and the members of the various communities were in a healthy condition. Patrols made by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police indicated similar conditions in the other parts of Baffin Island visited.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

N. C. I. CHAMPIONS AGAIN

Create Record For Second Time By Easily Defeating Picton Seniors

For the second successive season, the Senior Girls of the Napanee Collegiate Institute played their way to victory and the championship of the Bay of Quinte League without losing a game, thus creating a new record for this section. In the game last Friday night they vanquished their opponents, Picton Collegiate Institute by a score of 60-18, the score well representing the superiority of the Napanee girls.

The 1930 season resulted in the same manner as did the season of 1929, with N. C. I. well in the lead all the way through last year they, at least, doubled the score 'on every team in every game. This season the scores were practically a repition. The opposing squads are either weaker or Napanee is stronger than in 1929. Defensively, Napanee is just as strong as they have been and although last year's forward line contained such hard workers and crack shots as "Hookie" Day and "Danny" Joyce, yet their places have been well filled. As a result, Napanee Collegiate Institute is just as dangerous as ever, from the scoring point of view. Such a team is the result of good coaching and hard practice. Miss McLaughlin has developed a squad that will go a long way this year to prove that Ontario did not produce probably farther than last season, because in any play-off N. C. I. participate in this year, they will surely put a fairer chance, and the game will not be won till the fixture is over. Last year's play-off was won before the game was played. Moreover, this farfetched ruling of the champions playing on their own floor reminds us of something unfair. If last year's rules are authentic this year, then our Secondary Schools Association needs remodeling. Such standards only tend to kill the game.

'Last Friday night's game was played before a full house, the gallery being filled to capacity with supporters. Picton started out well, and, for a while, it looked as though they might make a good bid for a victory. But N. C. I. slowly drew away from them by their superior passing and their ability to goal in succession. The old punch was there. The score at the end of the first half resulted 26 to 10 in favour of N. C. I.

In the second period the Napanee girls merely piled up the points, while Picton tried their best to keep the margin down and to get through to score an occasional two points. They lacked steadiness and unity, their passes seldom getting to the right person. The game ended with Napanee winning by a score of 60 to 18.

Picton Juniors Proved Better Than Seniors

The two Junior teams, who alternated with the Seniors, played a good game of basketball. Napanee's last year Juniors, who went through their group for the championship, were as good as any of the other senior teams in the group. But this year's Juniors have not come up to expectation. It is well to remember that several new players have had to be trained and developed, which makes a difference in the team work, consequently the silverware slipped out of reach this year.

Picton proved the better of the two teams and took an early lead in the game. Napanee Collegiate Institute followed closely to their opponents heels and on several occasions almost succeeded in tieing the score, but were finally forced to take a 40 to 32 defeat.

Margaret Walters, Letitia McCullough and Lenora Fraser starred for the locals. These girls will give some of the seniors a run for a position, next year.

After the games, N. C. I. entertained the Picton teams to a luncheon and dance, which was keenly enjoyed by all.

During the dance, some of the boys took the opportunity to present each of the girls of the senior team, together with the coach, with "lolly-pops." On each of these delicacies was inscribed the fitting title, "Champs of 1930."

Now that the girls have again won the championship, it is hoped that they will not be added to wall so long for the play-offs, as they did last year. Some of the leagues around us do not start until after the New Year. Incidentally Napanee Collegiate Institute will probably have to wait most of the winter before it will be decided whom they are to meet.

Patrol Ship Completes Successful Voyage

S. S. "Beothic" With Department of Interior's Expedition Aboard Had Eventful Trip to Point In Eastern Arctic

The Department of the Interior has returned another successful patrol to the posts in the Canadian Arctic archipelago. With the return of the S.S. "Beothic" on September 27th, this year's expedition completed a 9,000-mile voyage during which all the posts were re-provisioned, relief personnel was landed at the various detachments and considerable other work accomplished. The "Beothic" left North Sydney, Nova Scotia on July 21st and during the fifty-nine day trip calls were made at Godhavn, Grönland; and at the Canadian posts of Pangnirtung, Lousia, Ellesmere Island; Dundas Harbour; Devon Island; Pond Inlet, Clyde River; Pangnirtung, and Lake Harbour Baffin Island; Chesterfield, and Coats Island, Hudson Bay; and Port Burwell, Hudson strait.

The "Beothic" was more heavily laden during this year's voyage than on any of her four previous trips north for the North West Territories and Yukon Branch. Including the crew there were sixty-nine on board. The ship's personnel included Captain E. Falk, Master, and Captain J. D. Morin, Ice Pilot, and forty-four officers and men. Mr. George P. Mackenzie was again the Officer in Charge of the expedition, the other members being Dr. D. S. Bruce, Ship's Doctor; Mr. J. P. Richards, Secretary; Inspector A. H. Joy, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and eleven non-commissioned officers and men; and Messrs. A. Y. Jackson and Lawren Harris, artists. Dr. M. Porsild, of the Danish Scientific Station at Godhavn, Greenland and his granddaughter, and Messrs. Carlson and Demorest, of the University of Michigan, were carried to Godhavn. Dr. Peter Heinbecker, of St. Louis, who is engaged in a study of the blood groups of the Eskimos, made the complete voyage. Additional quarters had been provided on the ship so that satisfactory accommodation was available for the large number of persons on board.

The cargo was also a heavy one. Four motor boats and 120 barrels of gasoline and oil for their operation were taken north for the use of the police. Two of these, the "Lady Borden" and the "Lady Willingdon," were 45-foot launches, while the other two were surf-boats equipped with engines. The launches were left at Pangnirtung and Chesterfield, respectively, and the surf-boats at Bache Peninsula and Baker Lake. Materials for the erection of No. 2 Depot building at Lake Harbour and for a building at Pangnirtung were also carried as was 200 tons of coal for the Department of Marine's ship, "Acadia." This was all in addition to the usual supplies for the re-provisioning and re-fuelling of the various posts.

Unusual weather conditions in the North made the 1930 patrol one of the most eventful in the history of the work. Evidences of particularly winter during 1929-30 was found in the fact that the much-dreaded ice-pack in Baffin bay was not encountered. During the voyage from North Sydney to Disko, North Greenland, and again during the southern part of the trip from Pond Inlet to Chesterfield, no field ice was met with. Bergs were numerous as usual but the immense pans of ice which are a matter of much concern to northern navigators were not met with in these areas during this year's voyage. However, prevailing easterly winds prevented a large part of the ice from moving out of the Arctic channels to the north and west. The trip through Smith sound and Buchanan bay to Bache Peninsula, Ellesmere Island, was most difficult on this account, while the attempted voyage to Dundas Harbour, Devon Island, was a fight all the way.

The battle with the ice in Buchanan bay was in many respects only a preliminary to the trying hours during a storm while crossing from the entrance to Smith sound to Dundas Harbour, Devon Island. With every wave breaking over the ship during the storm the heavy deck cargo became a matter of deep concern. The terrific power of the great waves as they swept across the deck loosened the lashings on the heavy drums and oil and the deck was soon a scene of wildly tossing casks, each weighing 300 pounds. The ship was hove to while all hands turned out in an effort to control the cargo. Fortunately this fierce squall Constable Currie suffered a dislocated shoulder in preventing himself from being swept overboard.

The voyage westward from Dundas Harbour, Devon Island through Lancaster sound in an effort to re-provision the cache at Winter Harbour, Melville Island, was through the most trying of the entire patrol. Old ice, piled high with the winter's snow showing little or no effect of the spring thaw, was being held in huge pans in the channels which at most times of the year, "Beothic" had to fight her way for the approximately 1,200-mile trip through the heart of the Archipelago. It was when the ship was faced with an impenetrable barrier of ice consisting of a pan 18 miles in extent that the decision was reached to abandon the attempt to reach Melville Island for this year. The trip back to the east was in many respects as hazardous as the voyage to the west.

Conditions among the Eskimos were in the main satisfactory. With the exception of two outbreaks of influenza, one at Lake Harbour during which eight natives died and a similar more serious outbreak along the west coast of Hudson Bay during which ten Eskimos died, the health of the natives was comparatively good. Dr. H. A. Stuart, medical health officer, stationed at Pangnirtung, while in the north made a spring cartrol from that point 1,000 miles northward along the coast to Pond Inlet, where he was picked up by the "Beothic" and brought south to his headquarters. The native settlements visited were in a prosperous condition. The fur catch had been exceptionally good, fish and seals were olentiful, and the members of the various communities were in a healthy condition. Patrols made by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police indicated similar conditions in the other parts of Baffin Island visited.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

N. C. I. CHAMPIONS AGAIN

Create Record For Second Time By Easily Defeating Picton Seniors

For the second successive season, the Senior Girls of the Napanee Collegiate Institute played their way to victory and the championship of the Bay of Quinte League without losing a game, thus creating a new record for this section. In the game last Friday night, they vanquished their opponents, Picton Collegiate Institute by a score of 60-18, the score well representing the superiority of the Napanee girls.

The 1930 season resulted in the same manner as did the season of 1929, with N. C. I. well in the lead all the way through. Last year they, at least, doubled the score on every team in every game. This season the scores were practically a reptition. The opposing squads are either weaker or Napanee is stronger than in 1929. Defensively, Napanee is just as strong as they have been, and although last year's forward line contained such hard workers and crack shots as "Nookie" Daly and "Danny" Agnew, yet the present team has well filled. As a result, Napanee Collegiate Institute team is as dangerous as ever, from the scoring point of view. Such a team is the result of good coaching and hard practice. Miss McLaughlin has developed a squad that will go a long way this year's play-off was won before the game was played. Moreover, this farfetched ruling of the chamnions playing on their own floor reminds us of something unfair. If last year's rules are authentic this year, then our Secondary Schools Association needs remodelling. Such standards only tend to kill the game.

Last Friday night's game was played before a full house, the gallery being filled to capacity with supporters. Picton started out well, and, for a while, it looked as though they might make a good bid for a victory. But N. C. I. slowly drew away from them when they made one less than eight baskets in succession. The old dynch was there. The score at the end of the first half resulted as it to in favour of N. C. I.

In the second period the Napanee girls merely piled up the points, while Picton tried their best to keep the margin down and to get through to score an occasional two points. They lacked steadiness and unity, their passes seldom getting to the right person. The game ended with Napanee winning by a score of 60 to 18.

Picton Juniors Proved Better Team

The two Junior teams, who alternated with the Seniors, played a good game of basketball. Napanee's last year Juniors, who went through their group for the championship, were as good as any of the other senior teams in the group. But this year's Juniors have not come up to expectation. It is well to remember that several new players have had to be trained and developed, which makes a difference in the team work, consequently the allwe are slipped out of reach this year.

Picton proved the better of the two teams and took an early lead in the game. Napanee Collegiate Institute followed on closely to their opponents heels and on several occasions almost succeeded in tieing the score, but were finally forced to take a 40 to 32 defeat.

Margaret Walters, Letitia McCullough and Leonra Fraser starred for the locals. These girls will give some of the seniors a run for a position, next year.

After the games, N. C. I. entertained the Picton teams to a luncheon and dance, which was keenly enjoyed by all.

During the dance, some of the boys took the opportunity to present each of the girls of the senior team, together with the coach, with "lolly-pops." On each of these delicacies was inscribed the fitting title, "Champs of 1930."

Now that the girls have again won the championship, it is hoped that they will not be asked to wait so long for the play-offs, as they did last year. Some of the leagues around us do not start until after the New Year. Incidentally Napanee Collegiate Institute will probably have to wait most of the winter before it will be decided whom they are to meet.

THE ECONOMICAL WAY TO BUY CHRISTMAS CARDS

JEDDO COAL

WHEN you buy coal, aren't you actually buying the result you get from coal rather than the article itself? That result, of course, is heat.

Carbon is the element in coal which produces heat. Jeddo anthracite contains more pure carbon than any other coal mined in America, will therefore produce more heat and less ash, will be easier to handle and most economical to use.

This is not only a practical but a scientific basis on which to buy coal. It is not a new idea. It sounds new because the consumer has never used this method and coal dealers have never urged them to do so.

Much is being said and written today on the "Know Before You Buy" method of purchasing your daily needs, and it is exactly the method we applied in selecting Jeddo, "Aristocrat of Anthracite."

THE LIFE WORTH LIVING

There is a life that is worth living now as was worth living in former days, and that is the honest life, the useful life, the unselfish life, cleansed by devotion to an ideal. There is a battle that is worth fighting now as it was worth fighting then, and that is the battle for justice and equality; to make our city and our state free in fact as well as in name; to break the rings that strangle real liberty and to keep them broken; to cleanse, so far as in our power lies, the fountains of our national life from political, commercial and social corruption; to teach our sons and daughters, by precept and example, the honor of serving such a country as ours—that is work worthy of the finest manhood and womanhood. The well-born are those who are born to do that work; the well-bred are those who are bred to be proud of that work; the well-educated are those who see deepest into the meaning and the necessity of that work. Nor shall their labor be for naught, nor the reward of their sacrifice fail them; for high in the firmament of human destiny are set the stars of faith in mankind, and unselfish courage and loyalty to the ideal.—Henry Van Dyke.

TEA SINCE 17TH CENTURY

Tea, used from the earliest known times by the Chinese, is mentioned occasionally by medieval travellers in the East, but it only became an article of European trade in the seventeenth century. It first came overland to Russia. We know of a Russian embassy to Mongolia which received a present of tea in exchange for its costly gifts of sable furs. The Russians protested against such useless wares, but they took the parcel back to Moscow, where it was so well liked that more was sent for, and thus a trade began.

About the year 1610 the Dutch began to trade with China by sea, and small quantities of tea were brought over by them. But it was not known in England long before 1660, when a law was passed by the first parliament of Charles II. levying a duty of eight pence on every gallon of tea, chocolate or sherbet made for sale.

In 1661, Pepys wrote in his diary: "I did send for a cup of tea, a China drink of which I never had drunk before"; and in 1667: "Home, and there find my wife making of tea, a drink which Mr. Pulling, the pollicary, tells her is good for her cold and defluxion." But Mrs. Pepys was lucky in being able to enjoy her new medicine. In the year 1664 the East India Company had difficulty in buying thirty-four ounces as a present to the King, and in 1669 we find the Company writing out to its servants in India to "send home one hundred pounds of the best tea they could find." "In 1678 it imported 4713 pounds, but thereby the market was greatly overstocked, and during the following six years only 410 pounds more were brought into the country. Soon after that, however, a regular and steadily growing trade began. In 1721, the consumption in Great Britain reached 142,000 pounds; and in 1781 to 3,500,000. In 1785 the duty was reduced from 119 to 12½ per cent on the value, and the consequent reduction in price led to a much greater demand. In that year about 13,000,000 pounds were consumed. Today the average consumption per head of the population is between eight and nine pounds.

FALLING IN LOVE

This narrative deals with a young man who would always arrive at the office on time. He would leave on the minute at night, and during the day he would do all things he was told to do—told to do.

No one could doubt his steadiness, but the boss did doubt his downright loyalty.

One day, quite suddenly, this young man fell in love.

Immediately things began to hum. He would come to the office earlier and leave later. His sales record began to climb, and everybody in the organization got the spirit of his enthusiasm and they all began to climb.

Within a few weeks he was advanced twice in position and pay. And all this advancement, all along the line—all this increase in business — could be traced to the young man's falling in love—in love with his work.

HOW CAN I?

Q. How can I drive a nail into plaster without marring the wall?

A. A nail can be driven into a plastered wall without crumbling the plaster if the nail is put in hot water for a few minutes, or dipped into melted paraffin.

Q. How can I successfully launder ties?

A. Before washing ties, baste them carefully, to prevent the lining or padding from becoming lumpy. Remove the basting before ironing and the ties will look like new.

Q. How can I make a good toilet perfume?

A. A good toilet perfume can be made by mixing two ounces of alcohol with one-half ounce of orris root. Keep in a bottle, tightly corked, and shake well before using.

Fortitude is that quality of mind which does not care what happens so long as it does not happen to us.

The Tragedy Of The Ukraine

A POLISH TERROR

Cruelties of "Punitive Expeditions."

The Polish terror in the Ukraine is now worse than anything that is happening anywhere else in Europe. The Ukraine has become a land of despair and desolation that are all the more poignant because the rights of the Ukraine have been guaranteed by international treaty, because the League has been altogether deaf to appeals and arguments, and because the outside world does not know or does not care. In previous messages I have repeatedly called attention to the present state of the Ukraine, but I have now received an abundance of precise details from a reliable source that cannot be revealed at the moment.

In such a condition as exists in the Ukraine there are always acts of violence on both sides, but the excesses of the Poles are out of proportion to the acts of violence committed by Ukrainians. They consist chiefly of individual acts of incendiarism and cutting telegraph wires. They are reported in the Polish and Ukrainian papers, but the Polish brutalities, which are systematic and on a terrible scale, are not reported at all.

Terrorising Home-Rulers

The Ukrainians, of course, want home rule and have been struggling for it in various ways. In this struggle their occasional acts of violence — which are nearly always reprisals for arrests made by the Poles, or for sentences, sometimes of death, passed on Ukrainian prisoners — are of very small significance. They are also discouraged by the Ukraine leaders, and the Ukraine people as a whole cannot be held responsible for them, yet it is the Ukrainian people as a whole who are now being made to suffer. The Polish "punitive expeditions" of which I am about to give details, are not directed against individuals but against a whole people, particularly against its co-operative creameries and institutes —its whole civilization, in fact. Whatever excesses have been committed by individuals on either side, it is the fact that the Polish police and cavalry are carrying out a policy of terrorisation and that the victims are almost the whole people who have nothing to do with politics, whether Polish or Ukrainian.

I have selected the following cases from a large number that are dreadful almost beyond belief. And even the wealth of material that has come into my possession is only a part of what has actually been perpetrated by the Polish detachments who are still "pacifying" (to use the official term) the Polish Ukraine (which is officially known as Eastern Galicia.)

Villagers Cruelly Beaten

On September 14 a detachment of the 4th Polish Cavalry Regiment arrived at Hrusiatycze, in the district of Bobrka. Large quantities of grain, vegetables, bread, eggs, and milk were requisitioned without any payment. At midnight the mayor was ordered to reveal the names of villagers with arms in their possession. He said he knew of none, whereupon he was seized by five soldiers, who gave him fifty strokes with a stick. Eight other villagers were similarly beaten.

In the night of the 14th a cavalry detachment at Stary and Nowy Jorycz-now, thrashed some thirty of the villagers with their riding crops. On the 16th some Polish cavalrymen arrived in the village of Gajda, near Lemberg. On the way there they had caught some peasants who were going to work in the fields and beat them unmercifully. They commandeered a large quantity of food stocks. They caught a number of peasants, men, women, and children, and beat each one in turn until the victim lost consciousness. Cold water was then thrown over him, and the beating was sometimes renewed when consciousness, returned.

Iwan Romyszyn and his son and daughter were so beaten that they were left in a dreadful condition, and so were the two children of the mayor of the village. Damian Prus was so roughly handled that his leg was broken. The co-operative store was demolished by the Poles and the storekeeper a woman, flogged. The windows of the village reading-room were smashed. Similar things were done at Podkorzec, near Lemberg, on the same day. The co-operative store was looted and many of the villagers were beaten. Peter Buhela, a mere boy was so beaten that his life is in danger.

In the village of Hurowiec, in the district of Tarnopol, foodstuffs were commandeered, the peasants were beaten, and one of them, Olexa Pollacz was made to run along the village street and shout, "Long live Marshal Pilsudski!" while several cavalrymen ran after him beating him all the time.

Beaten to Death

On the 27th and 28th of September, cavalry detachments raided several villages in the district of Grudek Jagielonski. Ruinous requisitions were made and many peasants were terribly beaten. The following were beaten to death:—Oleza Mensala (in the village of Barlakow), Mikola Moros and Stefan Siktasz, (in Stawszany), Antoni Stasdra (Kiernicz), and Hrynko Szmagala (Lubien Wielki.)

On the 22nd and 23rd detachments of armed foot police invaded the village of Kupszynce (Tarnopol), demolished the co-operative store and the reading-room, and smashed the instruments belonging to the village orchestra. Many of the villagers were beaten. A peasant named Teodor Czaykowski was beaten to death in the village of Dolnance. On the 23rd the police arrived at Pokropiewce (Tarnopol). Many of the peasants were seized and compelled to kiss "the Polish soil" and to utter insults about "Mother Ukraine." Wlodzimierz Kril was so beaten that his life is in danger. Many peasants were so covered with blood and bruises after the beatings that they were hardly recognisable.

Villages Devastated

The village schoolmaster, Mikola Antoniak, his wife Anna, as well as a number of other villagers (whose names are in my possession) were very gravely hurt. The wife of Michael Stolnyj was forced to sing the Polish National Anthem while she was being flogged. The village store was demolished. The contents were piled up, soaked in paraffin oil, and set alight. The creamery and the reading-room library were destroyed.

Similar things were done in many other villages (I have in my possession some thirty further names of men, women and children who were so maltreated that their condition is grave).

In the village of Zurow the creamery was totally demolished—even the machinery, the chemicals, and the glass bottles were smashed up. The persons employed in the creamery were mercilessly flogged — a girl named Nastja Bobyk is in a dreadfully damaged state. Nor were the villagers spared — Nowe Sioło, Rohatyn, Brzezany, amongst others, were invaded by detachments of police. The Ukraine co-operative reading-rooms, libraries, and institutes were demolished, tables, chairs, books, earthenware, stoves, crockery, and pianos were smashed, floor boards were torn up, clothes and bedding were slashed about with knives. At Tarnopol, the library of 40,000 volumes was destroyed.

A Victim's Letter

The following extract from a private letter written less than a fortnight ago gives a characteristic picture of what is still going on in the Ukraine (the name of the writer and of the estate of which he is overseer must, for obvious reasons, be withheld, although they are in my possession):—

"I was going to drive over to the post office on Thursday because I had been hoping I would get a letter from you for a week. I also wanted to talk to my brother on the telephone about an urgent business matter. The carriage arrived. I took my coat and left the house. It was four in the afternoon. That moment a cart drove up with six strange policemen sitting in it. They jumped down from the cart and asked me, 'Are you ——?' I answered 'Yes,' and asked them to step in. Four of them were ordinary policemen, two were police officers. When they entered the room they saw my sporting gun. One of them took it down, and asked if I had a licence. I produced the licence, whereupon one of the officers stepped up to me and said 'You ——,' struck me across the face several times, and then caught both my wrists, whereupon the other policemen beat me with sticks. When I collapsed they beat me as I lay on the floor.

Home Smashed Up

"I do not know how long this went on, for I fainted. When I came to I was wet all over, for they had poured cold water over me. . . I sat huddled on my bed completely knocked out and saw the six policemen demolish my home. They smashed all the windows, they smashed the stoves in the rooms and in the living-room, 'they broke chairs and tables, tore up the books, they cut my bed and linen out of the cupboards and tore them with their bayonets, they cut the curtains and scattered the feathers, my fur coat was completely destroyed. When they were done they drove off in my own carriage.

I must have screamed frightfully when I was being beaten, for the peasants in the fields, Poles amongst them, informed the local police, who at once came along. But they never got here, for they met the punitive expedition (that is, the six strange policemen), and after conversing with them for about ten minutes turned back again. Dr ——, whom I went to see, told me that as long as he had been a doctor he had never seen a man in such a terrible state as I was in."

A Civilisation Wrecked

The "pacification" of the Ukraine, by means of these "punitive expeditions" is probably the most destructive onslaught yet made on any of the national minorities and the worst violation of a minorities treaty. Indeed, it is a whole civilisation, and a very high one, that has been wrecked. The co-operative schools, libraries, and institutes have been built up in years of work, sacrifice, and enthusiasm by the Ukrainians, almost entirely out of their own resources and in the face of immense difficulties. They feel the loss of these things almost as much as their inhuman physical sufferings.

The Poles will no doubt publish the usual official denials. An immediate and impartial investigation on the scene of the tragedy, accompanied by guarantees against intimidation of witnesses, is an urgent necessity.

Making your profits Permanent

THOUSANDS of men have "cashed in" on their holdings after years of unending toil and have re-invested only to lose their profits in unwise speculation. Life annuities provide an invincible protection against such calamities.

In May, 1928, a group of North Dakota business men sold their extensive holdings. While the deal was pending they decided to re-invest the proceeds in life annuity contracts. After investigation they paid the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada over three million dollars in premiums for annuity contracts. They were attracted by the safety and convenience of these annuities and the large returns.

LOCATING KNOCKS

An instrument for locating knocks can be made from an old telephone receiver and an iron rod. Procure a discarded telephone receiver, remove the magnet and insert an iron rod about two or three feet long. Thread three-quarters of an inch of the end of the rod and screw a small nut all the way down on this end. Then place a piece of round fibre on this end and screw another nut on the end of the rod to hold the fibre securely. The fibre should be of sufficient diameter to hold brass spring should now be placed on the rod snugly in place. A fairly heavy nut.

When the fibre and spring have been fastened in place, insert them into the receiver in the position formerly held by the magnet. Cover with tape the hole at the other end of the receiver, where the rod passes through. Next replace the diaphragm and screw piece on the receiver and be sure that the diaphragm presses firmly against the brass spring.

Now by taking soundings at different parts of the motor with the receiver to the ear and the other end of the rod resting on the motor, the knocks in the motor will be magnified, making it very easy to locate the source of the trouble.

Man has a many-sided nature, and like the moon, reveals certain phases at certain times.

CORRECT PLAN FIRST STEP IN HEATING

Only Specialists Authorized to Install the Steel-riveted and Gas-tight Lennox Tortrid Zone Furnace

Proper planning and installation is absolutely necessary if your furnace is to perform satisfactorily. Every home presents a different problem. Every door and window means heat lost. The construction of your home, its location and exposure, must also be considered.

Accurate formulas governing pipe sizes and furnace capacities have been developed through years of experimental work at the University of Illinois, resulting in what is known as the Standard Code of the National Warm Air Heating Association. Tortrid Zone dealers figure and install according to these formulas—and are granted the franchise solely on their ability to follow the scientific principles of the standard code.

On completion of installation the Lennox Furnace Company guarantees to replace any part of the Tortrid Zone, Gas-tight grades of Iron, if it wears out within ten years from date of purchase. This guarantee life, however, is based on actual service records, in 21 years.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?

Countless remedies are advertised for constipation. Many relieve for the moment but they are habit forming and must be continued. Others contain calomel and dangerous mineral drugs, which remain in the system, settle in the joints and cause aches and pains. Some are harsh purgatives which cramp and gripe and leave a depressed after effect.

Avoid lubricating oils which only grease the intestines and encourage nature's machinery to become lazy.

A purely vegetable laxative such as Carter's Little Liver Pills, gently soothes the liver, bile starts to flow, the bowels move gently, the intestines are thoroughly cleansed and constipation poisons pass away. The stomach, liver and bowels are now active and the system enjoys a real tonic effect. All druggists 25c and 75c red pkgs.

PIN HOPES TO PARASITES

There is an old saying "it takes a thief to catch a thief." The Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture go one better and "set a bug to catch a bug," to use a colloquialism. The results of recent work in the use of parasites for the control of such important crop and orchard pests as the wheat stem sawfly, the corn borer, the oriental peach moth and the larch sawfly are reported as being very promising indeed. Parasites have been introduced into Canada from several countries, and these have shown their effectiveness in attacking and eliminating the host pest; it only remains to determine whether or not the most useful of these can withstand the rigours of the Canadian winter; if they do, untold benefit to Canadian farmers will result.

AIR MAIL VOLUME GROWS IN BRITAIN

A 29 per cent increase in air mail sent from the United Kingdom was shown during the quarterly period ending September, 1930, compared with the same period in 1929. On June 2, 1930, a uniform combined rate covering air fee and postage, 8 cents for the first ounce and 6 cents for each subsequent ounce, was introduced for all European destinations. Special blue mail boxes were put into use in London on June 22nd.

Man is the noblest work of God — but nobody ever said so but man.

STORAGE EXTRAS SATISFY

Canada leads the world in the excellence of quality in eggs assured by government inspection and grading under federal regulations which apply throughout the Dominion. At this season of the year when the price of "Fresh Extras" and "Fresh Firsts" soars upward the same satisfying excellence in quality is available to the housewife in the "Storage Extras." When placed in storage these eggs are carefully graded for quality, and being kept at a constant temperature and under atmospheric conditions designed to conserve quality and flavor they come to the consumer with all their fine qualities essentially unchanged. "Storage Extras" are proving particularly popular with patrons of the chain stores which make quality a specialty.—By Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

A Foe to Asthma. Give Asthma half a chance and it gains ground rapidly. But give it repeated treatments of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy and it will fall back even faster. There is no half way measure about this remedy. It goes right to work and drives asthma out. It reaches the inmost breathing passages and leaves no place for the trouble to lurk. Have it by you for ready use.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of The Beaver:

Dear Sir,—Through the columns of your valued paper I would like to call the attention of the ratepayers to a few brief facts. Last winter the Township Council of Richmond paid out six hundred dollars to keep the roads open for a few joy riders, who wished to run their autos, while people who had worthwhile jobs, like drawing wood, lumber, and saw logs, found the roads ruined for heavy horse drawn vehicles. The horses stepped through the thin slippery pavement and could hardly stand up, let alone draw a loaded sleigh. The runners cut through, also. And who, pray, pays the taxes. Not the joy riders, by any means. These taxes are about $2.00 per acre It's high time something was done about it, and when one poor lone farmer has a County rate of $139.00, besides poor school taxes, it's time to change our Councillors. What say you, brother taxpayers?

A TAXPAYER.

PRESENTATION

An interesting event took place Friday evening, November 28th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Craig, at Switzerville, when a large number of their neighbors and friends gathered together to bid them farewell before leaving for their new home at Morven. During the evening the following address was read:—

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Craig, and Stella: —As neighbors we have gathered here tonight to say farewell to you as we have known you in the capacity of neighbors. We are not going so far away, we shall always think of you as neighbours and friends. No doubt we shall see you often as most of your family will still reside in Switzerville. Having lived in our midst for some twenty-odd years, we have learned to know you intimately and have always found you ready to help in times of need and ready to do your part in the welfare of the community. You have always taken a keen interest in the work of the church and you will be missed in the W. M. S., Sunday School and Young People's Society, not to mention the financial end of things. We shall often think of our esteem, we wish you to accept these chairs, and, as you sit and rest in them, we hope you will have many happy memories of your sojourn in Switzerville.

Signed on behalf of the Community, Mrs. Peters; Arthur Parrott, John Wilson, Vernon Paul.

Mr. Craig made a very fitting reply, thanking the friends for the lovely gifts and inviting them to visit them in their new home.

No person ever grows tired of receiving a gift of Hardley's Toilet Articles. Always loved and appreciated for their quality and daintiness. See the wonderful assortment at Wallace's Drug Store.

SELBY

The month of December opened with real winter-like weather, but for the most part it has been real mild again. —The week end rains mean a great deal to the farmers in this vicinity as they will help out the fall wheat. We will hold their monthly meeting on Friday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Henry Martin. Mrs. Nathan Miller, of Napanee, will give an address. All are welcome.—The Selby Dramatic Club are very busy practicing for their new comedy-drama, entitled "The Winning of Joy", which will be put on at Selby on December 18th. Don't forget the date. —The attendance at Sunday School was smaller than usual, owing to the rain. Mrs. Joseph Tate, President of the Missionary Department, presided. Miss Florence Purcell gave a very interesting reading on Home Missions and Miss Misses Laura Foley and Eleanor favoured us with a vocal duet, which was enjoyed by all.—Mrs. Mark Fralick, of Garden Hill, has been visiting her parents, Rev. H. W. Foley and Mrs. Foley. —Messrs. Fred Sexsmith, James Denison, Donald Fitzpatrick and Ross Dudgeon spent a few days recently in Toronto.—Miss Amy Doldge spent a few days recently at her brother's, Mr. Milton Doldge's, at Mount Pleasant. — Mr. and Mrs. E. Robinson, Jr., and little son Glen, spent Saturday evening at Mrs. B. Bradshaw's. — Mrs. Walter Doldge is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Arnold, Roblin, who is on the sick list.

Any good negative enlarged and framed in a beautiful gilt frame for $1.00 at Wallace's. Makes an inexpensive gift, and one that is always appreciated by your friends.

Man was made to mourn, but most widowers think he was made to mourn only one year.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

The local hockey sextet journeyed to the Limestone City on Monday night and won from the West Ends, 3-0.

* * *

It was a wonderful game, and those who failed to attend, sure missed a treat.

* * *

The first period was a fast one, only a lone goal netted in the twenty minutes. But the goalies for both teams had their hands full, and stopped a plenty of fast shots.

* * *

The second period was not as fast as the first, but, nevertheless, some fine exhibitions of stickhandling, lone rushes, and team work was shown, which netted the visitors another counter.

* * *

The third section was fast and furious, and near the last two of the visitors were handed the key to the dressing room, but not before they had scored again.

* * *

The local squad meet the "Red Indians" tonight (Wednesday), and this promises to be a battle royal, as the locals have to win this one to stay in the vicinity of the silverware.

* * *

The first, second and third teams play off, and then the finals, which sure promise a lot of fine hockey and ? ? ? ? ?

* * *

The Gibbard Basketball team also journeyed to Kingston last Saturday and trimmed the "Y" 27-21.

* * *

Their team is shaping up wonderfully and the local Basketball fans will see some good exhibition games.

Paid Official Visit To Napanee

Grand Master N. J. M. Lockhart, of St. Catharines at I. O. O. F. Lodge

On Wednesday, December 10th, 1930, Grand Master N. J. M. Lockhart, of St. Catharines, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, I. O. O. F., paid an official visit to a meeting of the Oddfellows of the 48th district, held at the lodge room of Argyll Lodge, No. 212, at Napanee, D. D. G. M. Earl Deline, of 48th district, presided and the chairs were occupied by District Secretary Brother Isaac of Deseronto, and other members of the District Deputy's Staff.

Among the lodges represented were Deseronto No. 102, of Deseronto, Napanee No. 86, of Napanee, Odessa No. 361, of Odessa, Red Rose No. 376, of Enterprise, Tamworth No. 392, of Tamworth, Rapid No. 467, of Yarker, and a large number of members from Argyle No. 212, of Napanee, making an assembly of over one hundred members, gathered together to do honor to the Grand Master of Ontario.

D. D. G. M. Earl Deline welcomed the distinguished visitor in a few well chosen remarks, and then the Grand Master was introduced to every member personally and shook him by the hand. Grand Master Lockhart then addressed the members laying particular emphasis on the importance at this Christmas season and during the coming winter, of making certain that any members in distressed circumstances is afforded relief. He also complimented several veteran Oddfellows on their long association in the order among whom were Bros. Lester Scott, of Argyll Lodge, and Austin Kimmerly, of Deseronto Lodge.

Grand Master Rides Goat

At about 9.30 o'clock the meeting adjourned to the banquet hall where the ladies of Rebecca Lodge, Queen of Sheba, No. 254, had prepared a most tasty and plentiful repast. D. D. G. M. Earl Deline acted as toastmaster in a very capable manner. After supper was served by the ladies they were invited to remain in the hall, and after a toast to the King, J. W. Thompson, P.G., proposed the toast to the Ladies and in his usual interesting way, Mrs. Andrew Kitchen, D. D., President of the Rebecca Lodge, in responding to this toast, expressed the pleasure of the members of the Rebecca Lodge in being present and assisting in the reception of the Grand Master. At this point a very unusual and interesting ceremony took place. The Grand Master was requested by the ladies to be seated at the head table and come down to the centre of the hall, where the ladies proceeded to initiate him into the ceremony of riding the goat. Seated on the back of a very life-like and full-sized wooden goat, the Grand Master expressed his pleasure at taking part in this very unusual ceremony.

The next item of interest to the visitors, and was proposed by Wilfred S. Wilson, of Argyll Lodge No. 212, and was responded to by Bro. Sheltér, P. G. of Napanee Lodge, No. 86.

Will Bonesteel, P.G., of Deseronto Lodge and the Grand Master responded. In his address, Grand Master Lockart laid particular stress on the very important place which the Rebecca lodges occupied in the order, and of the splendid work they were doing, and also dealt in a very inspiring manner with the work and ideals of Oddfellowship and stressed the importance of the younger members taking an active part in the work of the lodge. In later years, he said, they would reap the benefit in friendships formed and in pleasant recollections of having done something worth while.

This very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of O'Canada.

DORLAND

Winter arrived rather suddenly during Friday night and the smaller bays are frozen over.—The tea meeting on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid, was a very interesting event and was well attended. The excellent programme was in three divisions: the first part was the enjoyment of well filled plates of ice cream and sandwiches; next the curtains were drawn, revealing a homey scene, a bright fireplace with a benign old couple seated beside it, in the candle light. A lady in voluminous draperies and snowy curls introduced, by ancient names, a group of singers barged in styles of by-gone days, who rendered many old time songs, in chorus, sextette and solos. These were interspersed by humorous music readings and dialogues. After the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," the pastor, Rev. H. Sanders, told the Christmas story for the children and a number of the pupils of the Sunday School, who had been trained by Miss Moorecroft, rendered very prettily, a short programme of music pantomime and recitations. Then Santa Claus, the superintendent, Mr. Frank Galleher, made a search of the children's parcels, containing a Christmas treat.— The old Quaker burying ground has been cleaned up and a new fence is being erected. It is hoped that other descendants of those now resting in the local cemetery will render assistance in the proper maintenance of these much neglected places.—Mrs. C. P. Speculate Upon Appointment To Governorship

While definite announcement may not be forthcoming for several months, speculation is rife concerning the successor to Lord Willingdon as Governor-General of Canada. His terms ends next Fall.

A popular bet, probably inaccurate guess, is the Duke of York. The Duke and Duchess are Empire favorites, but there are many obstacles to his coming to Canada for a period of two years at this time. First there are the social and ceremonial obligations at home which they are able to free Their Majesties, obligations which will be heavier than usual next year, during the absence of the Prince of Wales in South America. Secondly the youth of H. R. H. and the fact that he is unschooled in the art of professional diplomacy, mitigate against his coming during this decade.

Lord Byng would be acceptable to the Bennett government but his health is poor and he has said he could not consider his reappointment.

Lord Cromer has been mentioned, but it is said he would probably be unacceptable, while the Duke of Atholl is acceptable, but because of his health, unable to come.

The Earl of Athlone, now Governor-General of South Africa may be the selection. He is a brother of Queen Mary, while his wife is a grand-daughter of Queen Victoria. His qualifications for the post are said to be preeminent, but there remains a doubt as to whether or not he would accept.

An interesting possibility is the Marquis of Lothian, who is better known to Canadians as Philip Kerr, under which name he served as private secretary to Lloyd George through the wartime Coalition Government in Britain. The Marquis holds the oldest of Scotch Catholic peerages and is head of the Rhodes Trust, under which the vast wealth of the South African capitalist is administered. He is accounted one of the most brilliant minds of the time and there is no doubt that his thousands of friends in Canada would welcome his appointment.

It is quite possible that he who will fill the office has not yet been drawn into the popular list of probabilities. The new status, under which the Governor-General represents the King and not the Government of Britain, quite widens the list of eligibles. It removes many of the political dangers from the the office, which in former years demanded astute political mind, as well as grace, tact and diplomacy.

Another world beauty has disappeared. Perhaps she washed it off.

Start Early

IN any plan of life assurance the extra risk is what increases the premium that is required.

The earlier you start the less your assurance will cost.

Life assurance is really organized thrift reduced to a plan which converts the intentions of every thoughtful young man into a definite plan.

Its psychological value is as great as its financial merit.

WOMEN KEEP SECRETS BETTER THAN MALES

It is a very old saying and one that has been varied with time, that women cannot keep a secret. But no less a man than Sir George Aston, K.C.B., formerly of the British Naval Department and the secretariat of the War Department, affirms that women can keep secrets much better than men can.

Sir George Aston was entrusted with many of the most important secrets of the war. In his latest book, "Secret Service", which has recently been published both in England and Canada, he comments most highly on the work done by women in the Secret Service Department during the war.

The following paragraph from "Secret Service" will serve to illustrate Sir George's reasons for believing as he does:—

"There is a stamp of man who wants to earn a reputation for being in the know about Naval and Military affairs, especially in time of war, while taking very little interest in the family lives of his colleagues, and with women it is just the other way about." He gives instance after instance of the methods used by women spys, during the recent war, and the absolute silence they preserved throughout.

"The difficulty in most cases," he goes on to say, "was not in the matter of their revealing secrets but in inducing them to do so."

Woman, as a keeper of secrets, has a strong advocate in Sir George Aston, however, from the viewpoint of a woman, we may say that if not only Sir George Aston but number of other of his sex knew how well we can keep secrets it might surprise them.

Yes, women can keep secrets. They have kept them all down the ages and they will go on keeping them until the end of time and perhaps beyond that. We expect to have to do so.

Love of country is as strong in women as it is in man, stronger perhaps, and they will keep their country's secrets, when occasion arises. We proved it during the recent war and we will do so again if we have to.

As for secrets regarding their own people—those they love, women, that is women of the right sort, would go to the gallows, go to the stake, go to Hell itself, rather than tell anything that would hurt those they love.

The man who says he can marry any girl he pleases is seldom able to please one.

SPECIMEN OF CANADIAN SILVER IS DISPLAYED

A specimen of native silver, eight inches wide and estimated to contain about 190 pounds of silver, has been acquired by purchase by the Smithsonian Institution, and is now on display in the Natural History Building of the United States National Museum.

"I obtained this specimen last August, at the Kelley Silver Mines, near Cobalt, Ont., the principal silver producing area in Canada," Mr. Henderson, of the Department of Geology, said. "It is the first specimen of a silver deposit which the Museum has received from this region, and probably is as good an exhibition specimen as may be seen in this country."

Additional information on this acquisition furnished by the Department of Geology follows:—

"The country rock containing the silver deposit is a green igneous intrusion making the silver vein stand out conspicuously. This particular specimen is eight inches wide but the veins vary in thickness from minute seams to 15 inches wide, and in spite of this narrowness contain so much silver as to produce phenomenally rich ore.

In addition to the silver in its natural state in the rock, the Museum has acquired, from the same section of Canada, a mass of silver weighing 265 pounds, which is also on exhibition in the mineral hall.

YOUNG INJURED MOST

According to a report issued the Women's Department of Labor industrial machinery has been responsible for more accidents proportionally to boys and girls than to men and women.

Many of the accidents to women happened to girls under 21, a much larger proportion of women than men being in this age group. The young women, furthermore, were found to be permanently disabled more often than were older women.

It is said that the laws prohibiting employment of boys and girls under 18 in dangerous occupations need to be revised to include all minors under 21 since young workers in general are likely to be fore careless and venturesome than are adults.

News and Information For the Farmer

Renfrew and Lanark Won

Eastern Ontario counties were all represented in the inter-county judging competitions conducted at the Ottawa Winter Fair on December 2nd and 3rd. A. E. Acres trophy, emblematic of the inter - county seed judging championship of Eastern Ontario, was won by the Renfrew County team. In the inter-county Stock Judging Competition, Lanark forged to the front and secured the Peter White Trophy for 1930.

Too Much Silage

Authorities claim that silage is an extra good feed if it is not abused. Two kinds of abuse are to feed too much and to let the surplus accumulate in the mangels. It should not be forgotten that silage is largely water. If the cows are encouraged to cram themselves with silage at the expense of grain and hay they will not be getting enough nutriments to sustain their bodies and a profitable flow of milk. Preferably the grain should be fed on top of the silage so that it will be eaten first and then not more silage than will be eaten readily. If there is a calf, plus it is well to clean this out of the mangers daily.

Winners at International

Ontario expert grain and seed growers brought honor to Ontario and to themselves by winning nearly forty prizes at the International Grain and Hay Show at Chicago. In keen competition, Ontario won this year brought home two championships and one reserve championship, as well as other high prizes in almost every class in which they competed. Their success should encourage many others to prepare for the World's Grain Show at Regina in 1932. The Ontario Department of Agriculture has awarded prizes of $50 to each Ontario exhibitor at the International winning a first prize in any class. They included: Mrs. M. E. Maycock, Port Milford, first prize and championship in field beans; Hugh Jeffrey, Whitby, first prize in soy beans; R. F. Almo, Hagersville, first prize in alsike seed. Special prizes of $25 for Ontario exhibitors with the highest standing in certain classes, (first prize winners not eligible for these specials) were to the following: H. L. Cook, Bracebridge, field peas; Douglas Dunton, Brampton, alfalfa; William Batten, Burgessville, red clover; Alex. Bettle, Norwich, oats.

More Schools in Agriculture

Early establishment throughout Ontario of vocational schools in agriculture, administered and operated along lines similar to those of vocational schools in the cities, was forecast by Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, speaking at a banquet in his honor at Brampton recently. "We expect," declared Colonel Kennedy, "to have these schools in operation in the course of the next long. We can do it and we are going to do it." He mentioned that the Western Universities could play an important part in the scheme. With the aid and instruction of the Universities, he said, it would be possible to establish a system of schools in agriculture in which boys would be able, after the three months' course offered in the to go back now and minister home nursing. The boys would be taught to grow potatoes and wheat at less cost and to improve farming conditions generally. Decreased production costs was one of the first considerations in the problems, for which a solution was being sought and the co-operation of all county councils earnestly solicited.

Popularizing Ontario Farm Products

Prize winners in the Ontario Farm Products competition for Ontario farmers held at the recent Royal Winter Fair, under auspices of the Department have been announced. The first prize of $100 in a savings account in the Ontario Government Savings Office goes to Mrs. L. B. Bull, of 18 Edgley Avenue, Scarboro Junction; and the winner of the second prize, $50 in a similar account, has been won by Mrs. T. Milne Jamieson, of Hespeler, Ont.; and the prize of $25 in a savings account goes to Mrs. A. D. Ferguson, R. R. 3, Galt, Ontario.

Twenty-five prizes of hampers of Ontario apples and 25 prizes of bags of Ontario potatoes make up the other awards.

The competition was staged in connection with the Department's program, planned to increase the demand in town and city for Ontario farm products. The competition was staged at the Agricultural Department's exhibit at the Winter Fair, and a close inspection of the various sections of this exhibit can supply answers to the seven questions asked in the competition.

The Department officials express themselves as extremely pleased with the results of the contest. Several thousand contestants took part, and the interest shown by the majority that the lessons which it was hoped to teach were well learned by thousands of town and city shoppers.

New "Better Bull" Area

After months of preparation which included the census of pure-bred livestock in the Middlesex county, the Middlesex Better Bull Area has now been declared a "better bull area" under the provisions of the Cattle Protection Act, becoming effective July 1st, 1931. Officials of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and the Middlesex Livestock Improvement Association were very largely responsible for having this done. The object is to raise the standard of pure-bred livestock in the county. One of the most important clauses is that only registered bulls may be offered for service and no scrub animals can be sold for breeding purposes. Under the new legislation the owner may use his own grade stock for breeding but it is said the new measure will induce many to butcher their grade bulls.

Average Crop Yields

The final crop estimates bulletin of the Ontario Department of Agriculture is of more than passing interest, giving as it does the average production in practically every field crop grown in the past year. The average yield per acre in these crops is given as follows: Fall wheat, 26.7 bushels; spring wheat, 23 bushels; oats, 39.5 bushels; barley, 34.3 bushels; rye, 17.7 bushels; flax, 9.8 bushels; buckwheat, 30.6 bushels; peas, 19.7 bushels mixed grains, 39.2 bushels; husking corn, 59.4 bushels; beans, 13.4 bushels; fodder corn, 8.40 tons; alfalfa, 2.26 tons; alsike, 1.46 tons; sweet clover, 1.46 tons; potatoes, 114.8 bushels; turnips, 342 bushels; mangels, 366 bushels; sugar beets, 356 bushels; carrots, 134 bushels; sugar beets, 356 bushels.

In approximately 75 per cent of these crops an increased yield per acre is indicated over 1929.

Winter Fair Winners

Durham County Junior Farmers captured the John S. Hon. Martin trophy in the annual inter - county Winter Fair competition, defeating the Provincial Winter Fair, Guelph, with a team score of 2,191 out of a possible 3,000. Peel County ranked second, Ontario third, and Wellington fourth. Twenty-five counties took part in the event. Peel County team won the Glen Ormond Trophy for the team with the highest standing in horse judging. The inter-county seed judging competition for the Fischer Trophy, Oxford County was the winner, a total of 481, closely followed by Durham, Kent and York Counties. The O. A. C. students' five stock judging competition for the Day Trophy was captured by fourth year with a score of 5144 out of a possible 6000, by a margin of 75 points over third year. The competitions in every case were keenly contested and the fair proved to be one of the most successful in many years.

Canada Refuses U. S. Immigrants

Immigration into Canada has increased as a result of unemployment in the United States. A record for rejection of persons desiring to enter Canada was established in August, the peak month of tourist traffic, when 1,123 persons were refused admission at Canadian ports alone. The total was only 501 the previous year and the August figure is said to be the record for Canada.

Entries into Canada comprise three types: tourists, workers, seeking employment and Canadians returning to resume residence in this country. Officials of the international bridges at Niagara Falls report a decrease of at least 35 per cent from last year's figures in the number of automobiles bringing temporary visitors into Canada during the season just closed. This figure would seem to be the natural result of existing business conditions. Canadian police officers reported a greater number of tourists seeking assistance. According to the official figures issued by the Department of National Revenue, at Ottawa, at the beginning of September, 1,474,610 American automobiles entered the Province of Ontario during the first six months of this year and the expenditure of these tourists, while here, is estimated at $21,465,000. Of these there in cars 1,287,976 were admitted to the province for a period not exceeding 48 hours; 96,738 for a period not exceeding 60 days; and 304 came in for tours ranging between two and six months.

Niagara, as usual, was the biggest port of entry with 488,701 cars of the first class, 58,977 of the second class and 93 of the third. Bridgeburg was second, with 395,606 one-day cars, 68,- 1st cars 1,287,976 were admitted to the 923 of the second type and 80 of the two-month description. Niagara Falls was third, with 270,466; 44,393 and 21 cars, respectively of the three classes.

SOVIET PURCHASES IN CANADA DEPEND ON COAL SHIPMENTS

The extent—if any—to which Russian coal imports to Canada retard the development of Canadian mines is being closely studied by the Government in its efforts to stimulate the coal mining industry of Canada.

Documentary evidence has already been submitted to show that Russian anthracite competes only with imports from the United States as the latter is superior in freedom from ash and in heat units.

Instructions following the election of last July demands were made that "dumping" of Russian coal into Canada be outlawed. Instructions agreed to suspend further shipments for the year to permit investigations of their contention that the coal in no way enters into domestic competition.

Information so far submitted declares that Russian importations have not even curtailed shipments from British mines, the full quantity recently made available from this source having been taken by Canada. No Canadian fuel is claimed, which is a satisfactory substitute, is available in Eastern Canada, while importers have undertaken that they will not distribute to compete with Alberta fuels. United States coal interests, however, have taken steps to force the Canadian Government to stop the Russian shipments.

Another angle to the situation is that resumption of Canadian exports to Russia on a larger scale is involved in the ultimate decision respecting Soviet coal importations to Canada. Advices from London say that cables for binder twine, refined sugar, electrical equipment and agricultural machinery aggregating $10,000,000 have been allotted Canada by Russia and that more extensive purchases are certain if satisfactory credit arrangements are reached.

This trade, it is declared, hinges upon the admission of Russian coal.

Until the opening of river navigation next spring and in the interval the Government will study all features of the situation.

WILL RAZE FAMOUS BOSS RIFLE FACTORY

Arrangements have been made between the Department of Immigration and the National Revenue Department whereby a large portion of the $5,000,000 worth of ordnance stored in the Ross Rifle Factory, at Quebec, will be temporarily housed in the new immigration building there. The National Battlefields Commission having secured the site of the factory, which is adjacent to the plains of Abraham, with a view to completing their program of beautification, the structure will be demolished. The question of finding a location in which to store the ordnance previously kept in the factory has been solved by inter-departmental agreement.

Some of the store will be sent over to Levis, Que., some to St. John's, Que., and some to Montreal. A portion will be sent to the Defence Department Buildings, in Lindsay, Ontario.

BEAUTIFUL KENTISH CAVES

Is Electrically Lighted So There Is No Possibility of Becoming Lost In Long Intricate Passages.

The famous mammoth caves of Virginia have a rival in England in Kent's cavern at Torquay, noted not only for its beauty and its stalagmites but also for the prehistoric remains which have been discovered in it.

Though the largest cave of its kind in England, it is not comparable to the American caverns in size. This is a cheering thought to the visitor, who is willing to go by something in the way of size for the sense of security that comes from knowing that the entire cave is electrically lighted and that there is no possibility of his becoming lost in long, dark, intricate passages.

The temperature of the cavern never varies, winter or summer, from the mean temperature of the district, 52 degrees Fahrenheit. From the great chamber at its beginning, there are two principal branches, borrowing under one of the seven hills which comprise Torquay, which in this respect may claim kinship with ancient Rome. One of the two branches leads into what is known as the sloping chamber which contains a magnificent group of stalactites.

At the right is a passage known as the vestibule where a trench has been cut by the British association, which is allowed by the proprietors of the cavern to make the excavations within and which has already turned up a number of important prehistoric specimens.

In the wolf's den, further along, is the spot where the fighting teeth of the sabre-toothed tiger were found. Six to eight inches long, these formidable weapons must have given considerable trouble to the ancient Britons, whose chief armor was a coat of blue paint applied next the skin and whose chief weapon was a rude shout which probably had little effect on an animal so splendidly equipped for carnage. But, despite this inequality, the sabre-toothed tiger is now extinct, while the ancient Briton thinly disguised as a retired Indian army colonel, is still a common specimen.

The long arcade is chiefly marked by a great stalagmite 43 feet in circumference and 13 feet high. High up on it are a number of inscriptions, the earliest dating from 1616. The great stalactite chamber, which comes next, is noted for the profusion of both stalactites and stalagmites, from little tubes the size of quills to pillars four feet high and correspondingly thick.

Among the odd forms which have acquired names because of their resemblance are the wedding cake, the frozen waterfall, the chinese pagoda, round oddest of all, the dried haddock, which hangs from the roof in perfect semblance of the pathetic comestible for which it is named. Most of these forma lons are translucent, and colored lights in various colors add to the splendor of the spectacle.

An opening on the left reveals the organ chamber, where the stalactites are ranged in order like organ pipes. This point is 700 feet from the entrance and 150 feet underground. It is the end of the descent and after a rest the guide gives the signal for the return by striking a stalagmite column which gives out a clear bell-like note.

In the cave of inscriptions, on the return journey, one sees a great stalagmite on which the words "Robert Bedgar of Ireland, May 20, 1688," are still plainly to be seen under the thinnest possible film of stalagmite. If it took more than 240 years just to glaze that inscription over, one wonders how many did it take to build up the whole stalagmite by the crystallization of the drop after slow drop falling from the cavern's damp roof?

The bear's den follows, where the great cave bear, hibernating through the long, cold winters of the ice age, was drowned in floods following the melting of the winter's snow and left his skeleton for the instruction of modern discoverers. The jaws and teeth of a bear and the great teeth of a sabre-toothed tiger can be seen imbedded in the roof.

In this cave were found also the skull of a paleolithic man, now preserved by the Torquay Natural History Society. The animals have preserved as well the geological record, easy to read for him who knows rock strata, of the great ice age, which three times covered all England with glaciers, marked by three stalagmite floors in the caverns, and which twice flooded the country with great inundations which broke up the floors and carried in earthly deposits, leaving behind as to read at the eye evidences of volcanic action, everywhere plain to see in Great Britain.

Future Fighting Planes.

Airplanes are now able to climb to greater heights than ever before, and the air battle of the future—if there is one—will be fought sixty miles or more above land, out of the range of anti-aircraft guns. Designers have been compelled to revolutionize the airplane to enable pilots to live at such a height and the cockpit of these machines will be totally enclosed. The cabins will be electrically heated and the pilots will wear specially-heated clothing to withstand the cold. Air will be provided from cylinders of oxygen, fed through a small mouthpiece. Great care is being taken over this item, and complete experiments will have to be made, for should the supply of oxygen fail the pilot would lose consciousness in mid-air.

Tea Has Mysterious Disease.

A mysterious disease has made its appearance in the tea fields of Portuguese East Africa. It causes the yellowing of the tiny leaves which in a few days turn to a bright green, then to orange. The bush withers and dies. Up to date no cure has been found.

Unemployment Insurance.

Unemployment insurance has cost the British Government over £400,000,000 to date, in addition to the contributions of employers and employes.

EARLY MUSIC OF MAORI.

James Cowan Gives His Impressions of Music of Natives.

There will soon come a day when the music of early manhood all over the world will be an open book for those with sufficient interest.

Mr. James Cowan has done a good work in publishing his impressions of the music of the Maori people in New Zealand.

These people were practically living under the conditions of the stone age when first discovered by Captain Cook in 1769, and we are thus able to get a good idea of the beginnings of musical art among a primitive people.

Mr. Cowan tells us that their music has no melody. It is rhythmic noise, which consisted of shouting at the top of the voice to the beating of a slab of wood, or stamping the log with their feet.

They have several kinds of wooden flutes, the pitch depending on the size of the instrument, and the strength of the blowers' lungs. They have no scale, but their rhythm is good.

After blowing until they are exhausted, the players produce a monotone of a very mournful character, until they get their second wind. They then cease playing and vary the concert with a series of tunes of their own invention, all singing something different at the same time until they are tired.

The Maoris are proficient mimics and imitators. As soon as the white man appeared with his music they began to imitate his songs. Sailors brought sea songs, soldiers barrack ballads and missionaries hymns. These have had their influence on the Maori mind, and have changed their ideas of music. They continue to make their own music, however, which consists of bits of imported songs with a strongly marked rhythm.

Anything in the way of ceremonial appeals to them, and they make songs out of "Hight Wheel," "Left Wheal," "Right About Face," and believe that if they recite these words with sufficient vigor, no bullet can reach them.

Mr. Cowan tells us that "I have noticed a similarity in some of the early Maori songs to Hebrew music. The fondness of certain intervals, and embellishments of peculiar form, the unison chorus which follows, or breaks in on the solo voice, are peculiar to both peoples."

An interesting feature of their singing is a sort of team work concert. Special songs are sung in one breath, and just as a singer is about to stop from exhaustion, another catches on to the tune, and continues it, sometimes in the middle of a word. This style of singing is very unconnected and it is not easy to say what object it has.

Mr. Alfred Hill of Sydney has edited many Maori songs and has made a careful study of their history. He is only one from such works that we get an idea of the music of these primitive people, as the histories of music have very meagre notices, or none at all.

It is scarcely to be expected that even the Maoris would escape the modern craze for syncopation and jazz. They have it and the two step dance, which appeals to their native sense of rhythm with great force. It has, in fact, driven out their own dances to a great extent, which is a pity in some respects.

THE PLATYPUS.

A Marvel of Nature Found Only In Australia.

One of the strangest animals to be found in the world is the duck-billed platypus, which is really half animal and half bird, for, although it lays eggs like a bird, it suckles its young, writes P. B. Prior in the Humane Pleader. Its coat is a dark grey intermixed with a sandy tint, while it has a large, bushy tail, its feet being webbed like a duck, and it has a broad bill. This strange animal is the wonder of the mammal world. Paradox suggests prehistoric monotremes, that is what it is called. Its real family name is Ornithorhynchus, but of course is usually called "duck-bill" and "water-mole." It presents to every student of natural history a mystery. Why? Because it is bird-like, in that it has webbed feet and a beak; it is reptilian inasmuch as it lays soft-shelled eggs, like a snake, and has poisonous spurs, and has the distinction of only being found in Australia. But it lacks one thing—enterprise. Even its cousins, the Echidna, seems to have more go than the platypus. They are not nearly so good-looking or attractive, yet they have travelled overseas and displayed themselves to the world; although some four years ago it is true that a pair did pick up enough courage to go to America. But it only lived there, alas, for seven weeks. Climate conditions did not suit its delicate constitution.

In quarrelsome the platypus is very hard indeed to rear, although one naturalist in the person of Mr. Harry Burrell, of Sydney, has kept them longer than anyone else on record; but only quite recently has the platypus died at his house while under his care. Despite skilled and unremitting care, the platypus gradually succumbed to the heat wave.

Most of the life of the platypus is spent in river pools, swimming and crawling along the banks beneath the water in search of food. Pretty little pus feeds along the margins and beds of streams, poking its bill into the mud and weed, straining out of the water—with its bill. Just as a duck does — small beetles, insects and fresh-water snails or shrimps.

Tamerlane's Tomb.

Among the relics of Tartar rule in Turkestan is the tomb of Tamerlane, whose top is shaped like a giant acorn, is the most conspicuous and best preserved. It is completely covered with mosaic, the beauty and craftsmanship of which has never been surpassed. Tamerlane built the tomb for himself in 1400-1404. Over the sarcophagus of this man who conquered all of Asia is the inscription, "This is the resting place of the Illustrious and Merciful Monarch; the Most Great SulTan; the Most Mighty Warrior, Emir Timour Kurgan, Conqueror of all the Earth."

Try a Bowl of Wax Fruit, She: "She gave us something on our wedding anniversary that plugs tea-cozy—and we ought to reciprocate."

LONDON BRIDGE.

Has Been Fooling the Public for Nearly Nine Years.

For ninety-nine years London bridge has been fooling the public. Whatever the origin of the doggerel which advises the fair lady of its lofty tottering condition—and the lines have many variants—history is still a fledgling compared to its predecessors. The old London bridge (the present one is called the "new" London bridge) was begun in 1176 and completed in 1209. It was the only bridge over the Thames until 1750, when the first Westminster bridge was built, and when it (old London bridge) was destroyed many thousands of Roman coins and medallions with examples of Roman pottery were found under the pilings. This was taken as proof that a Roman bridge had stood on the site, since this method of marking their way was common among the Romans. The date of the first bridge across the Thames has been established as A.D. 43. There is some controversy as to whether this was Roman or Briton. The Roman bridge was built perhaps a century and a half later.

The "old" bridge looked much more like a common thoroughfare than the present one, due to the rows of shops which lined it from one end to the other. These were later removed, but its massive arches and fortified gate still gave it a rather stalwart look. The gates frequently were to be seen decorated with heads of traitors, exposed on pikes. In the centre was a chapel, dedicated to St. Thomas of Canterbury, Peter Colechurch who began construction of the bridge, was buried there.

The "new" bridge stands slightly west or downstream from the site of the old structure. London's growth has been a bit too much for it, although it was widened to 63 feet from its original 54 in 1904. It is 928 feet long. Traffic stalls frequently in the long rush hours. People find it more convenient to walk.

DISMANTLING LINER.

Come to Pieces Almost as Skilfully as She Was Built.

The famous liner once known as the Empress of Britain, and later as the Montroyal, has gone to the shipbreakers.

Formerly a palatial ship of 16,000 tons in regular service to Canadian ports, she carried 2,000 passengers and a crew of 870.

At the shipbreakers these floating hotels are handled with care and respect.

A floating structure that has taken two years to build, and has roamed the seas for thirty years, is still a valuable property, and the recovery of this property means taking her down piece by piece.

She comes to pieces almost as skilfully as she was built. The work is of vast importance, for it conserves to the world many tons of valuable material.

Waste is infinitesimal. The industry recently employ thousands of men in the recovery of iron and steel for re-rolling, in general underwriting work, and in putting into commercial use again thousands of tons of lead, zinc, tinplate, copper, brass, gun-me al, and piping.

In the yards the engineering shops all kinds of machinery are reconditioned and disposed of to the trade. Thousands of glass portholes covers and windows are taken down whole and sold to shipbuilders.

Timber, including soft and hard woods, are treated and sold for building, joinery and other purposes. Valuable mahogany, oak, walnut and other hatings and furnishings find a ready sale.

A vast army of men of various trades and professions is required, and an extensive plant is employed to carry out this work scientifically. The latest type of electrically-driven machinery is in use, as well as different kinds of cranes and overhead carry. Modern, electric shears, some with the power of shearing steel plates five inches thick, are in operation, since large quantities are recovered.

In one yard alone the productive capacity of iron and steel scrap averages 100,000 tons per annum.

WONDERFUL STARFISH.

Have Five Legs Each Covered With Hundreds of Tiny Sucker Feet.

The starfish, starlike, which has its home in the Mediterranean, looks just as though made of soft velvety chenille, says an article in the London Daily Chronicle, but though they don't seem to be the least bit fishy in any way, these lovely blood-red creatures are just as wonderful as any of the common starfishes familiar to us.

They have five legs, or arms — or rays, to be exact—each covered with hundreds of tiny sucker feet, by means of which they can crawl over the rocks. If one of these rays gets torn off, a new one will grow in its place; and if all the rays are torn off but one, the starfish is able to grow four or five new ones to make itself complete again. What is more, each single ray that was torn off is capable of growing a complete new body, mouth, and stomach, and the four remaining rays as well.

Starfish live chiefly on dead fish; but they are also very fond of fresh live mussels and oysters; and any of these pretty bright red velvety creatures can easily make an oyster open its closed shell. It seizes the oyster in the sucker feet at the outer part of its rays, and with its mouth firmly fixes open the shell. Then it holds the opened shell over its mouth and turns its stomach inside out into the oyster's house, and leaves it there until it has taken in and digested the who'e oyster.

Domestic Touch. For the less formal interior, straight-hanging, unlined draw curtains are helpful in creating an atmosphere of homely hospitality.

Bag Limit. "In many States a hunting license entitles you to one deer and no more."

"Yes, like a marriage license."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE ACID TEST

The Hon. Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, is speaking at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, recently, concluded his enunciation of important new policies relating to agriculture with a reference to what he considered the real test of the worth of a national policy.

"In working out any national policy in agriculture that I undertake I place myself mentally in some simple farm home," he said. "Many of them come to my mind when I am working on these problems. I judge everything by that alone. If the policy when enunciated does not leave its impress in the farm home then, I know you will agree with me, it is not worthy of the name of a national policy of agriculture."

CLEAN-UP THE GARDEN

Even now it is not too late to clean up garden debris. Among the dangers it harbours are the seeds of such weeds as barnyard grass, purslane, lambs quarters, chickweed and nettles, which may infest the garden next spring. It also harbours the eggs of the most troublesome boring caterpillars, cutworms, pillar borers, thrips, the imported cabbage worm, the dimsond backed moth, tarnished plant bugs, several species of cutworms and other insects. If it cannot be burned it should be hauled away to a dump where it will be buried in ashes.

"FOR GREENS AND FAIRWAYS

One of the world's finest turf grasses has been developed on the dyke lands of New Brunswick during the past three years. It is known as Creeping Bent Grass. It is ideal for use on putting greens and fairways where reasonably moist soils exist. It is now being produced commercially and is in big demand with golf clubs that want the best in playing turf. It is put up under inspection by the Dominion Seed Branch and finds a ready market. One pound of this seed contains several times as many vital seeds to the pound as Kentucky blue grass and similar coarser seeds and the turf it produces is superior to that produced by any other kind suitable for the purpose.

SEED GOES SOUTH

The growing importance of seed production as an industry in Canada is shown by the recent shipment from Swarthburn, Manitoba, to the United States of two carloads of Yellow Multiplier onion seed. The inspection tag and seal of the Dominion Seed Branch is the best possible assurance of purity, careful selection and high quality. During 1930 more than two hundred acres in British Columbia were devoted to the production of field root, garden vegetable and flower seed, and production amounted to over one hundred tons. Of this volume seventy-five per cent was garden peas, while the other twenty-five per cent comprised seed of other garden crops, flowers and field roots.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELLEN SHERLOCK

At her home in Camden East, Ont., on December 3rd, 1930, Mrs. Ellen Sherlock, widow of the late William Sherlock, passed to her reward, at the age of 91 years and 6 months. The late Mrs. Sherlock was a life-long resident of this community and an honored member of the former Methodist and later of the United Church, of this place. In the pioneer days of organs and choirs in Methodist churches, our sister was among the first to fill the positions of organist and choir leader in Camden East. When the Women's Missionary Society was organized in the early days, she deputed and elected president, which position she held for some years. About ten years ago she was re-elected and continued to hold that position until the time of her death. Her zeal for the missionary cause was evidenced by her life of practical service for the missionaries of the foreign field, and for the needy at home. Those who knew her best can truthfully say: "A veritable Dorcas," full of good works, alms and deeds, which she did. As a member of the Ladies' Aid, her helpful support was always to be depended upon.

The prayer-meeting and public worship were her delight. These services she was able to attend to within a few weeks of her passing away.

She is survived by one son, Mr. Philip J. Sherlock of Kilkenny, Minn., who was present at the bedside of his mother during her last days; Mrs. Burritt, of Napanee, Mrs. McNaughton, of Montreal and Mrs. Clyndale, of Peterborough, are nieces.

The funeral service, in the United Church, was conducted by her Pastor, Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, who delivered an address in which he tenderly reviewed a life filled with unselfish devotion to others and the work of the church. Rev. A. H. Rose assisted with the service.

The choir, knowing of the wish of the deceased, sang "Shall we Gather at the River". "They rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

Courting in a canoe; honeymoon at the beach; divorce.
